2 cups sugar
4 cups water

METHOD:

Cream butter, add sugar, add eggs one at a time and beat ingredients together. Add Cream of Wheat, nuts and cinnamon. Grease a 3" deep baking pan, fill half full with batter and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 35 to 40 minutes.

Boil sugar and water for the syrup. As soon as Halva comes out of the oven pour syrup gentlyover it. Cool and cut in squares.

P.S.: It should be light brown. Greek people serve this at Easter, instead of cake.

NOTE:

CEASE-FIRE STOPS BATTLE AT KYRENIA

Says McNamara Pledges Viet Nam Unlimited Help

Vietnamese Spokesman Says Aid to Be 'Total'

CP from Reuters-AP

SAIGON—A Vietnamese government spokesman asserted today that U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara has made it clear that American aid to South Viet Nam "will from now on be total, unlimited and without conditions."

A spokesman, Col. Tran Ngoc Huyen, said that was one of three points that emerged from Sunday's opening talks between McNamara and South Vietnamese leaders. Huyen is the chief of the South Vietnamese premier's press office.

The official Vietnam Press News agency quoted Huyen as saying McNamara's mission here "expressed full agreement, endorsement and support in the government's pacification strategy and action programs."

Huyen said "unlimited" aid meant there would be no set limit on U.S. aid to South Viet Nam.

He also said American leaders would not make "soothing statements such as predicting the end of the war at a definite date." Huyen said this indicated U.S. military and political circles had come to a real understanding of the special character of the war of attrition in South Viet Nam.

FLY FOR LOOK

Two U.S. Army men flying as gunners in a helicopter escorting McNamara were killed today when their craft lost power and crashed.

Pilot and co-pilot survived, but the two gunners were killed. The helicopter was a turbine-powered UH-1B, the same type in which McNamara and South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Khanh were riding. It was one of four helicopters armed with rockets and machine-guns assigned as escorts for the flight.

McNamara did not see the crash, which occurred a few minutes after he had walked away from the landing pad at Hoa Hao.

Vietnamese military sources said the delta is a new battle plan before McNamara Sunday night calling for the shifting of "serious" accident on High-way 7 at-noon today.

Full details were not immediately available. LaSalle Ambulance from Belleville was among those called to the scene.

The accident appeared a major crash in a rash of mishaps as ice-covered highways made driving hazardous throughout the Quinte district.

Wilson Controls Party

LONDON (AP) — Harold Wilson exercises complete control over the most turbulent Labor party, sustained by the belief that he is only months away from becoming prime minister.

He uses brains rather than theatrical tricks to maintain his position as party leader. Yet something about his performance recalls childhood memories of the circus.

Remember that breathless moment when the lion tamer walked into the cage? He seemed so lonely and frail. Magically he soon was in complete control. The lions stopped snarling and began rolling over like house cats in catnip.

Wilson has done the same sort of thing to the Labor party, long regarded as a poorly - disciplined political organization. Leftwingers, rightwingers and moderates all bow to his wishes. They even profess to have forgotten old feuds.

In little more than a year Wilson has constructed a well-drilled parliamentary team headed by a shadow cabinet — or alternative government — waiting to achieve its moment of power.

All the individualists in the party are on Wilson's side. His old rivals — George Brown and James Callaghan — lean over backward to co-operate with him.

Brown, 49, and Callaghan, approaching his 52nd birthday, both opposed Wilson for the leadership after Hugh Gaitskell died Jan. 18, 1963.

Ambulances Rush to Scene Of Accident

Ambulances were rushed to the scene of a multi-police call-a "serious" accident on Highway 7 at-noon today.

Full details were not immediately available. LaSalle Ambulance from Belleville was among those called to the scene.

The accident appeared a major crash in a rash of mishaps as ice-covered highways made driving hazardous throughout the Quinte district.

Ruby Used 'to Get Steamed Up, Turn Purple' Says Former Champ

DALLAS (AP)—Barney Ross, former world welterweight boxing champion, testified today that Jack Ruby as a teen-age boy "used to steam up and turn purple" when anyone disagreed with him.

Ross said he knew Ruby in Chicago when they both were boys.

The former boxer, wearing dark spectacles, was the second witness called in the fourth week of Ruby's murder trial began. Ruby is charged with murder with malice for having fatally shot Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Ross said he and Ruby grew up on Chicago's west side. He said he and the accused man were members of what he called "the group," a band of about 12 boys.

"We knew he would steam up pretty quick and we used to provoke him," Ross said.

Ross testified that as far as he knew Ruby had never had any trouble with the police.

Testing Point Arrives

OTTAWA (CP)—The testing point arrives this week for the new parliamentary drive to get started on its Commons commitments that this year earlier than usual.

So far results have been disappointing for those who thought the MPs would try to correct the long-standing practice of slow leisurely starts on the year's legislative work and then the hectic dash towards prorogation at the end of a session.

On the legislative program this week is completion of debate—now entering its fifth day —on a motion to submit the Columbia River development treaty and its protocol to the Commons external affairs committee. Once the treaty has been studied by the committee, another lengthy debate is almost certain to take place in the Commons before the treaty is approved.

Next on the program is the establishment of Commons special committees on procedure, defence, drugs and insecticides, and consumer credit. These committees are continuations of studies started in the 1962 fall session of Parliament.

Still to be introduced is the motion for naming standing committees. An effort was made simply to reappoint the committees as they existed at prorogation before Christmas, but this ran into trouble.

Two other reforms are high on the agenda for Commons action this week, if the preparations for committee work are completed.

One is the creation of an electoral boundaries commission which is to work with Representation Commissioner Nelson Castonguay in redrawing the 263 Commons constituency boundaries, in line with shifts in population recorded in the 1961 census.

The new machinery is an attempt to do the job without the partisan roughnesses which have been involved in such redistribution measures in the past. Parliament will have the final say, however, in boundary changes suggested by the commission.

The other bit of reform is to create a new seat on the Exchequer Court bench for Senate Divorce Commissioner Allison Smith. He was appointed to the Senate post after last session's bill creating the new office and transferring divorce cases for recommendation to the Senate.

Some opposition to the proposal to appoint him to the Exchequer Court was voiced in the Senate earlier. Jean-Francois Pouliot (L—Quebec) said Mr. Welsh's job is no more than that of a messenger boy for the Senate divorce committee, which still has a say in the adoption of the commissioner's recommendations.

Presidential Primary in N. H. May Bring Fireworks

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—New Hampshire Republicans wrestle with a highly complex ballot in a presidential primary Tuesday which could produce some spectacular fireworks in this New England state.

New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller has come out of the political doghouse in which he found himself after divorcing his wife and marrying the divorced mother of four children, to challenge Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona for the leadership of the Republican popularity balloting.

At stake in the voting are only 14 of the 655 delegate votes needed to win the Republican nomination in San Francisco next July. But involved is the matter of the prestige that will accrue to the winner of the country's first 1964 primary contest where party faithful state preferences in electing convention delegates.

As the situation shapes up, Rockefeller would benefit by pulling close to Goldwater—or even topping him—in a battle where the Arizona senator is said to have had a 2-to-1 advantage when campaigning began in January.

For Goldwater, a share of the vote larger than that of any of the other five individuals who figure in it one way or another would demonstrate that a western conservative Republican of his stripe could command a solid base of party support in the northeast.

Rockefeller makes no last-minute claims but Goldwater told a press conference confidently as he carried on his final day of campaigning "I have it made."

Goldwater tossed off some other predictions for the day—that a surging write-in campaign could put Henry Cabot Lodge, the U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, ahead of Rockefeller in the popular vote. It was his opinion, Goldwater said that if Lodge "takes votes from anybody, it will be from Rockefeller."

The Arizona senator saw the possibility that a write-in campaign for Attorney-General Robert Kennedy for vice-president could result in President Johnson's being "faced with a bear."

Democratic Governor John King asked party members to write in the names of Johnson and Kennedy on the ballot. The attorney-general asked supporters not to put the president on a spot in the choice of a running mate, but King replied it was too late to stop the movement.

If any definitive result came out of the Republican primary it would be at the expense of considerable patience on the part of individual voters. They are asked to pick 14 convention delegates and 14 alternates from five different slates, including one uncommitted group.

They could choose their nonbinding presidential preference from among Goldwater, Rockefeller, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Harold E. Stassen, once governor of Minnesota, and a local entry.

In the popularity contest the voters were being urged to write in the names of Lodge and Richard Nixon, the 1960 presidential nominee.

Suspicion remained among Republican politicians that somebody wasn't involved—or only indirectly so—in the expensive hi-jinks of campaigning New Hampshire might get some out of the July convention with the presidential nomination.

Two Seal Hunters Rescued

HALIFAX (CP) — Two seal hunters were rescued from an ice pan in the Gulf of St. Lawrence this morning after being adrift since early Sunday.

Eric Richard, 38, and Octave Richard, 30, both of Grindstone, Que., were picked up by a light aircraft and brought back to Grindstone.

Meanwhile seal hunting in the gulf moved into its fifth day today with one fatality recorded.

Since the season started last Thursday, movements of a fleet of small aircraft engaged in the hunt with eight sealing ships have led to several searches for missing planes and hunters by the RCAF.

Conrad Longuepe, 21, of Fatima on Gull Island, the central island in the Magdalens group, was drowned Saturday when the ice pan on which he was hunting apparently broke away from the main pan.

Seven hunters became stranded on ice cakes Saturday when the floes drifted away from the main hunting group. All reached land safely.

White's Rink Wins First One At Thornhill

A rink of Mrs. Agnes Benn, lead, Ron Benn, second, Mrs. Heather White, vice and Mac White, skip, have crossed the first hurdle in their quest for Provincial honours in the mixed spiel event known as the Rose Bowl. They defeated a rink of Mrs. Beverley Lambert, lead, Jim Lambert, second, Mrs. Marjorie Sinclair, vice with Morris Christie of Owen Sound as skip 11-8 in the first round at Thornhill this morning.

There are six other rinks competing in this event, Harvey Acton of Uxbridge, C. Kastkett of London Hunt Club, Don Hunt of St. Catharines, A. Jones of Guelph, Jim Johnson of Dixie and A. Turner of Elmvale. It is a knockout draw and it was not known at press time the opponents for the White rink in the next round as the first-round games other than the White game had not been completed.

Mr. White and his rinks have been very close to Provincial honours on several occasions and the curling fans of the district are pulling for him to pull this one off. The winner of this competition will play in Toronto next Sunday in the Dominion round robin series with the winners from nine other Provinces.

Conference Could Set Pace To Form New Labor Force

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal Labor Minister MacEachen and provincial labor ministers or labor open a two-day conference today that could set the stage for a new partnership aimed at fashioning a flexible mobile skilled work force for the automation era.

The conference is the first since the federal-provincial labor ministers' meeting in 1946 when wartime labor regulations were dismantled.

Sources hope the meeting will produce a new understanding—perhaps even some new and formal agreement — on how Canada's pressing manpower problems can be tackled effectively and co-operatively at both the federal and provincial levels.

Top agenda is set against a background of rapid and sometimes bewildering changes in industrial technology and the labor force—all requiring new approaches by organized labor, big business, industry, the provinces and the federal government.

The conference will open with a round-table study of apprenticeship and training — a field that lies at the root of Canada's capability for producing the new skills needed in the highly-competitive world arena of technology.

Informants say the federal government would like to set up machinery for closer co-operation with the provinces on training of young workers for the kind of jobs expected to be needed in the future. This would be a major change from the existing training system related directly to present—rather than future—needs.

Mr. MacEachen is expected to outline the government's promised na-

Town Raked With Gun Fire And Mortars

Govt. Accuses Turks Of Starting Fighting

CP from Reuters-AP

NICOSIA — Fighting stopped this afternoon in Kirenia, northwest Cyprus, under a temporary cease-fire, Maj.-Gen. Richard Carver, British commander of the truce force, announced. Carver made the announcement after a helicopter trip to Kirima, where new heavy fighting broke out this morning.

Mortars and machine-gun fire raked Kitim, leaving at least one Greek - Cypriot dead and fears that the toll would go higher.

A Greek-Cypriot spokesman said the government ordered an "all-out attempt" to impose government authority on the entire town.

Fires raged in some parts of the town. British army officials said firemen couldn't get at the flames because of the heavy shooting.

BLAME TURKS

A Greek-Cypriot government statement accused the Turks of starting the fighting by open fire firing without provocation from the minaret of a mosque overlooking Kitma's market place. The government warned it would attack the minarets if the Turkish - Cypriots continued to use them for machine - gun posts.

The government also accused the British of protecting Turkish positions. It said a Greek-Cypriot was killed by a Turk who fired from behind a British armored car.

The government statement added:

"At about 10 a.m. today Turkish insurgents made use of long-range heavy weapons firing against (Greek-Cypriot) security forces. Heavy firing was heard all over the town. British troops continue to protect Turkish positions."

At 10:45 a.m. Turkish terrorists used mortars in their attacks against Greek quarters. State forces are advancing and enforcing the truce.

British headquarters said mortars and armored bulldozers were brought into the action. The Greeks lobbed mortar shells into the Turkish quarters, but later halted at the request of the British truce force in Kitma, a British spokesman said.

Indian Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani, commander of the UN planned UN police force, had planned to fly by helicopter to the embattled town after an emergency meeting with President Makarios. However, a UN spokesman said it was not

Will Meet To Decide On Opening

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP)— The Ontario Flue - Cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board is to meet Wednesday to decide when tobacco auctions at Tillsonburg, Aylmer and Delhi will reopen.

George Demeyere, board chairman, said Saturday that preliminary meetings will be held today and Tuesday between board members, buyers and government officials in an effort to come to terms in the 10-day crisis.

Tobacco growers forced closure of the auction houses Feb. 28 to protest deteriorating market prices. About one third of Ontario's 1964 crop is still to be sold.

The meetings may end the stalemate climaxed last week by a march of 200 angry growers on Queen's Park and a closed meeting of the government's tobacco advisory committee in London.

The drawn-out dispute also resulted last week in tobacco growers' protests and a warning from three major tobacco companies that layoffs could reach 1,000 if auctions remain closed.

CLOSES SHOPS

Imperial Leaf Tobacco Company of Canada Limited, the largest buyer of Ontario tobacco, has already laid off about 60 employees at its Aylmer plant.

George Crosier of Delhi, who is in charge of processing, said the plant will close Wednesday and the remaining 100 employees would be laid off.

The growers, who marched on Toronto Friday, sought a return to a policy of establishing minimum market price levels.

Six of the demonstrators held a 6-minute talk with Agriculture Minister Stewart who announced after the meeting that "I can't say we've easy close to a solution."

A majority of Ontario's 4,500 growers have agreed to keep the auctions closed until the matter is settled.

Henry Ash of Otterville, one of the directors of the marketing board said he believes the

Buxom Jewesses Helped SS Relax After Hard Day at Gas Chambers

FRANKFURT (AP) — A Wiesaa said Germany's largest war crimes trial today that guards at Auschwitz concentration camp kept themselves supple by buxom Jewesses to relax from the strains of gassing thousands of Jews to death.

"Those Jewesses were very lovely young things—Oriental-like beauties — with whom the SS guards relaxed after working long hours at selecting other Jews for the gas chambers and then gassing them," Dr. Konrad Morgen told the trial of 22 SS guards, officials and Auschwitz functionaries.

Dr. Morgen, a former SS (Elite Guard) captain, testified he once walked into a room at Auschwitz where he saw "a scene such as one would never have found with any other military organization in the world."

"Four or five young SS guards were sprawled over several couches, completely relaxed, a glazed expression in their eyes which told me they'd had experienced a strenuous night with the four or five Jewesses present, and quite naked.

"The girls, prisoners at Auschwitz, did not wear the inmate uniform but rather the pretty, civilian dresses. When I came in they were handing their SS guards drinks and asking them if they wanted a back rub or some such."

Morgen, an investigating lawyer for the SS during the Second World War, said he went to Auschwitz to look into reports that SS guards were stealing valuables from Jewish prisoners that should have gone to the Nazi treasury.

"They were not only stealing things the Jewish prisoners brought with them to Auschwitz, but also the gold teeth extracted from gassed prisoners, teeth which should have been forwarded to the Reichsbank."

Morgen said he discovered that SS men were sending home "pounds and pounds of gold teeth that came from thousands of gassed prisoners."

Last year taxpayers subsidized the city bus lines to the extent of $43,922, the total of operational deficit amounting to $26,688 and $17,235 in debenture debt charges, said Mr. Pinder.

And in 1964 it is estimated the year's operational deficit will be up another $10,000 to $53,960.

And again it will be the property owner who will have to pay.

But City Transit Commission Chairman Kenneth Pinder says there is nothing much can be done about it except to hope for more bus riders.

He says the cost of nearly everything in connection with operation of the bus line is up and increased costs are not being offset by additional revenue.

MAINTENANCE CHARGES UP

Revenue from fares in 1964 is estimated at $107,000, the same that was budgeted for in 1963.

On the other hand operating expenses, including wages, employees' benefits, gas and oil, maintenance and debenture dept charges will be up.

One of Mr. Pinder's wishes is that more car owners could be coaxed into leaving their cars at home and ride the buses more often.

"It is the same all over the province, Mr. Pinder says, "and there doesn't seem to be much that we can do about it."

Queensboro Youth Killed In Accident

MADOC (Special) — For the second time in a week a 25 year-old James Ernest Walker, a native of Queensboro, has been injured in a fatal weekend accident near here.

Mr. Walker today is in the Belleville General Hospital, with minor injuries after a two-car crash on a county road two miles northeast of here on Saturday night.

Instantly killed was the driver of the other car, 18-year-old Alfred George Gordon, Queensboro.

On March 30 last year—a Saturday morning—Mr. Walker, now living in Oshawa, was seriously injured in a crash on the Madoc County Road Motor Limited.

Alfred Gordon was described as popular among the teenagers set in Madoc township.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Alfred Gordon, he was born at Queensboro, but had lived in Madoc until six years ago when he returned to Queensboro with his parents. He attended school at Queensboro and Madoc and attended Queensboro United Church.

Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Ralph Reginald and Donald Edward Gordon, and three sisters, Valery Roberta, Lynda Florence and Heather Elizabeth Gordon, all at home.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday under the direction of the MacKenzie Funeral Home from the residence of the grandparents in Queensboro, with interment in Queensboro cemetery.

Two Trenton Rinks Win Cups in Tri-Quinte Spiel

The Tri-Quinte mixed bonspiel drew to a close at the Trenton Curling Club on Sunday night with the finals in the four events being played and the host club had four rinks on the ice with two of them winning trophies and the accompanying prizes. It was a most successful spiel and the committee that organized and carried it through with eighty rinks in competition, is to be congratulated. Already plans are being laid for a bigger and better spiel next year.

The Alexander Vending trophy was won by a rink of Betty Bigley, Bruce Ripley, Hazel Grummett and Dan Grummett as skip from Downview, defeating a rink of Mary Lawton, Ernie Lawton, Irene Fletcher and skipped by Jim Carter of the RCAF. The score was 10-1.

TROPHIES PRESENTED

At the conclusion of the matches, James Duncan, general chairman, thanked the curlers for their participation, hoped they had a good time and invited them back again. The Haggerty Trophy was presented by Al Maitland, manager of the firm at Trenton, the Alexander Vending trophy by James Duncan, the Caring trophy by Al Hardy and the Fox Carriage by Harold Clarke, manager of the firm.

A Belleville rink skipped by Bob Kennedy defeated the fours in the Haggerty trophy was defeated in the semi-finals by the Worrall rink from Trenton while a rink skipped by Bill Riley was defeated by Dan Grummett in the semi-finals of the Alexander Vending trophy. The Trenton Club had the best average of any of the twelve clubs in the district by placing four of their rinks in the finals out of which two rinks has originally entered. The ice at all clubs was in excellent condition due to the fine work of the icemakers. The umpires kept everything under control and the drawmasters at the clubs had their scores into the main office in record time. To all it was a well run spiel and the visiting curlers went home with happy memories.

Historical Society Will Hold Meeting

The Hastings County Historical Society will hold its first general meeting of 1964 on Tuesday, March 16, in the Corby Library Auditorium.

Guest speakers will be Mrs. Gordon Williamson, who will show a filmstrip on "Pioneer Life in Upper Canada", and Mr. Thomas Bannon who will use recorded examples to outline the "History of the Music Box."

Both topics promise to be unusual, entertaining and interesting. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The business part of the meeting will see the introduction of the historical society's budget for 1964.

Also, there will be a door prize of a facsimile 1886 Hastings County wall map. These maps were printed for the Belleville Intelligencer, newspaper more than 60 years ago and the Museum was fortunate enough to receive a number as a portion of the original maps.

In keeping with the policy of encouraging local records, the historical society has held workshops at the Belleville Library every Monday evenings. There will be another workshop at 7:30 tonight and all 8 o'clock and interested persons are invited to attend. One of the tasks to be undertaken is the sorting of the museum's picture collection and it is hoped that one hundred persons will be able to be on hand to aid in that interesting work.

Light refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the workshop.

Society Starts Drive for Membership

Letters are going out this week to members and friends of the Belleville County Historical Society inviting them to become members for the 1964 season.

According to historical society president, Gerald Boyce, there is a big rising membership over the 200 level.

Information are being asked to enlist another member for the society as well as renewing memberships for 1964.

Membership fees are two dollars per year for individuals and the money raised helps in the operation of the County Museum and with the projects of the historical society.

Individuals interested in becoming members can forward their fees directly to the County Museum, 240 Church St.

Sleet and Ice Cover Roads In District

Driving conditions were treacherous in the Bay of Quinte district this morning as a liberal coating of sleet and ice covered streets and sidewalks.

Truck and auto wheels soon cut through the ice coating on the main travelled streets and highways but by late morning it was still slippery going on side streets.

Motorists in the Belleville area apparently patterned their driving to match slippery road conditions and no accidents in the city were reported.

At Thomasburg, however, one accident was reported resulting in personal injuries, while two other mishaps were reported in the Madoc area.

Trees, bushes, hydro and telephone wires also were ice coated as result of the freezing rain which fell through the night.

WANTS NAME REMOVED

SPENNYMOOR, England (CP)—Mrs. Mary Raw, 45-year-old widow, says she will "never rest" until her late husband's name is removed from a County Durham war memorial. Her husband, who died in a Second World War aircraft accident, had told his wife he detested memorials. She heard only recently that his name had been included in the memorial.

29 Missionaries Expelled From Sudan

ROME (AP) — Twenty-nine Roman Catholic missionaries expelled from Sudan arrived here by plane Sunday and one said a nun had died Saturday at Khartoum as a result of earlier mistreatment.

Sunday's arrivals were the second group of expelled missionaries. Ten arrived five days ago, and a third group of 130, was expected today.

Sunday's group was mostly from missions at Wau and Juab, in south Sudan. Many of them had been there for years.

Sudan's Interior minister, Gen. Mohamed Ahmed Abu, announced on Feb. 27 that 300 foreign missionaries—272 Catholics and 28 Protestants — had been ordered expelled from the country's southern provinces, where a bloody civil struggle for independence broke out more than a year ago. The Sudanese government is Arab-controlled.

auctions should be reopened as soon as possible.

"Many farmers never supported the Farmers' Union to start," he said.

"We must get rid of the 65,000,000 pounds of tobacco out in the farmers' barns before the warm weather spoils some of it."

Value of the tobacco is about $52,000,000.

John Tarr of Nixon, leader of the group that forced the auctions to close, gave a different view.

"We do not intend to see sales resume until a system of minimum grade prices is in use.

"We intend to keep them closed until some form of protection is offered to protect prices. This is not an idle threat. We mean what we say."

Coffin Hearing May Continue For 2 Months

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — The main witness Tuesday as the Quebec royal commission on the Coffin case moves into its fifth day of hearings probably will be Lieutenant Sgt. Henri Doyon of the Quebec Provincial Police.

Mr. Doyon may still be on the stand when this week's hearings end Thursday. He was a central figure in Jacques Hebert's book "J'accuse les Assassins de Coffin" (I accuse Coffin's assassins) and he has been close to the case since it began in 1953.

Mr. Hebert contends in his book that Mr. Doyon's dismissal from the force in 1961 was a result of the Coffin case. The author testified he had tried by writing and telephoning former attorney - general Lucien Cliche palme to get Mr. Doyon reinstated.

The royal commission under Mr. Justice Roger Brossard so far has featured close questioning of cross-examination by a half-dozen lawyers and prosecutors, as well as the commissioner himself.

CHECKING EVIDENCE

At one point, Mr. Justice Brossard told a lawyer he didn't intend to allow the commission to become a preparatory stage for possible appeals.

Main figures last week were former constable Lewis Syvret, 33, a Chapeau native who quit the QPP in 1961, and John Edward Bellveau, 50, former Toronto Star reporter who wrote a book about the case.

Mr. Syvret said both as main sources of his contention that a note dated June 13, 1953, and bearing the signature of one of the three Pennsylvania hunters Coffin was alleged to have murdered was found by police but wasn't entered as evidence.

Mr. Hebert said this would have been an alibi for Coffin, who was in Montreal June 12, 1953.

SAW ONE NOTE

But Mr. Syvret testified that he had only seen one note dated June 13, 1953 — he couldn't remember what it was because there hadn't been any message or signature on it.

Mr. Bellveau said he couldn't recall detail of a conversation with Mr. Hebert about the notes and had never seen such a note himself.

Room 113 of the court house has been packed each day so far and some of the audience carry copies of the Hebert book.

It is exhibit No. 12 in the inquiry.

Hearings are expected to last another two months and may be held in Perce, Que., and Toronto.

Music Column

By ART HARLAND

LOIS KELLEHER

Lois is in Grade 11. She came to Quinte with a rich musical background including six years private piano lessons and three years of vocal lessons. She started on the oboe in Grade 9 but changed to the clarinet in Grade 10. She plays first clarinet in the Quinte Senior Concert Band and has been one of the musicians helping Quinte Second day School Band to earn the respect it now enjoys. Lois has been present with the concert band when they took part in four Santa Claus parades, played for the Home and School Association, played at the School Commencement Exercises, played for the official school opening, played three nights in Quinte Variety Review and played in many school assemblies and football games. Lois has been extremely active this year but considers her musical activities as an important part of her education.

Lois still finds time and has the ability to be a consistent member of the 80 Percent Club in school. She has noticed a strong correlation between music students and strong academic students. A possible answer for this may be the fact an interest in any one area of school life is bound to carry over to other areas.

Last summer Lois went to a music camp at Beaverton on Lake Simcoe with several of her school friends. Although she practiced 5 to 7 hours daily she stated, "It was one of the most wonderful experiences of my life."

Lois attends three band practices weekly and has five music periods weekly in school. Lois said, "I always look forward to music classes as they are an extremely useful and practical academic subject as well as offering a break in the daily routine."

When asked what she felt the main reason she was studying music was she replied, "Music will help me to relax and to appreciate life more fully in the future."

Rifle Slaying Of Young Boy Brings Arrest

TORONTO (CP) — Reinhard Schaffert, 34, of suburban Scarborough, was charged with capital murder Sunday in the rifle slaying of an 11-year-old boy.

Dieter Strodthoff was pronounced dead in hospital after he was admitted with four rifle bullet wounds in his body.

Police said Schaffert, a lodger in the house owned by the boy's parents, went to a police station about three blocks from the scene of the shooting and stood outside. A patrol sergeant spoke to him and then escorted him inside.

The boy's brother Karl, 13, heard the shooting from another room in the house. He called police who found a .22 - calibre rifle in the driveway.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Strodthoff were at work when the shooting occurred.

Civil Rights Debate Opens In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate begins its civil rights debate today with few members willing to predict how or when it will end.

The 10-point measure, which cleared the House of Representatives by a vote of 290 to 130 four weeks ago and has President Johnson's firm support, represents a broad attempt to advance the rights of Negroes.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana will make the first move soon after the Senate convenes with a simple motion to consider the bill.

The motion is debatable and the southerners have said they will be ready to debate it, perhaps for longer than a week.

This raises the possibility of a double filibuster—on the motion to take up the bill and then on the bill itself.

LET THEM PASS

In past civil rights skirmishes southern forces usually permitted adoption of considerations motions after brief flurries of opposition. The southerners have been reluctant to run the risk of a successful cloture—the Senate's cumbersome shutoff procedure—at the outset.

The civil rights battle is expected to gradually shut down all other Senate business. But leaders said they would not schedule extra-long sessions at the outset, and some committees plan to operate this week.

Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.-Ore.) has served notice that he will make an attempt to shunt the civil rights bill to the Judiciary committee once Mansfield opens debate.

The senate voted 54 to 37 Feb. 26 by bypass the judiciary committee. Headed by segregationist Senator James O. Eastland (Dem. Miss.), it often is the graveyard of civil rights bills.

Morse has said he will support the bill but that he feels 10 days of committee consideration would improve its chances.

LUSKVILLE, Que. (CP) — All six members of a young Hull, Que., family were killed Sunday when their car left the highway and plunged into a water-filled ditch near here.

Henri Levesque, a 30-year-old furniture salesman, his 29-year-old wife Carmen, and children ranging in age from two months to six years, were drowned.

The Levesque children were: Michel, 6; Daniel, 5; Sylvie, 2; and Robert, two months.

Police said it appeared the car had skidded off Highway 8 three miles west of here after hitting an icy spot on the road. It plunged into the ditch situated about 10 feet off the road and running for 40 feet parallel to the road.

Area residents said the ditch resulted from old prospecting diggings that had never been filled.

Mr. Levesque and his wife originally were from Val d'Or, Que.

Two Boys Had 'Narrow Squeak' Riding Bike

TRENTON — Two Trenton boys, Richard Mills, ten and his brother, Donald, five, of 197 Sidney St., had what Constable Fred Nokes of the Trenton Police Force described as a "narrow squeak" when the brakes on the bicycle they were sharing failed, and the vehicle plowed into the left rear fender of a car driven by Douglas George Chambers of Murray Township. The accident occurred around two p.m., at the corner of Dominion and Mercia Sts.

Constable Nokes said after the accident that the boys were "shaken up."

"They were lucky," said the police officer, "another few feet and they'd have been under the wheels of the car. You can fix things like bikes and cars but you can't mend bodies as handily."

The officer said that he took the boys home where he and their parents warned them of the dangers of riding in traffic.

Today, Mrs. Lucinda Wannamaker of Trenton is 101 years old. Yesterday, she celebrated her birthday at Panda's Villa, greeted dozens of guests and cut the first slice of her birthday cake, with the help of her daughter, Mrs. Ross Carrurite.

TRENTON — A native of Prince Edward County, Mrs. A. (Lucinda) Wannamaker, is 101 years old today. Yesterday, the active centenarian celebrated her birthday at Panda's Villa and greeted more than 100 members of her family and friends of long standing. She insisted on getting on her feet to cut the first slice of her huge birthday cake, (with 101 candles and baked by the cook at the nursing home, Mrs. Eileen Deville). The party had been arranged by the nursing home superintendent, Mrs. James Pendachenin and the lunch was prepared by the staff at the home. Pouring tea was Mrs. Jesse Baker.

Mrs. Wannamaker comes from United Empire Loyalist stock and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Harris of "The County."

Pte. ...ied by her husband, Asa, Mrs. Wannamaker looks back on the days when he worked as a stationary engineer and recalls that he "helped to put through the Murray Canal," officially opened by Sir John A. Macdonald. Mrs. Wannamaker's prime minister, before the turn of the century.

Asa and Lucinda had three children, Mrs. Ross Carrurite of Smithfield, A. H. Wannamaker of Carrying Place and Mrs. Fred Kemp, deceased. There are 11 grandchildren, 23 great grandchildren and four great, great grandchildren.

Because she is hard of hearing, Mrs. Wannamaker sticks fairly close to her cheery room in the nursing home, but is always ready to exchange a smile and a few cheerful words with the nurses and visitors. Yesterday, she was quite aware of the fact that she was the centre of attraction at her party and rose to the occasion, greeting each guest individually, asking after his or her health and recalling family connections with amazing clarity.

Consider Park

TRENTON — Four Westmount Park resident and subdivision developer William Sidor have been asked by the Trenton Parks Board to attend a regular Board meeting tomorrow night where the pros and cons of establishing a park in the housing development will be discussed. Since the development stands adjacent Hannal Park, the first thinking of the Parks' Board was that an additional park would be unnecessary. But the residents have indicated that another park would be preferable to additional housing in this area. The Parks Board meeting is said to be the municipal office and starting time for the meeting is 8 p.m.

Mandy Ordered To Leave Turkey On First Plane

CP from Reuters-AP

ISTANBUL — Mandy Rice-Davies, a figure in the Profumo sex-and-security scandal that rocked Britain last year, was ordered Sunday to leave Turkey for immoral actions and improper language.

The director - general of the Turkish national security, who ordered the deportation, told the 19-year-old blonde to leave Turkey by the "first available plane."

Miss Rice-Davies was a friend of Christine Keeler, John Profumo, war minister in the British Conservative government, admitted earlier last year he lied to Parliament in denying an improper association with model Keeler. He resigned.

The arrival was followed by a press conference held by Turkey's Union of Women and the Society of Mothers Saturday during which Mandy was declared "unwanted in Turkey."

Oppose Arbitrary Retirement Age

The Canadian Congress of Labor is opposed to setting an arbitrary age for retirement.

"We believe that workers should be permitted to work as long as they are able and willing to do so," it said in a brief to the Senate Committee studying the problems of aged people.

The opinion is noteworthy, not only for the viewpoint expressed but also because of its source.

There is mounting evidence that a great many people are much happier working than idling, and happiness is the aim of all retirement and pension plans. It would be ironic if, in our efforts to provide the aged with security, we merely assured them of long years of boredom, or outright misery.

It may be objected that another factor besides the welfare of the aged enters into the modern efforts to enable them to quit work when their power declines. This secondary, or perhaps even primary, motive, it can be argued, is to free the machinery of production of those parts unable to operate at full speed.

This, though, is to give primacy to the ability to produce, just when machines have relieved us of the necessity of viewing production in this light. There was a time when it was essential that the aged should do what work they could, in order that there might be enough for all to eat and wear. Today though, in the industrialised countries, there is no difficulty in producing enough to meet the essential needs of everybody, even if the rate of production is slowed still by including a few workers past their prime. And, in any event, it ought to be possible to find these older workers jobs where they would add to, rather than detract from, the nation's ability to produce.

So much for the opinion itself. We think it is sound.

Of almost equal significance, though, is its source. There are two reasons why this may occasion some surprise. Firstly, the Congress, in expressing it, had to point out that forced retirement of workers might be one result of pension plans, of which the Congress and labor organizations generally have been advocates. Secondly, by espousing the right of older workers to remain at their jobs, the Congress runs the risk of alienating younger workers, who may find jobs harder to secure if the Congress is heeded and who may also resent prospects for faster promotion being dimmed by the retention of old hands. In one sense, the Congress may be taking the part of a minority against the majority of its members.

This attitude is not unique in recent pronouncements by labor groups and springs, we suggest, from the retention by labor bodies of research directors who could rightfully be classed as intellectuals. It would not be surprising if the Congress pronouncement on this point reflected the personal beliefs of its research director, Dr. Eugene Forsey. A recognized expert on the Canadian constitution, Dr. Forsey is noted for having the courage of his convictions. Early associated with the CCF, which united with the Canadian Congress of Labor to give birth to the New Democratic Party, he recently severed his personal links with the New Democrats over that party's attitude towards federalism.

Men of this type, producing briefs after careful study for various investigating commissions, are changing the voice with which labor speaks. Sometimes their pronouncements will always receive the endorsement of the rank and file remains to be seen, but the liberal-minded intellectual has found a method of reaching that which to contribute views on national problems.

According to our temperament, we may like or dislike particular changes in language, just as we may like or dislike flick-up hair-do's or skirt-style dresses or stainless steel tableware, or anything else that the winds of change blow our way. But we must be clear in our minds about one thing: it is no more disreputable to be using a somewhat different daily language from that of our great-grandparents than it is to travel by Viscount instead of stagecoach.—Randolph Quirk, Professor of English Language at University College, London.

An early lesson I learned from my sister, who also has twins, was always to buy different colored shoes and boots. This is an immensely practical tip. Its advantages include the obvious one of not mixing up their footwear. Also, it means that when one sees some crime committed at a distance, one can tell when only the back is showing, which name to strike.—Sarah Caisley, a mother of twins.

Are Scientists Evil?

There is a growing concern about the impact of science and technology upon our society and with it a mounting antagonism toward scientists and scientists — particularly toward scientists — in some intellectual quarters.

This has been characterized wrongly, I believe, as the conflict between the humanists and scientific cultures.

To be sure, modern society faces many confusing and overwhelming problems, many of them traceable to rampant technology. But the real problem, I suspect, the choices involved in the application of scientific knowledge, the gains and the consequences, must be shared broadly and for this reason understood in the broadest view.

* * *

Attacks upon science and scientists are not new but they grow more intense.

Many years ago when I was much younger and even less clear about the world than I am today, I participated in a symposium at New York City on "the social responsibilities of scientists." The only thing that I can now seem to see was that the humanists selected for the discussion didn't like scientists and felt that scientists were evil incarnate.

This was a different brand of humanist from my colleagues here in New England with whom I have shared many pleasant exhilarating problems of science, society, literature, history, problems big and small.

I was not able to understand the antagonism of these intellects in New York, much less what they wanted scientists to do about it. As far as I could decipher, their message was this: the world was going to pieces, the scientists were entirely to blame, and unless they stopped quickly all was lost. But I didn't understand what reform was needed and I was puzzled about what I should or could do.

* * *

In an attempt to make the discussion more understandable, I suggested that it might be profitable to discuss some specific issues and alternative courses of action. That response to this was a scathing attack whose final herb I remember to this day.

It was delivered by Dr. Russel Kirk, author of "The Conservative Mind," and his main rather patronizing "scientists think that they can do good. They even seem to understand all poverty and illness from the earth."

I must admit that this stopped me. It even seemed to confuse some of the audience.

* * *

Subsequently, as I have reflected on that meeting and have given Dr. Kirk the benefit of the doubt by assuming that he meant to say something, I have concluded that he was worried about how man would respond if he was forced to live in Utopia. This is clearly no problem for our generation, or indeed for many generations to come.

I tell this not to accuse you, but to indicate that we do have a very real problem. As people of presumed ability, rationality and judgment can become so distorted, confused and confused that they prattle incoherent gibberish, something very serious must be ill.

* * *

Dr. Fellman speaks specifically of public health measures which he says are matters of "scientific fact" — not opinion — and should always override religious liberty. The courts, he adds, "can be guided only by prevailing medical opinion."

We would rather accept the opinion of Justice Louis Brandeis, who stated in his 1928 dissent in Olmstead v. the United States:

"Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment, by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

Religious Liberty

Christian Science Monitor

It is commonly accepted that American liberty is the absolute right to believe what they want to but not an absolute right to act.

We agree. But in our judgment the freedom to act in accordance with the dictates of one's religious beliefs should be restricted only as a last resort and when overwhelmingly justified.

A different standard has recently been presented. Dr. David Fellman, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin, would limit religious liberty must always give way to the requirements of "wholesome" police regulation.

As for restraints on police power to protect the religious liberty of minorities, Dr. Fellman feels none is needed because the majority is practically out of a democratic system with free elections and a free judiciary.

Men and women of religious conviction cannot accept that what the state considers "reasonable" or "wholesome" is necessarily right, regardless of when the state isn't right!

Nor can we accept that the pressures of the majority will always protect the rights of the minority. As Dr. Fellman admits, Jews, Roman Catholics, and Protestants were all at one time or another persecuted minorities.

* * *

There is a direct contradiction between what Dr. Fellman says about police power and what he says about religious liberty.

On the latter Dr. Fellman states: ". . . the Constitution protects religious freedom and forbids establishments. This means that religious freedom is the rule, and that restraint is at best the exception to the rule. The burden of proof, therefore, is upon those who seek to justify restraint . . . I think it follows that all doubts must be resolved in favor of, and never against, this highly prized constitutional right."

We conclude from this that the state should have to justify the use of its police power by a much stricter standard than the highly subjective test of "reasonableness" or "wholesomeness."

* * *

Dr. Fellman also quotes William W. Van Alstyne as urging that the state remain sensitive to alternative civic processes which would "perhaps upon their religion least."

We believe the test set forth by the Supreme Court of the United States in the recent unemployment compensation case of Sherbert v. Verner — is the proper test.

The court ruled that a person should not be restricted in the free exercise of his religion unless (a) there is a substantial threat to public safety that

Some Problems Do Not Have Set Solutions

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

About twice a year, as regularly as the equinoxes, we may expect some distressed public figure, writing in some magazine of mass circulation, to come out in favor of legalizing gambling in the United States.

All these articles say the same thing, and the formula refrain: the people are going to gamble, regardless of laws, and therefore why should the public coffers benefit from this activity, instead of letting billions be diverted into the hands of organized crime and illicit gambling.

They also point to the legalization of gambling in such lawabiding countries as England, where the "turf bookies" are licensed and respectable members of society and there is no hint of lawlessness or gangsterdom in British gambling operations.

These voices, of course, are opposed by those equally vociferous — and especially by law enforcement agencies, who insist that the legalization of gambling would not keep out the mobsters and would make the situation even worse than it is today.

I happen to think it is one of those problems that have no solution — given the makeup of American society and politics today. Whichever we do, the racketeers will take the cream off the top of the gambling bucket.

Gambling is a vice, if only a minor one, and it is safe and decent to legalize a vice only if the people have excellent self-control and if it does not upset the structure of law, as they do in England. The whole ethos of the people there is entirely different from that in the United States.

The American people are generally contemptuous of, or indifferent to, the structure of law in this country, because at its long and unsavory alliance with political elements. Especially is it true in the cities, where most gambling goes on, they are cynical about the police, and they feel that, legalized or not, most gambling profits will find their way into predetermined private hands.

The added revenues that legalization would bring might go, as its proponents suggests, for schools and hospitals — but legalization would also mean more gambling, more police to control an increase in crime by amateur gamblers, and more welfare expenses for the families of unlucky and compulsive gamblers.

It's a bad situation as it stands today, and it would be just as bad (if not worse) with legalized gambling. Life is not that serious of problems and solutions; some problems have no solutions, when the problem itself ceases as an object of

Starvation Diet Effective But Can Become Expensive

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read with interest about a new concept in weight reduction whereby a patient is hospitalized and placed on a regimen of total abstinence of food for several weeks, depending on circumstances.

Has this been researched in any area? If so, how could I be included in such a treatment? — J. A. V.

The American Medical Association and a number of other groups have had reports on this type of medicine, and there have been several articles concerning extremely fat people who have lost a lot of pounds by it.

The treatment works. It has to work if you deprive a patient of all, or essentially all, calories and maintain watching him, testing him, and taking precautions against harming him in the course of such a drastic procedure.

It's expensive. On the average the cost of this is about $1,000 to keep anybody in a first class, up-to-date hospital. Three cases of that is more than $000.

Even more important, the loss of weight doesn't mean anything unless the patient learns, in those three weeks, something he didn't learn in all his life: How to eat! He must learn that when he gets fat he is eating more than is required to keep his body operating efficiently. He must learn to control his appetite, to get along and be happy on less.

In an enforced "starvation diet" watching the patient's health is only a small part of the doctor's job. The big part is talking to him, at length, not only explaining but convincing him that he will be better off — in fact, better off! — if he will make himself abide by what he knows is so. The way to reduce is to eat a little less each day.

Don't expect to get into a "treatment group" — because each patient has to be treated as an individual and watched to see that he doesn't sneak out for a dollar's worth of candy bars.

How to change your eating habits by yourself? I suggest that you read a couple of my leaflets. Send an unstamped, self - addressed envelope and 15c in coin and ask for the pair of them, "Lost Secret of Reducing" and "The Calorie Chart."

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes difficulty in breathing in a boy of 12? He has complained frequently for about two years. Doctors have checked him, including a cardiogram, and have found nothing wrong.

It makes me very upset as he cries and can't sleep. Will he outgrow this? Is it just nervousness, as one doctor said? — Mrs. A. M.

Difficulty in breathing is unusual in a youngster. If a child has asthma or a heart condition you might expect it. The tests mentioned by you would certainly have uncovered these if they existed.

Therefore the "nervousness" suggestion makes sense. I also suspect some psychological disturbance. The crying implies it, too.

For a child to observe his play patterns, attitude toward school, relationship to friends or members of the family, if you and the doctor can't solve the problem you might consider a child psychologist.

Note to "Reader": No, leukemia is not contagious. The exact cause of it, however, is not yet apparent, although this is under considerable study.

Shocking Fallout Facts

By Bertrand Russell in The Minority of One.

The struggle for peace has been very much dependent upon the willingness of those who know the truth to speak it.

Scientists who have not been in the pay of governments have known and realized the horrible danger with regard to radioactive fallout resulting from nuclear tests in the atmosphere. Governmental scientists, on the other hand, have been evasive and often openly dishonest in their remarks about these phenomena.

* * *

The scientist has a particular responsibility to tell the truth about his work and the zeal that his creative endeavor is not profaned in this way.

Those scientists who have worked for governments have said that nuclear testing did not provide a very grave danger to mankind.

It has just been revealed, however, that the first cause of child mortality in the United States is now leukemia, which only a short while ago was a comparatively rare illness. The second cause is congenital deformity which, only a short time ago, was virtually unheard of as an important cause of death.

* * *

Sir John Cockroft of the Atomic Energy Commission in Great Britain has recently stated that, during the past two years, the level of radiation has reached such a height in Great Britain that at one point it was thought necessary to halt all supplies of fresh milk to children. Sir John further stated that, if testing in the atmosphere were to be resumed, it would be necessary to halt such supplies of fresh milk.

These are truly shocking revelations and require the utmost courage of those scientists who have spoken out about the real failure of those who have not.

* * *

It is only now being said that recent increase in leukemia in Utah may be owing to radiation arising from underground tests and that the spate of deformed children attributed to thalidomide in this world is, in fact, have resulted from the incredible increase of radiofallout. These are the large series of Russian and American tests which occurred in 1961 and 1962.

No doubt we shall learn years from now, assuming that we are alive, more terrifying information concerning the neglect of scientists and governments, silence of people who should have had the moral determination to speak.

Everyone has the solution of someone else's job. Those with the least information have the most think-they-know-how. Many look at things superficially and think it is all so simple. If old facts their answers would not be so blatant. Very rarely are these people the caliber their solutions would denote. We finally think of the card for sale in most of the novelty stores which says: "If you're so dama smart, why aint you rich."

Opportunities to adopt children

JEANETTE is a nine year old girl looking for new parents through adoption. She is French speaking, Roman Catholic, with brown eyes and hair, a fair clear complexion, fine features, very pretty and attractive. Jeanette is doing well in Grade 3 in school, and is a shy but friendly girl who would feel most at home with bilingual parents.

JACK is a happy, 13 month old baby who deserves a good mother and father. He has blue eyes and fair hair and is Canadian in background. Jack is a healthy boy, but since birth a slight paralysis around his lips has been noticeable, especially when he smiles and laughs. This condition has improved and may improve further. Little Jack would be adoptable by suitable parents who are Protestant.

If you can offer Jeanette or Jack a permanent family home, please write to:

Defence Minister Stresses Need for National Unity In Talk to Liberal Meet

Canada's constitution is out of focus with the times and should be brought up to date, Defence Minister Hellyer said here Saturday night.

If Canada is to progress as a modern united nation some reforms are inevitable.

What is needed is a reassessment of responsibility and authority in the framework of federal, provincial and municipal government.

The constitution as laid down in the British North America Act is now nearly 100 years old.

"We have to look at it from the standpoint of the twentieth century circumstances are not the same now as they were then.

Mr. Hellyer was a keynote speaker at a convention of Ontario Liberal Association's south-central region at the Hotel Quinte. His speech was the climax of a day-long series of "grassroots" discussions between parliamentarians and delegates from Kingston to Oshawa. His remarks, at a closing banquet, stressed the need for national unity if Canada is to play a role of stature in world affairs.

SOME REFORMS NEEDED

If Canada is to progress, he said, some reforms will have to be effected — among them re-examination of the constitution.

One notable transformation since it was legislated is the degree of government participation "in our lives."

"Circumstances have changed and we should take a new look at the constitution and its ability to meet our needs. And one of the things that we should look at is the fundamental reassessment of the division of authority and responsibility between the three levels of government."

At present, there is overlapping and duplication of services.

"The objective should be to determine which services we as Canadians want, can best be provided by which level of government."

What is required is not some "blind" or "frivolous" change, but a functional change to meet modern needs and circumstances.

"And I hope," added Mr. Hellyer, "that part and parcel of this new look at our constitution will be the repatriation so we can change it in Canada — because I think it is an anachronism we haven't yet taken authority to do that."

One reason, he said, was disagreement among the provinces on how it should be done.

"But now that there is a feeling that we should repatriate it and bring it home to Canada, I think that we should take advantage of this feeling and have a truly Canadian constitution — one designed to meet our needs and administer our wants."

REDIVISION NECESSARY

"It is at the present time out of focus and an updating and redivision is necessary."

Noting current separatist controversy, Mr. Hellyer reminded his audience Quebec was undergoing a revolution in agriculture, technology and education.

"We should be as understanding and as helpful as we possibly can under these circumstances," he said, "because their survival as a province and our survival as a nation are inevitably bound up together. They have been so for 100 years and it will continue to be so," he added as the assembly applauded.

"Canada is much more than its individual parts. Every one part of this country contributes to the well-being of the rest. There is much more now than just a collection of 10 provinces. We are a nation. We must continue to work together as a nation — because this is the way we can make our greatest contribution, not only to our own well-being, but to the well-being of the world."

His definition was indefinite for separatism as "two groups of politicians squabbling as to who will have the privilege of spending the taxpayers' money."

But the central issue, he said, was what level of government could most effectively administer internal development.

"You know," commented Mr. Hellyer, "sometimes after years of marriage there are those who think it would be nice to have all the advantages of being single again . . . It's very difficult to have all the benefits of being single . . . without accepting all the responsibilities of working together as a team."

POINTS OUT GAP

Prime Minister Pearson's ideal, he said, was to make Canada a force in the world — a role which provides a focus for national life.

Even in Canada "in the midst of plenty" the disparity was shown in pockets of poverty throughout the country.

"And what we have in pockets in this country, we have enmass in other countries."

"Tremendous wealth is offset by "tremendous poverty which is so overwhelming that it depresses those who come in contact with it."

Canada, he said, had a responsibility to do good in the world.

If Canadians respond positively and work together in solving their problems it will evolve "a strong united Canada which will move forward and which will help us to make an impact in this troubled and divided world in which we live."

Another Story and Pictures on Page 29

"Let us unite in making Canada felt."

Mr. Hellyer was introduced by Robert Temple, MP, Hastings South, and thanked by Rod Cameron.

The delegates and guests at the banquet were welcomed to Belleville by Mayor Jack Ellis.

African Leaders Afraid to Leave To Attend Meet

DAKAR (AP) — Leaders of France's former African colonies are meeting in Dakar, Senegal, to take stock of political instability and economic problems that menace their shaky governments.

Insecurity pervading the 14-nation Afro - Malagasy Union was demonstrated when seven chiefs of state failed to appear for the session, which began Sunday.

The delegates are expected to seek a common stand on economic matters and to leave their security in the hands of France.

Many Enjoy Second Variety Night Show

The Wedding Ring Club of College Hill United Church gave a repeat performance of their Variety Night program, recently in the church social hall with a large crowd in attendance.

The show began with all the cast taking part in the opening chorus with Eileen Blakely at the piano and Larry Brown on the saxaphone. Frayne MacDonald, Eleanor Waite, Hattie MacMullin, Annis Dickens favored with the Charleston with Miss Lynn Brown as guest artist. The skit "Before and After in Driving Lessons" by Nellie and Art Greenwood had to be omitted due to the illness of Mr. Greenwood. A fashion show with Charles Gray, Carl Wood, Monte Moorcroft and Art Dickens taking part was greatly enjoyed. A three-act play entitled "Dr. Hasty" was enacted by Boyd Moorcroft, June Moorcroft and Monte Moorcroft. Bill McHeghan and daughter Judy fa-vored with two piano duets. Mrs. Roy Vesney favored with recitations written by Wilson MacDonald. Larry Brown, Bill Lott, Don Dafoe and Boyd Moorcroft favored with barber-shop harmony enjoyed by all. A magic act was performed by Florence and Doug Watson which amused young and old alike.

The fashion models of the evening displayed their version of the ballet with Miss Lynn Brown as teacher. The College Hill musicmakers contributed a number of old time selections with Nellie Green-wood at the piano, Merritt Woodcox and Ken Babcour on the violin and John Townsend Jr. on the guitar. The entire cast concluded another successful evening by all singing a chorus.

The Club extends thanks to all the stage hands, make-up artists, ladies who served refreshments and a special thanks to Florence Watson who was responsible for painting the stage backdrop; also to all who helped in making both these evenings such a success.

The president, Warner Mc-Faul called the meeting to order. Phyllis McFaul conducted the devotion and Warner chose as his topic "Prayer"; also read verses taken from one of the late Dr. W. K. Floyd and Norma Huffman invited the club to their home for March 14th with Richard and Shirley Hall responsible for devotion and Floyd and Norma Huffman for recreation.

Warner, on behalf of the club, extended sympathy to Mal and Muriel Wagner in the loss of their father. A letter was read from the Belleville Presbytery Couples Cub for an executive meeting to be held at Wellington March 12th. Two couples were asked to attend. It was decided to entertain the Belleville Georgetie Couples Club and Wellington Couples Club on April 18th at Allison-ville Hall. An executive meeting was planned. A donation of $10 will be sent to the Easter Seals fund. The bus trip was postponed till a later date.

Ann Landers

Readers Protest Answer To Compass Wielding Coed

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I speak for millions of teen-agers when I say your advice to "Persecuted" was lousy. She is the girl who got whammed across the backside by that moron kid in the school corridor. The indignant young lady retaliated by jabbing him with the sharp end of her compass.

Instead of saying "Hooray for you, Doll" you gave her heck and let him off. What should she have done, turned around and said, "Thank you"?

I believe "Persecuted" reacted in a normal way. Yet you recommend no punishment for him — only for her.

I'm disappointed in you. My mother is, too. — MISS INDIGNANT.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MISS INDIGNANA — The mall is running 100 to 1 against me. I have not received such a lambasting since I told American wives to iron their bedsheets.

READ on:

Dear Ann Landers — Your answer to "Persecuted" was unjust. I know what I am talking about because something similar happened to me.

Last June I was standing on the pier. I bent down to help my little brother out of the water. A fresh kid came by and gave me a crack across the backside. I had on a wet bathing suit and the wallop really did sting. I swung around and pushed the nut right into the water — shoes, eye glasses, wrist watch and all.

My parents heard about it almost immediately and said "We're proud of you!" They agreed a boy who would be so crude deserved what I gave him. — SWEET 16.

And then there was this letter from Shawnee Mission, Kansas:

Dear Ann Landers — I usually agree with you, but I certainly did not like your answer to "Persecuted." You expect a great deal of a young girl when you ask her to be sweet and relaxed after having been cracked across the fanny with a book.

It was unforiunate that "Miss Persecuted" had a com-pass in her hand, but the boy provoked the attack and deserved a slap across the face that would have made his ears ring for 50 days.

The least you can do is send the girl all your protest mail. It would pack her 30-day confinement with sympathetic reading. — MRS. H. L.

This letter came from Seattle:

Dear Ann — Since when is it wrong for a young woman to defend herself against physical assault? It's time teen-age boys were taught to behave like gentlemen and respect a girl's person. — ALSO A MOTHER.

From Sherman, Texas:

Dear Ann Landers — Chivalry is dying fast enough without you stabbing it in the back with a compass. As the mother of both a teen-age son and daughter I disagree violently with your advice. Please don't encourage the hoodlums by sticking up for them. — DISAPPOINTED IN YOU.

From Peoria:

Dear Ann — I don't know where you went to high school or what the boys were like back in the olden days, but in our high school a girl has got to fight for her honor every living minute. If a boy did that to me, I'd hit him with anything handy, including a baseball bat. — EDNA.

And so, dear readers, after over a thousand letters — all saying essentially the same thing — I'm willing to admit I let the slap-happy punk off too easy.

The girl, however, should not have been congratulated and let off the hook. A compass can be a dangerous weapon. Had Mr. Ducked, it might have cost him an eye. This is too big a price to pay for a crude gesture. Furthermore, no girl would want such a terrible act on her conscience.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

YOUNG GIRLS DESCRIBE IDEAL ESCORT

Whenever we have occasion to talk about boys, what type they makes the best material for a date, it's amazing how consistent their answers are.

It's not always the big football hero who gets the most votes of approval. He may be too stuck on himself to pay the girl the co-ast-de attention, and courtesy, that really makes points. Instead, today's hep teeners prefer to date a boy who is considerate, well-groomed, has easy good manners, a variety of interests and can carry on an intelligent conversation.

Consideration ranks high with the majority of girls. They prefer a young man who asks early for a date - - at least a week in advance in most cases, and a good month or so if it's a formal dance or some other big dress affair. Low man is the one who calls up at the last minute and expects a girl to accept a date on an hour's notice. Girls also prefer to know what the boy has planned, and appreciate having the evening spelled out so they'll know how to dress correctly.

The average young lady also likes to have her date call for her on time. The lad who thinks it's sophisticated to show up an hour late is sorely misguided. It makes a good impression, he also should be prepared to greet the girl's parents properly and to carry on a direct conversation, instead of standing self-consciously and talking in monosyllables.

GOOD GROOMING

Good grooming is another asset as far as the girls are concerned. For party dates, a suit or skirt is a preferred attire. Sports clothes, such as slacks and a sweater or sports jacket are permissible for movie dates and athletic events, as long as they're neat and don't look as though the boy has been playing scrimmage in them. Odd haircuts, like the late and unlamented duck-tail, are definitely frowned upon. It's the clean-cut look that most appeals to girls nowadays.

Pleasant manners add to a boy's attractiveness. The average young lady expects her date to hold doors, pull out chairs and help her on and off with her coat. The boy she can do without is the one who doesn't stand when a woman enters a room, likes to roughhouse in public places and generally is boisterous.

After all, a girl is known by the company she keeps, and she wants her date to be well-mannered, bright and considerate as a reflection of her own good breeding and taste.

"Guess what's on the late late movie?"

2 tablespoons butter, 1 lb. mushrooms, scrubbed and sliced, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 lb. fresh frozen scallops, thawed and quartered, one 14-oz. can fresh frozen lobster, thawed and cut into bite-size pieces, ½ cup water, ½ cup cooking sherry (optional), ¼ bay leaf, ¼ teaspoon thyme (optional), ½ teaspoon salt, dashs of pepper, 2 tablespoons butter (a second amount), 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup 18% cream, 1 cup broth (drained from simmered scallops — see below), ½ cup fine bread-crumbs, grated Romano or Parmesan cheese (about 1/3 cup).

Gently melt mushrooms in first amount of butter until barely limp. Do not brown. Add lemon juice, quartered scallops, water, sherry (if used), bay leaf, thyme (if used), salt and pepper and simmer together for 5 minutes. Drain, removing bay leaf and reserving liquid.

Melt second amount of butter (3 tablespoons) and blend in flour. Stir in cream and reserved scallop liquid (there should be one cup) and stir until thickened. Add drained scallop and mushroom mixture and cut-up lobster. Be sure to remove any flat bones in lobster claws.) Gently mix.

Turn into 6 or 8 individual buttered ramekins (or one large shallow baking dish). Sprinkle evenly with crumbs, then with grated Romano or Parmesan cheese.

Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. To lightly brown top, turn on top burner for 2 minutes, box watch.

NOTE:

If desired, Scallop and Lobster Ramekins may be prepared one day in advance and refrigerated until baking time.

Aesop Originated Fable Of Wolf in Sheep's Clothing

DEAR DORIS — In your column yesterday I noticed your answer to an argument about where wolves in sheep's clothing originated from and you, with a college degree, said it came from a fable. In my Bible I read that very thing and the Bible is God's word, not a fable. This is found in Matthew 7:15, and if you haven't a Bible I'd be more than glad to send you one. — A THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD — Bless your heart, so it is. But Aesop, who was a deformed slave, wrote the original fable, in Greek, some 600 years before Christ and the New Testament. I appreciate your offer of a Bible, but I have one. (Thanks also to Mrs. G. M. and Elk for writing in.)

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Last night Bob told me he couldn't see me again. The reason was he just found out that a girl he took out before he started going with me was pregnant. He says she got him drunk and you can guess the rest.

Now he says I'm the only girl he ever cared for but that I deserve something better. That he wants to get the child if he can; and that he'll never marry now.

I'd marry him any day. But I guess It's too late as he won't see me any more. His birthday is soon and I was wondering if it would be o.k. to at least send him a birthday card? — WONDERING.

• • •

DEAR WONDERING — Yes, by all means. Right now he is shocked by what he has done. In a dramatic gesture of self-sacrifice declares he will never marry. What's a bachelor to do with a baby? A child care worker will have to straighten him out, as well as help the girl make plans for her future.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Please suggest the type of gift which is suitable between couples. — GOING STEADY.

DEAR STEADY — For casual friends, the gift is casual: chocolates, flowers, other food gifts.

For couples going together but not engaged: books, flowers, candy, records, bookends. Perhaps a scarf, gloves, handkerchiefs, but not a dress, hat, underthings, hosiery or fur. Nothing intimate.

If engaged, it could be jewellery or something for the hope chest.

When the gift is too intimate, the lady should return it, saying tactfully: "I know you didn't realize it, but I couldn't accept such a gift from you, much as I appreciate your thoughtfulness."

• • •

TO A SATISFIED READER — I agree that it is not necessary to dance, go to the movies and so on to enjoy this life on earth. At the same time, we are free to live according to our lights and I just can't see that dancing, movies or other such pleasures are a sin in themselves. Should we not live by the spirit of the law?

• • •

Confidential to FRANTIC — Let's abandon the head-on approach. Your girl is far too much of a going concern to remain the permanent dupe of such an ambition-less boy. To shatter the encircling gloom, could you start something cheerful in the way of a get-together with her student friends? Even if she dragged Romeo along it would serve to help her make some odious comparisons!

BY pegg rogers

FROM THE MAIL BOX

Dear Pegg Rogers:

I will be going to a wedding and a reception soon and I am puzzled about what to wear. I am thinking of wearing a blue nylon and lace party dress. The dress has a scalloped neckline and short sleeves. I have a white, whimsy hat and white gloves which would go with the outfit.

Do I leave my hat and gloves on for the reception? Would I need a corsage? If I do, do I remove it from my coat and pin it on my dress for the reception? The wedding ceremony is to be held in a church and I would have to wear my coat. What shoes would you advise me to get? Do you think the neckline of the dress would look too bare if I wore no necklace, only earrings? Would it be suitable to wear a three-strand bauble bracelet over my gloves?

Signed — Helen

Dear Helen:

You do not mention if you are a member of the wedding party. If you are not, then I am afraid that your blue nylon dress, although very pretty, is a little too dressy for a guest, at least in some communities. (What is too dressy for Moncton, Montreal or Ottawa, might fit in well with the local customs in Fort Arthur or Winnipeg.) However, I am sure that you can do a little research on this. If you do not want to ask any friends who are going to the same wedding, then I suggest that you ask the manager of the best dress shop in your city. Advice on fashions is one of the public services that all good stores are happy to supply, even if you are not a regular customer.

Assuming that the blue dress is not too dressy for the wedding, then wear the white hat-lette and the white gloves to both the wedding and the reception. No necklace and no bracelet, but do wear the earrings. Can you have a pair of white shantung slippers dyed to tone with your dress? One shade darker than your dress would be even smarter.

Keep your hat on for the reception. Remove your gloves after you have paid your respects to the reception line and greeted the bride and groom.

If you are a member of the wedding party, then the bridegroom will supply a corsage. If you are a guest, please do not wear a corsage. Here again, we run into local customs because in some cities corsages are given and worn at the slightest excuse. The general rule is that the wedding party, meaning the bride, her attendants, and the two mothers, are the only people who get the flowers, either to wear or to carry.

The guests wear fashions suitable for the time of the ceremony, its degree of formality and the size of the reception.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

U.C.W. Meeting

STONE UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

The February U.C.W. meeting of Stone Church took the form of a potluck dinner. After the children had all been seated by their teacher, Mrs. Cooper offered prayer. A junior student voiced thanks on behalf of all the pupils.

Mrs. Emory Demorest, president of U.C.W., opened the afternoon meeting with a reading and the general business was dealt with. Mrs. K. Purdy and Mrs. W. Tufts were the conveners of the afternoon study with the opening theme being "Lent." The speaker reminded her listeners to learn to study and pray more, relate one's faith to the daily routine of work, know and understand the Bible, and closed with the thought, "time can never be retrieved, the past is a memory, the present is duty and the future is faith." Brotherhood Week gives each an opportunity to rededicate oneself to the basic ideal of respect for the human life and human rights, and provides an opportunity for Canadians of every race, color and creed and meet each in a friendly atmosphere, and learn more of one another's culture.

This was followed by the Bible study. After much study and explaining of each verse, all the UCW members joined in a general discussion.

Johnson Wants Lower Draft Age to Aid War on Poverty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will ask Congress to lower the draft age from 18 to 17 to give his war on poverty a chance to aid needy youngsters a year earlier, an official source reported today.

These subjects for the war on poverty, the source said, will be the 300,000 lads[illegible]year who fail the army's general classification test. They will be given a chance to enter special work schools where they will take special education and vocational courses.

This is a key provision in the message on poverty, expected to go to Congress today or Tuesday.

Sources close to the planning said the change would have no effect on the likelihood or timing of actual call-up of the younger registrants, for service in the armed forces. Draft calls are filled from the ranks of the oldest eligibles, with those in the lower 20s being called now. The 19-year-olds found qualified for service would increase the size of the pool of eligibles but they would be at the bottom of the list, as 18-year-olds now are.

Searching for a practical approach to the problem of school dropouts, the force assisting Sargent Shriver, head of the war on poverty, decided the draft was the ideal screening device to pinpoint young men who need extra help.

All youngsters must take a general psychological and intelligence test when they register for the draft at 18.

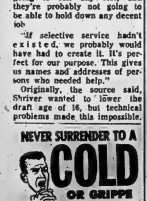
"There are some 50,000 youngsters each year who fail this test," the high official source said. "You know if they fail this test, they're probably going to fail any test, and they're probably not going to be able to hold down any decent job.

"If selective service hadn't existed, we probably would have had to create it. It's perfect for our purpose. This gives us names and addresses of persons who needed help."

Originally, the source said, Shriver wanted to lower the draft age of 16, but technical problems made this impossible.

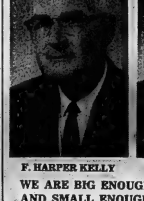
He added "that lowering it to 17 gives us a year's head start in trying to reclaim these youths."



The special schools, or academies as they probably will be called, will be similar to the work camps of Life old Civilian Conservation Corps in that they will remove underprivileged youngsters from poor home environments.

But instead of concentrating on outdoors work projects as did the CCC of "New Deal" days of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, the new academies will lean heavily on education and vocational projects.

The program probably will be developed by revising the proposal for a youth conservation corps which has been pending in Congress since early last year. The corps will be operated under direct control of the new agency which will be created to supervise the poverty program, it is reported.



NATIONALIZE LAND

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — All land in Zanzibar will be nationalized and no new farming will be started without the approval of the government, President Abeid Karume announced Sunday. Karume said the nationalization steps are being taken to rectify the unjust and anomalous situation whereby the minority owned the bulk of the land while poor people were left to starve.

In the mountains east of Klima, the Greek-Cypriots released 35 Turkish hostages seized in the village of Lapithou Sunday. Five were dead and three others wounded, the British said. Six hostages were reported still migging.

The slaying of the Turks was seen as retaliation for the death of six Greek - Cypriots in the Klima market Saturday.

A British commander and a UN official were reported trapped by Turkish fire in a Greek-Cypriot police station in Klima, but they were said to be in no danger.

The spokesman said Gyani's deputy and political adviser, George Howard, and the British commander of the western zone of Cyprus, Brig. Donald Crane, were pinned down by gunfire at the Klima police station.

As the Klima battle continued, the spokesman reported, mortars were fired, armored bulldozers were spotted and fires broke out.

Klima was the scene of fierce fighting Saturday. The cease-fire agreement was reached Sunday morning after the efforts of Gen. Gyani and the British truce commander, Maj. - Gen. Richard Ashworth.

Seven persons were reported killed in the Klima fighting before the cease-fire agreement was reached.

Government sources said the Turks opened fire at dawn today without provocation from a minaret towering over the market place. A Greek - Cypriot government spokesman in Nicosia said the government retaliated with an "all - out attempt by security forces to improve law and order."

PHONES ARE OUT

Telephone communications to the embattled town were cut, but the government spokesman said firing was continuous and the security forces were gaining ground.

The British said the Greek-Cypriot police superintendent of the Klima-Paphos district, Dimitri Papageorge, had refused to deal with anyone except Gyani.

Papageorge apparently was reflecting the new tough line of the Makarios government in accepting local truce arrangements. The government accused the Turks last week of using local truce talks to slip into offensive positions before the arrival of the UN force.

Gyani had flown to Klima Sunday after a battle Saturday in which six Greeks and a Turk were killed and at least a score of persons were injured. Most of the casualties were from Turkish fire from the 100-foot minaret. The Turks took more than 200 Greek hostages.

The British said the fighting may have started after a Greek shot and wounded a Turkish mailman. The Greeks denied this.

On his arrival with Gen. Carver, Gyani was greeted by a cheering Greek mob, chanting "Hostages, hostages, we want our brothers returned," and "English go home."

Gyani, the British - trained former commander of the UN soldier force on the Egyptian-Israeli frontier, rapped a young Greek with his baton to force him off his car.

With Klima's market place still a confusion of overturned tables, dead pigs and scattered vegetables, the truce officers achieved a cease-fire and promises from the Turks to release the hostages. After Gyani returned to Nicosia, the Turks freed 37 more Greeks, bringing the total number of hostages released in Klima to 285.

Sporadic fighting also broke out Sunday in the Nicosia suburb of Ormaphita, where the first communal clashes took place last December. A British soldier was nicked by a richochet bullet.

Turkish - Cypriots asked the British to evacuate them from the village of Kazaphani, near the north coast port of Kyrania. The area was bloodied by heavy fighting last week.

CLASH WITH TURKS

In Trypimeni, a Greek patrol clashed with some Turks after a dozen Greek women were allegedly fired on. At Mallia, two Turks were wounded.

In another incident, a British spokesman said Greek - Cypriots entered the southwestern village of Lapithou and were reported to have taken more than 20 Turkish-Cypriot hostages.

Two British soldiers were killed Sunday when their armored car plunged over the side of a road in hilly country between Polis and Xeros, northwest Cyprus, it was announced today.

ASK MORE ACTION

Both plans call for increased action, but Khanh wants senior officers to take a more active part in the fighting and more ground troops to be thrown into battle.

Vietnamese sources said the proposal also calls for some form of joint U.S.-Vietnamese command, but this report could not be confirmed from American sources.

A joint U.S.-Vietnamese field team reported after a survey of the Mekong delta in January that the war could not be won unless the Vietnamese score some quick victories to lift boost morale in rural areas.

The survey said feeling was widespread among delta dwellers that the Communists are winning and many are swinging over to the Viet Cong.

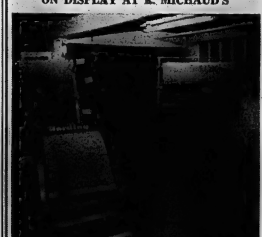
ARE IN FAIL LINE

Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defence, said that McNamara's trip was "of lot of questions" about South Viet Nam's only rail line, which runs to the border of the Communist north.

The show of interest was taken by some to mean McNamara is studying the logistical possibilities of moving the war to Communist North Viet Nam.

But the rail line is a continual target for mining, sabotage and ambush, and sections are often closed for repairs.

Sylvester said U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge made a number of recommendations to McNamara. Discussions also dealt with "external matters," he said, including the situation in neighboring Cambodia, Laos and North Viet Nam.



On his arrival McNamara made an airport speech proclaiming U.S. support not only for Viet Nam in its war but for Khanh personally.

About 2,000 well - screened demonstrators were at the airport waving banners which read: "Mr. McNamara is right — let's fight" and rapping French President de Gaulle for suggesting neutralization of southeast Asia.

Use Home as Publishing Office for Monthly Calendar

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — A former London bus conductor now employed in the defence department is the boss of a family enterprise whose aim is to let tourists and residents alike know what's going on in Canada's capital.

John Tidman, 43-year-old native of Rosyth, Scotland, his wife Jeannette and four children use their home as the publishing office of a monthly calendar of events in Ottawa.

In the daytime Mr. Tidman, who came to Canada in 1953 with the intention of farming, works at navy headquarters cataloguing stock numbers for equipment.

"We seek to appeal to tourists and the community," he says. "In summer we're essentially a tourist publication but in winter our readers are mainly local people."

The magazine has an average circulation of 15,000 and is distributed free to tourist bureaus, banks, hotels, businesses, restaurants and government departments. It's financed by unsolicited advertising and by subscribers who pay $2 a year to have it mailed to them.

Its pages include articles on such topics as the history of Ottawa's parks, new exhibits at the National Museum and promotional pieces on forthcoming shows.

The day-by-day calendar mentions activities ranging from a world premiere performance of the National Ballet of Canada to the time of meeting of the Ottawa Philatelic Society.

The publication has seen both seen and good times since it was founded seven years ago. In the early days grocery money frequently was raided to pay the printer's bills.

Mr. Tidman, who gained experience in publishing as editor of the civil service recreational association magazine, faced such problems as getting the magazine distributed. At the beginning he couldn't afford to have his old car repaired, so he sold it for $10 and had his family deliver the magazine on sleds.

Today it's easier. The magazine is distributed by car, and a part - time shorthand typist and a couple of retired civil servants have eased the work load.

"It took four years' hard work and at least $10,000 to get on our feet," says Mr. Tidman, "but it has been a lot of fun and I think we now have it by the tail."

Freak Explosion Old Ammunition Kills 3 Marines

TWENTYNINE PALMS, Calif. (AP) — A freak explosion of old ammunition, long buried under desert sand drifts, killed three marines and critically injured two others Saturday, a Twentynine Palms marine base spokesman said Sunday.

About 20,000 marines were engaged in air-ground manoeuvres when the explosion occurred in the central portion of the 995-square-mile base on the Mojave Desert.

The spokesman said the area has been used as an artillery and aerial bombing range since the early days of the Second World War.

"There's a tremendous amount of unexploded ammunition—duds fired from tanks, artillery or aerial bombs dropped from planes."

Buddhists Fade Into Background In Saigon

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — A stream of white vehicles over a patch of blacktop where a Buddhist monk set fire to his gasoline - soaked body nine months ago, catapulted Thich Quang Duc's self-immolation into world attention.

The fiery sacrifice of Thich Quang Duc and the five monks and one nun who followed his example sparked a national crisis that led to a coup d'etat.

U.S. policy in this strife-torn nation was rocked to the core. Highly-informed diplomats said Thich Quang Duc's suicide was a major deciding factor in President Kennedy's decision to send Henry Cabot Lodge here as ambassador last August.

Huge demonstrations of Buddhists were smashed by club-wielding special police in Ngo Dinh Diem's desperate bid to repress revolt.

Not so much as a plaque is at the place where Thich Quang Duc burned to death June 11, but the old monk's heart is a relic for many visitors at Xa Loi pagoda, the city's main Buddhist centre.

MONKS SPLIT UP

The tough-minded monks who set up their headquarters at Xa Loi have split up, returning to the pagodas from which they had assembled last May. Hatreds aroused in the last six months of the Diem regime seem almost forgotten.

"We believe South Viet Nam's revolutionary government supports complete religious equality, and Buddhists are well satisfied," says a leading Buddhist spokesman. He is Thich Duc Nghien, one of the leaders of the Buddhist revolt who were jailed in Diem's pagoda raids Aug. 21.

Many Roman Catholics feared reprisals after the military coup Nov. 1, because of hatreds generated during the long regime Diem was a Catholic.

In November and December, mobs of youths waving the Buddhist flag burned houses belonging to Catholics in coastal towns. The Rev. Patrick O'Connor says he knows of no further incidents.

Father O'Connor, a Catholic journalist, has served as an unofficial spokesman for his church here since the Buddhist crisis started. He says:

"I believe the new government is trying to be fair, although I think it may sometimes bend over backwards to be fair to the Buddhists, the Cao Dai, the Hoa Hao and the other non-Christian sects.

TEMPERS COOLED

"But I believe the government was embarrassed by the anti-Catholic incidents of November and December, and put out the word that such incidents must stop. I think the young Buddhists and the Communists who tried to mix in with them also cooled down."

Premier Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, a nominal Buddhist, professes equal treatment of all faiths. Last week he made a point of addressing a rural crowd from a platform in front of a provincial Roman Catholic church. His government has moved to equalize the property rights of Catholics and Buddhists.

The Buddhist crisis was touched off May 8 when a crowd of Buddhists demonstrated against an order by them prohibiting the public flying of the Buddhist flag. Buddhist marchers were attacked by government armored cars and troops, and eight demonstrators were killed. Subsequently the flag issue became a Key point.

Black Muslim Defects to Form Own Mosque

NEW YORK (AP) — Malcolm X, outspoken Black Muslim advocate of racial separation, has defected from the parent organization to form his own mosque to promote "active self-defence against white supremacists in all parts of the country."

Malcolm told The Associated Press today:

"I am still a Muslim . . . I intend to work on my own to win American 22,000,000 non-Muslim Negroes to convert them from non-violence to active self-defence against white supremacists in all parts of the country."

"I want it clearly understood that my advice to all Muslims is that they stay in the nation of Islam under the spiritual guidance of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad."

Malcolm once was considered heir - apparent to Muhammad, who makes his headquarters in Chicago. He was head of the sect's New York City mosque and the group's leading spokesman.

WAS SUSPENDED

Noted for his bitter verbal attacks on white people, Malcolm was suspended by Muhammad last November after he said in a speech that president Kennedy's death was a case of "the chickens coming home to roost."

Asked if heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, a member of the Black Muslims, would be a part of his new organization, Malcolm replied:

"No. I wouldn't want Clay to take any position which would embarrass the international situation and position as heavyweight champion of the world."

However, Clay said last week that he would take Malcolm with him when he visits Moslem countries in the Middle East and Africa next month.

40 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two multiple fatality traffic accidents — six persons died in a Leaskville, Que., road accident, five died in a Redditt, Ont., car-train collision—pushed the number of accidental deaths in Canada to at least 40 during the weekend.

The six persons who died Sunday at Luskville after their car left the highway and plunged into a water-filled ditch 25 miles west of Hull brought Quebec's fatalities to 18—all attributed to traffic.

In Ontario, 10 persons died on the highways, two were drowned and one man slipped and fell on a road. The accident at Redditt, about 130 miles east of Winnipeg, occurred when the car in which the five victims were riding was in a collision with a freight train Saturday.

A Canada Press survey from 8 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times lists 36 persons dead in traffic accidents, two drownings, and two dead from falls.

All of the five fatalities reported in British Columbia were in road accidents and New Brunswick, with two fatalities, had one on the highways and a baby who fell from a second-floor porch.

Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan each had one traffic death.

No fatalities were reported in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba or Alberta.

U. S. Airman Shot While Trying Escape

MONTREAL (CP)—A United States airman had part of his lung removed Sunday after being shot by Montreal police while trying to escape from custody.

Police said the 23-year-old airman and a second airman, both stationed at the U.S. Air Force base at Plattsburg, N.Y., were arrested after two patrolling constables spotted three men beating a man.

Names of the two airmen were not released.

Police said the injured airman at first surrendered but then fled from the police cruiser.

One constable fired a warning shot and then shot the fleeing man.

The bullet lodged in his left lung. His condition was described as "fair to satisfactory."

Ruby

Belli asked Ruby whether Ruby was given to using profanity.

The former boxer replied in the negative.

REASON FOR STATEMENT

Belli asked whether the phrase "son of a bitch" was commonly used by Ruby and he said it was not. The question bears on a statement attributed to Ruby by police, in which he is alleged to have said after he shot Oswald: "I hope the son of a bitch dies."

Ross said he knew Ruby as a "patriotic, red - blooded American."

The first witness for the day was Fred Dieberdorf, the jail doctor. He testified that he examined Ruby at approximately 2:05 p.m. on the Sunday, Nov. 24, when Ruby shot Oswald.

Dieberdorf said that at that time Ruby was still wearing street clothes—coat, white shirt, slacks. Police officers testified last week that one of their first actions was to strip Ruby. At that time, several officers said, they questioned him as to why he shot Oswald. The time of the stripping and the questioning, they said, was "approximately noon."

Belli sought to show through Dieberdorf's testimony that if there was some doubt about the evidence against Ruby that the police had gathered, the fact that two hours after the police said they removed Ruby's clothes, he was still wearing the same costume.

The defence lawyers were moving steadily toward the heart of Ruby's defence—their contention that Ruby was in emotional trance when he killed Oswald and did not know what he was doing.

CONSIDERS PROBE ILLEGAL

VIENTIANE (AP)—The pro-Communist Pathet Lao has warned it will refuse to recognize any international investigation of its alleged violations of the cease-fire in Laos. Spokesman Sonk Vongsack said Sunday the Pathet Lao considered the scheduled investigation by the three-country International Control Commission for Laos illegal. The Communist member of the commission—Poland —will not take part. Canada and India are the other members.

Ticket Taker At Dance Hall Badly Beaten

HANOVER: (CP) — Clarence Erich, 38, is in serious condition in hospital here after regaining consciousness Sunday from a savage beating inflicted on him Saturday by a gang of youths at a dance hall here.

Two other men went to his assistance, Albert Bailey, 34, of Hanover, was hurt in the group and had head injuries and James Buehlow, 27, of nearby Walkerton, had 12 fractured teeth and received seven stitches to close a cut in his face. They were released from hospital Sunday.

Five persons, Douglas Pike, 20, Daniel Bonneville, 20, Robert Steller, 18, Helmut Welson 20, all of Hepworth, near Galt, and Robert Chaplaine, 23, of Galt, were arrested over the weekend and face charges of assault causing bodily harm.

Walkerton provincial police say Mr. Erb, a ticket taker at the Keppler Lake Hall, Saturday night, was attacked by the gang when he refused to let one of the group into the dance hall. His nose was broken, his cheek fractured and he received concussion and injuries to his back and neck in the attack.

WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

GUELPH (CP) — Four members of the Junior Farmers Association of Ontario have been awarded agriculture department travelling scholarships to Great Britain this year. Those chosen are C. MacKinnon Emery, Massey, representing Sudbury district; Marilyn Hugh Marshall, RR4 Kirkton, Huron County; Arthur McKague, Teeswater, Bruce County, and Rosalyn Robertson, Almonte, Lanark County.

Conference

tional labor code, a new labor law spelling out a minimum wage, a normal working week, vacancies with pay and statutory holidays.

WIDE IMPACT EXPECTED

Although the national labor code would affect only about 50,000 workers in industries within the federal jurisdiction, it would have a wider impact because of its influence on corresponding provincial legislation.

All provinces have labor standards legislation on their books, but this is not uniform. Only provinces will likely be asked to support the new federal manpower consultative service, now being set up by the federal labor department to help foster joint labor-management programs for dealing with the effect of technological changes on workers.

Another topic to come before the conference will be how Canada can ratify International Labor Organization conventions, many of which have been left untouched because of the divided jurisdiction over labor and industrial relations between the federal and provincial levels of government.

WON'T RAISE PRICES

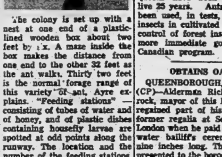
Hopes to Put Ants to Work Guarding Plants From Pests

By ANDY TURNBULL



Ever tried to keep track of the feeding habits of a carpenter ant? Gordon Ayre is doing just that at the Entomology Research Institute in Belleville. The hope is that ants may be put to work controlling other insects. In some European countries, ants are already used for forest control in forest areas.

Born in Trafl, B.C., Gordon Ayre studied for his bachelor's and master's degrees in agriculture at U.B.C., and started his work with ants there, in 1954. In 1957 he moved on to studies in Germany, then returned to Canada, and to Belleville, in 1959. He's working now with a colony of 'Camponotus Herculeanus', (a common variety of carpenter ants), studying their feeding habits.

By watching the ants' reaction to the availability of food, Ayre hopes to be able to estimate their value in pest control. If the ants restrict their range and kill only what they need when there is a food surplus, they won't be much help in case of an insect plague. If they keep killing beyond their immediate needs, however, they might prove invaluable. Ayre is not yet ready to comment on his studies, but he does say that some varieties of ants, unable to swallow solids, must kill more than other predators of similar size because they can make use of only the body juices of their victims.

The variety of ants under test is not the variety Ayre is most interested in using for pest control, and the housefly larvae being used as test-food is not the normal food of the ants being tested or of the ants being considered. The feeding patterns of related varieties of ants are themselves related though, and the ants don't complain about the housefly larvae. In their natural state ants would not scorn the food—it's just that they're not likely to find it.

In some European countries, ant colonies have been set up at regular intervals, with overstepping "hunting grounds," in forest areas. After the few years it takes to get a colony firmly established the ants provide long-term protection from insect pests. Ant colonies have lasted 100 years and more and individual queens have been known to live 25 years. Ants have also been used, in tests, to control insects in cultivated fields, but control of forest insects is the more immediate goal of the Canadian program.

The colony is set up with a nest at one end of a plastic lined wooden box about two feet by 1 ft. A maze inside the box makes the distance from one end to the other 32 feet as the ant walks. Thirty two feet is the normal forage range of this variety of ant. Ayre explains. "Feeding stations" — consisting of tubes of water and of honey, and of plastic dishes containing housefly larvae are spotted at odd points along the runway. The location and the number of the feeding stations, and the amount of food each contains, are varied daily.

OBTAINS OAR

QUEENBOROUGH, England (CP)—Alderman Richard Sharrock, mayor of this Kent town, regained part of his borough's former regalia at Sotheby's in London when he paid £260 for a spotted at odd points along the water bailiff's ceremonial oar nine inches long. The oar was presented to the borough in 1817 when Queenborough was a major port.

ANTS at the Entomology Research Institute in Belleville attack a housefly larva in a plastic feeding dish. Gordon Ayre is in charge of a study of the ants' feeding habits.

Slice of Wilderness Has Paid Off for Two Pioneers

In the case of pioneers Clement Deykin and his friend and partner, Robert Bishop, it paid off to the tune of $274,000.

Mr. Deykin is 86. Mr. Bishop is 81.

They have just got their money.

The roots of their wealth were planted more than 40 years ago when they scraped together all they had to put a $200 payment on 274 acres of land in the Prince George area of north-central British Columbia.

Now Mr. Deykin, his wife Maude Annie and Mr. Bishop have moved into a new home in Victor

Wh etting in, they remin isced a t living conditions in 1922 n the three of them were struggling to survive.

"My mate and myself did anything to keep going — there was no work and you either starved or you didn't," Mr. Deykin said.

Then they decided to buy the 274 acres, $200 down and the rest when they could pay.

Home was a log cabin. Food was the fish they caught and the animals they shot. But out of the wilderness they developed a dairy farm.

Mr. Deykin said: "It was fearfully tough. We only had hand tools to clear the land. In the winter we were frozen."

But the battle had been won when they left Prince George in 1936 to retire to the Vancouver Island community of Duncan.

And in February they got a reward for their struggle — a syndicate of Prince George businessmen paid $1,000 an acre for residential development of the dairy-farm land.

But considering the years of struggle, the reward wasn't all that large.

"If I had my time over again things would be different," said Mr. Deykin.

"I wouldn't have struggled as I did, not for this amount of money or more. You miss too much. There are too many sacrifices."

Six-Month-Long Dispute At Saint John Is Settled

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Striking employees of Irving Refining Limited will return to work within two weeks following Sunday's settlement of a six-month labor dispute.

Neither side amplified a joint union - management statement on the agreement and some points were unclear.

But guarantee of the union's right of grievance had been the only major remaining issue. The statement said: "Decisions as to merit advancement are to be made by the company subject to a right of grievance only in case of discrimination." No definition of "discrimination" was given.

The union had sought inclusion of industry wage rates in a new agreement, and the announced terms of settlement included this point:

"The list of rates for subclassifications used by the company in the operation of its merit increase plan will be contained in the agreement, the highest being in line with those generally paid in the industry."

GIVES RAISES

The three - year agreement, retroactive to April 1, 1963 will incorporate a seven - cent an hour increase to head operators and 15 cents more for all other employees. There will also be unspecified increases in shift differentials, the latter effective April 1, 1964.

The new rates were not stated. Before the strike started Sept. 16, hourly wages ranged from $1.35 to $2.30. During negotiations the company proposed rates up to $2.95 but declined to make them part of a written agreement.

The announced "principal terms of settlement" said that actions between the parties in the supreme Court of New Brunswick will be withdrawn. These concern injunctions limiting picket at the refinery and banning picketing at Irving Oil Company property.

Before the settlement announcement, the striking members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC) approved the proposals. No details of this meeting were given.

The joint statement was issued by refinery Board Chairman K. C. Irving, refinery President W. R. Forsythe, J. E. Duncan, director of the union's Canadian district, and Fernand Daoust, union project director. They had held meetings since Thursday.

The refinery, employing about 600 before the strike, has continued in operation with non-union employees. The union's Saint John local then numbered 143 men. At the strike continued, eight obtained employment elsewhere.

QUINTS' HOME PLANNED

CIO President Meany Calls Automatic Revolution Event 'Real Curse to This Society'

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Staff Writer

A wave of change is sweeping, for good or ill, relentlessly across the United States.

It began quietly, but those who are charting its rapidly mounting momentum predict that before long—perhaps two years—it will to some extent touch the lives of practically everybody.

It is called the automation revolution. It is, in truth, a revolution; nothing just like it has happened in industrial history. For this reason nobody can tell for sure where it will lead.

Some say it holds the ultimate promise of undreamed happiness in a society of super-abundance wherein man is liberated at last from the drudgery of labor. Others see it as a juggernaut pushing ruthlessly onward, heedless of human goals and dreams and threatening, in the end, to reduce mankind to a depersonalized slag heap caught in the uncompromising grasp of a few technocrats with black boxes.

While Dr. Louis T. Rader, president of Sperry Rand Corporation's Univac division, is heralding automation as "the potential for prosperity," AFL-CIO President George Meany is damning it as something that "is rapidly becoming a real curse to this society."

They reach their opposite conclusions by examining the same facts, such as these:

Two men working on a radio assembly line now produce more than 200 did before automation. A national recording company has installed machines which make it possible for four men to produce eight times as many records as 250 men formerly did. Production soars, jobs dwindle.

JOBS DECLINE

As a result, industrial output has gone up three per cent in every year since 1957. But over the corresponding period, a labor department survey shows, actual industrial jobs have declined by 775,000 in the U.S.

The worst, it appears, is yet to come. Undersecretary of Labor John F. Henning calculates that in the 1960s about 24,000,000 workers will enter the labor force in the U.S. During the same time automation is expected will eliminate 24,000,000 jobs. Somehow the economy must—last to stay ever-ready to create jobs for those of 36,000,000 people.

Unless a solution is found soon, says AFL-CIO research chief Nat Goldfinger, "we'll be in a hell of a mess in two to three year's time."

Not long ago Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz told a House of Representatives subcommittee:

"We've been assuming that the developing technology—what we call automation—will provide as many new jobs as it replaces. I say we've been assuming that. I'm not sure it is right. I assume we shall find those jobs because we must find them."

Some feel that such an assumption, notwithstanding past experience, is a dangerous one to make today.

Economist Charles C. Killingsworth of Michigan State University, a leading authority on automation, says "those who shrug off automation as simply another name of technological change reveal a limited understanding of both terms."

INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION

The nub of the question is this:

Is automation really a beacon of hope, to be followed trustingly wherever it might lead? Or is it a siren's call seducing the nation closer and closer to the shoals of disillusionment?

Before answering it is important to know exactly what automation is and how it differs in nature from other technological advances, including those of the 19th century industrial revolution.

Killingsworth defines it as "mechanization of sensory, control and thought processes." He offers as a rudimentary example the ordinary household thermostat.

This gadget makes a continuous analysis, as it were, of room temperature and decides when to send a signal to the furnace to turn itself on and off. All the operator has to do is "instruct" the thermostat, that is, set a simple control for a desired result.

In a complex automated system the instructions are contained on a punched card or tape by other device.

Thus a plant in Cleveland can produce 200 cubic yards of ready mixed concrete an hour with no human labor at all—just someone to select the punched card for the right mixture and amount and push the button.

"It appears possible," says Edward R. Shils, professor of industry at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School, "that almost any physical process controllable by man can be made to control itself."

TORONTO COMPUTER

Another significant feature of automation is that machines, performing tasks beyond the capacity of mere humans, now can do jobs which heretofore were impractical if not impossible.

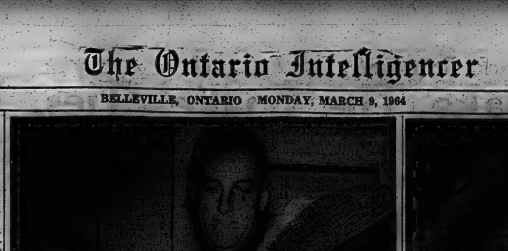
Last summer a computer was installed in the Toronto City Hall. It is still undergoing tests. When in operation it will receive continuous traffic information from 2,000 underground sensors spotted throughout the city, analyze the data many times a second and adjust traffic signals to traffic lights at 1,000 intersections—a task at levels of human effort could match the performance.

The Harvard computation laboratory put a computer to work five years ago comparing nearly 5,000 ancient biblical manuscripts to find out which were copies of the same original text. It would have taken scholars literally hundreds of years to do the job unaided.

The justice department is using a computer to seek patterns of similarity in thousands of documents to aid its efforts at government in an effort to spot price rigging. Human detectives would find the amount of paperwork utterly unmanageable.

Matching weigldern and advancing biblical research are be unfarnished benefits, but there is no avoiding the fact that this new wave of change also has a cruel underbow. Automation eliminates jobs. And it is eliminating them at a time when the work force is mushrooming as never before.

Although automation's toll has been heaviest in basic manufacturing industries, it has moved to replaced wages as the number one item in labor contract bargaining — the erosion doesn't stop there. Machines also are cutting an ever widening swatch through the service industries, clerical ranks, even middle management executive jobs.



Computer managers are hired to recommend actions based on their perception of data according to a set of rules—and in other words, much of what is done by the machine is a computer, with its infallible memory of an almost limitless number of facts, is far more reliable and much faster.

The Diebold Group, a management consulting organization, studied the effects of office automation and concluded:

"Computers will affect the nature of the manager's job, and they will have fundamental impact on the organizational structure of E.E. warning system it flattened the organization structure by one whole command level.

"If the trend continues," reports Alex Fehr, professor of political science at Kansas Valley College, "machines can handle about 85 of the middle management jobs by 1985."

Not even the professions are out of the machine's reach. Computers are showing signs of becoming fine medical diagnosticians; and lawyers are talking confidently of soon being able to fetch all the needed research for any given case from a central source reachable by telephone—dial telephone.

Around Industrial Circuit

By ANDY TURNBULL
G. T. LANNING LTD.

Hang onto your hats this summer. Some of the styles coming out are so wild the hats may be able to fly away by themselves, according to Robert Lanning, of G. T. Lanning Ltd. . . . Among the styles the firm has made are Lanning's, there is one with a small rubber alligator on the top, and another with a miniature golf green, a full size golf ball and a full size tee.

Some of the way-out styles are for sale at fairs and the C.N.E. in Toronto in the fall. Lanning's bought out the Montreal firm of Carnival Hats Ltd. early this year and brought the brand and the trade to Belleville. The move will help even out the firm's sales picture because the Carnival Hat season begins just as the season for Lanning's regular lines begin to slow, in June. Next year, the new line may add 10 or 15 employees to Lanning's staff of more than 75, but no changes are planned for the time being.

Normal production at Lanning's is between 650 and 700 dozen hats of the cheaper lines and about 2.5 dozen quality hats, per day. Materials and some rough woven hats are imported from most parts of the world to supply markets in Canada and abroad. Some of the most popular hats—such as those sold at the plowing match—are woven by hand in foreign parts and trimmed, blocked and pained by Lanning's. For some other styles, the firm imports woven fibre strips, which are sewn in a spiral to form the hats.

Founded in Toronto during 1915, the firm moved to Belleville, taking over the old American Optical plant during 1949. The sales office, operated by Alfred Lanning, Robert Lanning's brother, remains in Toronto and George T. Lanning, president of the firm at the time, will live in Belleville. The move has caused no regrets Robert Lanning said. Belleville is close enough to Toronto to make communication easy, but far enough away that he is not bothered at the plant by minor customers and suppliers. He can devote all his time to making hats.

CANADA CEMENT TRANSPORT

JOHN COVAN

New master for the Cement Karrier, Capt. John Covan, was appointed last week. He replaces Capt. H. H. Thorn of Belleville, who retired in February. Capt. Covan left Canada Steamship Lines during June of 1962, to serve as first mate on the Cement Karrier.

Born in Windsor, Captain Covan went to sea during the war as a Cadet Officer with the Merchant Marine. He travelled the world as a cadet officer, later as an officer, until 1955 when he came to the lakes with Canada Steamship Lines.

He has lived for the past five years in Brampton, with his wife and 14-year-old daughter.

Starting about the first of April, Cement Karrier will be carrying cement to Toronto, making two or three trips a week. Later in the year, possibly during June, the ship will work east from Belleville to Montreal and perhaps down to the east coast. The season will last, probably, until the the first week in December.

Others officers of the Cement Karrier will be appointed within the next three weeks, according to Capt. Covan.

ESSEX ELECTRONICS

Teletype service has been installed at Essex Electronics in Trenton, connecting the plant with all other Nytronics divisions in North America and with some of the firm's major customers. If the system works as planned, manager J. E. Kalfus says, data transmission equipment may be added to move to centralize control of the organization. The teletype equipment can be operated by any of the firm's typists, Kalfus says.

CANADA CEMENT

SID GALPIN

Two promotions are announced at Canada Cement's Point Anne plant. S. H. Galpin, formerly assistant chief clerk of Canada Cement's Pt. Anne plant, leaves for Havelock, N.B., on Wednesday, to take over as chief clerk of the plant there. The new job gives him complete charge of the office at the Havelock plant which is slightly smaller than the Point Anne operation. Married and the father of six children (four of them married), Mr. Galpin will take only his wife with him to Havelock, for the time being. The two unmarried children, he says, will stay with the married children, until the end of the school year. Mr. Galpin left the CNR office in Belleville during 1955, to join Canada Cement.

FRANK BUTLER

Frank Butler, formerly timekeeper at Point Anne, is the plant's new assistant chief clerk. Married and the father of four daughters, he lives at 331 Victoria Ave. Both promotions, according to company announcement, are in keeping with Canada Cement's policy of promoting employees to fill any vacant positions in any of its plants in Canada.

Queen Will Take Advice Of Ministers

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth, due to visit Canada in October, will take the advice of the Canadian authorities in dealing with the Canadian opposition to her planned call at Quebec City, a Buckingham Palace source said today.

The source said constitutionally whether or not the Queen replied to a letter sent her by a Quebec separatist movement warning her against her proposed Quebec trip was a matter for the Canadian authorities to decide.

"In this matter, the Queen must take the advice of her Canadian ministers as she is Queen, of Canada," the source said.

It warned of "unfortunate but inevitable incidents" if she visited Quebec in connection with the century of the consultation that led to Canadian Confederation in 1867.

COSMONAUTS IN NORWAY

OSLO (AP) — The next manned Soviet space flight will take place this year, Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin said Sunday after he and fellow cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky arrived for a week's stay in Norway.

STRAW HATS WITH PIGTAILS are among the odd-ball hats G. T. Lanning Ltd. is making for the summer, but the firm will not make many like the ones being held by R. G. Lanning in this picture. These hats are part of a line produced by a Montreal firm bought out by Lannings this year.

West Germany's Leadership Split on How to Handle Communists in the East

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN (AP) — West Germany's leadership is split on how to handle the Communists in the East. The question is being asked: Is the firm line that Konrad Adenauer laid down in his 14 years as chancellor collapsing?

The answer is that the line was wavering for some years before he handed over to Ludwig Erhard as head of the West German government last October. It may shift even more radically in the future. The reason seem beyond German control.

Adenauer, still head of the dominant Christian Democratic party, agreed Friday to meet the opposition Socialists and try for a bipartisan policy on helping the 17,000,000 Germans under Communist rule. That was never necessary while Adenauer was in office.

He laid down the policy and others went along or resigned. Mostly they went along. But now things have changed.

HAD CLEAR STAND

Adenauer started out years ago with a clear stand. He would tolerate no deals with the Communists. He favored a United States of Western Europe, based on close co-operation with France, in close alliance with the United States.

But plans for a united Western Europe went slowly. British was not interested and France vetoed its basic idea—a unified West European Army. That was 10 years ago.

Adenauer's stand on the Communists then weakened slightly. He went to Moscow and established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, despite its support of a Communist government in East Germany. He did it, he said, to get German war prisoners freed. Adenauer and his foreign minister, Heinrich Von Brentano, continued to be known as lead advocates of a "hard line" toward the Kremlin.

But in 1961, the Communists built their wall through Berlin and to many Germans this was a clear defeat for Adenauer. In the election that followed, his party lost its majority in Parliament.

To stay in office he had to make a deal with the smaller Free Democratic party. The Free Democrats had much less rigid ideas than Adenauer and Brentano about the possibilities of dealing with the Communists.

Adenauer managed to hang on, but Brentano had to go. He was replaced by Gerhard Schroeder, who began a foreign policy much more congenial to the Free Democrats and some distance from Adenauer's traditional line.

Before Adenauer retired, West Germany signed its first agreement with a Communist nation—Poland—to exchange permanent high-level trade missions. Similar agreements followed with Romania and Hungary. A fourth as signed with Bulgaria on Friday.

Schroeder stayed on when Erhard took over. His influence is expected to increase because Erhard has always been less interested in foreign affairs than Adenauer.

It is now almost five months since Adenauer left office. Little has happened that could not have happened under his rule, but the feeling persists that a new era has begun.

Pilot Killed As Airliner Hits Dwelling

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A chartered DC-3 airliner, trying to make a landing at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport in misty weather, crashed into a house late Sunday night, killing the co-pilot but the pilot and 28 passengers escaped.

It was one of a number of air mishaps. At Bogota, Colombia, police said all 25 persons aboard a Colombian airliner were apparently killed Sunday night, when it crashed 18 miles south of Bogota. Authorities said the plane, a DC-3 of Colombia's Taxader lines, exploded.

At Boston, a Trans World Airlines airliner with 81 aboard made an emergency landing today without serious difficulty after circling an hour to use up fuel. The four-engined Constellation skidded to a quick halt on a foam-slicked runway with its nose scraping the ground and its propellers bent.

In Hong Kong fire broke out Sunday in the cockpit of a Saigon-bound U.S. Air Force transport plane with 45 aboard. Crewmembers extinguished the blaze but the plane returned to Hong Kong.

At Chicago, the pilot, who with the co-pilot was trapped in the cockpit about two hours, was reported in critical condition in hospital. But the passengers, returning from a day of skiing in Michigan, escaped without serious injuries.

Two Kidnappers Given Life Plus 75 Years

By JAMES BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Psychiatric tests, motions for a new trial and appeal stand between two convicted kidnappers — Fred Sinatra Jr. and a lifetime in prison.

A third defendant, in the bizarre plot was found guilty of five of six counts—but not the actual abduction last Dec. 8 from Lake Tahoe, Nev. He awaits sentence.

That count—No. 2 in the indictment—dealt life in jail plus 75 years, to Barry Keenan and Joseph Amsler, both 23.

They were sentenced Saturday by U.S. District Judge William G. East immediately after a jury of nine men and three women convicted them of all six counts.

Defendant John Irwin, 45 asked for a pre-sentencing report that will take at least five or six weeks to prepare. Irwin participated in only the Los Angeles end of the affair as the stake in the ransom demands.

He's in the Los Angeles County jail, where he has spent part of the time since his surrender to the FBI last Dec. 13.

PLAN MENTAL TESTS

Keenan and Amsler, on the court's recommendation, will spend three months under psychiatric study at the federal medical facility in Springfield, Mo.

The jury, rejecting the defence claim that the affair was a publicity hoax in which Sinatra, 48, co-operated, convicted Keenan and Amsler of kidnapping the 20-year-old singer at gunpoint from a casino resort where he was appearing.

The was released three days later, Dec. 11, near his mother-in-law's Los Angeles home after his famed father paid $240,000 ransom.

Mrs. Gladys Towles Root, counsel for Irwin, commented in court: "Barry Keenan and the Amsler did everything but wear a neon sign on their back stating: 'Come to the kidnaping Sunday night. We are kidnapping Frank Sinatra, Jr.'"

The government prosecutor called it a "vicious crime pulled by rank amateurs moved by greed."

AGENTS ARRESTED

SEOUL (AP)—South Korea's Central Intelligence Agency announced Monday the arrest of five North Korean Communist agents and one collaborator assigned to stir up anti-American feelings. The anti-American agitation was to have been based on a decline in United States aid to South Korea and on incidents in which Koreans were shot by U.S. sentries, the agency said.

Hawks Beat Leafs, Two Points Up ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

'Jake The Snake' Ties, Beats Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jake the Snake has struck back.

The sting dropped the Montreal Canadiens two points out of first place in the National Hockey League.

The Canadiens have tormented Jacques Plante since the start of the season, been bewilding their former teammate with 60 or more shots a game and beating him and the New York Rangers nine out of 11 times.

But Plante got even during the weekend, using his goaltending skill and a weapon of revenge as the Rangers took three of a possible four points from the Canadiens in a home-and-home series. New York won 3-2 at Montreal Saturday night and the teams battled to a scoreless tie Sunday evening in Manhattan.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Black Hawks dropped Toronto 4-3 in their only weekend game and moved two points ahead of Montreal in the standings. The third-place Leafs set back Detroit 4-2 Saturday night but the Wings climbed within two points of Toronto again by beating Boston 5-3 Sunday night.

PLANTE BOMBARDED

Ahead 3-3 going into the final period, the Rangers fell apart and left Plante open to a 17-shot barrage. But the masked marvel turned them back and New York scored the first win ever on Montreal ice this season.

On Sunday, Plante made 32 saves and stopped dead - on drives by Henri Richard, Bobby Rousseau and Claude Provost in the final period as a Madison Square Garden crowd of 14,818 watched the first scoreless draw in that city since 1953.

Charlie Hodge made 33 saves to post his eighth shutout of the season. He faced 31 drives on Saturday but Bob Nevin, Dennis Marshall and Jim Neilson counted as the Canadiens defence let him down. Bill Hicke and Rousseau scored for Montreal.

Montreal still has two games in hand over the Hawks, but NHL titles are won on the ice, not on paper. The Canadiens now have been winless in four straight games.

The Hawks moved in front as Kenny Wharram saved the day for the second straight Sunday. After beating Montreal with a goal in the dying minutes last week, Wharram scored in the final period Sunday night to down the Leafs.

It was an individual's performance at Boston, too, as Norm Ullman scored three times to rally the Red Wings from a 3-0 deficit. Johnny Bucyk had scored twice and Dean Prentice once as the Bruins went ahead 3-0 by the second minute of the middle period, but Detroit didn't die.

Ullman scored twice and rookie Paul Henderson got his first goal in 19 games as the Wings tied it in the second frame. Ullman's 19th of the year and third of the night put them ahead 4-3 at 2:39 of the final frame and Irwin Spencer added an insurance marker.

The Wings didn't fare as well Saturday when they ran into the Leafs and Coach Punch Imlach's new combination of Andy Bathgate, Dave Keon and Don McKenney.

Imlach has been toying around with the two former Rangers since he settled them in Leaf uniforms and seemed to find success as McKenney scored twice.

The Wings pressed the Leafs, outshooting them 40 - 26, but Johnny Bower was up for the occasion in the Leaf nets and got additional help from the posts, a target Detroit shooters hit frequently.

It might prove a costly loss for Detroit. Bruce MacGregor injured his knee when checked by robust Bob Baun and the Wings also played Sunday without Parker MacDonald, who has a virus infection.

Ontario Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Bobby Hull was 25 years old on the third of January this year. By that time he had spent almost half his life as a player in the Chicago Black Hawk organization of the National Hockey League, and for the past five years, he has had the doubtful experience of living the life of a high-scoring hero.

What makes Robert Marvin Hull a hockey hero? His style and the statistics tell one story, but as we saw filmed for the special TV commentary "The World of Bobby Hull" (Sunday evening, March 8, CBC-TV Network), the viewer will see a complicated kind of star which the hockey crowds seldom glimpse.

There's more to Hull than hockey player. This program, sponsored by Canadian Westinghouse, brings out the part of Hull's life spent away from the rink. Much of this story is told by Hull himself as he was interviewed by writer Scott Young at his farm near Bellleville, not far from Hull's boyhood home. Film footage was shot in a cattle barn, part of the 500-acre holdings businessman Hull shares with a partner in a successful cattle-breeding venture.

There is a good deal about Hull which is typical of many professional hockey players. He hails from a small, rural town and a large family; his parents are hardworking, and he grew up surrounded by the discipline of chores and responsibility. When he was a boy in Point Anne, Ontario, Bobby used to get up first and stoke the kitchen stove and put on the porridge water to boil, and, in winter, sweep the walk free of snow. Those chores done, and often before breakfast, he would go over to the outdoor rink nearby and start scraping the snow off the ice so it would be ready for hockey when he got back after breakfast.

Hull says that his skill in those early days was a handicap later: he was so good as puck-carrying that there was no point in passing to anyone else. He learned the hard way—to be the team player he is today. His parents took him to Preston, where, at the age of fourteen, he played hockey with and against players five and six years older than he was. This was also the first year he missed his school grade; he was so homesick he went home as soon as the hockey season was over and abruptly ended that school year.

But what counted the later of the game began to get him. He was eight to 10 years old when he started, and in the next few years his rise was quick, until at 18, while still in school at St. Catharines (an indifferent scholar, but interested in football and girls) he was taken up to the Chicago Black Hawks. He was an instant success.

Hull never had any heroes in hockey (he admits to admiring Gordie Howe); never even saw many games, except the ones he played in. The rivals he had as a junior player are still his rivals.

Throughout the program, the viewer will see Hull in practice, in his dressing room, in games at Chicago and Montreal, scenes around his home in Chicago with his wife and two children, and scenes near Belleville, where he grew up. The sights are those of the big league, the glamor, the adulation; the sounds are those of a boy who left home early and still isn't ready to. It was a good thing, even though he enjoys in the full the gewalts.

Should Charge $1.00 Or $2.00

Will Ask Tax For Duck Hunters

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters will ask the federal government to impose a special tax on the 8,000,000 duck hunters in Canada each year to preserve the dwindling migratory waterfowl population.

The resolution will urge the government to establish a duck stamp on the small game and bird hunting licenses to entitle sportsmen to shoot ducks and geese.

Jack O'Datte, federation vice-president, said the government should charge $1 or $2 a year for the stamp. He said this revenue would be used to finance research into migratory waterfowl. It would also provide sanctuaries for birds.

Prof. H. W. Curran, a biologist at Queen's University, said in an interview there was little danger of anglers ever depleting the Great Lakes of gamefish.

He said recent research near Manitoulin Island, in Lake Huron, showed extensive sports fishing had had an insignificant affect on fish population.

COSSA Girls 'A' Basketball

"SHE SHOOTS, SHE SCORES" — An Oshawa O'Neill Collegiate forward "swishes" a field goal from well out in a losing cause. Her team bowed to Port Hope High School 32-13 in COSSA girls' senior "A" championships held at Morin S. S. Saturday. Peterborough Adam Scott won the junior title defeating Quinte S.S. girls 52-28.

Moira Matmen Sixth

Moira Secondary School's mat Trojans came up with a highly creditable performance in the all-Ontario wrestling championship over the weekend.

The "Bell Boys" of the city school finished in sixth position in the overall standings of a field of 326 competitors from 38 secondary schools of the province.

Kirkland Lake High School which won an invitational tournament here a short time ago, are the new all-Ontario champions.

Nelson Township High School, Burlington, finished in second place with West Hill Collegiate, Toronto, third. London Central fourth and Aldershot Collegiate fifth.

At the end of the first half of the tournament Moira was in a four-way tie for the lead with the three above-named schools.

The all-Ontario tournament held in Kitchener was the fourth annual championship. Quinte COSSA teams from Moira and Campbellford have engaged in but two of these.

Moira wrestling coach Bell was well-pleased with the performance of his association champions who defeated Campbellford and Whitby Anderson Street in the recent COSSA tournament.

"The boys are improving all the time," he said. "Last year, their first time to appear in all-Ontario tournament, they finished in 17th place. This year they wound up in the sixth spot."

N.H.L. Stars

Kenny Wharram, whose third-period goal—his second of the night and 28th this season—gave Chicago a 4-3 win over Toronto Sunday night.

Normie Ullman of Detroit, who scored three times as the Wings battled back from a 3-0 deficit Sunday night to beat Boston 5-3.

Jacques Plante, who made 17 third-period saves to preserve New York's 3-2 win over Montreal Saturday night and then was unbeatable Sunday evening as the Rangers and Canadiens played to a 0-0 tie.

Doc McEneny of Toronto, who scored two goals as the Leafs defeated Detroit 4-2 Saturday night.

Picton Juveniles Tie Bancroft

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Juvenilen blew a 5-1 lead on poor natural ice in Bancroft on Saturday night and settled for a 5-5 deadlock with Bancroft.

The game was first in a two-game home-and-home, goals-to-count series in O.M.B.A. Juvenile "C" playdowns. Second game will be played in Picton on Saturday night, with the winner of that game advancing.

Picton built the 5-1 lead on the outside ice surface in the first period, on goals by Larry Fredericks and one by Paul Finnegan.

Bancroft found the ice more to their liking in the final two periods and ripped back to tie the deadlock with four unanswered goals.

Napanee Hockey Tournament

Squirts Win Twin Crowns

Belleville Squirt All-Stars marched to the "A" division and the grand championship in the Napanee Lions-Rotary Tupole Hockey Tournament played on Saturday.

The Belleville boys coached by Lionel Bolly, came through with a terrific team performance in capturing top honors, winning three games and tying another on the way to twin crowns.

The host Napanee team captured the "B" group championship but bowed to Belleville by a 2-0 score in the Grand Championship final. It was the Belleville boys second shutout win over Napanee. They opened the tournament with a 1-0 decision over Napanee, dropping them to the "B" group.

In the champions' second game, Belleville took a 6-1 decision over Gananoque, qualifying for the "A" series finals against the second and favored Peterborough team.

Peterborough held Belleville to a 2-2 tie but a five-minute overtime period was played and since neither club scored, shots on goal were used to determine a winner. Belleville outshot the Petes 2-0 in the extra period.

Goalie John Feasby played a trunsendous series for Belleville, earning his two shutouts, but the entire Belleville squad turned in a great team effort, especially in the Peterborough game.

In the first-game 10 win over Napanee, Peter Frulick scored the Belleville goal, assisted by Brian Cousins and Greg Duffy.

Against Gananoque, Belleville's goals were split between Brian Cousins and Rick Meagher, each triggering three.

Doug Cousins and Rick Meagher were the marksmen in the 2-2 tie with Peterborough. Cliff Janitsch, Cousins and Meagher earned assists.

Cliff Janitsch and Meagher looked after the goal-scoring in the Grand Championship tilt against Napanee, with John Mulvihill, Bob Foster and Cousins drawing the assists.

The high scoring Peterborough Adam Scott Juniors took the crown in stride defeating Trenton High School 40-15 in the semi-finals and turning back the Quinte champions from Moira 52-38 in the final game.

Hard close-checking in the senior finals produced the lowest scoring game of the tournament. Both Port Hope and Oshawa guards thwarted many scoring chances.

The blue-and-white of Port Hope took a 7-4 first quarter lead and never looked backward. They led 11-7 at halftime.

Led by Sue Armstrong and Irene Andrejewski they increased the margin to 18-8 at three-quarter time deserved their opponents 13-5 in the final quarter to tuck the victory away.

The Misses Armstrong and Andrejewski led the winners with 15 and 12 points respectively. Sharon Thorndyke had four. Marilyn Schultz was tops for Oshawa with four points.

They led Moira's runners-up 30-23 at the end of the first half then pulled up a 22-10 edge in the last two quarters.

Lynn Neill scored 21 points for Moira with Ann Thompson (6), Jackie Thompson (8) and Diane Schroder (4) accounting for the rest of the score.

Cassius Turns Down Patterson Offer

Guaranteed $750,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Fight promoter Al Bolan has an offer on guaranteeing Cassius Clay $750,000 to defend his heavyweight title against former champion Floyd Patterson.

He also has a "no thank you" note on the way.

"Not interested," Faversham quipped when contacted in Louisville, Ky., after Bolan said he had mailed the offer to the new champion and his manager.

Bolan, however, said the 20-year-old two-time heavyweight boss wanted the fight so badly he was willing to sign for the bout without a purse.

"That's one of the reasons I am like my offer Clay might," he said, and added that "it's the largest guarantee ever offered a fighter."

Bolan emphasized that the $750,000 "is only a minimum guarantee. It's probable likely he (Clay) could make more out of it."

SENT TELEGRAM

He said he sent Clay and Faversham telegrams reading: "Will guarantee Clay $750,000 to defend against Floyd Patterson. Guarantee to be assured to your satisfaction. Clay can name time and place."

Bolan said Patterson, a Roman Catholic, "apparently feels very strongly about" Clay's statements that he's a member of the Black Muslims.

Patterson, 29, held the title from 1956 until he was knocked out by Ingemar Johansson in 1959. He regained the title the next year, then lost twice to Liston, each on a first round knockout.

T. Waite scored a pair of goals and helped on another to pace the Tex Pee victory. B. James and S. Hatfield got the other goals. A. Ray assisting on one. Third Royal goal, Canchene' markers, unassisted.

COSSA Boys 'A' Basketball

Cobourg, BCI Win Senior, Junior Crowns

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

BCIVS Juniors collected the Bay of Quinte district's lone championship in the COSSA "A" basketball "Tournament of Champions" played at Quinte S.S. here Saturday. It was BCI's second title in as many years.

While "Red" Townsend's batting Junior boys swept to a 46-40 triumph over Oshawa Central, Stan Barbour's BCI Senior squad ran into a team of Cobourg giants and bowed 53-39 in the tourney's main attraction.

Earlier in the evening Peterborough C.V.I. clipped Oshawa Donevan C.I. 46-43 to capture the bantam crown.

Colorful cheer leaders and throngs of various school supporters that filled the gym to capacity added greatly to the show.

BCIVS Seniors faced a Cobourg club that had a starting five all over six feet, led by "Big" Ravensdale who stood six foot, eight inches tall.

Ravensdale, with his control of the ball on layups, jumps and tips, pins a sharp eye from the foul line, a chief threat as Cobourg moved in front 8-2 early in the game. BCI had scored the first two points.

Cobourg led 16-7 after one quarter and 28-17 at the half. BCI made its strongest bid in the third quarter, cutting the lead 30-26 before Cobourg came back for a 33-26 score going into the final quarter.

While Ravensdale's height was a chief factor, Sayers handled the ball smoothly, started most of the club's plays and finished enough of them to give him top scoring honors with 18 points. Ravensdale hooped 11 before fouling out with about five minutes left in the game, BCI's Robert Williams followed him to the sidelines seconds later however and the homesters were unable to cut into Cobourg's lead. Cobourg was little less than terrific from the free-throw line and BCI, charged with 28 fouls, gave them plenty of chance to collect.

Williams was top point man for BCI with 12 points, followed by B. Chick with eight. The team was badly handicapped through an injury to team leader Murray Swan. Swan, who scored 18 points in his club's earlier 41-40 win over Oshawa Central, was hurt in the last minute of that game and was handicapped during the finals.

"NO RIM ON THIS ONE" — BCI's Robert Williams (in white) drops one in cleanly while the Davis brothers, of Cobourg, look for a rebound that never came. The taller Cobourg team went on to win the COSSA Senior "A" boys' title over BCI by a 53-39 score at Quinte S. S. Saturday.

In the Oshawa contest, Tyke Adams followed Swan with 10 points while Williams hooped nine. BCI held an 18-17 lead at half time and qualified for the tournament final by that slim one-point margin.

Other section action saw the same combination of Sayers and Ravensdale lead Cobourg to a 66-47 triumph over Belleville Morris Secondary School.

In bantam play, BCI qualified for the finals by dumping Peterborough C.V.I. 64-34 after leading 35-17 at half time.

Oshawa Central reached the finals with a 62-36 victory over Quinte Secondary School. Oshawa led 32-11 at the half in this one and were unbeatable under the basket with a terrific shooting average.

The Oshawa boys lost their shooting eye against BCI in the finals' game however, falling behind 10-8 after one quarter, 31-16 at the half and 39-24 after three quarters had been played.

Five BCI players played fine ball and also looked after all the team's scoring points. B. Walsh was top man with 19 while Allan Mott hit for 11. Byron Hillbrook rebounding well, hooped seven points and Dave Hurst and D. MacCormack garnered five and four points.

P. Killsdorf starred for Oshawa with 19 points. M. Stefaniak and J. Rajkovic collected seven apiece.

In the bantam finals, Peterborough built an early lead but Oshawa Donevan rallied near the end and came close to pulling out a victory before bowing 46-43.

Grant Lawson, 14, Roger McLaughin, 12 and Brian Tice, 11, were top scorers for Peterborough. Fils and Kit hooped 14 each and Wayling had 12 for Oshawa.

In qualifying games, Oshawa ousted Moira Secondary, of Belleville, 31-29 in a tight contest while Peterborough trounced BCI Bantams 53-10.

Maroons Lose To Czechs 3-1

BOD O N IN, Czechoslovakia (CP) — Playing Winnipeg Maroons suffered the second straight setback Sunday when they dropped a 3-1 decision to the Czechoslovakian national team.

Maroons, who now have won four games and lost two in their current European tour, were in the game until the second period, when the Czechs ripped home two fast goals.

Winnipeg recovered enough for a goal by Ron Farnfield at 4:40 of the third period, but the Czechs scored later for the 3-1 victory.

The loss followed Maroons' 4-3 defeat Friday in Brno to another Czech team with largely the same lineup.

The game was played before 8,000 fans in an indoor arena. Maroons play the same team today.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

There are two things I like to see youngsters strive for when they're playing hockey.

First I like to see them take advantage of breaks during the puck, passing to their teammates, instead of trying to carry it all the way down the ice themselves.

Secondly, I like to see them endeavor to maintain puck control. Rather than just shooting it out of their own end, when the situation is pressing, I like them to try to make a play first.

Take my own youngsters, Marty 9, and Mark 8. They are almost too young to become too serious about as far as teaching is concerned.

You can teach them fundamentals such as stick handling, passing, shooting, and above all, the ability to skate in all directions, to their left and right, as well as backwards.

Marty and Mark are doing a good job of playing positional hockey, taking care of their side of the rink. Youngsters that age have a lot pf potentially good moves but they haven't quite got the strength to pull them off.

By the end of the season they will have played more than 40 games. That's a lot of games and most of them were with Canadian teams rather than Michigan teams.

They've played home and home engagements where they were housed in their opponent's homes, in turn had them as overnight guests. It has been a wonderful experience for them. They've had a lot of fun.

I confided my eldest boy, Marty, who plays defence, about taking a look around, at all times, to see if there is a possible play.

He takes that extra second to try to make a play rather than just shooting it ahead or off the boards. When you shoot it right away, you probably will put it right onto an opponent's stick. Then you're right back in trouble again. Taking that extra second for a look has improved Marty's play 100 per cent.

Price Morris Has Four 'Lifters' Set New Records

Records went by the board at competitions held by the Apollo Barbell Club recently.

Morris also broke the Ontario "Squat" record (deep knee bend) with a lift of 500 pounds. John Lewis held the old mark of 475 pounds.

Morris in establishing the new Junior heavy marks and a press of 280 pounds; snatch 255; clean and jerk 300 pounds for a total of 830 pounds.

Coach Glen Carr-Brant says his "lifters" are improving with each competition, and if they continue at the present rate the club could very well come up with another Canadian champion by June.

"Two champions in a club the size of the Apollo Barbell would be more or less fantastic" he says.

Canadian champion John Lewis took part in the middleheavy competition, finishing with a total of 675, 40 pounds short of his record-holding 920 pounds.

SEES CANADIAN FILM INDUSTRY — Fletcher Markle, 43, host and sometime writer-director of the CBC's television series Telescope, hopes soon to breathe life into the Canadian film industry. A veteran of radio, television and movie direction and production, he has plans involving original screen plays and adaptations by Canadian writers. (CP Photo)

Fletcher Markle, Boy Wonder Of Canadian Radio, Is Back Home to Re-establish Career

By DAVE PIKE

TORONTO (CP) — Fletcher Markle, the onetime boy wonder of Canadian radio who was hopefully hailed by Hollywood in the late 1940s as the new Orson Welles, gives himself a year and a half to re-establish his career in Canada.

Markle, host of CBC-TV's Friday night half - hour Telescope series, returned to Canada from "the jungle down there," in 1962 to direct a movie of Sheila Burnford's book The Incredible Journey for Walt Disney.

"I found after a few months of working in my homeland it was the kind of change I'd been looking for," he says.

Markle, now 43, contracted in 1946 as a scenarist with Welles, after whom he had patterned his personality. He labored faithfully for the great man for a time, but eventually realized that, despite Welles' magnetism, the shadow he threw served more as a pall of obscurity than an aura of creative warmth.

From 1947 to 1949, Markle proved his talent hadn't been smothered as writing, directing and producing for such radio drama series as Studio One, for which he collected a Peabody Award.

GOT THE BREAKS

Markle once said he was "just a hard worker who got a few breaks." The breaks, and a growing reputation that included the genius label, sent him back to Hollywood where, between 1949 and 1951, he directed three feature films. He made Jigsaw, with Franchot Tone, Nigel Bruce, Sidney Toler, Ray Milland, and The Man With The Cloak, with Joseph Cotten. They weren't memorable efforts.

Television looked promising and in 1952 he headed for New York where he produced and directed a number of live TV drama series.

But he became firmly entangled in the "jungle," with such phlegm series as Life With Father, Tales of the Vikings and Thriller. By 1961, he was producer and contributing director of ABC-TV's Hong Kong series, which starred Canadian Lloyd Bochner.

Now, his main job is host and occasional writer - director for Telescope. The series is a free-wheeling attempt to show Canadians everything from a Hollywood movie premiere to a "nostalgic study of seagoing life as it once was." Critical comment has been mixed.

WANTS TO TRY FILMS

"After all," says Markle, "Telescope was never intended to be another Inquiry. I think it's a perfectly flexible piece of TV journalism. One of its virtues (or faults, depending on your point of view) is it's lack of restriction and circumscribed content. For next season's show we want to see the various parts of the world through the eyes of Canadians."

Markle also is an occasional contributing writer for CBC-TV's Playdate and Festival series. His adaptation of Katherine Anne Porter's Pale Horse, Pale Rider for the latter was picked up by the BBC.

"My largest interest now is having a Canadian film industry—having films as distinctively Canadian as Bergman's are distinctively Scandinavian. I have special plans involving two original screenplays and three adaptations by Canadian writers that I want to do.

"Canada has had such an unhappy history of one-shot films. But one must believe there is a future and a mellowing or go out in the corridor and put a pistol to your head."

Mellowed he has. Whereas he once used to work "25-hour days," he now finds 11 necessary to be in bed by 1 a.m. At the end of 1962 he learned he had diabetes.

He spends as much time as he can with his family and friends. His wife Dorothy is from West Virginia. His son by his former marriage is an Academy Award - winning actress, Merrie McCandidge.

OVERCAME STUTTER

Markle's main vice is reading. He has books in storage in Hollywood, New York, London and Paris.

He has a smattering of airport and hotel French and Italian. "One of my projects one of these days is learning French properly."

One of his most prominent trademarks is his Welleisian voice. There's not a trace of the schoolboy stutter, which he overcame by listening to radio, where he first did a covered Welles.

A precocious youngster, son of a prosperous Vancouver importer, he was writing at the age of 10 and by 17 was already writing and producing for Vancouver radio shows. Later, from Toronto, he worked with and drew Allen on CBC Radio's widely acclaimed Stage Series and Theatre Royal shows, as well as Radio Folio and other productions.

For several years during the Second World War, he worked as a writer, director and commentator for the BBC.

"I've directed almost 200 television films, which says no more than I've done my finger exercises.

"Now I think it's time to get the Canadian film industry going."

Palmer Playoff Favorite

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer had the record going for him today as he teed off against Gary Player and Miller Barber in an 18-hole playoff for $4,000 in the Pensacola Open Golf Championship.

Palmer, gunning for his second straight Pensacola Open title and third in five years, has won 11 of his 40 championships on the PGA tour in playoffs. Player has won only one of the seven playoffs in which he has participated in the United States. Barber is competing in his first playoff.

It gave him a 69 and a 14-under-par 274, the same scores posted by Player and Barber 15 minutes later.

Palmer, 13-under-par as he came to the final hole, was playing ahead of Player and Barber, who were both 14-under-par through 17 holes.

The two losers in the playoff will receive $2,300 apiece while all three players will split half of the gross receipts. The tournament sponsors get the other half.

NBC's Show of the Week, 'The Hell Walkers' Weak

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Hell Walkers, on NBC's Show of the Week, began as a suspense story Sunday, changed course abruptly to become a meandering psychological drama.

The tale opened with a middle-aged German surrendering, preparing to leave prison after 15 years.

So far, so good. Particularly since we are quickly introduced to a terribly British fellow who obviously is one of those clever suave agents, and is preparing to pursue the freed man.

But the British fellow immediately informed the German that he has been hired to pursue him the rest of his life. A Dutch millionaire wants revenge for the death of his child in a concentration camp where the German was garrison commander.

The rest of the play traced the growth of an obsession about the dead child and the need for repentance—not in the old Nazi, but in his tormenter. Curt Jurgens made a sane, sad and sympathetic character of the German. John Mills was more dramatic but less believable as the Englishman.

Lucille Ball is not only returning to CBS next fall but has signed a three-year contract.

President Lyndon Johnson will sit down for an hour-long informal interview in the White House Saturday for television broadcast Sunday.

Blades One Point Up On Komets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toledo Blades and Des Moines Oak Leafs are the two hottest clubs in the International Hockey League at present, despite a 27-point spread separating them.

The Blades, who recently came from 12 points behind Fort Wayne Komets to take over the lead in the seven-team league, Saturday dumped the slumping Muskegon Zephyrs 7-3 to remain one point up on the Komets.

The Oak Leafs, buried deep in the cellar at New Year's, swept a pair of weekend twinbills over Windsor Bulldogs to move into a fifth-place tie with the Zephyrs. Saturday the Oak Leafs blanked Windsor 3-0 and followed up with a 4-1 win Sunday. They now are riding a five-game winning streak.

The third-place Port Huron Flags also took both weekend twinbills, downing Chatham Maroons 5-2 Saturday and defeating the Zephyrs 6-3 Sunday.

The only other scheduled game saw the Komets stay close to the Blades with an 8-1 triumph over Chatham.

Pittsburgh, Aces Grab Top Spots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets were the only double-game winners in the American Hockey League over the weekend and it was enough to propel them into sole possession of first place in the Western Division.

The Hornets parlayed a 4-1 Saturday victory over Cleveland Barons and a 4-2 Sunday win over Providence Reds into a one-point lead over the slumping Barons, who were blanked 1-0 by Rochester Americans Sunday.

Quebec Aces clipped Springfield Indians 7-3 in their lone weekend outing to clinch a playoff berth for the first time in their five years in the league. The Indians came away from weekend action with a pair of losses, losing 4-3 in overtime to Providence Saturday.

Hershey Bears and Buffalo Bisons hooked up for a home-and-home set to bring a pair of 44 overtime decisions. Hershey came out on top Saturday but took the short end the following night.

SWEEP FOR JAPANESE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Japan made a clean sweep of all five games Saturday to trounce Canada in the battle for a berth in the American zone Thomas Cup badminton matches against the United States. Japan won the best-of-nine series 8-1. Holding a commanding 3-1 lead from Friday's matches, Japan won three singles games and both of doubles' matches Saturday.

At The Training Camps

By MURRAY CHASS

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Manny Jimenez, Kansas City Athletics' young outfielder from the Dominican Republic, reported to training at the Athletics' camp Sunday, four days late. It cost him $200.

Asked why he was late, the 23-year-old Jimenez replied: "I have to fight in revolution."

"I don't see any bullet holes in you."

"I too good a shot," Manny explained. "They no get to me. There are no taxis. They no like taxis. They shoot at them. I have to walk to airport, take back trails."

The Dominican native was involved in another kind of revolution in 1962. As the season rolled along in July, Jimenez was leading the league with a .350 batting average.

FINLEY STRIKES IN

Then owner Charles O. Finley stepped into the picture. He told Hank Bauer, then managing the team:

"I don't pay Jimenez to hit singles. Jimenez is a smart Cuban, and he's going for singles and a better average. You get him in your car and get another Cuban to interpret and bang your fist on desk. We'll see what happens."

Everyone saw what happened. At the end of the season his average dropped to .301, and he had hiff only 11 home runs.

Last season was even worse. Manny split time between the Kansas City and Portland of the Pacific Coast League. He batted .260 and drew a homer apiece in 80 games for the Athletics.

Another Kansas City outfielder, Rocky Colavito, is engaged in a salary dispute with Finley. The former Detroit star is reported to want $54,000, the same amount he earned last year with Detroit Tigers. Finley, Colavito said Sunday, has offered him $47,500.

DOESN'T ASK RAISE

"I am not asking for a raise," the slugger said at his home in Temple, Pa., home. "He (Finley) is trying to cut me $6,500. . . . I am definitely not coming from here until I sign my contract or come to an agreement."

In Sunday's exhibition games, Willie Mays cracked the first home run in the new Phoenix Municipal Stadium as San Francisco Giants whipped Cleveland Indians for the second time in two days 6-3. The Giants won Saturday, 4-2.

Chicago Cubs' A team downed Boston Red Sox 8-4 with Don Landrum getting five hits for the winners. The Cubs' B team dropped a 6-2 decision to Los Angeles Angels.

New York Mets completed their three-game stay in Mexico City by whipping an all-star team 9-4. The Mets won two of the three games.

Central Pro Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's unlikely that Cal Caron of the Central Professional Hockey League's St. Louis Braves will get a chance to equal his total output for this season in 1964-65. He will probably be spending at least part of his time with the parent Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League.

Caron, who has been travelling at better than a goal-a-game clip, Saturday fired his 65th and 66th goals of the campaign to lead the Braves to a 7-0 shutout over Minneapolis Bruins. The win enabled the Braves to take over sole possession of third place, two points back of Minneapolis.

In other CPHL action, the league - leading Omaha Knights were held to a 3-3 tie by St. Paul Rangers. Sunday's lone affair saw the Bruins shade Cincinnati Wings 4-3 .

Another Toronto team, Klaus Ross and John Bird in a DKW, were third with 104.

Fourth in a Volkswagen were John Dowding of Hamilton and Paul Manson of Toronto with 107 and fifth with 175 were Montrealers Stewart Ramsay and Peter Ross, driving a Renault.

PARACHUTIST KILLED

ADELAIDE (Reuters) — Donald West, one of Australia's leading sports parachutists, plunged 12,500 feet to his death Sunday while taking part in a world baton passing record attempt over a farm 35 miles outside Adelaide. Seconds before he crashed to his death West, 36, received and passed the baton for the sixth time, making the jump equal to the world record. His main parachute failed to open and his reserve chute opened too late—less than 500 feet from the ground.

King of the Hill

Bud Petican stole the show in the King of the Hill contest at the Bowl-O-Drome on Saturday afternoon. After finishing his fourth game with four strikes, he started his fifth with four more, making eight in a row and took the pot of gold at $50. even.

Petican rolled 1409 in the five-game rolloff, an average of 282 and went on to defeat Harry DeRuble 845 to 640 in the challenge match with an average of 282.

Joe Allen and Ron Saylor tied for second spot in the qualifying round with 1229 each, Jim Begley was next with 1153, followed by Jack Canning, 1118.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago's Stan Mikita picked up two assists Sunday night to take a five-point lead over teammate Bobby Hull in the National Hockey League scoring race and set a club record.

The stylish Black Hawks centre now has 36 goals and 49 assists for 85 points—one more than the team record Hull established in 1961-62.

Hull scored his 40th goal of the season in the Sunday night 4-3 win over Toronto to move to the 80-point level, seven more than third-place Jean Beliveau of Montreal.

Toronto's Andy Bathgate earned three assists and scored once during the weekend to move into a tie with Kenny Wharram of Chicago at 69 points. Wharram scored twice, his 37th and 38th goals of the campaign.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Mikita, Chicago	36	49	85
Hull, Chicago	40	40	80
Beliveau, Montreal	25	48	73
Wharram, Chicago	38	31	69
Bathgate, Toronto	18	51	69
Howe, Detroit	23	42	65
Oliver, Boston	22	39	61

Dump Petes, Black Hawks
Baby Habs, Marlies Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Once the playoffs are over seven of the eight clubs in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series can breathe a sigh of relief—they will probably have seen their last of Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Junior Canadiens.

The little right winger, who spent the season terrorizing enemy goalies, seems a sure bet to wind up with the parent Canadiens in the National Hockey League. Cournoyer took time out from his duties with the Juniors to score four goals in a five-game trial with the NHL club.

Sunday Cournoyer helped the Junior Habs wind up their regular schedule, scoring two goals —his 62nd and 63rd of the term —in a 6-2 win over Peterborough Petes.

The league - leading Toronto Marlboro recorded their 40th victory of the campaign by dumping St. Catharines Black Hawks 9-4. Hamilton Red Wings closed out their schedule with a 5-5 tie against the fall - and Kitchener Rangers.

Red Secling paced the Marlboros with two goals. Mike Walton, Grant Moore, Nick Harbaruk and Paul Laurent scored the others. Dennis Hull, Fred Stanfield, Joe Kish and Art Graham replied for the Hawks.

Peter Breman and Walt Tkaczuk showed the way for the Rangers with two goals each. Bob Jones fired the other. Pete Loveless, Lorne Knowles, Rob Young, Nick Libett and Pete Mahovlich scored for the seventh-place Wings.

A LOSING STRUGGLE — Police drag two pickets from the lobby of San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace hotel in what Chief of Police Thomas Cahill described as "non-violent arrests." Earlier an estimated 800 to 1,000 marched around the hotel claiming the management was discriminatory in its hiring policy. Later a group of several hundred filled the lobby and when they refused to leave in defiance of a court order, the police moved in. (AP Wirephoto)

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

Question: A trip to France is in the offing for this summer. We plan to rent a car and do considerable touring, but for overnight stops we prefer camping rather than hotels and motels. Is there much scope for this, and do you have any information on camping in France? — F.D., Belleville.

Answer: There are some 5,000 camping grounds in France. For fuller details, we suggest that you write to the Federation Francaise de Camping et de Caravanning, 22 Avenue Victoria, Paris, France, or to the French Government Tourist Office, 1710 Drummond St., Montreal.

Question: On my vacation this year, I am hoping to drive to Halifax, Cape Breton and back. I would like to avoid going into the U.S., and wonder if there is a possible way of making the trip entirely all-Canadian routes without covering too much of the same ground. — E. B., Stirling.

Answer: This is quite possible. One way of doing it, and at the same time reducing back-tracking to the minimum, is to take Highway 401 to Lancaster, No. 2 to Coteau Landing, across the bridge to Valleyfield and then No. 30 to 3 to St. Lambert and No. 9 to the junction with No. 2 opposite Quebec City. From there, take No. 2 to Riviere-du-Loup, and then south, still on No. 2, to Fredericton and St. John. At this point, you could take the ferry to Digby, and then No. 1 to Halifax through the Annapolis Valley. From there, take No. 7 to Antigonish, No. 4 across the causeway on to Cape Brenton, then up on No. 18 to the Cabot Trail, around the Trail and into Sydney on No. 5. From Sydney, take No. 4 to Amherst, No. 2 to Moncton, time as a housekeeper.

Nos. 11 and 8 to Bathurst, N.B., No. 11 to Matapedia, No. 8 to Ste. Flavie, and No. 10 to Riviere-du-Loup. From there, you could take the ferry to St. Simeon on the North Shore, and then No. 15 to Quebec City, and Nos. 2 and 401 back home.

Question: We are considering a trip to the west coast via the Trans-Canada Highway. Have you any information on campsites along this High-way? — V. L., Trenton.

Answer: The Canadian Government Travel Bureau have produced a booklet covering tenting, trailer and picnic sites along the Trans-Canada. This can be obtained through your local Chamber of Commerce office.

Faces Charge After Shooting At Widow

NORTH LANCASTER, Ont. (CP) — Edward Robinson, 54, of nearby Maxville, Sunday was charged with attempted murder in the shooting Saturday of widow Mrs. Lucy Beyolr, 38.

Mrs. Beyoun was reported in fair condition in Cornwall hospital with a .22 - calibre bullet wound in her lower right back. She was shot as she sat in the home of Mrs. Rose Lalonde.

Police said Robinson was arrested at her Maxville home following the shooting. He is to appear in court at nearby Alexandria Tuesday.

Police said Mrs. Beyoln worked for Robinson at one

Customers Leave Offbeat Notes For Milkman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Gray collects messages, but not the kind found in bottles flung into the sea by shipwrecked sailors.

For example:

"Instead of cream every fourth day and two quarts of milk every two days I would like a quart and a pint every three days except on a Friday or a Saturday and half a pint of cream every two days for the first three delivery days of the week starting on Tuesday except when such a delivery day falls on Monday."

Confusing enough, but right down the block the milkman is found:

". . . and what I am getting at is that we'll need an extra bottle of milk on Friday on account of Mrs. McLeary's aunt— the deaf one—will be over for the weekend. She was the one who was married to the man I told you about, who . . ."

One milkman unfolded this gem:

"Three quarts today. Thank you. If this note shows away, please knock on the door."

The sympathetic note:

"I'm sorry about the dog bite, but he'll get to know you after a few months like he got to know the poor gasman."

And the one from the little girl:

"Mummy says to leave the change for the dollar, please. She says she will leave the dollar for you next Saturday."

Kissing Makes Heart Beat Little Faster

By HAL BOYLE

It has been found that kissing revs up the ordinary man's pulse only five beats a minute.

The U.S. greeting card industry reports that more 50-cent "to my wife" Christmas cards are sold than 50-cent "to my husband" cards. When buying a card to send to their hubbies, most men prefer to stay in the 25-cent-or-under range.

Some scientists believe bacteria may become an important a source of energy as nuclear fuel. They hope to use these tiny, one-celled plants in producing electrical power from garbage.

Quotable notables: "Sorrow is the mere rust of the soul. Activity will cleanse and brighten it." — Samuel Johnson.

You think life is crowded here? In Singapore 39 per cent of the dwelling units contain more than five persons for each room.

A little tip to big shavers: If you suffer from razor pull, mister, it may not be the blade's fault. A Harvard dermatologist advises men to scrub their faces with soap and hot water for a full minute before shaving. This removes impeding skin oil and softens the whiskers.

How fast can a good quarter run? At a speed of about 20 miles an hour.

Odd records: The longest sermon, delivered by Clinton Locy of West Richmond, Wash., in 1933, lasted 46 hours and 15 minutes. When he finished only eight members of the congregation were still on hand.

Quickies: Turkeys are polygamous. . . . There are 15,000 different kinds of wine in the world. . . . Chess is the most ancient game of pure skill. . . . Portugal has foreign possessions 23 times its own size. . . . If you can't read 250 words a minute, you're slower than the average.

It was Benjamin Disraeli who observed, "Every man has a right to be consulted until he is successful."

Mobilization Considered By Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) Premier Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia and members of his cabinet held "exploratory talks" on the Malaysian situation today and planned to resume with a full cabinet meeting Tuesday.

Rahman said earlier that the talks were designed to decide whether to take the Malaysia-Indonesia dispute to the United Nations. He said it also would decide whether to call up conscripts to guard Malaysia's borders.

The premier said that if the Malaysia - Indonesia dispute were taken to the United Nations "it will take a long time to be settled."

"Personally, I feel those registered for national service should be called up now. With this, we might prevent infiltration."

CHARGES PLOT

Indonesia has charged that the British-backed Malaysian Federation of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo) is a British plot to extend colonialism.

Athletics, Hornets Lead Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics are playing a much easier time with the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series semi-finals than they did capturing the league championship.

Midway through the regular season the Athletics hooked up with Galt Hornets in a battle for first place which carried on to the end of the schedule. The clubs finished in a tie but Woodstock won on a better goal average.

Sunday the Athletics trounced Welland Burloaks 5-3 to take a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven series. Woodstock can wrap up the set at home Tuesday.

In Galt the Hornets rebounded from a 7-3 trounce Friday to whitewash Guelph Regals 6-0 and take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven set. The fourth game of the series is slated for Guelph Tuesday.

"Flight Is Delayed Due to Jabberwocky"

By JIM BECKER

ZURICH (AP)—Way back in the dark days of air travel, when planes never flew on time, the long - suffering passengers didn't get far.

They just sat there, in one dingy air terminal after another—they all looked alike — and waited.

In the jet age things are different.

Nowadays passengers sit around in Stockholm and Rome, present air terminal after another—they all look alike—and wait. But now they always get the word.

They are told every 10 minutes that their plane will be delayed another hour, and they are told the reason why. The trouble is they can't understand the word when they get it.

The airlines people speak a jargon that is comprehensible only to briefing officers in the Pentagon and inhabitants of the darker reaches of Madison Avenue.

TYPICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Pan-Eagle Airways regrets to announce that flight 19265 to Podunk and Texarkana has been delayed. The reason is a mechanical on the aircraft."

"A mechanical on the aircraft," indeed. Aside from the fact that it isn't English, what does it mean?

Or this announcement:

"Flight 376-B for Addis Ababa and Amua has been delayed. The reason is a service delay due to ramp congestion."

What's the matter? Is the "mechanical" stuck in traffic.

"Flight 108 to London has been delayed. The reason is ramp congestion and the replacement aircraft is a turnaround."

Now what . . . oh, skip it.

The Americans are the leaders in this jargonalisation—if the airlines can make up these awful words why can't I?—but the others are catching on fast.

Take this announcement fresh from the airport loudspeaker in Zurich:

What could be clearer than that? And in three languages!

PLAIN WORDS

Now it seems to be about time that the airlines came right out and told us in plain words why we have been sitting around the terminal for hours.

I'll submit three sample announcements, for openers:

"The midnight flight to Salt Lake will not leave for about two more hours. The reason is that the plane is in such terrible shape that the pilot won't fly it, and we are working on finding another pilot."

"We are afraid that we will have to cancel the 10 a.m. flight to Houston. The reason is that the airplane we were going to use seems to have disappeared somewhere between Boston and Norfolk, Va., and we haven't any idea where it is. Better luck next time."

Or:

"There will be a slight delay on the noon flight to Albuquerque. The reason is that the airplane is on fire. The flight will leave as soon as we put it out."

BLAME SMOKING

ALBANY, N.Y. (CP-AP) — Smoking killed one of every five men between the ages of 45 and 64 who died in New York State last year, New York State's special committee on smoking and health reported Sunday. The committee said statistics developed in Buffalo showed that "cigarette smoking killed 20 per cent of New York State male residents in the 45 to 65 age bracket who died in 1963. The committee recommended doubling to 10 cents from five the present state tax on cigarettes.

May Incorporate Red Ensign In Design for New Flag Dr. Jewett Tells Convention

She reminded a convention of the Ontario Liberal Association's south-central region that the government had made an election pledge to introduce designs for the flag within two years of assuming office.

That pledge, she said, had been for a flag "whose design could not be mistaken for the emblem of any other country."

"This," added Miss Jewett, "excindes the Red Ensign because this is the emblem of Bermuda and various other countries."

It was difficult to predict what the new design would be, although it could include the Ensign.

"It could be a maple leaf or a series of maple leaves," she said. The new design might be submitted to the next session of parliament.

It was only one item in a frank exchange of individual attitudes between elected representatives and the party's "grass roots" membership in the region, who convention drew 150 delegates to the Hotel Quinte.

That exchange ranged from such down-to-earth issues as provincial minimum wage rates to the powerful abstract of national unity.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Marshalled for a key panel discussion were MPs Robert Temple (Hastings South); E. J. Benson (Kingston); Russell Honey (Durham); Miss Jewett and Robert Nixon, MLA, and president of the Ontario Liberal Association.

The meeting came alive at the starting line when Mr. Nixon, as general chairman, called for an election of officers. It took two ballots to elect Douglas Stork, Belleville real estate broker, and more ballots were called for various committee appointments.

DOUGLAS STORK
. . . new president

To gain the presidency, Mr. Stork defeated John Lay, of Oshawa, and a nephew of Mackenzie King, and Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto. Both men were later acclaimed as vice-presidents for their areas.

George Dryman, an Oshawa QC, also had to fight it out on a ballot to become secretary-treasurer.

While spontaneous, the panel discussion allowed the politicians little manouevring around directness.

This showed up early when Mr. Benson was queried about civil service superannuation and the proposed Canada Pension Plan. After a lengthy resume of the plan's various ramifications the Kingston MP was brought up short.

Miss Jewett again dropped a provocative answer when a delegate wanted to know what was going on between the Liberal and NDP parties.

ONLY IN ONTARIO

Briefly her reply was—nothing, on the federal level, but there might be room for discussing a merger in Ontario politics.

Nationally, neither party was close in ideals; the Liberals were more powerful than the NDP "ever likely will become", while the NDP now has become restricted to representation in urban and mining areas — "and not very many of those".

There was not need to "give very serious consideration" to a merger on the federal level.

However, in provincial affairs "there might well be something to be said for some discussion along these lines".

She reasoned that the Ontario Liberal Party-Conservative party was a slow mover in human affairs, while both the opposing parties "have got it moving". "a good deal more progressive".

"Therefore, these two parties, within the provincial particular province, are perhaps a little closer in their ideas".

An objector from the floor called on Mr. Nixon for his reaction to Miss Jewett's statement. He got it:

"There is no possible chance of a merger of the parties in the foreseeable future" said Mr. Nixon. While there were areas of common policy, the future of the Ontario Liberal party depended on its ability to adopt new ideas.

"I say to the NDP our party is open to any who want to join it", he concluded.

Federal financial policies also were up for debate.

Belleville barrister K. G. M. Ross, identifying himself as a "right-winger", noted forecasts for the largest budget in history, while Finance Minister Gordon had earlier warned the country could not afford any deficits.

SOME SPENDING UP

"Do we or do we not get a tax cut somewhere? Who wants to answer that?" he challenged.

Mr. Benson replied while statutory expenditures actually had been cut by the government, non-statutory spending which could be controlled (such as family allowances) had increased "and will continue to increase."

However, the government has undertaken to move towards balanced budgeting and lower taxes within four years.

This will provide the alternative of either reducing the national debt or aiding personal taxes.

"I personally hope it will be the taxes of individuals that will be reduced," he added.

In provincial affairs Dr. McVicker demanded to know the party's attitude to minimum wage legislation — specifically why it was only being implemented in the "Golden Horseshoe" region.

In his area (Deseronto) wages ranged from 70 cents to $1.60 for semi-skilled tradesmen and $5.40 cents for women.

"They can't live on it in this day and age," charged the doctor.

Last year, replied Mr. Nixon, "the government assured us that this would be done in a phrase that Mr. Robarts has taken from Mr. Frost — in the fullness of time. The time has not become that full yet."

However, he added, "in fairness" the Department of Labor now is conducting surveys in many areas. As a result assurance has been given that the extension will come "as soon as possible."

OBJECTION TAKEN

Just before time ran out one delegate queried the federal government's attitude on differences between "English Canada and French Canada."

Mr. Temple took objection to the phrase then emphasized that the key to solving current differences was moderation.

"And this doesn't mean that either side has to give in to the demands of the other. But if we do have moderation on both sides I would say this will still be a united country by 1967."

T . statement cued an outburst of applause to end the afternoon's events.

The delegates were released by Mayor Jack Ellis. With a touch of dry humor the mayor said he didn't always find himself among those whose politics he agreed with.

However, he added seriously, "I want you to know that despite party or anything else we in the city of Belleville are extremely proud of the way our affairs are being handled in Ottawa by Robert Temple."

One item was cut from the agenda — a speech by Mr. Nixon — as the convention started late and the election of officers dragged out the schedule.

PANEL DISCUSSION brought parliamentarians to answer Liberal "grass roots" membership at convention. Above Robert Temple, Hastings South, replies to query as moderator Robert Nixon, M.L.A. and Pauline Jewett, M.P. Northumberland, listen in.

Sex Lives of Two Insects Being Used to Destroy Them

TORONTO (CP) — The sex lives of the screw-worm fly and the gypsy moth are being used to exterminate them, 250 persons at the Royal Canadian Institute were told Saturday.

Dr. Thomas A. Angus of the department of forestry, told the group that biologists will exploit insects' sex attraction, sterilize males and introduce disease among pests to provide alternatives to chemical insecticides.

He disagreed, however, with critics who argue that insecticides use should be stopped. If only their harmful effects are considered, he said, the suggestion might have merit. To stop their use would result in an increase in many human diseases and a great reduction in crops.

Dr. Angus, a biologist at the department's insect pathology research institute at Sault Ste. Marie, said biologists will make increasing use of integrated insect control to minimize the harmful effects of any one method.

He told the group that the screw-worm fly, a cattle parasite, has been wiped out in parts of the United States and the island of Curacao by sterilizing the males.

USE COBALT

The male flies are raised in laboratories, sterilized by radio-active cobalt and released to compete with normal males for the females' favors. The eggs laid by the females who have mated with the sterile males do not develop.

Gyplure, the sex attractant of the female moth, has been the downfall of the gypsy moth. Males dive into paper cups baited with synthetically produced gyplure and are trapped in the bottom by a sticky substance.

House flies were reduced in a recent test in Florida by mixing a chemical sterilant with powered food scattered on the garbage dump.

There are about 50 known compounds which produce sterility in insects, Dr. Angus said. There are also about 200 known virus diseases that will multiply within the body of one insect. It is possible to use them to control one species without killing beneficial insects.

He said that effective control can be gained over the European pine sawfly through a disease applied within a spray. Enough spray can be produced from one infected larva to treat five acres of young trees.

Ottawa Boy, 5, Found in Bush

VANKLEEK, Hill, Ont. (CP) — A five-year-old Ottawa boy was found wandering in the bush near here early today, 6½ hours after he was reported missing by his parents during a visit to a friend's farm.

Pierre Plouffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Paul Plouffe, was taken to hospital at Hawkesbury. He was expected to be released later today.

About 50 persons joined in the search for the boy which was hampered by a blinding snow storm.

Opportunities to adopt children

VAN is a boy who needs parents and a home. He is a healthy nine year old, Anglo Saxon in descent, good looking, well built with brown eyes and hair. His religion is Protestant. This lad is uncertain and insecure, but very responsive to affection. Van wants older brothers and sisters if possible but, above all, understanding, loving parents.

GRACE also needs a mother and father. She is a pretty child with blue eyes and fair hair, of Scottish Canadian origin. Grace appears brighter than most three year olds, is fairly easy going but wilful and dearly loved by all. She is not spoiled and will need careful handling, but her beguiling charm is always in evidence. This little girl is available for adoption to Protestant parents.

If you can offer either Van or Grace a permanent home, please write to:

Five Killed In Daylight At Crossing

REDDITT, Ont. (CP) — Five persons were killed by a level crossing collision during carnival weekend in this northwestern Ontario community.

Four were reported dead following the train-car crash Saturday. Two others — occupants of the car along with the dead — were taken to hospital with injuries. One of them died later.

Dead are Michael E. Hamel, 39, of Transcona, Man., his daughters Michele, 14, Dixie Dorla, 11, and Kimie, 9, and his father-in-law, Frank J. Jakubec, 75, of Redditt.

Mrs. Hamel was taken to hospital in Kenora, about 20 miles south of here. Her condition was reported fair. Dixie Dorla was taken to hospital at Winnipeg, 130 miles west of here, where she died late Sunday.

Provincial police said Mr. Jakubec was driving the car when it was hit by a westbound CNR freight train at a level crossing on the outskirts of Redditt.

The car was hit "dead centre," police said. It was struck on the left directional signal flashing on the Hogle vehicle, although the light and the crossing was marked by signs.

Two Accidents Over Weekend

PICTON — Ontario Provincial Police were called to the intersection of highway no. 10 and county road no. 22 at 3.30 p.m. Saturday. They said that a car being driven by David Charles Bailey, 18, of 61 Inkerman Ave., Picton Heights, failed to stop at a stop sign and was in collision with a car being driven by Eva McKibbon, 62, of R.R. 10 Picton.

Damage was estimated at $425.

There were no personal injuries and police are continuing their investigation.

FREAK ACCIDENT

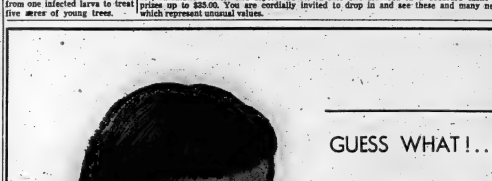
What local police described as a freak accident occurred at 3.10 p.m. Sunday on Main Street here in Picton. Police said that a car driven by Lou Hogle, of 31 Washburn Street was attempting to make a left hand turn into Bowery Street, when a car being driven by William A. Arkett of Main Street, Bloomfield, met seeing the left directional signal flashing on the Hogle vehicle, attempted to pass her.

When he saw he was in danger on having an accident, Arkett accelerated in an attempt to pull out around the Hogle car. This he was successful in doing but ended up by crashing into a heavy hydro pole which also carried telephone lines.

Arkett was able to drive his vehicle from the scene of the accident with only about $75 damage cause. Damage to the pole was estimated at about $200.

There were no personal injuries.

Police say no charges will be laid as "it was just an accident".



Children Set Fire to Shed

THOUSANDS FLEE OHIO RIVER FLOOD

Fighting Erupts Among Cypriots In New District

Britain Rushes Platoon To Village in Mountains

CP from AP-Reuters

NICOSIA—Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots kept an uneasy truce in battered Kiima today, but new fighting broke out in Malia.

The British Army rushed a platoon to Malia in an attempt to head off another outbreak that might involve the Cypriot factions into all-out war.

A British military spokesman said new fighting broke out in Malia on the southern slopes of the Troodos Mountains in central Cyprus at 6:30 a.m.

A government spokesman said government security forces called on British troops who were protecting Turkish-Cypriots in the Malia village school to withdraw "otherwise unpleasant situations might arise."

However, the British troops replied they were there acting on orders.

CALL FOR SURRENDER

During a pause in the firing earlier, Greek - Cypriots called on "Turkish terrorists" to surrender their arms, but they refused.

Fighting was continuing with Turkish-Cypriots positioned in the school, a minaret, and other fortified positions.

The government spokesman also said two explosions and some firing were heard overnight in the Turkish quarter of Limassol, a port in south Cyprus.

Talks between Greek and Turkish leaders aimed at restoring peace on this eastern Mediterranean island were expected to start today unless a new flare-up occurred.

A cease-fire was imposed on Kiima Monday after Greek and Turkish - Cypriots battled more than 12 hours with armored bulldozers, mortars and bazookas. Informants said the truce was authorized by both President Makarios, the Greek-Cypriot leader, and Vice-President Fazil Kutchuk, leader of the Turkish minority.

CABLES APPEALS

UN Secretary - General U Thant cabled appeals Monday to Archbishop Makarios and the foreign ministers of Greece and Turkey to halt the bloodshed which then only lead to even more tragic and deplorable consequences.

Casualty reports from Kiima, a west coast port of 6,000 Greeks and 2,000 Turks, said two Turks had been killed and 18 wounded and nine Greeks and 13 wounded in Monday's battle. However, some believed that Turkish casualties would prove far higher.

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Monday it is essential that any national contingent which would be part of a United Nations force in Cyprus should have a very clear idea of its powers and responsibilities.

The contingent should also have the co-operation of the Greek and Turkish communities in Cyprus, he said in reply to a series of Commons questions by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Mr. Martin said Canada and the four other countries approached by the UN to supply contingents have been seeking clarification of the UN's proposed force in Cyprus. The force's terms of reference were in only very general terms in the UN resolution calling for its establishment.

Mr. Martin said one country approached has refused to supply troops. Two others had laid down important financial considerations.

The necessary financing is not any obstacle to Canadian participation, the minister said.

But he agreed with Mr. Diefenbaker that UN peace-keeping operations were more truly in line with UN efforts if the finances were borne by the UN itself.

In the case of Cyprus, financing of the operation will be borne by the participating countries.

Mr. Martin for the second time said pointedly that the UN force would be bigger than the present 7,000 - man British force in Cyprus, which, the minister added, was keeping the peace.

Mr. Martin also said he suspects that the provision in the UN resolution for a three - months tour of duty by the force would be "open to review."

Tobacco Stalemate Serious

TORONTO (CP)—Threats of violence again hang over Ontario's tobacco marketing stalemate as Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart prepares for last-ditch talks with buyers and growers.

Mr. Stewart is to meet with buyers for eight tobacco companies at the legislative buildings today and then hold discussions with representatives of the growers Wednesday.

Visibility Reduced to Almost Zero as Storm Whips Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Gale-force winds swept across southern Ontario today, dropping up to two inches of snow and reducing visibility to almost zero as they whipped up drifts on many highways.

Hazardous driving conditions were reported on most south-to-north roads as the winds, gusting up to 55 and 65 miles an hour, moved swiftly eastward.

The weather bureau said conditions in Northern Ontario were mild, but a similar storm was expected to hit the region later today and Wednesday.

The bureau said the storm would abate after a few hours in southwestern Ontario and in the Lake Ontario region later in the day.

In Essex County, provincial police reported highway underpasses and crossings congested with stalled cars. They warned motorists to avoid unnecessary travel.

Two inches dropped on Windsor as city dwellers trudged to work in a blinding storm. Traffic inched forward on slippery city streets.

In Toronto, commuters went to work in a driving hail storm, but traffic moved slowly. Swirling snow that reduced visibility to almost zero hit the city after the main rush hour.

Temperatures dropped slightly in the south, but the weather bureau said they would rise again after the storm passed.

Today's Chuckle

Chairman of the Board: "That's only a suggestion, gentlemen, but let's not forget who's making it."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Northern Ontario will be affected by a minor storm tonight and tomorrow. This disturbance now is moving through the Dakotas and snow with it will likely spread into the western regions of the district tonight and through the rest of the northern regions Wednesday.

Marmora Fire Loss $100,000

Chinese Cafe Owner Leads Two to Safety Over Roofs

Hands bandaged, feet frozen and still showing signs of shock, 52-year-old Archie Wong told how he led two elderly fellow workers to safety over the rooftops while their restaurant blazed furiously below.

Tom Wong and George Mah also suffered shock and exposure as they fled the blaze that brought firefighters from Madoc, Stirling and Marmora township before it was fought under control.

Lost in the fire was Richard's Restaurant; La Reine Fashion Shop, a vacant store and four apartments. Smoke damage was caused the adjoining Regent Theatre when flames licked under its eaves. Damage was figured up to $100,000

About 12 people in all were believed homeless, among them Mrs. Rene Bourbeau, operator of the ladies' store, who first turned in the alarm.

Mrs. Bourbeau, who also had an apartment at the rear of her store, fled in her night attire after being awakened by smoke about 4:30 a.m.

It was about the same time that Archie Wong said he awakened in the apartment shared by the three Chinese over the rear of their restaurant. Smoke was boiling through the rooms and he severely lacerated his hand as he impulsively smashed a window.

STAIRS CUT OFF

The stairs were already cut off by fire, he said. He groped toward a door leading onto the roof, locked but with the key in lock.

"It was a good thing that key was always left in the door," said Archie. "In the smoke we would never have been able to find it otherwise, and we couldn't have broken down the door".

He led Tom Wong to safety then returned into the smoke and awoke George Mah.

In the first excitement as the alarm roused the village, the three men went unnoticed and it was feared they had been trapped in the blaze.

"I felt sure those boys were lost inside," said Reeve William Shannon ,when he first arrived on the scene.

When discovered, they were treated by a doctor and given a room at the Royal Hotel.

The block is owned by Robert Maynes, who has had a penthouse apartment near the Centre. Mr. Maynes led his wife, two young children and mother out of the adjoining building when the alarm was raised.

Labor Minister Sounds Out Provincial Views on Code

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen has sounded out provincial views on his plans for a national labor code.

He told reporters after the opening round of a two-day conference with provincial labor ministers that he will proceed in Parliament with legislation to establish a national minimum wage, a normal working week, vacations with pay and statutory holidays.

But he said that he will "assess" the views of the provinces in framing the specific standards to be established under the labor code.

"The matter will then go before the government," he said. "We haven't made any final determination on this question."

A source said there was general support from the provinces for federal labor standards but some differences emerged on how they should be introduced.

Mr. MacEachen is understood to favor a $1.25 minimum hourly wage—well above the minimum rates in effect in the provinces. It would affect about 50,000 workers of the 350,000 employed in industries under federal labor jurisdiction.

But the federal wage floor would also encourage pressure by provincial governments to raise their minimum rates to the national level.

Mr. MacEachen said the provincial ministers were interested in the possible effect of a federal wage standard on their provincial rates, which range from 35 cents an hour for women in Newfoundland to $1 an hour for factory workers in British Columbia.

He said the possibility of introducing the minimum wage on a regional basis as a preliminary step toward a national minimum wage was one method under consideration.

Although the government has not spelled out its specific intentions, the Liberal party is on record in favor of a $1.25 minimum hour wage, a 40-hour work week, two weeks annual vacation with pay after one year of employment, plus seven statutory holidays.

The labor ministers' conference—first since 1946 — also tackled the problem of co-ordinating federal-provincial efforts to provide more skilled workers.

A draft agreement for a three-year cost-sharing program for apprenticeship training was proposed by federal authorities to replace an existing agreement due to expire March 31.

The new agreement—to last three years instead of the previous 10 years—includes some new features designed to develop a skilled, flexible work force to meet the changing needs of industry.

Bennett Object Of Jabs

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—If there ever was any doubt, the New Democrats made it plain Monday that in firing shafts at the Columbia River treaty they are trying to hit Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

He was described as "the prime culprit in this affair," by Colin Cameron of the NDP, openly bent on using all efforts to prevent what they regard as a sell-out of Canadian interests to the United States under the treaty.

Speaking before the Commons sent the treaty to a committee after a five-day debate, the B.C. MP said both the Liberal and former Conservative governments are embarrassed by the treaty.

He said both parties apparently are afraid of Mr. Bennett.

In the Columbia debate, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accused the government of a retreat on treaty-power principles from the opposition they had voiced when his Conservative government negotiated the original treaty with the United States in early 1961.

As for the protocol the Liberals negotiated in January, Mr. Diefenbaker said that except for one or two changes, cash instead of U.S.' hydro power in payment for Canadian water storage—it was a smokescreen to conceal the Liberals' former criticism.

External Affairs Minister Martin, closing the debate, said the 1961 treaty signed by the Conservatives was basically good. The Liberals had made it better through the protocol.

Mr. Martin said the Liberals' main accomplishment was getting the project moving again, after it had been stalled since 1961—largely by the non-concurrence of Mr. Bennett.

Reprimand Lawyers In Crime Probe

TORONTO (CP)—Three lawyers who figured prominently in the Ontario government's 1962 royal commission inquiry into crime have been reprimanded by the Law Society of Upper Canada for their dealings with gambling bosses Joseph McDermott and Fred Feeley, targets of the investigation.

After a long study of the commission's report and the evidence of its own, the society announced Monday findings of misconduct against Harry Walter and solicitor" against Walter C. Bate, David Humphrey and Sol Gebirtig, all of Toronto.

Mr. Humphrey was fined $500 and Mr. Bate $500—the latter fine smaller because a court previously had ordered Mr. Bate to pay damages and costs of an abortive action against the commission, on behalf of the gambler.

WERE WITNESSES

All three were witnesses before the commission, which found McDermott and Feeley—who employed Mr. Rose as counsel at the commission and the other two in various capacities earlier—to have been the kingpins of a gambling empire.

The gamblers now are serving 1½-year sentences for conspiring to obtain gambling raid tipoffs illegally from police. Last week they were acquitted of fraud charges in connection with sale of stock in mining claims they own.

DROPS ROMAN NUMERAL

ATHENS (AP) — The new king of the Hellenes is expected to call himself Constantine, but he will be known officially as Constantine II, say sources in the Greek court. He signed his formal oath after the death of his father last Friday simply: Constantine Rex (King Constantine). His father, King Paul I, didn't use the Roman numeral after his name either.

Tornadoes Sweep Southern States Leaving 3 Dead

Violent March Weather Spreads Havoc in U. S.

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Ohio River continued rising today inwards an expected 66-foot crest in Cincinnati—highest since '45 and fourth highest in 60 years—as thousands of persons abandoned their homes in pouring rain.

The weather bureau said it expected the rain to turn into snow, adding to the misery of the refugees, but perhaps hastening the end of the flood. The skies were due to start clearing this afternoon.

The river was expected to reach the 66-foot level Thursday. Flood stage is 52 feet.

Violent storms and floods, following the pattern of destructive weather in March, dealt death, widespread damage, misery and inconvenience to thousands in the eastern half of the United States.

Tornadoes swept areas in Mississippi and Alabama, killing three persons. Gale - like winds, rain and hail lashed areas in the mid-section.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

Floods drove thousands from their homes in four states, most of them in the Ohio River valley. Many highways and roads were inundated. Bridges were washed out. Many schools were forced to close. The Red Cross and national guardsmen aided in evacuation.

Storm Warning

An intense March storm is moving rapidly eastward south of Lake Erie this morning. Snow and blowing snow driven by strong northeasterly gales of 35 to 40 miles an hour with gusts of 55 to 65 are creating hazardous driving conditions from Simcoe to Windsor in southwestern Ontario.

This weather will spread rapidly eastward to Niagara and Lake Ontario regions this morning. Snowfall amounts are now expected to be more than one to two inches.

Conditions will improve rapidly in southwestern Ontario this afternoon and in the Lake Ontario region this evening.

In the storm-battered south, land, the twisters and tornadic winds hit areas in northern Alabama, northeast Mississippi and parts of Tennessee. A tornado struck the small town of White, near Jackson, Miss., early today, killing a woman and destroying six homes.

KILLED BY WIND

In Mississippi, a woman was killed in Greenwood when her house was flattened by winds of 70 to 80 miles an hour. Her body was buried in a ditch in which she was working. The ditch filled in during a heavy rain and storm.

2,500-Mile Mercy Flight Brings Blood for Woman, Baby

REGINA (CP)—A 2,500-mile mercy flight and co-operation from several forces in two countries brought lifesaving blood to a Regina woman and her infant son Monday.

A frantic international search for a rare blood type started Monday when doctors discovered Mrs. Adam Kovatch would give birth a week early. Late in the day a supply was located at the Chelsea naval base near Boston and an RCAF CF-100 jet from St. Hubert, Que., picked it up.

Twelve hours later Mrs. Kovatch and her son were given transfusions of the blood, described by a doctor here as the rarest in the world.

Mother and child were reported in satisfactory condition, but doctors maintained a steady check on the number of red cells in their blood. If the count continues to drop additional blood will be needed.

In that event, the American Red Cross will be asked to enlist the help of three known donors of the blood type in Los Angeles. The critical waiting period for mother and child is 24 hours.

Doctors said two pints of the blood were given Mrs. Kovatch, wife of a carpenter, and one to her son. The blood is known as VEL negative.

Quebec Blocks Exports

TORONTO (CP)—Lands and Forests Minister Roberts Monday branded the recent Quebec move to block export of Quebec trees to Ontario sawmills as "bad business" while one Ontario sawmill predicted "serious effects."

Mr. Roberts said two Ontario sawmills would be affected by the new policy on woodcutting —both obtain one-half of their log requirements from the Quebec side of the Ottawa River.

Lucien Cliche, Quebec's minister of lands and forests, announced a week ago the export of logs would be prohibited starting at the next cutting season in the fall.

He said it was not good economics to export wood when Quebec sawmills had not enough wood to feed their own machines.

Officials of Consolidated Paper Corporation Limited, which operated a white pine sawmill at Pembroke, said they expect to meet Quebec authorities next week to discuss "the impact of the decision."

Mr. Roberts answered a query on government action by Paul Yakabuski (PC—Renfrew South):

"I have stated several times and I repeat here in the House that as my opinion this prohibition is bad business on the part of the authorities in the neighboring province."

In other business, an attempt by Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) to open a debate on Metropolitan Toronto's hospital bed shortage was squelched by Speaker Donald Morrow.

The speaker ruled the subject had been discussed fully in the throne speech debate and members would have the chance to put the subject before the house again during the continuing budget debate.

Vernon Singer (Lib—Downsview) said it was tragic that with the case for more beds so well established in Ontario, the only thing heard from the minister of health was a "childish juggling of figures."

Health Minister Dymond said he is reluctant to believe that Ontario hospitals are exerting pressure upon officials of the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses.

He was answering questions by Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) about discrimination charges by Jean Cranstoun, a nursing teacher who says she was dismissed from St. Joseph's Hospital in Toronto because she is fighting for nursing reforms on behalf of the newly-formed committee.

Five Tons Of Feed Are Destroyed

A transient seeking a place to sleep may have been the cause of an early morning fire at MacKenzie Feeds Ltd., South Front Street.

Five tons of feed, stacked on a truck ready for delivery today, were lost when fire broke out in a drive shed behind the main office buildings.

A company official said fire investigators were probing the possibility the fire may have been caused by a cigarette smoking transient who dozed down on the feed bags.

In second position was Carmel Miller with a total of 795, while third position went to Nora Tinney of Deseronto with a total of 772.

The high single game of the tournament was bowled by Doris Ford with a terrific 253, while the consolation prize went to Zina Browning.

A luncheon was served at the conclusion of bowling to wind up an enjoyable evening.

Identity of Local Contact With Canada's Underworld Not Established Says Chief

A key clue in solving the three-month-old Coca bond theft case is the identity of a local contact with Canada's sophisticated underworld.

This was revealed yesterday in the annual report of Belleville Chief Constable J. B. McLauchlan.

Noting the disappearance of $25,000 in securities from the offices of Belleville lawyer Ronald Case, the chief comments: "Hundreds of hours of investigation have been applied to this investigation, which stretches from a local Belleville contact to the Montreal underworld."

However, no arrests have been made since the theft was discovered December 14.

(Tomorrow, a mutual funds salesman goes on trial in Montreal, charged with possession of $30,000 of the loot unearthed in a Montreal bank).

The report also revealed for the first time that some of the recovered bonds were cashed December 14 — about a week after the mysterious theft from the barrister's Front Street offices. Local city and provincial police were first called to Montreal January 23.

It was one of the crimes in Belleville which has not been cleared by the police.

Warns the chief: "An increase in the number of crimes reported to the police appears to be the trend throughout the province. Our statistics indicate that a large percentage of cases are being successfully cleared."

SILENCE IS ESSENCE

"There's little to be said for routine work — when it comes to routine police work little is said about it.

"For silence is the essence of police duty—though rarely in the glamorous sense.

The man who can be beat—on four wheels or two feet—still has a long career in his force. From checking door knobs to diplomatically forestalling family problems, an ordinary constable is a packaged silent service, trained to mind everybody's business and regard it as nobody else's business.

This is the gist of comments scattered throughout the report of Belleville Police Chief J. B. McLauchlan—his first survey since taking office.

For instance, last year, the plodding routine of checking door-to-door along city business streets, revealed 633 insecure premises. This week there were more than 120 successful and attempted breakins, netting thieves $8,800, of which $2,-400 was recovered. It might have been more if those doors hadn't been checked, the chief intimated.

"The patrol officers," says his report, "are to be commended for the very active preventive measures they have taken to keep this loss to this very low amount."

In a number of instances, police officers—either walking the beat or on cruiser patrol interrupted a number of burglaries in progress. In at least one instance, an officer fought it out on the spot with thieves.

More than 6,000 incidents of all kinds were investigated; 617 persons were arrested; some ten persons reported missing were found within 24 hours; 44 cars stolen, 43 were recovered.

And among those statistics are:

Fraud-forgery, 44; counterfeiting 14; robbery with violence, 3; burglary, 28; theft, 57; charge of murder, 1; car theft, 44.

Traffic Mishaps Took 4 Lives In Past Year

The total number of car and comparable tragedy in the past 15 years was 1950 — Police Chief J. B. McLauchlan notes in his annual report.

Last year there were 18,000 motor vehicles registered in the district.

The following table from the police report shows the number of these vehicles are being maintained. These were among the 1,963 cars, 77 of eight-way Traffic Act by Belleville police in the last two years:

	1963	1962
Careless driving	77	58

Dept. Morale At High Standard

The past year also has been free of any major successful robbery of commercial businesses in the city.

Human relations, however, bulks large in the modern officer's training.

For instance, more than 30 calls each month to police headquarters concern domestic problems.

"Many of these are vexing situations and require considerable patience and diplomacy by the attending patrolman," says the chief.

"Disturbance calls are many, but more are ended by the appearance of an officer than by arrest."

Says the chief's report: "Many cases concerning juveniles were investigated, and a large number were considered by interviews with parents, many of which usually required several 'call-back' appearances by officers."

Individual fact, now as much a part of the local policeman's equipment as notebook and whistle, pays off in other ways. For instance, there were only two persons charged with assaulting an officer last year.

Police are said to become a profession instead of a chore —a fact emphasized by the number of officers taking police college training courses in the past year.

This, apparently, also has contributed to the Belleville department's morale.

Only one officer from a force of 41 resigned last year.

"I am pleased to report," summarizes Chief McLauchlan, "that the morale of the department has been maintained at a high standard."

Local Rovers Attend Leaders' Conference

Rover Mate Barry Sticklin and Rover Vare Whittle of the Rover John A. Macdonald Rover Crew, Belleville accompanied by Sid Sharman A.D.C. of the Hiawatha Valley area attended the Rover Leaders conference held at the Empress Hotel, Peterborough over the week-end.

The theme of the conference was—"Discovery and Adolescence" which was presented to a most enthusiastic gathering by a talk given by Scout Master Andrew Hartmann B.A., M.Ed., Ph. D. This was followed by an interesting discussion.

A film entitled "Howard" was shown which dealt with the problems of a teenager and proved most interesting to the gathering of Rover leaders. Discussion groups were formed and many ideas emanated from these discussions.

The dinner speaker on Saturday was Dr. Walter F. Koenig, Director, Youth Branch Department of Education who particularly stressed the need for youths to complete their education.

Following attendance at the various sessions on Saturday morning luncheon was served at which time Mr. Frank Worth, Provincial Commissioner was guest speaker. Delegates were requested to deposit questions in the question box and a panel discussion under the direction of Chairman Will Hilton followed.

At the close of the sessions it was announced that there would be no meets this year for Rovers.

Proposed Bayside Parkway Covered in Walking Tour

The Community Planning Association arranged a walking tour of the proposed bayside parkway on Sunday, and a hardy little band covered the course in the face of threatening snow clouds.

Persons who have not walked along the city's waterfront from Front St. to Haig Street in the last year or so may not realize how attractive the area is getting to be. The whole shore, right to city limits, could easily be a park with hardly an equal anywhere. Much of the land is already city property.

Sunday's muddy footloggers found that the sewage disposal plant is more of an ornament than an eyesore as some expected. Both facilities are located along the shore serve to punctuate rather than disfigure the city's shoreline. The group found the big storage tanks disguised and impressive, their simple geometric shapes handsome and the curving stairways graceful; there was a difference of opinion, however, as to the merits of the color.

The Harbor board have been tidying up certain areas, and a few places to launch boats are provided already. Picnics beneath the willow trees are a pleasant prospect for warmer weather. The slab of the recently - demolished Houston house remains, a melancholy sight; it would serve nicely as the foundation of a pavilion for picnickers.

AUTO ROUTE SUGGESTED

An auto route to make the shore more accessible (not a highway to spoil it) could run down South Front St. and cut across north of the storage tanks to meet the foot of George St. From there it might pass the disposal plant on the road through the walking tour went by on the south) and go across country to Wills St. and around the Stephens-Adamson Companys rather good-looking concrete-block wing.

Beyond that, past the cheese warehouse, the walkers found an abandoned railway line which would make a good roadbed. An automobilist or walker could either turn off on Herchimer or Farley Ave. or skirt the Bakelite plant and eventually get to Point Anne. Sunday's walkers chose to turn off on Herchimer and stop at the Queens Motel for hot coffee.

Much of the city frontage that now grows willow trees and begins to make such a pleasant park was originally marsh, and has been filled in over the past 120 years with garbage. The process continues, of course, and many more acres will be added to this attractive and useful area.

Next Sunday the CPAC will tour the river between College St. and the 401 starting at 2 p.m. from East Moira and College Streets.

PRESTON — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Alma Preston, who passed away March 19, 1962.

The world goes on as it used to do,
But memories linger of you.

Lovingly remembered by daughter Ruth and son Gordon.

She was loving, gentle, thoughtful and true,
Always willing a kind act to do.
That tell how beloved is the soul that we know,
Though through sorrow's deep night,
And lonely days,
Memory keeps her constant vigil.

ORR — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Alvira Orr, who passed away March 19, 1945.

The sufferer was the first to go,
And gone was she,
She never knew what the went through,
God took her hand and we had to part.
He knew the pain but broke my heart.

You couldn't say goodbye to me,
Perhaps it was just as well,
I never could have said goodbye,
It's a mother I loved so well.
—Loving son, Robert.

PRESTON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Lois, who passed away March 19, 1963.

A loving mother, so gentle and true,
What a wonderful memory she left behind,
Long days, long nights she bore the pain,
To wait for ours, but all in vain,
Till God himself, knew what was best,
He took her home and gave her rest.

Long days, long nights she bore the pain,

Mixed Rink From Quinte Curling Club Wins Rose Bowl And Provincial Honors

Congratulations are in ord-r-d er to a mixed rink from the Quinte Curling Club of Mrs. Agnes Benn, Ron Benn, Mrs. Heather White and Mac White as skip in winning the Rose Bowl, emblematic of the championship of Ontario at the playoffs held in Thornhill on Monday. The rink will compete against nine other Provinces starting Monday at the Royal Canadian Curling Club on Broadview Avenue in Toronto in a round-robin series for the Canadian title. The Canadian series is being underwritten by the O'Keefe Brewery Company.

The Provincial matches were played at the spacious Thornhill Curling Club which boasts a membership of over 600 curlers. The quarters of the Club are "plush" to say the least, in fact one can have a steam bath in the quarters after a strenuous game of curling. There are six sheets of ice and members of the rink that won the honors stated they were almost "perfect". One of the members said that the first sheet played was a little "tricky" but the rink, Mac White, soon had it "read" and they were never in trouble. The other two sheets played on were true and lightning fast and it was a pleasure to play on them.

The rink got off on the right foot in the first game by downing Morris Christie of Owen Sound 11-5 while in the second game they met A. Turner of Elmvale, whom they set back 9-2. In this game it is stated the rink had a 90 per cent. average in shots, were never headed and Mr. Turner gave up the ghost at the end of eight ends.

In the third and final game played against Charles Haskett and his rink from the London Hunt Club, the local rink was never headed although they got a scare when Haskett crept to within one of their scores. The Belleville rink won this one by a 9-8 end Mac White made two key shots which materially assisted the rink over a tough spot. He made a small "Port" to lay to shot rock and roll behind a perfect guard to count two.

With the other shot Mac made a takeout that disposed of three opposition rocks. At the end of the eighth end Haskett was only "one down, but the White rink scored a two on the ninth and with White lying in the tenth, Haskett ran out of rocks and conceded.

At the conclusion of the games the secretary of the Ontario Curling Association, the vice-president and other officials were on hand to congratulate the winners. Between the second and third games the rink was the guests of the O'Keefe Company for dinner.

The two women members of the rink were simply "thrilled" with the win, but admitted that the pressure was beginning to build up near the end of the third game and they were quite relieved when White made the shots that counted. The winning of the Provincial championship in mixed curling is a signal honor for the Quinte club. The club has only been formed for the past six years, although curling was prevalent in the city in the late 20's, but was discontinued for many years. The members of the winning rink have only been curling since that time and the high standard achieved is a credit to their ability.

The rink is worthy champions and will no doubt give a good account of themselves in the Canadian finals. The rink will be the host guests of the brewing company, and will have a car at their disposal while in Toronto, and several side events are scheduled for them during the week, including an oyster supper. Best of luck and good curling.

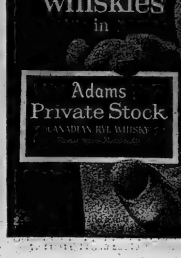
Car Forced Off Highway Near Kaladar

Seven people — including 20-month-old twins — were rushed to Belleville General Hospital yesterday after a car was forced off Highway 7, three miles west of Kaladar.

It was the worst mishap in a string of car accidents around the Quinte district as ice-covered highways made driving treacherous.

Hospitalized with back injuries was the driver, 24-year-old Allan Nash, Hamilton. He told police he was forced off the road by another car.

Shaken up in the mishap were Mrs. Victoria Guindon, 70, her daughter and grandchildren Mrs. Lenore Schnell, 26, twins Carol and Cheryl Schnell, 3-year-old William Schnell and a three-month-old infant, John. All were from Hamilton.



The accident occurred shortly before noon.

About the same time a two-car crash on Highway 37 at Thomasburg sent one driver to Belleville General Hospital. Police said George Barker, of Hespeler, received a broken leg in the collision.

North Trenton School to Get Big Addition

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Education last night approved the construction of two additional classrooms and a playroom-auditorium onto the regular school building at the North Trenton school.

The additional accommodation will cost an estimated $60,000 and work on the new addition is scheduled for completion by September of this year.

The new addition has been approved by the Ontario Department of Education and now must receive formal approval from town council.

The feeling of board members is that the children attending North Trenton school do not have the same benefits as children attending other town schools as every other town school has an auditorium and an indoor play area.

The older building at North Trenton, which now houses the Education Board offices and one classroom will be used exclusively for the board offices and the school maintenance shop once the new addition is in use.

Legion Team Winners of Dart Tourney

TRENTON — A Trenton Legion eight man darts' team won out over teams from six other Quinte centres on Saturday in zone semi-finals at Frankford. The Trenton team, captained by Roy Howe, will go on to play in district finals at Bowmanville in April.

Board Wants School Located In Quinte Area

TRENTON — The Trenton School Board last night passed a resolution to urge the Ontario Department of Education to consider locating a proposed technical institute in or around Trenton.

The resolution will be forwarded to Russell Rowe, MLA for Northumberland and Ernest Hancock, MLA for Hastings West.

Since Trenton is centrally located between three university centres and since a committee set up last year has done considerable amount of ground work in selecting a site for the institute, members of the school board feel these facts should be brought to the attention of the Ontario Department of Education.

Canadian Opera Company Draws Large Audience

TRENTON — Playing one-night stand at Trenton high school last night, the Canadian Opera Company brought "Die Fledermaus," a comic opera in three acts by Johann Strauss Jr., to an audience of 800. Cornelis Opthof (as Baron Eisenstein) lived in Trenton long enough to be considered in the light of "local boy" and drew applause at his every appearance.

The opera itself was gay and slightly risque and proved to be popular with the audience, to judge by the bursts of applause throughout the performance.

The opera ended the 1955-56 season and started the 1956-57 season, as the Trenton Community Concert Association begins its membership campaign this week.

Nonsense!

Hon. Matthew Dymond, Ontario's Minister of Health, told medical students at the University of Toronto that he does not care if the Ontario Government's proposed medical care bill forces every insurance company in Ontario out of business.

Dr. Dymond is talking nonsense.

He had better start caring.

For if the insurance companies go out of business, then the bill will just not do the job for which it is designed.

All the bill aims at accomplishing is making medical care insurance available from private companies for all who desire it. And how can that aim be achieved if there are no insurance companies with which people can do business?

Such a development would result in one of three things: 1—abandonment of the government's objective; or, 2—the establishment of a PSI monopoly in the field; or, 3—the institution of a compulsory government-operated medicare scheme on the Saskatchewan plan.

Is Dr. Dymond really indifferent about any and all of these possible developments?

White Collar Criminals

New York management engineer Norman Jaspan, interviewed by the Monitor, said that 60 percent of the thieves his firm catches are supervisory or executive personnel, often college-trained. And when executives are not doing the stealing themselves, the article implies, management is at least partially responsible for the thefts.

"You can't be in business just for the sake of profit without conveying that message to employees," Jaspan says. "There must be an obligation to the community and to the people who work for you."

Cost of this mass-crime to society is fantastic. Jaspan contends that 15 percent could be cut from the price of all retail goods if the "waste, mismanagement and dishonesty" were eliminated from U.S. business.

The Monitor's feature deals only with this type of crime in the U.S., but a former private investigator now living in Belleville says the same situation exists in Canada: "This man, who prefers to remain unidentified, has worked for two of the three largest agencies specializing in employee dishonesty in Canada.

He tells of five people stealing from one department store—a $6,000 clothes department store—stealing a total of $60,000 worth of goods each year for three years. This ring distinguished itself by offering a cash reward to hotel maids who tipped off the right people when investigators came to town.

Of all the dishonest "systems" in Canada though, the one practised by the manager of a large supermarket in a western city takes the cake. There were twelve checkout counters in the store, installed by the company—and one extra installed by the manager. The extra checkout was closed normally, and blocked off by shopping carts. Every Friday evening however, the manager hired an extra girl—out of his own pocket—and opened the checkout. He pocketed all the cash collected, more than a thousand dollars a week, for nearly two years. The system survived several checks by company officers. Investigators who discovered the swindle, by the way, also discovered that the girl running the manager's private checkout was the only one in the store who was not stealing part of the money she handled.

When, just over two years ago, Hurricane Hattie hit British Honduras, among other things it brought down a fine mahogany tree. The timber was salvaged and shipped to England. Some of that timber has been used at the Royal Aircraft Establishment, Farnborough, to make blades for propellers which provides a hurricane speed wind—100 to 150 miles an hour—in one of the wind tunnels there. Ottawa Offbeat
Hellyer Not Taking Attitude 'It Can't Happen Here'

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The House of Commons, in recent days, has been acting something like a band of nervous schoolboys whistling in the dark.

The Honorable Members appeared to be having a high old time thumbing their noses at the Communist Army plans for attempted raids on high schools, collegiates and colleges around the country to scoop up some rifles and ammunition that just possibly might, by even remotest chance, fall into the hands of Quebec terrorists.

The Army plans did go a little far afield from Quebec in singling out such supposedly "sensitive" areas as Woodstock and Windsor in Ontario, Weyburn in Saskatchewan, and even out in French-speaking sections of Manitoba.

But there was nothing really funny about it.

And the laughter in the Commons has something of a hollow ring to it.

For it occurred to the MPs that the Defence Department and the Army hadn't gone on these midnight excursions simply to provide entertainment for those civilian types who like to tell, disparagingly about what sometimes is referred to as "The Military Mind".

DEADLY SERIOUS

The Defence Department was rescuing, rather, in a high state of alarm to prevent an already deadly serious situation from becoming even more perilous.

It moved swiftly and, as it has been turning out, pretty completely to forestall any possible build-up of the formidable arsenal of the Communist Quebec fifths, Sten and machine guns and other assorted devices that are already in the hands of what it could only assume was a damned large number of Fascists.

This arsenal which had been assembled in raids on Quebec armouries could be dangerous as a time bomb.

In the hands of terrorists, it could only have one purpose — to kill.

For there have been whispers, which so far have gone officially unconfirmed, that the extreme element in what has become known as "The Quiet Revolution" in Quebec has also attracted a few recruits from the ranks of former Algerian terrorists who have been looking for a job and looking for new and promising opportunities since the French Army pulled out of North Africa.

In reacting to all the dreadful possibilities implicit in the threat, Defence Minister Hellyer discarded what might have been the complacent attitude that the Quebec armouries' raids were the work of pranksters rather than terrorists.

He would have been adding to the danger if he had done otherwise, for the Army's plans on the probability that some of the weapons were in the hands of a group bent on the start of insurrection, if only as a gesture of rebellion.

CAN HAPPEN

For it can. Last Spring in Montreal when the terrorist killed an elderly caretaker in the basement of an armouries, and maimed for life, doing irreparable brain damage, an Army lieutenant whose face was all but blown off when he tried to disarm one of the bombs they had planted in a score of mailboxes.

Even of greater concern are the wild ways in which terrorism works.

"Terrorists in the very nature of their conspiracies necessarily must be on the psychotic side.

They, more than most people, can't stand ridicule. The dynamics of terroristic thinking are that they must be taken seriously.

And the gravest danger of the situation — and the one that drove the Army to some of its crisis-like actions — was that if the terrorists, armed with their Sten and FN rifles, moved at all, they would almost feel compelled to go beyond the Montreal outrages of last Spring. To do less would be to run the risk of being taken lightly.

There is this, too, that spurred the Defence Department to scoop up all the loose weapons the Army could lay hands on — bombs planted in armouries and perhaps in mailboxes, too, are largely for the demonstration damaging of public property, even though people can be maimed and killed. — but Sten guns and FN rifles are almost exclusively anti-personnel weapons.

They're for shooting, and presumably, killing.

Mission Gems Show Tarnish

By Shona Morrow
In the Winnipeg Free Press

The fellows I'm worried for, however, are the Christian professioners of revolutionary leadership who have been bitten by events.

There was Chiang of China, for example. He was a jewel in the American Methodist crown, a brand plucked from a Confucian burning. This is one of the strongholds of Christian effectiveness in China, they said, and Madam is a Methodist pearl of great price. Other high class ones were phenomenal moneyraisers for Methodist missions. Who ever knows the full evils of a head of state running a big mission client? The Methodists had it, and it was money in the bank.

Not too many American Methodists talk about the Chiangs now. They didn't turn out well. But one time it was great. God had a friend in control in China, and later a gallant friend on Formosa. And later a grisly liability.

There was also the affair with Evangelist Billy Graham in one of the professional hucksters of the religio-journalistic world and the Scofield Bible invited to places like Chiang by people like Kvame and when it wouldn't print stories of his passion for Christian democracy, the huckster thought I was a misguided Imperialist.

The Christian press was full of Kwame in the early days. When he came to the U.S. he ceased to be the product of a brief stay at the London School of Economics and was a famous graduate of Lincoln College, school of higher learning for Negroes.

Lincoln did well out of Kwame. He got the kind of free press coverage than it had had since its foundation. American higher education as a whole had begun to shape the new free Africa. The aftermath of white colonialism in the African leader, molded by the Christian influence of American Negro education and leadership.

Jewel collecting is an expensive hobby, especially for mission boards. The largest jewel in the Presbyterian Missionary Society's crown in modern times was Africa's Tshekedi Khama, the uncle of Seretse Khama, who almost lost his crown when he married a white Londoner and was banished even for the Colonial Office or the London Missionary Society or Uncle Tshekedi. He wrote pamphlets about Tshekedi, who was the most responsible and the most popular leader in Africa at the time. He was a Christian product of Christian missions. The boards gands said.

Tshekedi came to see me in London at the height of the Seretse Khama controversy. "I am no longer a Christian," he told me: "My purposes in this affair are purely political." There were a lot more pamphlets about Tshekedi.

The American people have learned, with extraordinary speed, the first lesson of international affairs — that there is no gratitude in politics: only power and interest. Mission boards have learned rather more slowly, but they are increasingly hesitant about adding jewels to their crowns, if there is the slightest chance that the jewel may turn out to be an industrial diamond setting a plate in pollitzer for himself.

There's going to have to be some earnest rethinking on the part of the people as well as the governments of the wealthier countries of the world, and this continent. We're going to have to decide whether we really want to attack the hunger and sickness and ignorance which rule so much of the world, or whether we're to continue being content with making ineffective motions which salve our consciences cost us little or nothing and produce no effect whatever on the ever-swelling problems.

The Public Utilities Commission will notify the City Council that the members can resume duty estimate on $10,000 from waterworks surplus for 1946 in addition to refund of hydrant rentals and the annual adjustment in street lighting charges this action being taken at the meeting of the commission held on Tuesday afternoon. Ald. H. J. Clarke, chairman of finance and City Controller H. D. Bateman appeared before the commission requesting a portion of the surplus from the waterworks surplus. Ald. Clarke stated that the commission had advanced $9,000 last year and hoped that organization could keep their way expenses to increase the amount this year.

The manager was asked to take up the complaint of Ald. H. J. Allin respecting the shutting down of water on Saturday. It was explained the trouble was a broken main at the corner of West Chatham streets, and when the trouble was located it was impossible to shut off the valve and it was necessary to shut off seven other valves in order to dry out that portion of the pipe so that the valve could be repaired. The commission ordered the purchase of a hydraulic pipe pusher at a cost of $332 net. It was stated that this piece of equipment was needed because last year one had to be borrowed on two occasions and valuable time was lost.

A large field of ice which was jammed below the lower bridge moved Wednesday afternoon, but the peak was of short duration and the ice settled into place without doing any damage; it ceased but a brief rise in the level of the water which was subsided. The huge and thick cakes of ice which were jammed at the mouth of the river quickly became smooth and thin by the action of the water which now runs unhindered through the large channels opened by the waxmaster water. It is considered by the city authorities that the danger of a flood is now over.

Inspector Gardner of the Ontario Provincial Police headquarters here reports that his investigation into the strange dog which disappeared some days ago, has been found in Ottawa. This morning the dog was found through the dog tax tag attached to the dog's collar. It is supposed to have wandered and also by Inspector Gardner that the setter had been picked up by a motorist while the dog was hunting with its master in Ottawa.

To Your Good Health
Rash Must Be Corrected To Treat Varicose Veins

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have varicose veins real bad and a skin rash from this varicose, both ankled. I have been to several doctors and they don't seem to know what to do about it. They suggest an operation on my legs to dry up the veins and then they said the rash would clear. Please help me if you can. — Mrs. I. K.

You say they "don't seem to know" what to do about it. Meaning the rash. In the next breath you say they have advised an operation to correct the varicose veins.

In plain language, they do seem to know what to do about it.

The fruity circulation, resulting from the varicose veins, makes it all but impossible to heal the rash or ulcerated area which can be expected to occur in such cases.

Let's compare the problem to that of a leaky faucet in the bathroom upstairs, from which water seeps down and spoils the ceiling below.

So you call a contractor and tell him your trouble and have it repaired. He says we, you'll have to get the leak in the bathroom fixed first. Then decide that he "doesn't know what to do about it," and call another contractor, who tells you the same thing.

You can keep on calling contractors until the cows come home. You can keep on getting new doctors until the misery in your ankles and legs drives you nearly crazy. But you never realize that until you correct the circulation problem (have surgery for the varicose veins) there isn't anything you can do about the secondary condition.

If you want a more detailed explanation of varicose veins, send for a booklet and an addressed, self-addressed envelope for a copy of my booklet, "How to Deal With Varicose Veins." Write to The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 156, Dearborn, Ill. In filling out that skin troubles, "bronzing," ulcers and so on, are a natural result of varicose veins.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to use a meat tenderizer? If so, do please explain why. If it breaks down the muscle in meat, what about the stomach? — Mrs. F. M.

Yes, it's safe. The meat tenderizer is an enzyme which softens the texture of meat (not the grain, though). Heat, such as from cooking, stops the action of the enzyme. That's not enough.

Second, the stomach and intestinal tract are specialized tissues that are capable of handling a tenderizer.

Dear Dr. Molner: Concerning kidney stones, are tomatoes, lettuce and vinegar high in oxalates? — Mrs. W. E.

Meaning that you want to know whether to eat salads? Well, tomatoes are moderately high in oxalates, but lettuce isn't and neither is vinegar. Vinegar is about 4 per cent acid, but in the amount usually used this is too small to have any effect on stone formation.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter-in-law is under occupational therapy. Should I let her go into this? — Mrs. E. O.

More power to your daughter. The "O.T." people are an important part of the "health team," and the day is long past when the doctor with his little black bag can do all that needs to be done for some patients. The rapid growth of the rehabilitation institutes and the goal not only of keeping people alive but restoring them to useful and active lives has shown the need for occupational therapists. Many general hospitals have O.T. departments too.

Strictly Personal
Most Inventions Have Same Basic Pattern

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

"Who invented forks?" asked my little boy at dinner the other evening. "Nobody knows." "A lot of fine things weren't invented by any one person."

The cult of the personality in modern society has given many children the idea that, like an Edison alone "invented" the electric light, or a Bell "invented" the telephone. Their education is grossly incomplete if they are not told, along the way, that science is indivisible.

Who, for instance, "invented" the wheel? A number of men in different countries at different times. It began around 1815, when a French chemist named Bernelius discovered the chemical element "selenium."

This led to the discovery that selenium could carry a charge of electrical current depending on the amount of light which struck it. Fifty years later, Heinrich and Felix Farnsworth, working in different countries, ran a few developed television cameras, one known as the "iconoscope" and the other as the "image dissector." Then these were replaced by the "image orthicon," and finally by a picture tube known as "kinescope."

Nearly every basic invention has this kind of same pattern. Science is not individualistic. It is not the spontaneous and isolated discovery of one person about in fiction or see in films. The truth of the matter has been powerfully put by Lord Rutherford, perhaps the greatest physicist in the twentieth century, who wrote:

"It is not in the nature for one man to make a sudden, violent discovery. Science goes step by step and every man depends on the work of his predecessors. When you read of a sudden unexpected discovery . . . it is but the last straw that breaks the camel's back. It is not the straw that is the significant thing, but the whole camel, and it is the mutual influence which makes the enormous possibility of scientific advance.

"Scientists are not dependent on the ideas of a single man, but on the combined wisdom of thousands of men, all thinking of the same problem and each adding his bit to old to the great structure of knowledge . . .

When Einstein made his famous equation on mass-and-energy, he had no idea it would terminate in the production of the H-bomb. This is at once the splendor and the fearfulness of scientific advance.

Splendid Military Display On Exhibition at Museum

Very good attendances are reported at the Hastings County Museum where a special military display has been open for the last two weekends. The display continues for the next four weeks as well, being open every Saturday and Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5.

The display was opened by Lt. Col. J. S. Black, Commanding Officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and Regimental Sergeant Major H. Kokesh. Other guests included former commanding officer Lt. Col. Angus Duffy, and Captain Carl F. Hubel.

The display shows excerpts from many chapters in the military history of Hastings County. Perhaps the earliest article displayed is the discharge paper for Pte. George Barlow, dated Belleville, May 1, 1840, when Barlow was discharged from the Volunteer Militia under Capt. Wellesley Richey. The document was presented by Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Barlow of Belleville.

Relics of the Fenian Raids include a picture of the local veterans who served in 1866 to ward off the threat of invasion of these Irish-Americans and also a miniature of the Fenian Raid medal awarded C. W. Taylor and loaned for the special display by Mr. Charles Taylor.

PICTURE OF RIFLE TEAM

Through the co-operation of Mr. T. G. Wrightmeyer, the military display includes a number of interesting articles. One of these is a large colored picture of the Ontario Wimbledon rifle team of 1870. This all famous rifle team included among its members Dr. Oronhyetekha, a native of this area and a noted doctor and organizer of the I.O.O.F. Also shown were Sergeant Wilkinson and Captain Belbent of the Grand Trunk Rifles Regiment.

A ceremonial sword once carried by Sir Mackenzie Bowell is also shown, thanks to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Museum. This sword was presented to Sir Mackenzie Bowell in the 1890's by No. 1 Company of the 14th Battalion, V.M.I. At that time, Mr. Bowell was Major in that company and was also editor of The Intelligencer. From 1894 to 1896 he was Prime Minister of Canada.

From the 1890's come interesting relics of the Northwest Rebellion (the Second Riel Rebellion) of 1885 presented by Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Barlow. These include the medal and equipment used by Private Jesse Barlow in that campaign. Among the equipment is a bandolier made by Private Barlow to carry the bullets issued him. This bandolier was made from leather taken from harness, cloth from feed bags, and other materials that were at hand. When the McNaud Battalion, of which Private Barlow was a member, went from Kingston to the Saskatchewan country, the C.P.R. was not yet complete and the soldiers had to march for many miles around the north of Lake Superior until they reached the continuation of the line.

STREET DECORATED

When the troops returned to Belleville, Front Street was gaily decorated for the occasion, as seen in pictures of the street presented to the County Museum by Mrs. Flora Bell.

Several pictures of the 15th Battalion, Argyll Light Infantry, are included in the military display, including one of the rather famous Bicycle Brigade shown in front of the old Church Street Armouries and another one of the band in 1904.

The 40th Battalion and other groups associated with the proud tradition of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are displayed and an interesting chart shows how the regiment has grown over the years absorbing many other units and their traditions.

There is a good deal of military equipment from both the first and Second World Wars. This has been loaned for the occasion by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Museum. Mr. T. G. Wrightmeyer, Mr. Jerry Jenkinson, and others.

MANY MILITARY BADGES

An excellent collection of military badges is displayed through the courtesy of the Belleville Branch of the Royal Candian Legion and the private collections of Mr. Hugh Sondy and Mr. Jerry Jenkinson.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. S. J. Gilmore, there are local newspapers recalling the first and second world wars, as well as the Nov. 11, 1918 edition announcing the armistice.

The combined collections from these public and private sources make a very fine and worth-while collection at the County Museum.

This special display will continue for the next four weekends, after which the museum will feature a special collection of pictures of early life in this district.

Other displays will follow throughout the year and it promises to be a very good year at the Hastings County Museum.

The Chairman, Directors and Contributors,
The Belleville United Appeal,
BELLEVILLE, Ontario.

Gentlemen:

I have made an examination of the books of account and supporting records of (1) the 1962 Campaign for 1963 operations for the period September 1, 1962, to December 31, 1963, and (2) the 1963 Campaign for 1964 operations for the period May 1, 1963, to December 31, 1963, of the Belleville United Appeal. My examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as I considered necessary in the circumstances.

In my opinion, the foregoing Balance Sheet and related Statements of Revenue and Expenditure present fairly the financial position of the Belleville United Appeal for the above mentioned periods in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

I shall be glad to furnish you with such further information as you may require, relative to my examination, or this report.

Yours very truly,
JOHN D. LEWARS, C.A.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

NORTH-EAST DISTRICT

PACK 12

The Brownie of Pack 12 succeeded in winning two first and six second prizes for entries presented at the recent Rover and Ranger Hobby Show held at the St. Thomas Parish Hall.

Prizes were awarded for cooking, knitting, art and soap sculpture. For Thinking Day the Brownies marched with the Guides, Cubs and Scouts from the club rooms to St. Michael's Church to assist at the 8.30 mass and received Holy Communion in a body, remembering in a special way all the Brownies of the occupied countries.

All the Brownies in the Pack are progressing favorably with the program covered so far this year.

PACK 17

For Thinking Day the Brownies of Pack 17 dressed dolls in costumes typifying lands and displayed them around the room. A table in the centre of the room held the birthday cake, which was flanked by candles in white holders, one blue candle tied with yellow ribbon and one yellow candle tied with brown ribbon representing Guides and Brownies. The cake was decorated with small flags of other countries and candles on each corner. Country name cards were made and placed around the cake by the Brownies.

A fairy ring was made and story by the founders was read by the Brown Owl. The tapers were then lit by the Tawny Owls, and the Sixers in turn lit the candles on the cake.

A chain of friendship was made by the Brownies as the thoughts went to other lands where there were Brownies and Guides.

5th BROWNIE PACK

The meeting was opened with a game from Kenya, followed by the Fairy Ring ceremony, and this week the Fairy Gold Basket was decorated in gold paper.

The Thinking Day ceremony began with Brown Owl telling the story of the founder, also why we collect pennies.

The Brownies put their pennies on a big picture of a toadstool which had been marked off in the four sizes, and sang "Happy Birthday" to Lady Baden-Powell.

Each six had chosen a country to talk about; the Elves chose Holland, the Fairies, Greece; the Goomes, England, and the Pixies, Brazil; as each six finished their narrative the country was pointed out on the map and Brown Owl told of the Brownies of that country.

Tawny Owl and Snowy Owl then passed little cakes with a candle in each one and as the candles were burning the Brownies stood and re-affirmed their promise. A singing dance, "Hey Little Vasili," from Sweden preceded the closing prayer for all the Brownies of the world.

At the recent Hobby Fair, Company Five received five first prizes and six second place entries.

The Brownies of Pack 1 remembered the Founders' birthday. Fairy Gold that was collected will go to the Friendship Fund.

Each six put on a small play pertaining to Brownies of other countries. Brown Owl Eskimo gave a short talk on the life of Lady Baden-Powell and how Brownies and Guides were started. Sixer Brownies lit small yellow candles on four cup cakes representing the Brownies from the North, South, East and West.

Tawny Owl Hannah lit a larger candle on a large chocolate cake representing the world. All the Brownies joined in singing happy birthday to Lord Baden-Powell.

COMPANY 12 GIRL GUIDES

Company 12 celebrated Thinking Day with the patrols dressing some of their members in the Guide uniform of another country and telling stories of Guiding in those lands. Games and songs for the evening had an international flavor. A story about Lord and Lady Baden-Powell was read and a special Thinking Day prayer offered. The world flag, and its symbols were explained. Pennies for the age of each Guide and Guider covered a trefoil and were given to the World Friendship Fund. A donation was also made to the International Bureau. . . . . .

To wish Lady Baden-Powell a happy birthday, the Guides formed a horseshoe and candles were lighted on cupcakes. Happy Birthday was sung and thoughts went out to Guides in other lands as the candles burned out.

Two Guides passed their hostess badge at this meeting, Nancy Devine, Carol Nix, Wilma Bradford, Cathy Palmer and Ann Curnock. These Guides were responsible for the preparation and carryout of the Thinking Day program.

Guides in the company are currently taking courses in child care and camp and compass.

A winter hike with toboganning and dinner cooked outdoors was enjoyed by all who went.

Badges earned to date:

PACK NO. 7

The Brownies of the 7th Belleville Salvation Army Pack under the leadership of Brown Owl Mary Townsend and Tawny Owl Joyce Clark took as their theme for "Thinking Day" the world chain of Guiding.

Beside the Toadstool there was placed a mirror upon which a candle stood representing the light of Guiding. Placed in a prominent position by the Toadstool were pictures of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell the founders of the Scout and Guide movement.

A birthday box, upon which was placed the world flag, was then placed in the centre of the various sixes. As the Brownies placed their pennies in the boxes they sang "Happy Birthday" in memory of the birthday of the founder of the movement.

As the Brownies were being reminded in story form of the commencement of the work a candle was lighted to remind the girls to keep the light of Guiding burning brightly. Each Brownie then tied a knot in the chain of Guiding as she mentioned the name of a country where the World Association is active.

5TH BELLEVILLE COMPANY

The Thinking Day celebration for the 5th Belleville Company got under way with an unexpected visit of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell (Janice Hogan and Cheri Matthews).

Each patrol took part in the program, the first patrol, the Orioles gave a complete resume of Guiding in France, followed by the Kingfishers with explanations and descriptions of Our Ark, Our Chalet and Our Cabana, The World Bureau and the purpose of Thinking Day.

The Bluebirds gave the history and organization of Guiding in India, with one of the girls of the patrol dressed in the native costume. In conclusion the Canary patrol played the Queen and Taps, with various wind instruments.

To celebrate the Joint birthday the Guides each with a small cake and candle, lit the small candle from one of the main larger three candles, symbolic of the Three Fold Promise. On the table was a silver bowl in which each Guide put pennies amounting to her own age. This money is then sent on to the World Friendship Fund.

COMPANY 5

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have heard it said that there is no such thing as love at first sight, but I am living proof that love at first sight can happen; I am floating on a cloud. I hear a million violins. If this is a dream I hope I never wake up.

ANN LANDERS

The man walked into the office at noon yesterday. All he did was ask me to direct him to the manager's office. His voice sounded like a radio announcer's. I knew instantly this was it. About 20 minutes later he came by and said, "Do you happen to have a lunchbox date?" I replied, "No, I don't." Before I knew what hit me we were having spaghetti and wine in a divine little Italian place.

The man is single, three years older than I am and lives in Akron. He says he'll call me next week when he comes through town again. We like the same movie stars, books, records and I know he's what I've been waiting for all my life. Please, Ann, don't tell me there is no such thing as love at first sight. — SNOWED.

* * *

DEAR SNOWED — Any girl who can be scooby-doobed on one lunch is beyond my reach. But I hope you'll keep this column around and look at it six months from now.

Sorry, Doll, I still say there's no such thing as love at first sight. You've been hit by a chemical reaction — not love. If your Akron boy friend possesses the qualities that count in a relationship he may be the big love of your life— but time alone will tell.

Infatuation at a glance — yes. Love — no.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — People are always telling you what is done to them. I'd like to tell you what has been done for me.

A young friend has made it a practice to devote one afternoon every month to driving me wherever I want to go. It may be to shop, to visit a friend or just browse in an art gallery or a library. Sometimes she joins me, but often she brings a book and sits in the car and reads.

I look forward to this day with great pleasure. No gift could do more for my morale. She has made me feel like a member of the human race.

Perhaps if you print my letter it will suggest something to the countless women who are suffering from boredom and can find nothing to do but feel sorry for themselves. — GRATEFUL.

* * *

DEAR GRATEFUL — So am I — for your fine letter. There must be thousands in my reading audience who could do as your friend does, but the thought has never occurred to them. I hope it occurs to them now.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently my father and my older brother had to get eye glasses. Last week my eyes were examined by the school nurse and I was told that I need glasses.

I have been getting headaches lately and it is difficult for me to see the blackboard without squinting. I do need glasses, Ann, but I can't get my mother to understand. May I have your help? — ELIZABETH.

* * *

DEAR ELIZABETH — Stop wasting your time trying to persuade your mother that you need glasses. Ask the school nurse who tested your eyes if she will write your mother a note telling her that when your mother gets the message from an authority will she accept it.

Many Venezuelan Children Are Abandoned by Parents

CARACAS (AP) — As estimated 170,000 Venezuelan children are abandoned by their parents, homeless and hungry. President-Elect Raul Leoni says their misery is one of the major problems facing his administration.

President Romulo Betancourt, who is stepping out, turned over the problem to the Venezuelan Council of Children but its president, Edmundo Fernandez, says:

"The problem is so huge that our efforts have been insufficient."

Leoni has classed abandoned children among the three major programs of his government, along with finding jobs for the unemployed and homes for shack-dwellers.

About 85,000 children leave primary schools each year without means to continue their studies or a chance to become useful members of society, says the council.

Thousands of children in idleness fall into juvenile delinquency files of the police. Many are then turned over to the care of the council until they are 18 years old.

Common-law marriages or casual and temporary liaisons and the consequent births are among the principal reasons for the army of abandoned children, says the council.

MANY ILLEGITIMATE

In Venezuela more children are born out of wedlock than in any other country.

Obsessive Neurosis Needs Prolonged Psychoanalysis

DEAR DORIS — Could you please tell me if there is anyone one can inquire as to treatment for a particular emotional problem? (By this I mean essential treatment ending in cure.)

We have exhausted our pocketbook looking for help for a seventeen-year-old boy with a compulsive, obsessive neurosis (in this case persistent hand-washing). He has had shock treatments, sedatives, hypnosis, etc., and still his illness persists. We are at our wit's end as to what to do next. — ANXIOUS UNCLE.

DEAR UNCLE — Persistent handwashing and other obsessive, compulsive symptoms may react disappointingly to shock treatment, hypnosis, drugs. My psychiatric consultant suggests psychoanalysis as more hopeful — while also much more expensive and drawn out.

DORIS CLARK

You have to get at the cause, with the patient coming to understand what has happened. Behind the hand-washing is likely to be a wish to cleanse oneself of guilt for an act which one has committed or would like to commit. This creates conflict with what one knows to be right.

Result — turmoil. Turmoil deep down inside, where it is hard to get at. The alternative to analysis is the likelihood that the symptom will become more crippling, psychologically.

Homemade Rolls With A Hard Crust

by Mary Moore

The crust on these rolls is so cup lukewarm water. Stir a little, then beat in 3 cups of the sifted flour. Sprinkle board with half of the remaining flour. (Reserve remaing ½ cup flour for second kneading later.) Knead 200 times, working the flour on board into dough. Dough should be smooth and elastic. Grease mixing bowl and return dough to it to rise, covered, at room temperature, until more than doubled. Punch down dough and knead 50 times on board sprinkled with remaining flour. (You may not be able to work all of this remaining flour in.) Let rise again in bowl until doubled. On lightly floured board punch down and knead 25 times. Shape into long roll under palms. Cut into 18 or 20 even pieces. Shape into round balls. Roll balls about 2" or 2½" in diameter. Let rise 2" apart in greased baking sheets until light. Put large shallow waterpan in bottom of oven containing ½" boiling water. Bake rolls on centre shelf in oven at 450 deg Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes. As soon as removed from oven drop into Hot Glaze Mixture: Mix 4 teaspoons cornstarch into 1¼ cups water and stir until boiling and slightly thickened. Drain a little, put rolls back on baking sheets. Return to oven for about 5" minutes to dry glaze until shiny.

What a relief! NO BACKACHE!

She used to be bothered by backaches and tired, feeling. When she learned that irritation of the bladder and urinary tract can result in backaches and tired feeling, she took Dodd's Kidney Pills. Smart girl. Dodd's Pills stimulate the kidneys to help relieve the condition causing the backache and tired feeling. Soon she felt better—rested better. If you are bothered by backache, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 15

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR R. Q.?

A few thoughtless people in the audience can almost ruin the spirit of a theatrical production on both sides of the footlights. So, when you go to a show, whether it's being given on Broadway or in the local high school auditorium, do you try to observe the courte sies that prevent distraction? For instance:

1. Do you get to your seat before the curtain goes up?

2. Do you make room for others to pass in front of you to get to their seats?

3. Do you try not to ruffle your program or other papers during the performance?

4. Can you refrain from discussing the acting and the plot until intermission?

5. If it's a musical, do you resist singing along with the tenor or the chorus?

6. The show may be hilarious, but do you try to contain loud guffaws, so others don't miss lines that come after a joke?

7. Even if the show's a bore, do you pay attention instead of chatting with your next - seat neighbor?

8. Do you wait until the curtain comes down at the end of an act before dashing outside for refreshments?

9. Do you resist making a big joke of it when an actor fluffs a line or misses a cue?

10. Do you courteously wait until the cast has taken its bows before leaving the theatre at the end of a performance?

Tour of OVC Starts Career For Student

The city girl found a job on a farm after her high school graduation so she could qualify to enter OVC. Then one of two girls in her class, she now is assistant professor of small animal medicine at the school.

Dr. Kelk is the first woman to hold such a post since 1905. There are 11 female students in this year's OVC freshman class.

Her work is comparable to that of an interne in a hospital. She helps to examine and treat the 3,000 animals seen every year by the resident veterinarians.

"I'm learning more here in a year than I would in three years in general practice," she says.

The only jobs she does not do are the ones requiring great strength, such as setting the leg of a large animal.

Dr. Kelk is concentrating on surgery and plans to specialize later in medicine and radiology.

She has passed California veterinary examinations because she thinks she might like to work there for a while. She wants to travel before opening her own clinic.

U.C.W. Meeting

UNIT 4 U.C.W.

CAMPBELLFORD — The Unit 4 meeting of St. John's United Church Women of Campbellford was held at the home of Mrs. L. Breckenridge on Tuesday evening. Mrs. H. Pierce, president, opened the meeting with a Biblical quotation.

The treasurer's report showed that $181 of the allocation had been forwarded leaving a balance on hand of $7.56. The total allocation for the unit for the year is $915.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. L. Brackenridge and Mrs. J. Rands and was based on the Easter theme. Mrs. Brackenridge developed the theme by prayer, related Scripture reading and read a poem.

The study of India was taken by Mrs. J. Clayworth who spoke on the churches in India, the school of these South Kejdia and one of the newest North Assam. Both of these churches are evangelistic in character and promote to quite a degree the entry of young men into ministerial work. The Kenmore Leal Conference opened the way for more students to study in the Western Theological.

Mission work in India is found to be more effective if related to practical instruction in such subjects as health, education and agriculture.

It was announced that the guest at the March general meeting would be Mrs. W. Beecham on missionary recently returned from Korea, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sharpe of Campbellford.

There were 10 members present; the next unit meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. S. Rutherford.

Fraternal Visit By Moira Chapt. Much Enjoyed

On Monday evening, at the Masonic Temple, the grandmother chapter of Royal Arch Masonry in Prince Edward District, No. 11, paid a fraternal visit to the youngest chapter.

Through a schedule of interchapter visits, organized and planned by Rt. Ex. Comp. Lorne Vaughan, Grand Superintendent of Prince Edward District, No. 11, Moira Chapter, No. 7 (instituted 1856), the oldest chapter in the Bay of Quinte region, paid an official visit to Quinte Friendship, No. 227, the youngest, (instituted, 1921), chapter to be formed.

Ex. Comp. Carm Guest, First Principal of Quinte Friendship, welcomed the officers and members of Moira Chapter, and expressed the pleasure it gave the members of the junior chapter to be honored by a visit from the officers and members of the senior chapter of capitular Masonry in Prince Edward district. Ex. Comp. Garth McCarthy, First Principal of Moira Chapter, thanked the chapter for the cordial welcome they had been given and hoped the same cordial friendship would continue between the two chapters of the city.

He then turned the business of conferring Mark Master Masons' Degree over to Ex. Comp. Allan Dempsey, the 3rd Principal of Moira Chapter, who had organized the degree team, who initiated a number of candidates into the mysteries of the First Degree in the Royal Craft.

The acting Worshipful Master received many words of congratulations from those present on the perfection of the work.

Representatives from chapters of Madoc, Stirling, Napanee, Trenton and Picton were present, as well as a good number of present and past Grand Chapter officers.

The usual toasts were carried out by the chairman.

In replying to the toast of Grand Chapter, Rt. Ex. Comp. Vaughan expressed his pleasure in seeing so many in attendance and he impressed upon those present that more enjoyment and benefit would be derived if the habit of intervisiting was practiced more.

Several of the visiting companions expressed their appreciation of the hospitality extended them.

Islanders Rebuild Ice-Crushed Homes

By JOHN WARREN

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—On May 1, 1963, ice on the Hay River broke free and began its north stop a huge flood crest toward the river's mouth at Great Slave Lake.

It crashed against the still-frozen lake and backed up within hours to spill over more than half of this community of 1,200 on Vale island, a four-square-mile delta at its highest point only 13 feet above normal water level.

Within three days 1,090 persons had been evacuated in crowded, frantically organized flights to Yellowknife, Fort Smith and Edmonton. Their homes, businesses were crushed and over-turned, some scattered hundreds of yards from their foundations.

Ten months later most of the wreckage has disappeared. Damaged buildings have been repaired or replaced and a new subdivision is blossoming on the mainland two miles away and safe from future flooding.

BACK TO NORMAL

To all appearances Hay River has returned to normal. Its dwellings, frame stores and scattered government offices, hotel, school, hospital and RCMP office look as they did before the devastating flood.

Its residents go about their business — fishing, freight hauling, working on the construction of extensive northern telecommunications and other contracts, trapping and flying — as they did before.

Nearly all of those who were evacuated have returned to the town whose population is made up of Indians, Metis and whites. Few of them talk about last year's disaster unless asked, and most say they're not worried about a recurrence this spring although they admit there's no certainty it won't happen.

With rebuilding of island structures completed, construction now is concentrated in a new subdivision, an area of crescents and trees and landscaped lots that resembles modern suburbia far more than it does the haphazard community it is designed to replace.

Plans for the new subdivision were conceived only days after the flood struck.

Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, who had been named to the post only five days earlier, made an emergency flight to inspect the stricken community. He estimated damage at $1,600,000, about two-thirds of the town's assessed value.

The federal departments of northern affairs and public works started a crash program to design and start the mainland subdivision.

The territorial government announced it would pay 80 per cent of the value of personal losses —such things as furnishings and clothes. Similar programs were drafted for compensation tentatively damaged.

Businessmen filed claims for compensation for loss of stock and set about in an atmosphere of uncertainty to get re-established.

Today business in the old Hay River is flourishing and construction of homes in the mainland subdivision two miles away is proceeding quickly.

Three Jailed For Indignity to Woman's Body

TORONTO (CP)—Four men from East Gwillimbury Township near Newmarket, were sentenced Monday for offering an indignity to the body of a woman who died of undetermined natural causes during a drinking party last July.

Judge Everett Weaver sentenced Alvin Miller, 34, to six months definite and 18 months indeterminate and his 17-year-old brother Kenneth, and Frank West, 23, to three months definite and 18 months indeterminate. West's brother George, 22, was placed on 18-months probation.

The body of Mrs. Betty Humes, 32, of Toronto, was buried in a shallow grave in a field near Newmarket, 25 miles north of here. It was recovered by police two days later.

Filibuster May Delay Passing U.S. Foreign Securities Tax

WASHINGTON (CP) — The threat of a civil rights filibuster in the Senate may force a long delay in passage of the U.S. foreign securities tax, adding to Canada's troubles in trading securities and raising funds in the New York market.

A treasury department authority acknowledged Monday that the situation has become serious. There had been official hopes it could be raised, when Finance Minister Gordon was here last month, that the bill could be passed by a month or so.

All predictions now have been withdrawn. "There is no indication whether the bill can be by-passed before the legislators troop off to the political conventions next summer.

The bill, which would impose a tax of up to 15 per cent on U.S. purchases of foreign securities, was approved by the House of Representatives last week following seven months of study and debate. It now requires hearings before the Senate finance committee before it can be debated on the Senate floor.

A committee official said hearings are likely during the Senate fight over the bill to widen protection for Negro rights.

DIFFICULTIES ARISE

While new Canadian issues would be excluded from the government's proposed tax on foreign securities, delay in congressional passage of the legislation has added to Canadian difficulties in borrowing in New York.

The legislation provides that the tax be retroactive to last July. It would continue until the end of '65. But until the Senate gives its final verdict, the bill can be subjected to a variety of amendments.

As an example of the bill's current impact, new issues of Canadian securities purchased by U.S. residents rose to $300,000,000 during the first three months of the year—after the legislation was made public.

The government has acknowledged that uncertainty over the bill has virtually dried up foreign borrowings in New York and thereby helped reduce the outward flow of U.S. dollars and gold. On this basis, the longer the Senate delays action, the better the U.S. dollar position may appear.

Nurses Should Have Right To Arbitrate Says Report

TORONTO (CP) — A special report has recommended nurses should have some form of collective bargaining system with their employers.

The report issued Monday by Dr. John Crispo, assistant professor of industrial relations at University of Toronto School of Business, was made at the request of the Ontario Registered Nurses' Association.

The report explores all possible collective bargaining procedures open to nurses and concludes that arbitration is the only answer to back it up.

Dr. Crispo eliminates strike action since the nurses themselves would not use this and the public would not support it.

He said in his report that arbitration would be available for all grievances and not for salaries only.

However, the report makes no comment on salaries and conditions within the profession since such matters were outside Dr. Crispo's investigation.

A vote on the collective bargaining recommendation will be taken at the organization's annual convention in Toronto in late April.

HAMILTON (CP)—A senior nursing consultant said Monday that nurses' residences are outmoded and an unnecessary cost.

Gladys J. Sharpe of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission said residences made sense years ago when most nurses were on 24-hour call and living out was unsafe for a young woman.

"But those days are over," she told a Hamilton Health Association meeting.

She said board and lodging constituted half the cost of educating nurses at hospital-run schools, yet student nurses at universities are not provided with residences and do not seem inferior.

Miss Sharpe said the number and calibre of nurses required in Ontario is not being provided. She suggested regional nursing boards to assess the types and numbers of nurses needed would be one solution.

Married women should provide an important source for the nursing profession and nurses can be as adequately trained in two years as in three, she said.

Parental Remarks Teen-agers Get Awfully Tired of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Parental remarks that teen-agers get tired of hearing:

"Aren't you ever going to grow up?"

"I don't know why he acts like that. It couldn't be his adenoids. We had those taken out years ago."

"When I was your age, young man, I walked four miles to school every day—and carried my little brother on my back when he got tired."

"No, you can't have the car tonight — nor tomorrow night, nor the night after tomorrow night."

"If that's mascara, Sue, wipe it off this very minute. Who are you trying to look like—Theda Bara?"

"Oh, don't bother to get to your feet just because I come into the room, Henry. After all, I'm only your mother."

"For heaven's sake, son, don't you have any other ambition in life than to go around looking like a beachcomber?"

"When I was your age, I never had to ask my parents for a thing."

"Who put the dent in this fender? It wasn't there when I drove home from work yesterday."

"I don't know what gets into young people today. You can't tell them a thing. They know it all."

"Sue, you've been chattering on that phone for an hour. Don't know what your father said when he saw last month's bill."

"Don't tell me you can do your home work and watch television at the same time. I know it can't be done."

"I don't care if it is your room, young man. You can't have a pinup picture like that in this house. What do you think this is anyway—a burlesque theatre?"

"I didn't touch your razor. It was Henry. He thinks he's old enough to shave. Isn't that a scream!"

"Young lady, you're not going out with any idiot who sits outside in a car and honks the horn like a crazy person. Tell him to come up and ring the doorbell like a human being."

"Sit down, son. Your mother—uh—thinks it's time I told you a few facts—uh—about life. Now, to begin with—uh—"

"Don't do like I do. Do like I tell you!"

"Turn off that phonograph. Can't we ever have a little peace and quiet around here?"

"The thing I don't understand about teen-agers is what on earth they see in each other."

"When I was your age—"et cetera, et cetera, et cetera ad nauseam.

Once-Powerful Indian Tribe Has Dwindled to 40 Persons

ROSEAU, Dominica (Reuters) — From the little airstrip to the capital of Roseau, 27 miles away, cars have little double seats where they meet a Carib. The pale, sallow skins, wide Mongolian features and long black hair, sometimes in pigtails, distinguish them from the Negro population.

The wonder is that the community has remained as "pure" as it is. Few age-old traditions appear to be preserved, and the Caribs work as other Dominicans do on the banana and cocoa plantations, and fish with nets or lines. The art of bowand-arrow fishing has been lost.

Disappointingly, few relics appear to remain of the temperate coast of this unexpectedly shy and reserved people. Few of the tools or weapons they used in Columbus' day have been recovered and virtually no carvings or ornaments.

Old Province of Canada Had Trouble With States 100 Years Ago This Month

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—One hundred years ago this month Confederation and Canada's 3,000 miles of undefended border with the United States were little more than a gleam in some visionary politicians' eyes.

The old province of Canada, East and West was having its trans - border militia problems while war raged between the Northern and Southern states.

This notice, for instance, was published in the Montreal Gazette of March 10, 1864:

"The laboring classes are warned against paying any attention to the contents of a handbill which has been freely posted throughout the city holding out inducements to able-bodied men to go to the States to obtain employment as wood choppers or farm laborers.

"It is nothing more nor less than a recruiting movement . . . to decoy men into the States where they will be compelled to enlist in the federal army or starve. This is the experience of large numbers of others who have been foolish enough to leave this country in hopes of getting employment in the Northern States.

"It would be well if some means could be adopted by the authorities to put a stop to the practice of this villainous system of deception on the part of Yankee agents in Canada."

HANGED FOR MURDER

The Northern army was, indeed, offering inducements to Canadians to enlist. Some did enlist to collect a bounty and then try to desert. The Toronto Globe reported the story of "a rough character named John Deveraux, well known to police here," who was executed in Albany.

Deveraux found that after enlisting and collecting his money it wasn't as easy as he thought to get out of the army. He attempted to drug a sentry into insensibility but the sentry died and Deveraux was hanged for murder.

"It is also rumored," the Globe said, "that another well-known Toronto rough is at present under sentence of death at Rochester for a somewhat similar crime and will be executed some day this week.

"These examples may, perhaps, have the effect of deterring such characters from carrying on the disreputable practice of enlisting and deserting after securing the bounty."

The British Army, then garrisoning Canada, had its desertion problems, too. Royal Artillery man ran off during church services from the Hamilton barracks after stealing a suit of clothes from a comrade.

ATTACK FROM NORTH

Said the Hamilton Times: "He is a man, we learn, of very bad character and we should think scarcely worth the $20 which is paid by the British Government for the apprehension of deserters."

The Detroit Tribune, meanwhile, was concerned about the number of "secession refugees" skipping across the border into Canada and plotting "in the most significant town of Windsor" for an attack on the northern states.

The refugees, The Tribune said, were smuggling arms into Canada in boxes of herring which crossed the border duty free and with little customs examination because "the smell fully attests to the contents."

News crossed the Atlantic slowly and somewhat unreliably in 1864. On March 9, the SS Nova Scotian arrived at Portland, Me., with dispatches from England leaving Liverpool on Feb. 25. Among them was a rumor that Queen Victoria was about to abdicate. She was still mourning her beloved Prince Albert, then dead for three years.

UNFOUNDED RUMOR

"Her Majesty still evinces strong repugnance to the duties of her exalted situation and declines to reappear in public life," The Gazette said. "In bell-day times of peace this might have been well enough, the wheels of the machinery of state would have rolled on in their own quiet, ponderous way, but now the political sky is troubled, war clouds lower over Europe, and men know not the moment when war may break upon the land. This has probably occurred to the Queen, and led to the rumor which now comes over the Atlantic."

But life in the big city 100 years ago was different only in details from the times now when Canada is preparing for its centenary.

The Mercantile Library Association and Literary Society were hard at work preparing a program of essays, original poems, and instrumental and vocal music "strictly of Shakespearean character" to celebrate the tercentenary of the bard's birth, in April, 1864.

In Chatham, Canada West (now Ontario), one William Miller pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs for slapping a Mist Mountain in the face. The provocation: She persisted in skating across the sheet of ice where he was curling.

VICTORIA (CP) — A 7,000-mile inland voyage from the Arctic to the Gulf of Mexico is shaping up for four youths this summer, thanks to the lifelong dream of one of them, 18-year-old Mark Dickinson.

The four will leave by rail toward the end of June to Waterways, Alta., where they will launch two 18-foot fibreglass boats powered by 100-horsepower outboard motors for a trip to the Mackenzie River via Lake Athabasca and Great Slave Lake.

They hope to go down the Mackenzie as far as the Arctic Ocean before returning to Aklavik, N.W.T., for the start of their southbound voyage.

If their maps are accurate, only two portages will be necessary. They'll take the train from Waterways to Edmonton to avoid rapids on the Athabasca and again near Minneapolis, Minn., in switching to the Mississippi River system for the last leg to New Orleans

USED TO BATS

Dickinson has worked at his father's marina for nine years and has owned his own boat for eight of them.

Gerald Scholefield, 19, has worked at marinas for six years and had his own boat for two of them. An undergraduate arts student at University of Victoria with an eye to becoming a journalist, he will be the expedition's historian - photographer.

The third member of the quartet is Richard Day, 19. A former junior vice-commodore of Maple Bay Yacht Club here, he has been racing small yachts for 10 years.

Mechanic for the trip will be Harry Ford, 19, of Calgary, who has had many years' boating experience.

Dickinson says he has been working on plans for the trip full time since September. He now has a briefcase full of information and a memory that will recall at the drop of a hat the expected total gas consumption and mileage from place to place.

GAS FOR FOOD

He also has records on the location of outboard motor cruising clubs, gasoline depots and isolated outposts and has made complete train drawings for hauling the boats.

He estimates they will need 3000 gallons of gasoline and will consume about $500 worth of food.

At the start of the southward journey the boys will retrace their route from Aklavik to Waterways. Then comes the rail trip to Edmonton where they join the North Saskatchewan River system.

They will take the North Saskatchewan as far as Lake Winnipeg, then heading south up the Red River to Traverse, Big Stone and Qui Parle Lakes.

Their portage from Qui Parle Lake will take them to Minneapolis and the Mississippi—and the rest of the way should be "clear sailing," downstream.

The four plan to return from New Orleans by rail in time for the start of classes in September.

JOINS CREW

BOURNEMOUTH, England (CP)—Chemist Bill Holmes of this Hampshire holiday resort has been chosen to join the crew of a replica longship that will retrace the voyage of the Vikings to America. Holmes, 22, will be the only Briton aboard.

United Appeal Must Obtain New Executive Officials Or It May Have to Fold

That is the story today following last night's United Appeal annual meeting and election of officers.

No less than five top positions in the Appeal organization are still vacant following elections and nominating committee head J. N. Yanover warned that unless people in Belleville are prepared to assist, the United Appeal may have to be dropped.

He said that the nominating committee's search for Appeal executive material had in many cases met with blank refusal; others had legitimate excuses for declining to act, and others just show no interest.

ALTER CONSTITUTION

Several amendments to the Appeal constitution were passed at the annual meeting, some of them expressly to allow the organization to carry on despite the failure to elect new executive officials.

Other amendments to provide for appointing of a board representative from each of the participating agencies and reduce the number required for a quorum at meetings.

The position of Appeal president was left vacant when E. G. Gurnett declined re-appointment. Vice president is Gerry A. Winston.

Vacant also is the position of campaign chairman with the retirement of Norman Keith. No takers were secured for the positions of campaign committee vice chairman, or chairman of the agency participation committee.

CHAIRMEN CHOSEN

Other executive chairmanships are: public relations — W. J. Killough; budget committee — D. G. Burr, and immediate past president — E. G. Gurnett.

Participating agencies representatives are:

Drury Denyes, Belleville Minor Sports Association; A. W. Hume, Boy Scouts Association; George Brown, Canadian Arthritis & Rheumatism Society; J. R. Blackburn, Canadian National Institute for the Blind; A. S. Lewis, Canadian Red Cross Society; Stanley C. Wiggins, Children's Aid Society; Mrs. B. E. Burley, Civic Action Committee of the Catholic Women's League; Mrs. C. W. Coleman, Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada; T. F. Wrenshall, Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Cadet Corps, Quinte; P. L. Allcorn, St. John Ambulance; L. K. Lynch, Victorian Order of Nurses; J. A. Ireland, Young Men's Christian Association.

Members; Community at large:

G. R. Cameron, G. F. Cunningham, J. G. Demerz, William E. Fiskie, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Oriel Griffiths, Keith Hunt, N. R. Keith, John M. Legate, George C. MacDonald, A. R. Anderson, Jr., Lennox Smith, Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, J. J. Trudeau, C. R. Whittemore, and J. N. Yanover.

Belleville United Appeal Almost at the Crossroads Annual Meeting Is Told

The reason — apparent disinterest on the part of large numbers of the population who have decimed to contribute with result that fund raising campaigns are consistently falling short of their objectives.

The feeling of discouragement on the part of United Appeal officials was generally evident last night at the organization's annual meeting held at city hall.

Reports from the Appeal president, campaign chairman, treasurer and general manager, all told the same story — general lack of public interest and too few contributors.

Noting that the 1963 Appeal failed its objective by a "considerable margin," last year's president E. G. Gurnett asked "does Belleville really want an United Appeal?"

MUST BE MORE INTEREST

"If the United Appeal is to continue in Belleville there will certainly have to be more interest and support, more action than just lip service," he said.

"There must be meaningful support starting with city council and backed up by all industrialists, labor, business, professional and citizens in general.

"Only if this way can we in Belleville hope to hold our head up with other cities where campaign objectives are being realized and where citizens show they really care."

Just how discouraged United Appeal officials are is indicated by the fact that the election of new officers saw no less than five of the executive positions unfilled.

Among those declining to continue in office were president E. G. Gurnett, campaign chairman Norman Keitch, and secretary Donald Williams.

WILL CALL MEETING

Whether or not the Belleville United Appeal continues will be left up to the various agencies involved.

A general meeting of United Appeal officials with board officials of all 12 participating agencies, is to be called for March 31st.

At that time the exact position will be laid down, and the various agencies will be asked if they are prepared to continue with the United Appeal on the understanding that possibly less than the desired support will be forthcoming.

Out of a total population of more than 30,000 persons, only 4,205 people contributed to the 1963 United Appeal campaign. This is but 13.8 per cent.

HALF REQUIRED PERCENTAGE

This is just over half the required percentage (25 per cent) which is recognized as the minimum to assure a successful campaign. The 4,205 contributors last year donated a total of $99,686 or approximately $6,000 less than was contributed in 1962.

The residential, payroll and business canvass fell down the worst in Belleville last year.

The payroll given division is normally expected to be the largest segment of any campaign. In Belleville last year 54 firms with a total of 5,284 employees were canvassed for the United Appeal. Of the above number 1,813 persons contributed $23,170, roughly $5,000 less than the same division contributed in 1962.

According to national statistics the payroll division should contribute 40 per cent of the campaign total which in Belleville would amount to approximately $34,000. But the Belleville payroll figure was $11,000 short of the national average.

CAMPAIGN DISAPPOINTING

The residential campaign was also disappointing. A total of 4,700 calls were planned, but only 1,319 persons contributed with donations totalling only $5,145. And of this amount of money $3,737 was collected from only 345 persons. Thirteen hundred and eighty three contributors gave less than $5.

The business canvass was also generally disappointing with 339 businesses contributing $10,177. Employees of these businesses contributed but $1,284.

He noted that since the Belleville United Appeal started in 1952, Belleville had never reached its objective. Results in terms of percentage of objectives have fluctuated between a low of 74 percent to a high of 85.3 percent.

Mrs. J. Lennox Smith reported on the public relations and publicity committee and received a commendation for the work of her committee. Appeal president Gurnett said it was not for the lack of publicity that last year's campaign had failed.

FEW CARRYING LOAD

In contrast the national average for United Appeal campaigns has been 85.6 per cent goal achievement with many centres consistently going over their objectives.

Mr. Keith summed it up by saying that the 13.8 per cent of Belleville residents, who contributed last year are carrying the charitable load through United Appeal for the other 82.2 per cent of the population.

What is the alternative to the United Appeal?

Appeal officials made no bones about it. It means there would be another 12 individual campaigns added to those already in existence.

At the same time contributions of many of national corporations could be lost. Such corporations could not be expected to contribute toward 25 or more individual campaigns, it was pointed out.

TROPHY PRESENTED

Contributions from national organizations, special names and the professional groups were the only bright spots of last year's Appeal campaign.

The professional division actually contributed approximately 20 per cent more than in the previous campaign. In appreciation of the division's efforts, Mr. Keith presented the David trophy, for greater gain in receipts through their own efforts, to division head Paul Fleming, local accountant.

Garage Men Told Competition Is Invited

TORONTO (CP)—A Chicago auto-service authority told the Ontario Garage Operators Association today that creation of discount stores and specialized operators into the field was invited by their own inefficiency.

Mel Turner, a garage operator and author of auto-service operating manuals, said: "An unplanned conglomeration and lack of operating efficiency mean that you have to over-charge."

Speaking at the first of several clinics being held this week during the association's annual convention and equipment show, Mr. Turner said the smaller the garage, the more ill need planned efficiency.

He said garage owners must learn to live with competition that could have been prevented and urged them to set in anticipation of new specialists and competitors.

Stanley J. Randall, Ontario's minister of economics and development, told delegates that much of Ontario's recent prosperity has been due to rising sales of cars in the last three years.

When automobile sales and production decline, the drop in economic activity is multiplied several times in other sectors, he said.

Rape Charge Laid Against Reserve Indian

SARNIA (CP) — Lawrence Clifford Kyoshk, 29, of Walpole Island Indian reserve, charged with rape on a side road near Port Lambton on the night of Feb. 22, when four men pulled up in a car. The men attacked her companion and took $140 in cash from him.

She said one of the men took his car and forced her to accompany him to an abandoned house in Sarnia Indian reserve. She was rescued by city detectives Feb 23, some eight hours after the robbery.

Finance Minister Expected To Cut Federal Deficit But No Tax Changes in Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon will table his budget, which is expected to chart a cut in the federal deficit but make no major tax changes, still in unveiled next Monday evening, March 16.

Mr. Gordon announced the date in the Commons Monday. It will be the earliest date for a budget since last budget speech of former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris on March 14, 1961.

When Mr. Gordon rises to speak in the Commons next Monday at 8 p.m. EST it will be his second budget speech—his first was delivered last June 13 within 24 days after the Liberal government took office.

There has been little advance expectation of major tax cuts or cuts, despite strong urgings from some business groups that Canada follow the U.S. government's lead in chopping personal and corporation income taxes.

Government policy, as stated firmly by Mr. Gordon and Finance Minister Fleming, is that budget deficits should be reduced during periods of economic expansion. This year is expected to be the fourth consecutive year of economic growth, with the rise in national output forecast at around six per cent.

WILL HELP CANADA

Mr. Gordon also has said the economic rise likely to be created in the U.S. tax cuts there will benefit Canada.

As a stage-setter for the new budget, the minister will present on Thursday the estimates on the government's financial operations for the current fiscal year ending March 31.

This pre-budget "white paper" will show a $700,000,000 cash-basis operating deficit and five federal budget deficit—probably topping $700,000,000—following six years of deficits totalling some $2,854,000,000.

A Monday night budget speech would be a first; it has been on Tuesdays or Thursdays. Informants said the timing of this one will permit completion of the six-day Commons budget debate before Parliament takes its Easter recess.

The budget also precedes the federal-provincial fiscal conference opening March 31 at Quebec City—an indication that Ottawa plans no further improvements this year in the federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements. Last November the government announced changes for 1964 estimated to be worth $87,300,000 to provincial treasuries.

Much of this year's pre-budget speculation has centred on whether or not Mr. Gordon will propose further steps to help counter the growth of foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry.

There have been suggestions his new budget may mark time in this area to see how the measures in last year's budget work out.

Last year he prescribed legislation designed to end evasion of foreign-controlled subsidiaries in Canada to offer at least 25 per cent of stock to Canadians for those meeting that criterion. the withholding tax on dividends transferred out of Canada was cut to 10 percent from 15 per cent. For companies which don't do this, the tax will rise to 20 per cent next Jan. 1.

Mr. Gordon has said there is growing evidence this tax measure is having the desired effect.

MAY NOT RISE

At a press conference during a recent Washington visit, Mr. Gordon hinted it might not be necessary to raise the Canadian tax to 20 per cent.

One factor working for Mr. Gordon in his efforts to reduce his budget deficit next fiscal year is a built-in increase in revenues of some $350,000,000 from tax increases legislated last year.

Some $165,000,000 is forecast to result in 1964-65 from a speedup in the schedule by which corporations pay income taxes.

As well, the treasury will benefit from an increase in the sales tax applied last year to building materials and production machinery. This tax started at four per cent and is scheduled to double to eight per cent April 1. It will rise to 11 per cent next Jan. 1, with the extra three-per-cent tax earmarked for the unbudgetary old age security fund.

The construction industry has been strongly urging that this tax be done away with—or at least held at four per cent. But there has been no indication the government will act on the request.

U.S. SHIP ARRIVES

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda reported Tuesday that an American ship has arrived in a Soviet Pacific port for the first time in 12 years. She was the freighter Niagara, which the Soviet Communist party newspaper said docked Monday in Nakhodka, near Vladivostok, with 18,000 tons of wheat.

Will Help Crippled Children

Rotary Opens Easter Seal Drive

The local Rotary Club's annual Easter Seal campaign, to raise funds for crippled children, was officially kicked-off to a good start Monday by Alderman Douglas Boyle, representing the mayor, as he purchased the first Easter seals at the club's dinner meeting.

The campaign is the club's primary concern and is the way in which it raises funds to help crippled children in the Quinte area.

The Easter Seals campaign is conducted by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and associated service clubs, including Rotary, in over 250 communities.

Members were given their seals to mail by committee vice-chairman William McCormick who urged all Rotarians to put their shoulder to the wheel and give the campaign all the support they could.

Alderman Boyle who brought civil greetings wished the club every success in its seals campaign. The campaign was officially opened when Alderman Boyle purchased the first Easter seals from Artle Lee Miller, representing the many crippled children in the community.

Belleville citizens were urged to support the Easter seals campaign by sending their contributions to the Easter Seals committee after receiving their seals through the mail this week.

Present for the official opening of the campaign were four local crippled children, Artle Lee Miller, Patricia Kennedy, Joseph Masterson and Daniel Gilhooley.

Mrs. J. Parrott Tells Rotarians Of Moscow Visit

Members of the Rotary Club of Belleville and their guests were taken on an interesting and colorful tour of Moscow, at their regular dinner meeting on Monday.

Conducting the tour was Mrs. J. Parrott, wife of Rotarian J. Parrott. They made a recent business trip to Russia.

During their six-day visit to Moscow, Mr. and Mrs. Parrott covered a great deal of territory and were given the opportunity to see many interesting sights.

Mrs. Parrott said one point of interest was the huge crowds of people who gathered outside the Lenin tomb, awaiting their turn to go inside.

Mrs. Parrott was introduced by S. Reston and thanked on behalf of members by a Federsen.

FAVORS DRAFT

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto-Greenwood) said Monday conscription would help increase unity between the French and English - speaking citizens of Canada. Mr. Brewin, on a brief speaking tour of Alberta, said he favors compulsory service if it includes schooling in Canadian history, trades and physical education.

EASTER SEALS CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY —

The 1964 Easter Seals Campaign officially got under way on Monday when Alderman Douglas Boyle, left, purchased the first Easter Seals from Artle Lee Miller at the Rotary Club's luncheon meeting on Monday. Holding Miss Miller is the vice-chairman of the Easter Seals Committee, William McCormick. Alderman Boyle was present to represent the Mayor and other members of council.

Hawks Establish New 'Bad Boys' Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Red Hay's minor transgression has carried Chicago Black Hawks to a record season for penalty time, surpassing mark the same National Hockey League club piled up in 1938-39.

There is something paradoxical about it all because Red is decidedly among the milder in sales with the Black Hawks, if there is such a set.

He doesn't lean on the opposition the way some of his teammates do. Nor is he given to temper tantrums, behavior that is supposedly the ticket admissible for people of his coloring.

But it was Hay's two-game penalty at 6:44 of the final period in Chicago Sunday night—when the Hawks downed Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3—that pulled the Chicago team over the line.

That gave the Hawks a total of 1,074 minutes for the season so far, official league statistics showed today, breaking the record total of 1,072 set by the same club three seasons ago.

Broken down it works out to an average of something more than 18 minutes a game. By contrast, New York Rangers, the least belligerent club in the league, have averaged little better than 10 minutes each time out. The New York club total is 649 minutes.

Strung out between are Montreal Canadiens, Toronto, Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, from high to low, in that order.

CAN INCREASE MARK

Before the schedule's windup the Hawks have four games to work with and it appears the club is going to go well past the 1,100-minute mark.

Hay's penalty Sunday was his second in hour of the game, by him that was a big bite. His total for the season is only 30 minutes, leaving him far down the list of Chicago's less docile types.

Stan Mikita, the pepper-pot centre who leads the scorers with 85 points, has a 140-minute total and ranks second only to New York's Vic Hadfield among the individual bad boys. At that he's only three minutes short of Vic's mark.

Dutiky man Reg Fleming of the Hawks is just behind with 136 minutes and the figure is all the more significant when you stack up Reg's limited ice time with the others.

Clay Gets Second Test

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay said Monday he will take another U.S. Army selective service examination in Louisville Friday.

Clay had taken a test earlier but there were reports he failed to pass the mental examination.

"I had planned to go to New York within a day or two for business reasons, but now I'll have to wait until after my test," he said.

The 22-year-old Louisville resident indicated that his will remain with the Black Muslim sect headed by Elijah Muhammad and will not join with Malcolm X, who announced he was forming a movement of his own.

"I am a Baptist and I am religious," Clay said. "I am not going to do anything that's not right. I don't know much about what Malcolm X is doing, but I do know that Muhammad is the wisest."

WANTS EARLY FIGHT

Clay said he would like to fight as soon as he can, but his manager, Bill Faversham, said that all plans now have to be tentative because "we're faced with the problem of not knowing what the boy's future is."

Faversham said if Clay is not accepted by the army, "Sonny Liston deserves the next bout because he's the one who lost his title to Cassius. If Liston's left arm is in such shape that he cannot fight, then I'd say that the men who deserve a chance

Aussie Star Should Be Able To Swim

SYDNEY (AP) — Examinations show that Australian swimmer Dawn Fraser suffered chipped vertebrae in her neck in the auto accident which killed her mother Monday, but doctors say she should be able to keep on swimming.

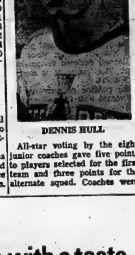
Dawn's neck will be immobilized in an orthopaedic collar for several weeks the doctor advised.

Miss Fraser is one of Australia's main swimming hopes for the Tokyo Olympics.



Cournoyer Tops Goal Scorers

Hull, Orr On Junior A All-Stars

HAMILTON (CP) — Yvan Cournoyer and Bobby Orr, two of the hottest National Hockey League prospects in recent years, are unanimous choices on the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A all-star squad.

Right winger Cournoyer of Montreal Junior Canadiens, who completed his third and final year in the junior circuit, topped the goal scorers with 63. He also scored four goals for the parent Canadiens during a five-game trial in the NHL.

Orr, the 15-year-old Oshawa Generals' defenceman, established a record this year for most goals scored by a defenceman in one season. He fired 30, one more than Jacques Laperriere who was with Montreal Junior Canadiens two seasons ago.

DENNIS HULL

All-star voting by the eight junior coaches gave five points to players selected for the first team and three points for the alternate squad. Coaches were not permitted to vote for their own players.

The first team line is comprised of Cournoyer, teammate Andre Boudrias at centre and Dennis Hull of St. Catharines Black Hawks at left wing. Boudrias, who led the league in scoring throughout the season, amassed 29 of a possible 35 points. Hull, younger brother of National Hockey League star Bobby, picked up 22.

GODDARD TENDS GOAL

Peterborough Peter Chuck Goddard edged Niagara Falls Flyers' Bernie Parent for the netminding position. Goddard collected 27 points, one more than Parent.

The surprising factor of the balloting was that Toronto Marlboros, who led the league throughout the season, failed to place a player on the first team. However, the pennant winners, who lost only nine games in the 56-game schedule, have three players on the alternate team.

Defenceman Rod Seiling, a member of the 1964 Canadian Olympic team and now the property of New York Rangers after the recent seven-player deal involving Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs, collected 24 points.

The other two Toronto players are left winger Wayne Carleton and right winger Ron Ellis, each with 18 points. Niagara Falls centre Ron Schock, recently called up by Boston Bruins of the NHL for a three-game trial, is the third forward. He collected 19 points.

Senior OHA All-Stars

Galt Hornets Place Four

GALT (CP) —Two members of Galt Hornets polled top balots for the 1963-64 edition of the OHA Senior all - star hockey team.

Goalie Dave Dryden and right winger Ron Hergott headed 13 of the 18 ballots—Galt selectors couldn't vote for them—as Hornets won four of the seven places on the first team.

Woodstock Ak, who tied for first with Galt, had one man on the first team and three on the second.

Hornet coach Ivan Tennant won both coach-of-the-year honors and the voting for defenceman. Woodstock's three Canucks formed the defence position with Tennant.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Mr. W. G. (Bill) Prest, well-known horseman of Springbrook, who has been connected with harness racing for a number of years, writes a letter to this department in criticism of the procedure exercised at the last meeting of the Driving division of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club.

Mr. Prest claims that eighty percent of the meeting was opposed to the proposal that the club sell "debentures" of fifty dollars each with a board of directors to be selected from those purchasing the "debentures."

This agent who covered the meeting was under the impression the motion carried by a small majority.

However, Mr. Prest expresses his ideas on the matter in the letter which follows.

"Sports Editor:

"At the last meeting of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, held on March 2nd, a proposal was submitted in which I was opposed as were eighty percent of the club members.

"Because I have always believed that freedom of speech and of the press, as well as the right to vote, were an important part of our way of living, I would like to take this opportunity through your paper, if possible, to state openly why I was opposed to the proposal.

"Firstly, because I was present when the same proposal was voted down by a big majority on two previous occasions at regular meetings of club members.

"Secondly, it was indicated that the purpose of selling shares or debentures, was to increase the club's financial strength. If such was the case why would the advocates of this proposal not agree, as I suggested at the meeting, throw in a hundred dollars each with no strings attached.

"I was willing to do this at the time and still am.

"I believe the purpose of the proposal was to put the control of the club in the hands of a few. It was also stated at this meeting that the two dollar year member would be allowed to vote at monthly meetings not at meetings of the so-called fifty dollar shareholders. I venture to say here the only thing the two dollar a year member would be allowed to vote on would be whether the club sell peanuts or popcorn at the races.

"In the past three or four years I have read many times in magazines devoted to the sport, and I've heard many speakers use the words to promote harness racing many speakers and dignified manner.' At a recent banquet I heard a speaker use these words and conclude by saying above all things keep the two-dollar bettor happy.

"Thinking of this accounts for my final reason for opposing the proposal. I believe the last meeting to have been very much out of order and stand to be corrected here if I am wrong.

"When a count of hands is taken for the purpose of voting in any club, are persons allowed to vote who are not members, who have never been members, and who have never attended a meeting?

"After their purpose was apparently achieved would they then be allowed to become a member? In my books the basic rules of conducting a meeting were violated.

"I was asked to become a member of this club and my only interest is for the good of the club. There are no bad personal feelings involved.

"I informed the racing secretary several times in the past I had no desire to enter horses in any of the club's programs unless they were short of horses and I had one available. I think the club has much to offer harnessmen in the district, conditioning older horses for the raceways and schooling the younger ones.

"If I have said or done anything detrimental to the club, or to those who aspire to take over, I offer my apology."

"(Signed) W. G. Prest".

Law Scores Three

United Whips Sunderland

HUDDERSFIELD (AP) — Inside-left Denis Law scored three goals Monday and sparked defending - champion Manchester United to a 5-1 victory over Sunderland in the third playing of their quarter-final match for English Football Association Cup.

The previous two matches had ended in draws. Now Manchester United, as a quarter-finalist in the European Cup of Cup Winners, will play West Ham United in the semi-final at Sheffield Saturday.

The other semi-final will be between Swansea Town and Preston North End, two English League second - division teams. Manchester and West Ham are from the first division.

About 200 policemen were on duty at the neutral ground of Huddersfield to ensure no repeat of last Wednesday's riot in the replay at Sunderland.

Two persons died in the crush before that match and about 100 were taken to hospital with broken bones, smashed ribs, cuts and bruises.

Monday the crowd was orderly.

By half-time neither team had scored. Then Sunderland centre-forward Dominic Sharkey put Sunderland ahead in the 48th minute.

The story of the first two games was back. Manchester was behind in both. In the first Manchester got two goals in the last four minutes. Manchester scored in the last minute of extra time to tie the second game.

Will Stage Trial Fun Day

Western Horse Club Meets

The Quinte Western Horse Association, a new riding body formed six weeks ago here, bids fair to mushroom into a successful organization.

At its third meeting held last night at the Dooler's Hotel, this association decided to affiliate with the Western Horse Association of Ontario, the parent body.

Art Corfield is the charter president, Mrs. Nancy Allen, secretary, and Morley Smith, treasurer. At the moment the club boasts nearly fifty members—and is growing.

The association, formerly a division of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, now operates independently and as a separate entity will finance itself, conduct its own training and stage its own shows.

To test its own strength, so to speak, the association will hold a Trials Fun Day at the Don McNevin farm on Sunday, May 26th.

Mr. Barbara Cummings was named head of a committee to be selected later, to make arrangements for the trials.

An invitation to stage a show during "Rodeo Week" scheduled for June 22-28th, was discussed.

A committee consisting of president Corfield, treasurer Smith, Fire Chief Gerald Vandervoort and member Mrs. Steele was named to meet Railroad Week officials. The decision to stage the show will be left to the committee's discretion.

The association is the only one of its kind east of Toronto, is well organized. There was plenty of enthusiasm at last night's meeting, which decided to hold monthly get-togethers on the second Monday of the month.

The club membership boasts prominent members of the former Quinte Riding Club, including people like Don McNevin, Ernie Johnstone, Barney Parsons, Mr. Lange of Trenton. It also has a number of out-of-town members.

The show, consisting of riding, barrel racing and other western riding features, staged at the Belleville Fair last year, was exceptionally well received and augurs well for the popularity of the club's activities of the future.

It was the general consensus of last night's meeting to refrain for the present, of competing with the strong organizations of Western Ontario until it gets, so to speak, some experience and an idea of its own strength.

Maroons Czechs Tie 5-5

OLOMOUC (CP)—The touring Winnipeg Maroons overcame a three-goal deficit Monday to tie the Czechoslovakian national team 5-5.

The tie was the first the Maroons in their current 12 game tour. They have won four and lost two. The second last period and only a solid team effort by the Maroons held the score at 4-2 going into the last period.

Maroons held the edge of play in the third and sensational goaltending by Winnipeg's Don Gibson in the nets.

Goegan Paces Kingston Win

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Aces moved within one game of the Ottawa St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League lead Monday by edging Morrisburg Combines 4-2.

The win gave Aces a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five semi-final series. The fourth game will be played in Morrisburg.

Flori Goegan paced Aces with a pair of goals. Morley Hunt and Bob Carnegie had the others.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay was named Boxer of the Month by the World Boxing Association Monday for his stunning upset of Sonny Liston last month.

Clay won the title at Miami Beach Feb. 25 when Liston failed to come out for the seventh round because of an arm injury.

Under WBA rules, which provide that a defeated champion must be dropped to at least third place among the contenders, Liston was named No. 3 behind Doug Jones of New York and Ernl Terrell of Chicago.

While return bout clauses in flight contracts are banned by the WBA, a rematch between a champion and the man he dethroned is permissible if the board decides that it is justified by public interest.

Liston, who has been agitating for a bout with Clay, was placed fourth among heavyweight contenders, followed by Zora Folley, Cleveland Williams, Floyd Patterson, Henry Cooper of Great Britain and Cassiusdemberger of West Germany and Chuvalo.

The other rankings include:

Light heavyweight: Champion: Willie Pastrano; Miami Beach; 2. Harold Johnson, Philadelphia; 2. Johnny Person, New York; 3. Eddie Cotton, Seattle.

Says Body Refused Protest

B's Irate At O. H. A. Ruling

The Belleville Junior "B" Hockey Club is convinced that it did not get a fair deal from the OHA in the group semi-final series against the Peterborough Petes.

Belleville lost the set two games to one but claim that, according to the official OHA rule book, it should be deadlocked at the present time at two games apiece with one game tied.

Peterborough won a 5-4 decision in Belleville on Friday night in sudden-death overtime.

The "B's" say that the rule book says clubs do not have to play sudden-death overtime. They claim that after a ten-minute period, each club should get a point. The first club to get four points in the series would be the winner.

"We filed an official protest with the OHA on Saturday but they refused to accept it," "B's" manager Mel Richards said last night.

"I don't expect it will do any good but at least I am concerned this thing is not over. I am going to send the protest right back to them (OHA) and if I have to put the $50 in out of my own pocket," Richards said after Belleville lost 4-3 decision in Peterborough last night.

"The OHA refused to accept the protest and let it go before a protest committee because they knew they would have to back it up if they did," he continued. "The rules are right there in the book in black and white, so how can they change them on one occasion?" the irate manager stormed.

OHA executive member Jack Devine, who ordered the clubs to play the game to a finish here Friday, had this to say: "The OHA refused to accept the protest and the money ($50) was returned since both clubs had been told before Friday's game that it must be played to a finish. It's a matter of record that both clubs knew it beforehand."

Belleville Pres. is president Gordie Bell said: "We protested against the OHA so they refused to accept it. I just ruled just the opposite as to what they printed in their rule book."

Devine, who attended the game last night, said: "I'm going to let the two games stand. I will have nothing more to say about the series, the teams can get that from Belleville Manager Frank Hanley from now on."

It was also learned that the Belleville team had attempted to contact OHA business manager Bill Hanley by phone Monday afternoon and had been told to contact Mr. Devine.

Hanley sent word with referee Jack Shropshire to last night's game that sudden-death overtime would be again employed if necessary. "We will accept it and we will protest again tonight if we have to," was the reply of the Belleville team leaders. No overtime was necessary however.

Peterborough manager Jack Johnson was also unhappy with the handling of the series and said: "As far as we are concerned the OHA made a mess out of this series right from the start. We were told, as was Belleville, before Friday's game that it must be played to a finish but in the first game here we had agreed to play only ten minutes of overtime."

At any rate, Peterborough opens the group finals in Kingston tonight and the protest matter is expected to die a quiet death.

THREE DEPT BAN

CAIRO (AP)—Australian Tennis rebel Martin Mulligan showed up at the Cairo International tournament Monday in defiance of an Australian Lawn Tennis Association ban and had a lively first match, defeated Allan Mills of Britain 6-3, 5-7, 6-4. Mulligan is travelling with fellow Australians Jan Lehane and Madonna Sacht, who also won their first-round singles matches. They are ignoring an LTA rule which prohibits foreign competition prior to March 31. Australian Neale Fox Fleicher have drawn suspensions for 1964 events.

Flyers Snatch Last-Second Win

Lightfoots Drop Thriller

For the Lightfoots, the Smith boys' stranded to most of the scoring plays. Gord Smith was top man with 20 points, followed by Don Smith with 19 and Bob Smith with 17. Belleville started the game with six players and had Larry Dupuis after six minutes when he was ejected during an argument.

Doug Rose and Warren Whitley were missing from the Belleville lineup through illness and injury.

Belleville Lightfoots (65): D. Smith 19, L. Campbell 2, B. Smith 17, G. Duggan 4, L. Houchin 3, G. Smith 20.

At The Training Camps

Solved was the contract dispute with relief pitcher Stu Miller, who led the American League with 26 saves last season. Miller, 36, held up for two weeks before agreeing to terms which will set him about $34,000 this season.

But the Orioles immediately lost another pitcher when right-hander Milt Pappas twisted his left ankle during a workout. Doctors said Pappas, a 16 game winner in 1963, suffered a slight sprain. He was told to slacken his training routine for one or two days.

Pappas missed three weeks last spring when he injured his right knee, and was out for a similar period in the 1962 training camp for an emergency appendectomy.

But Orioles are not the only team having trouble with pitchers. New York Yankees handed an ultimatum to Jim Bouton Monday, telling him to agree to terms by midnight Wednesday or face a $100 fine for every day he is absent from Camp.

WON 21 GAMES

The big righthander, who won 21 games for the American League champions last year, has been demanding double his 1963 salary of $10,000. The Yankees have set an $18,000 ceiling.

If Bouton does draw the fine, he will be the first Yankee holdout to be since Joe DiMaggio in 1938.

Washington Senators also have problem signing a pitcher. In this case, its veteran Ron Kline, who had a 3-8 record in relief last year, with 14 saves. Kline balked at taking a pay cut, and countered with a request for a raise.

Kline then asked Washington manager George Selkirk for his release so he might play ball in Japan this year. Selkirk told Kline it would cost him $45,000, day.

Cincinnati's Chick Balon scored the first goal at 9:02 of the opening frame but Wally Cherrier evened it up with just two seconds to go in the period. Fifty goal for St. Paul.

The game, transferred here to help dedicate Tulsa's new Civic Centre, drew 3,822 fans. The teams play here again Wednesday.

Lose Third Game 5-2

Juniors Bow To Peterborough

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

PETERBOROUGH — Three third-period goals broke open a tight contest and gave the Peterborough Monsens a series-winning 5-2 victory over Belleville "B"s in the third and deciding game of their OHA-Eastern Junior "B" group semi-finals here last night.

The largest Junior "B" crowd of the season here including gamy Belleville fans, watched the "B"s and Monsens battle to a 1-1 stalemate in the first heat before Peterborough mopped up 2-1 in the second.

Monsens will open a best-of-seven group championship series in Kingston tonight. A winner must be declared by March 23, according to the OHA.

Belleville was a loser before entering the rink when the OHA refused to accept a protest of Friday night's 5-4 sudden-death overtime loss in the Quinte Hotels details of the protest squabble appear in another story.

Stu Muirhead, in his final game of Junior hockey, accounted for both Belleville markers, his 9th and 6th of the series. Bob Boyle assisted on both and Jim Rutherford on one.

Referees Jack Shropshire and Bill Cowley, send by the OHA, handed out 16 penalties in a chippy contest. The losers drew nine of that total. Bill Lang and Pete McCarthy got the only majors for a third-period fight.

Trailing 2-1 entering the third, the "B"s threw caution to the wind and opened the way to Peterborough's last three goals. Crawford finished off a two-on-one play at 5.00 and Belleville had trouble clearing the puck for the next few minutes. Stahlee sank a 30-foot slapper with two Belleville men in the sin-bin at 10.38 and LaPlante took Latinovich's head-man pass, waiting in all alone, to sew up the decision at 12.40.

Muirhead got one back with five clubs five aside, at 15.11, grabbing Boyle's pass before side-stepping one man and blasting Rear with a pretty back-hand drive — but that was it with the score 5-2.

Latinovich opened the game scoring from a scrapbble in front of Bob Kisse early in the first heat. Belleville pressed all the while the same Monsen player was in the penalty box and tied it seconds after his return, Muirhead stabbed in a rebound on a four-man attack with Rutherford, Boyle and Brad Hagerman. Ranes robbed Muirhead with a leg save in the period's final seconds.

LaPlante put his club in front to stay at 4.40 of the second. He took Karrio's skin boards pass and whipped in home from point blank range. Kiser made most of his best saves in this period and the Winners gave the puck away several times in dangerous spots without the "B"s being able to capitalize.

Camp Throbs With Optimism
Pennant Talk In Philly

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—The camp of Philadelphia Phillies throbs with optimism this spring.

Gene Mauch, the intense young manager, has sold his National League club on the importance of a fast getaway. After years of fumbling in the darkness, there is pennant talk in Philadelphia.

At the moment, Mauch's main project is converting Richie Allen into a third baseman. The slugger from Wampum, Pa., led the International League last year in triples with 12, homers with 33, RBI with 97 and total bases with 209 while hitting .338 for Little Rock as an outfielder.

The man who switched Carl Yastrzemski from short to the outfield when he was managing in the Red Sox chain at Minneapolis is convinced Allen can master the change.

"This kid, Allen" just gave like he was going to hit up here. We had him for 10 or 11 games last fall. He is fast and quick, with long arms and good speed. He weighs 185 and I'll bet 135 of them are above his belt. We did it with Don Demeter and he did an adequate job after moving from the outfield to third."

WANTED PITCHING

Mauch says he traded Demeter to Detroit for Jim Bunning and Gus Triandos to help his pitching and because he badly needed a power-hitting catcher batting right.

"Six clubs in the league can win 85 or 90 games," said Mauch. "Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and the Phillies. If you can win 86 there is no reason why you cannot win more.

"We have to get off food. Last year we were nine games under .500 June 23 when we lost a doubleheader to the Mets. We were 21 over .500 for the rest of the season.

"Forget about 1960 and 1961. We were just taking the club apart and lining up the men we wanted like Tony Taylor, Johnny Callison and Tony Gonzalez. The last seven or eight weeks of 1962 we were the best in the league."

Trainer Suspended For Meet

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Trainer Joe Pierce Jr., was suspended Monday for the remainder of the Gulfstream Park race meeting for alleged negligence in connection with the use of "prohibited drug," on one of his horses.

Pierce said he would not appeal to the Florida State Racing Commission.

The Hialeah stewards imposed the suspension after the drug thoralinone was found in Tamarin's urin sample after the Pierce-trained horse won the third race at Hialeah last Tuesday.

Dr. J. G. Catlett of the racing commission said Pierce was not deemed guilty of drugging the horse or of having any knowledge of it.

But the stewards said they were bound by the Florida trainers' responsibility rule which holds him culpable regardless of the action of a third party.

Horatio Luro, trainer of the outstanding three - year - old, Northern Dancer, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, faces Gulfstream stewards on a similar charge today.

Dr. Francis Southard, a veterinarian, said he gave the drug to Gay Lothario in treatment of a throat infection, but thought it would have worn off before the race.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Some hockey players make the mistake of staying on the ice too long. This is a habit which should be broken.

You need a rope to get some fellows off. A lot of coaches will say.

It is just their love of the game that makes them stay out there. They don't realize how tired they are, by failing to get off at the opportune time when their shift is over, they disrupt team play, endanger their own team's chances.

Then there's the defenceman who likes to rush, rush, rush. Well, all fine and dandy, at the start of the game. They might have an abundance of energy.

However, near the end of the game, he takes a big rush up the ice. Then the play is reversed and they come back into your zone.

He's got 100, even 180 feet to get back. He's been bumped around. He's been working real hard. He gets back in his end and they get you on the run. He's dead tired and there isn't a possibility of changing.

Changing can be very hazardous if you change at the wrong time. For instance, say I'm patrolling right next to our ouench coming into our zone.

Possession of the puck suddenly changes hands at centre ice. I don't care how tired you are, a tired man is better than no man at all. You should stay out there when the play comes into your end.

He's on the other side of the ice. He has to skate all the way across and he has to be within five or 10 feet of the boards to make a proper change.

The fellow who jumps on to take his place has to skate close to 90 feet to get back into the play. There can be a lot of action and you can be short-handed a matter of seconds which can be very dangerous.

Russian Star Believes
Indoor Meets Taking US Toll

NEW YORK (AP) — Valery Brumel, 22, the Soviet Union's world champion high jumper, says the United States may leave its Olympic edge on the hard boards of the winter indoor track meets.

"Personally, I would not think of engaging in such a heavy schedule at this time," the physical education student added Monday. He is here to receive an Athlete of the Year award.

"With the Olympic Games in October, instead of the summer, it is impossible for an athlete to reach his peak twice—now and in the fall."

Brumel said he and other Russian athletes were just beginning now to think about the summer games, opening Oct. 10 in Tokyo.

Brumel's 7 feet, 5¼ inches is the highest any man ever reached in the high jump.

Brumel, through a pair of interpreters, talked freely of sports techniques and the impending Olympic Games.

Brumel said he thought the Americans matched the Russians on a technical level but were not inclined to train as hard.

"Perhaps our discipline is greater," he said. "To be a master sportsman or an Olympic champion is one of the highest honors in our country."

Brumel said he expected America's John Thomas to offer the toughest competition in the high jump at Tokyo, but he doubted that the winner of the event would beat seven feet, two inches—more than three inches lower than he himself has jumped.

"The tension and pressure is so great in the Olympics that no man can come to his best," the Soviet athlete said.

Howlett was charged after a Junior C hockey tournament here Feb. 23 when he was alleged to have injured another player.

The court ruled he would be jailed for one year if he tried to enter any local sports establishments.

Giants Win Third Exhibition

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

San Francisco Giants wrapped up their third straight victory on the pre-season Cactus circuit Monday with a 7-4 triumph over Chicago Cubs at Phoenix, Ariz., but they lost the services of their promising third baseman for several days.

Jim Ray Hart, a youngster expected to nail down the third base job with the Giants, caught a Bob Buhl pitch on his thumb in the third inning and had to leave the game. X-rays were taken but the injury turned out to be a painful bruise.

The only other exhibition game Monday saw Cleveland Indians outslug Boston Red Sox for an 11-8 victory at Scottsdale, Ariz. Leon Wagner and Dick Howser were the big guns for the Indians with three hits each.

Take Legal Action On Suspensions

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The London Minor Hockey Association sent a lawyer into action Monday preparing a case to uphold members of the Trecumseh peewee hockey team of this city.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association suspended the team, its manager, Mrs. Gordon Stronach, coach Eugene Taylor and player Dale Irvine, 12, during the International Peewee Hockey Tournament in Quebec City last month.

The OMHA says the suspensions were issued because Tecumseh used Irine, a player from the Huron Heights branch of the OMHA, in the tournament without permission.

The club suspension was lifted March 5 but suspensions remained in force against Mrs. Stronach, Taylor and Irvine.

It was learned Monday that the OMHA planned forming an investigating committee into the Quebec affair after the three members reply to an OMHA letter requesting their defense.

The LMHA's legal action came after a late Sunday meeting and followed apparently late news of the club's revival and pending action against the three members.

Lawyer Cameron J. Killoran declined to say what action he was preparing.

SEILING RECALLED

NEW YORK (AP)—Rod Seiling, the highly-regarded prospect obtained from Toronto Maple Leafs in the Andy Bathgate trade, has been recalled from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, New York Rangers said Monday. Seiling will play in Wednesday's National League game against Boston. He collected one assist in last Wednesday's game against the Chicago Black Hawks and returned to the Toronto Marlboros.

Defeats Palmer By Stroke

Player Wins Playoff Round

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Before Gay Player went on the course to play off a tie with Arnold Palmer and Miller Barber in the $25,000 Pensacola Open Monday he said: "Maybe this will be my day."

It was.

The little South African shot a one-under-par 71 to beat Palmer by one stroke and Barber by three and win $4,000. They had tied at the end of the regular 72-hole tournament with 274s.

"I was under more pressure than I ever have been in my life," Player said when he closed out the day and pocketed his cheque. "It's awfully tough when you have to go against two fellows."

He said he had given up driving with his No. 4 wood because "I haven't been winning enough tournaments. I've been playing too conservatively."

Palmer had a chance to tie Player on the 16th hole but overshot the green, was short with his next shot and then went six feet past the cup.

The win was only the sixth time Palmer has lost in 17 playoffs.

Barber, who split a $4,600 pot with Palmer, said if he had made a birdie putt on the 12th hole it might have been a different story.

Barber's score would have been better had he not three-putted the final green. After Player sank his putt for a par Barber putted hastily and needed three to get down from 30 feet.

Red Wings Beat Picton In Opener

PICTON (Staff) — Napanee Red Wings scored a hard-fought 6-4 victory over the Picton Merchants before 600 fans in Napanee last night in the opening game of the best-of-seven OHA Eastern Junior "C" group finals.

Following the defeat, Picton manager Chris Lockyer called the officiating "the worst I have ever witnessed in seven years of OHA junior hockey."

Lockyer's main beefs were a couple of disputed goals, one that counted for Napanee and one that did not by Picton.

The usually quiet-mannered Picton manager told this paper: "It was without a doubt the poorest officiating I have ever seen in seven years of managing junior hockey clubs in OHA play. If this is what we have to put up with we might as well give up right now."

Second game in what shapes up to be a bitterly-contested series is slated for Picton on Thursday night with the third back in Napanee Saturday night.

Red Wings outshot Picton 43-32 on the night's play and the main outbreak on the ice was a battle between Pete Cruji and Bob Brown which started as the players were entering the sin-bin for minor penalties late in the game.

Picton goals were shared by Bob Brown, Carl Byers, Bob Thompson and Gary Hansell.

to give you the world's most rustproofed car

Canadian winters are among the most severe anywhere. And extreme conditions demand extreme measures. That's why salt must be used to keep our roads free. Unfortunately, the salt is corrosive when it comes in contact with your car. This creates a rust problem that you can't ignore.

We could have been superficial. We could have side-stepped the issue. We could have denied all responsibility for finding a solution.

But we are committed to building a car that provides "maximum usefulness to the user." Because your car needs special protection, we accepted our obligation to do something bold and decisive about rustproofing.

As a result, Rambler's research and engineering has produced the world's most complete rustproofing process.

This process is only one of the exclusive features that together make Rambler Canada's best car value. Your Dealer will be pleased to show you how Rambler is designed for complete winter protection. Call on him soon.

1. Galvanizing Rustproofing begins with the steel used in the construction of a Rambler. Rust-resistant galvanized metal covers not only the rocker panels but all vulnerable areas.

2. Tunnel The car passes through an immense tunnel. Every jet hammer every square inch of the car's surface to remove all impurities. On its way through, the car is Deep-dipped into six tanks containing rustproofing solutions.

3. Primer Dip Coming out of the tunnel, the car goes to a primer paint bath. Here it is dipped into the paint right up to the rootline. In this way we make sure the metal is completely covered with primer paint.

4. Wet Sealing Following the dip, the car is spray-primed again. After baking, it is meticulously wet sanded by hand to remove all trace of blemish and imperfection from its surface.

5. Enamelling Now every joint, inside and out, is sealed by hand and the car is ready for enamelling. It gets not one but three complete coats and is thoroughly baked to produce a high, chip-resistant glow.

6. Sealing As a final precaution, special attention is paid to the underbody and the rocker panels. A sealing compound is forced into the rocker panels to protect them from moisture that may collect there.

Mitch Miller Displeased By His Treatment by NBC

By CYNTHI ALOWEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Mitch Miller, the "sing along" man, says NBC is the string-along network.

"The network obviously knew months ago that it planned to drop my show next season," Miller grumbled, "But instead of telling us then, they waited until March 1 to give us the news. Why did they keep stringing us along? Probably to keep us from making a deal to move elsewhere. They were afraid they'd look foolish if we landed on another network and started hitting one of their new shows in the ratings."

Miller's show has been constantly moved around during four seasons in the NBC schedule. It has been on Thursday and Friday nights and this season had a late Monday night spot, following a rerun of an old movie and Hollywood and the Stars, which received consistently poor ratings.

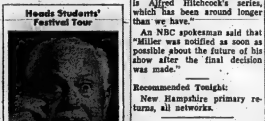
Miller said NBC brass told him his show was out so the network could try something "new and fresh."

"New and fresh," he said. "I didn't say anything about old feature films for two hours at a clip. And the new and fresh thing they are bumping us for is Alfred Hitchcock's series, which has been around longer than we have."

An NBC spokesman said that "Miller was notified as soon as possible about the future of his show after the final decision was made."

At the Belle

New screen comedy stars Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward.



"A New Kind of Love", the Paramount comedy in Technicolor, starring the husband-wife team of Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward is now in its 4th and final successful day at the Belle Theatre.

A riotous take-off on the high fashion industry in New York and Paris, "A New Kind of Love" also features such stellar players as Thelma Ritter, Eva Gabor, George Tobias, Marvin Kaplan and Robert Clary.

Maurice Chevalier, the ever popular French star of stage and screen appears as himself in a cameo guest star role in which he sings "Mimi", Louise, and several other songs from his popular repertoire. The world renowned entertainer returned to the Paramount studios where he first attained screen stardom and where he was enthusiastically received after a 30 year absence.

Twenty-five of the "most beautiful models in the world were carefully selected to model $1,000,000 worth of gowns, lingeries, jewels and accessories in the new Technicolor comedy, showing Tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Heads Students' Festival Tour

GUNTHER ACTROS

Local students are planning a unique visit to the drama festivals currently taking place across the country. Beginning the trip is Mr. Gunther Actros, well-known actor and teacher. Some 60 strong, they have chartered a Canadien Nationalcoach for their exclusive use. Apart from being more fun, the excited students say, it's the only way they could afford the trip. One charming young thespian summed it up: "It's smarter to charter — and cheaper by far!" The group chartered an entire CN coach and saved as much as 38%. And they charter sleepers for overnight trips. When asked about their travel arrangements for smaller groups, they were just as happy with another CN answer: CN's Party Fares. They can save 10% to 20% over and above the big savings on Red 'Bargain' and 'White Economy' Days. In fact — the stage whisper around here is 'Let Canadian National handle all your group trips!'

Dana Andrews Back With Studio Of 25 Years Ago

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was an event marked with sentiment for Dana Andrews. He was back at the Goldwyn Studio where he got his start in films exactly 25 years ago.

He had let his hair resume its natural silver for his role in John Sturges' Satan Bug. But otherwise he seemed little changed from the handsome Texas lad who got his start in The Westerner with Gary Cooper and Walter Brennan.

"I ran into Sam (Goldwyn) on the lot the other day," Dana said with a chuckle. "He put his arm around my neck and said, 'Dana, you look wonderful.'

"That's exactly what he used to say to me when I was under contract to him. But then he'd follow it with: 'Dana, I've got a part for you—not a big part, but an important one.'

It was on the Goldwyn lot that Dana made such successes as Best Years of Our Lives and My Foolish Heart. But he is not one for much reminiscence. The present looks good to him, not to mention the future.

The reason for his optimistic outlook is his second profession —that of real estate operator. He may well be the wealthiest union head in the world (he's president of the Screen Actors Guild).

"It all started in 1960," he recalled. "I was paying most of what I earned in taxes and I was getting damned tired of it."

He read a best-selling book about how to make a mint in the real estate market and decided to try it.

"One day I came home and told my wife I had just invested $200,000 in a piece of property," he said. "Mary went crazy. 'How can you do that?' she said. 'For all you know, that'll have nothing.' But I stuck to my guns. Now she's a changed woman. If I say so her, we've got to make a million - dollar deal,' she says, 'Okay, let's go.'

The $300,000 investment turned a $150,000 profit, he said. He was off and running. So far he has launched seven large operations, the biggest being a $2,500,000 complex of 12 buildings in nearby Garden Grove.

Five Folksingers Endeavor To Sing for an Education

By EDDY COLLISTER

MONTREAL (CP)—"See the world and go to college" could be the motto of the Newlanders.

The group, Eddy Scott, 26, Henry Roy, 24, Dave Yorston and Robert Doucet, both 22, and Gerry Hill, 21, began singing folksongs four years ago and have since travelled across Canada, the United States and Europe.

When they got together all five were working. They decided that an education was necessary so they agreed to put profits in the kitty and see whether it would finance their way through college.

Eddy, Dave and Robert have graduated and Gerry and Henry have two years to go.

"We started with a repertoire of six songs at a dinner for students of Montreal's Sir George Williams University," says Henry, the group's manager.

"When the kids asked for an encore we had to admit that was all the songs we knew.

"They seemed to appreciate our frankness for they sat and listened while we sang all six songs a second time."

SANG AT LODGE

The chances of them ever running out of songs again are fairly slim now. They can sing some 86 folksongs although each one of the group can read a note.

The Newlanders' first big break came when they got a job at the Mont Habitant ski lodge in the Laurentians.

"The lodge had just opened and agreed to give us a chance," Henry recalls. "We seemed to grow together and last year they sponsored our first recording. The Newlanders at Mont Habitant."

The group literally sang its way to Europe and around the Continent.

While in Europe the boys visited Sweden, France, Italy and ended up in England where they spent four months working on the BBC-TV Country and Western Show—"we were the one that brought the Hootenanny to England."

Besides doing TV, they performed at Columbia House and at about 10 U.S. army and air force bases in England.

"But they weren't the only Canadians on the TV program—the master of ceremonies was Gordie Lightfoot of Toronto.

HAS BIG CAST

To Broadway with Love. the musical slated for New York's world's fair, will have 24 dancers and 40 ensemble singers working alternate days.

Love Goddess Hayworth Now Plays Mother Role

By DAVE SMITH

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rita Hayworth long ago joined that handful of female stars, like Theda Bara or Marilyn Monroe, who symbolize Hollywood glamor—of the kind you mention in a posthumous tone, as if to say, "ah, those were the days."

Hollywood put her through a spate of films, and by the late 1940s, with such films as Gilda or Lady from Shanghai, she was the all-time love goddess, a living legend.

But Hollywood wasn't all beer and skittles for Rita, a veteran of 33 years in films. She went through five marriages, five divorces and bitter publicity. Abruptly, in the late 1950s, Hollywood seemed to find less need of Rita Hayworth's services.

She didn't look like Gilda any more, but producers had a hard time visualizing the actress in any other context. She was legendary love goddess—stereotyped, unmortalized and pretty well discarded. And not yet 40.

MADE COMEBACK

Then, in 1958, she appeared in the film of Terence Rattigan's Separate Tables and won critical acclaim in the dramatic role of an unhappy, 40-ish divorcee.

Next came Glendon Swarthout's They Came to Cordura, in which she scored again as a mature, unglamorous political prisoner.

Now Rita's back in her Beverly Hills home, just having finished Circus World for Samuel Bronston in Spain. And in this one, she's the mother of Claudia Cardinale, one of Europe's newest va-va-voom girls.

How does she feel about coming of age?

"I'm realistic about it, I think," she says. "After all, I do have a 26-year-old daughter (Rebecca, my husband No. 2, Orson Welles), and I could very well be the mother of a girl like Claudia's age," Miss Cardinal is 25.

And how does she feel, looking back on the Rita Hayworth legend?

"I don't really think about it much," she says.

Storm Clogs Highways With Foot Of Snow

Cars Lined up for 10 Miles in Some Places

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A wind-lashed storm dumped nearly a foot of snow in parts of southern Ontario Tuesday to create a motorists' nightmare of chaos, confusion and stalled cars on highways and city streets.

It was the second sudden and short-lived storm to batter the province within a week.

Last Thursday, heavy rains whipped by gale-force winds swept into Ontario from the midwest United States and left a trail of broken power lines, uprooted trees and shattered windows.

Tuesday's storm also moved up from the U.S., driven by winds gusting to 85 miles an hour. It blanketed the Lake Erie and Lake Ontario shores from Windsor to the Quebec border.

Up to 11 inches fell in the Toronto-Hamilton area and huge drifts were piled up by strong winds.

The resulting traffic jam in Metro Toronto was described as the worst in this winter. Traffic on highways outside the city was tied up for 10 miles in some places.

Public transportation was disrupted and hundreds of downtown Toronto workers were hours late in getting home. Some suburban residents spent the night in the city.

Overnight clearing operations opened all main city streets and highways and transportation was getting back to normal across the province early today.

STARTED FLIGHTS

Some flights were grounded at airports Tuesday and others were turned back.

Plans Will Be Given For Forces

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Within the next two weeks, the government is expected to present to Parliament its long-awaited white paper on defence outlining its 1965-73 plans for the armed forces.

One of the most startling features of the policy may be full integration of the three services under a single chief of staff and eventually, with the same uniform.

It is calculated that such a stroke, perhaps the first of its kind in the world, would save at least $100,000,000 annually and result in a reduction in armed forces manpower of some 10,000 personnel.

"The three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated with maximum efficiency and economy both in operation and administration at the necessary changes to that end should be made at the department of national defence".

START FROM TOP

An aide to Mr. Pearson said the government intends to carry out this proposal, and not piecemeal from the bottom but by imposing integration from the top by cabinet order.

This means the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee, at present Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, probably will become the single military boss of the 122,000 servicemen.

In that case, the chiefs of the navy, army and air force would disappear entirely and the chain of command would be broken down by functions. For example, the navy would be responsible for all maritime operations, the army for land operations and the air force for air operations.

Thousands of Rioting Cambodians Sack U. S. and British Embassies

PHNOM PENH (AP)—Rioting Cambodians attacked the American and British embassies in Phnom Penh today and the U.S. Information Service library.

The flag over the U.S. embassy was hauled down and Cambodian flag.

Several cars belonging to Americans at the British embassy were burned and several American embassy cars were overturned.

The mob shouted such slogans as "Kill all Americans who are with imperialists and the free world," and "perfidious Albion (England)."

(In Washington, a state department press officer, Martin Cramer, said all U.S. Charge d'Affaires Herbert D. Spivack had protested to the Cambodian government.

(A British foreign office spokesman in London said the British embassy received the British consular offices and damaged the ground floor of the British Embassy.)

The rioters broke through police barriers to sack the U.S. Embassy and the Information Library. Embassy papers were scattered through the streets.

Relations between the United States and Cambodia have deteriorated in recent months and the government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk has moved closer to the Communist camp.

The Cambodian chief of state has recalled his ambassador from Washington and refused to accept further U.S. aid, accusing the United States of supporting Cambodian rebels.

Nothing gives you more leisure than being on time for appointments.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The storm which dumped so much snow on the southern fringes of Ontario Tuesday moved well out into the Atlantic during the night and the Maritime provinces were starting to feel its effects this morning. Skies cleared across southern Ontario overnight and most of the forecast district should get considerable sunshine today before cold records over the province at the next weather disturbance to affect the district. This new system will be a relatively tame one compared to the rather vicious storms of recent days. Its effect should be limited to snowflurries in the north and occasional light snow across the south tonight. By Thursday the disturbance should be east of the district and fair weather with rather light winds should prevail.

Absolute Nonsense -Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Tuesday it was "absolute nonsense" to connect a recent increase in liquor prices with contributions to Progressive Conservative party funds.

He was replying in the legislature to charges by Kenneth Bryden (NDP — Toronto Wine) that the government's decision to increase liquor prices represented a payoff to distillers for their contributions to the Conservative campaign fund.

The premier said the five-cents-a-bottle increase for distillers was under negotiation before he became premier and the decision to grant it was made on the recommendation of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

The government played no part in the negotiations, he said. The fact the increase was granted after the Sept. 25 provincial election was not significant.

MADE ACROSS CANADA

The premier said the increase was made across Canada.

The NDP charges were "a direct accusation that this government is dishonest," said Mr. Robarts.

"I don't know where these contributions (to the party) come from, who they come from, or what amounts, and I don't want to know."

Mr. Bryden's charges, contained in a statement released

Will Probe New Clamp Incident

TORONTO (CP)—A pathologist said Tuesday a surgical clamp left inside Mrs. Ena Reed, 54, during an operation was not the cause of her death in Etobicoke General Hospital on Saturday.

Dr. E. L. Barton, who conducted the autopsy on Mrs. Reed and found the clamp that led Attorney-General Fred Cass to call an inquest into her death, said death was caused by a "massive peritonitis"—an inflammation of the peritoneum, the sac holding the intestines and other organs.

It was the second such inquest Mr. Cass has ordered in less than a month. Last month, an inquest found that Patricia Morgan, 34, died in Toronto East General Hospital Nov. 4, 18 days after a clamp was left inside her during an operation. It ruled that Dr. Kenneth Brown, Mrs. Morgan's doctor, was responsible.

Mr. Cass announced the inquest today at the funeral cortege for Mrs. Noer, a widow who died eight days after a gallstone operation at Port Dalhousie, Ont., a town of 3,500 persons 35 miles northwest of Toronto.

DIDN'T KNOW

"We didn't know a thing about it until we heard it on the radio . . ." Wallace McIntosh of Ottawa, Mrs. Noer's son-in-law, said after the funeral.

The investigation will be headed by Dr. H. E. Cotnam, Ontario's provincial coroner, who will be aided by Inspector H. M. Purdy of the provincial police and lawyer John A. Hoolihan.

Mr. Houlihan acted for crown counsel during the Morgan inquest.

Mr. Cass commented: "It is obvious that we are having a spate of these cases and I want all the information brought out that can be brought out."

SPIN-DRY SLUMBER

Ultimatum Given British Troops To Leave Village Is Withdrawn

CP from Reuters-AP

NICOSIA — Greek - Cypriot forces today withdrew an ultimatum to British troops to evacuate the northern Cyprus village of Kazaphani a half-hour before it was due to expire.

A British military spokesman said the ultimatum, which set a 3 p.m. local time (9 a.m. EST) deadline for the evacuation, was withdrawn but he did not give any further details.

Turkish - Cypriots in the village asked Monday to be evacuated. They said they were fired at with bazookas Sunday night.

British military spokesmen said the evacuation would be carried out.

Earlier today about 10,000 Greek - Cypriot students, staging an anti-American, anti-British, pro - Soviet demonstration here mobbed the British ambassador to Cyprus.

No fighting was reported in Cyprus during the morning today but there was sporadic shooting at the village of Tembelos in northern Cyprus Tuesday night, a British spokesman said.

The British high commissioner, Sir Arthur Clark, was on his way to the airport to see Cypriot President Makarios off to Athens, Greece, when the crowd swarmed around his car.

The students, carried banners with such slogans on them as "Americans, you cannot buy us," "British, go home," and "Long live the mighty U.S.S.R. great defender of peace and justice."

Later, the students marched to a stadium here where they passed a resolution calling for self-determination and "Enosis" (union with Greece) as the only solutions to the Cyprus problem.

The resolution also expressed dissatisfaction over the "unfair stand" of the United States and Britain on the Cyprus issues, and called for the return to Cyprus of Cyprus pre - independence Eoka guerrilla leader, Gen. George Grivas.

Makarios was expected to see Grivas, who is now living in Greece, during his stay in Athens.

A two-day battle in the Troodos mountain village of Malia ended Tuesday with the surrender of Turkish-Cypriot fighters. British troops reported today that the Turks, disarmed, did not want to return to their homes in Malia but asked to be taken to other Turkish - Cypriot villages.

The British military spokesman said the casualties in the Malia fighting were three Turkish-Cypriots killed, three Turkish-Cypriots wounded; and at least three Greek - Cypriots wounded.

Turkish warships took to the seas north of Cyprus as the Greek - Cypriot government of President Makarios kept up pressure on the Turkish-Cypriot minority in this island republic.

Turkish naval units steamed out at high speed Tuesday, destination unknown. Turkish authorities did not reveal how many vessels left, nor whether any of the troops massed in the area about 100 miles from Cyprus were aboard.

Similar moves by the Turkish fleet since fighting erupted between the two Cypriot factions last December have been described as "routine exercises."

Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios, the leader of the Turkish-Cypriot minority, appealed to UN Secretary - General U Thant on Tuesday to dispatch a UN peace force quickly to Cyprus to save his people from "annihilation" by Greek-Cypriots.

Kutchuk also wired appeals to the foreign ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey—the three nations that guarantee the independence of Cyprus under the 1960 treaty.

Lodge Wins Republican Primary in New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (CP-AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, President Johnson's man in Saigon, stayed put, said nothing and still won New Hampshire's first in the U.S. Republican presidential primary by a handy margin although his name wasn't on the ballot.

Thus, the U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam received the mandate to be the state's nominee as Republican candidate for president at the nominating convention in San Francisco next July 13.

Lodge also had the entire slate of the state's 24 Republican delegates to the convention on his bandwagon.

New Hampshire's voters braved a snowstorm to write in the name of the veteran politician - soldier - diplomat — as they can under state law—and they chose Lodge by a margin of almost 9,000 votes Tuesday.

It was quite defeat for ultra-conservative Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona and liberal Republican Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, both of whom had spent lots of time and money campaigning in the state.

Goldwater ran second and Rockefeller third. Both their names were on the ballot. Former vice-president Richard M. Nixon, another write-in candidate, finished fourth. Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine

Shulman Says Dr. Acorn Covered up Doctors' Errors

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman, Metropolitan Toronto's chief coroner said Tuesday night his predecessor, Dr. Smirle Lawson, suppressed inquiries into deaths resulting from blunders by doctors and hospitals.

"Smirle considered that one purpose of the coroner's office was to protect the medical profession," he said.

Dr. Lawson died last year a few months after retiring as Metro's chief coroner, a post he held for nine years.

He was head of Toronto coroners from 1937 to 1953 and also supervising coroner for Ontario for 25 years.

Dr. Shulman made the comment on the CBC television show, Front Page Challenge.

"Has there been in the coroner's office or generally a gentlemen's agreement to cover up for medical mistakes?" panelist Charles Templeton asked.

"Yes, there has been an understanding for many years," said Dr. Shulman.

"What do you mean, understanding?" he was asked.

"These were in the instructions issued by my predecessor to the coroners when they were appointed. In cases of medical mistakes it would be perfectly all right to chastise the doctors or the hospital privately but not under any circumstances was an inquest to be held."

Was Easy Birth For Fourth Baby, 5½ Pound Son

Mother and New Prince Are Both Doing Well

LONDON (CP) — Britain broke out her flags and fired 21 - and 41-gun salutes today to celebrate the birth of a five-pound, seven - ounce son to Queen Elizabeth.

Both the 37-year-old monarch and the new prince—her fourth child and third son—were reported doing well. The baby was born Tuesday night at Buckingham Palace a week earlier than expected. But "it was an easy birth," said Sir John Weir, the royal physician. "Everything went well; there were no problems," reported the anesthetist, Dr. Vernon Hall.

The baby was the smallest of the Queen's children at birth. Prince Charles, the eldest, weighed seven pounds, six ounces, Princess Anne six pounds and Prince Andrew seven pounds, three ounces.

The Queen's husband, Prince Philip, went ahead with plans to represent her at the funeral of King Paul of Greece Thursday.

THIRD IN LINE

The child, whose name has not yet been announced, is third in line to the throne behind his brothers Charles and Andrew.

A medical bulletin issued this morning said:

"The Queen has had a comfortable night. Her majesty and the baby are both well."

The names to be given the prince were the subject of much public speculation. The favorite was James, in tribute to Scottish Stuart ancestors of the Queen. Robert, Rupert and David also were mentioned.

It was the second British royal birth this year. Princess Alexandra, the Queen's first cousin, had a son Feb. 29. Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, expects her second child next month. The Duchess of Kent, another royal in-law, expects her second child in May.

TELEPHONED NEWS

Prince Philip, who telephoned the news of his new son to Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the royal family.

Prince Charles, 15, is the oldest child next in line to the throne. His sister, Princess Anne, 13, is fourth in line to the throne behind the three boys. Andrew is four.

The baby was delivered by a team of five obstetricians headed by Sir John Peel, 59-year-old gynecologist who attended the births of Charles, Andrew and Anne.

Bill Draws Fire

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill to set up new machinery for revising Canada's electoral map drew fire from several directions Tuesday as a potentially explosive debate began in the Commons.

The bill proposes a four-member commission for each province to adjust constituency boundaries in line with population shifts reported by the census and the principle of representation by population.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, who introduced the measure, hailed it as an historic addition to the constitution.

Spokesmen for the four opposition groups agreed that the bill deserves close study.

NOT FULLY INDEPENDENT

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said the "independent" commissioners will not be independent enough to remove all connections with politicians.

He also said representation

Defence Rests In Ruby's Trial

DALLAS (AP)—The defence in Jack Ruby's murder case rested today in the first moment after the jury filed into the courtroom.

As soon as the jury of eight men and four women was excused, Judge Joe B. Brown asked chief defence counsel Melvin Belli who he was calling as his first witness today.

"The defence rests, your honor," Belli said.

This unusual end of direct testimony. Both the defence and the prosecution have lists of other witnesses. They may be called later this week, depending on what each side does in the battle over Ruby's guilt or innocence in the slaying Nov. 24 of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

U. S. Combines Apology, Protest After Reds Shoot Down Bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States combined an apology with a protest in asking Russia to help speed the return of an American reconnaissance bomber—a twin-engined RB-66B—and its three-man crew shot down Tuesday over East Germany.

The crew parachuted from the plane after the shooting, the state department announced, and their fate was not known. The plane was described as unarmed and on a training flight.

The air force identified the three men as Capt. David I. Holland, 35, the pilot, Capt. Melvin J. Kessler, 30, instructor navigator, and Lieut. Harold W. Welch Jr., 24, navigator.

The request for Soviet help was made Tuesday night by William Tyler, U.S. assistant secretary, in a message to George M. Kopilenko, minister counsellor of the Soviet embassy.

The state department announced that Tyler "delivered a strong oral protest" to the Soviet embassy against "the unprecipitous action" by Soviet military forces in shooting down the RB-66B.

At the same time, Tyler "also expressed the U.S. government's regrets that the plane became lost and inadvertently crossed the demarcation line between the Federal Republic (West Germany) and East Germany.".

Sowing, Planting of Seeds Subject of Talk at Meeting

A capacity audience was in attendance at the March meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society in the hall. F. F. Cameron of the Research Branch of Central Experimental Farms at Ottawa gave an illustrated picture and practical demonstration on the sowing and handling of seeds in the mind of the reporter and on the basis of the many comments made this was one of the most profitable programs presented in some time.

Introduced by Mr. T. Frankiln and thanked by Mr. J. Hodgson, Mr. Cameron took out the range of horticultural interests and of potential horticulturists in any community. From the apartment dweller possessing a single violet or fry to the owner of a conservatory the joys and problems are the same; they differ only in degree.

Magazine and newspaper articles are responsible for much of this interest that persists in generations long removed from the soil. "Read and more," said the speaker, "are the amateurs attempting varieties not easily obtained otherwise; or yearning for experiences a step removed from the ordinary, they attempt the unusual, and in very many instances enjoy a success and pleasure never before known."

CAN AVOID GRIEF

Much of the grief and disappointment so often encountered by the novice can be avoided with proper precaution taken at the proper times. The major deprivations cause more losses than all others, moisture and light. To provide both, a "growth cabinet" is the answer, for in this, rigid control of these factors is easily achieved. Plans and suggestions for this cabinet were discussed and distributed.

Soil mixtures and preparations were carefully discussed and shown. For germination, equal parts of soil, peat and sand were recommended, with the sifting demonstration proving to be of great interest and importance. Suggestions were given for the proper protection and ventilation.

When germination has taken place under the prescribed conditions, the seedlings are pricked out before the leaves become lanky. Into flats filled with the mixture of 2 parts soil to one of each sand and peat, the seedlings are transplanted and grown under the proper light and moisture conditions. Miss white (coal) fluorescent bulbs are recommended as since less heat is given off by it with typical humor the speaker mentioned lots of warning concerning uncontrolled enthusiasm in planting quantities. Also references to "horticultural horse-trading" knowingly proved his point. Those citizens interested in the project were strongly advised to consult the book "Growing Indoors" under lights by Ryan and published by Viking Press.

PLANTING BEGONIAS

From seedlings, the demonstration turned, to Tuberous Begonias. From a late March or early April starting in pans of moist sphagnum moss, the bulbs will remain off all moisture and the plant will eventually die.

(1) Blooms appear on the side of the plant toward which the leaves point. Be sure pot to hide the bloom.

No one who had seen the colored slides could long resist the attractive bearing. Based mostly on annual types, the photography and scope of various species sung. Some arrangements of window-box plantings of Nicotine, Funchia, Geranium, Begonia, Ivy and Coleus were particularly noteworthy.

The meeting was partially completed for the civic floral emblem, with special mention being made of a possible Lilac planting for display and study purposes. Plans were revealed for the meeting by the Ontario Flower Show at O'Keefe Centre on April 18 and a special workshop session at a visiting group from the Stirling association.

If this meeting is an indication of the growing popularity of the society, the "Beautify Belleville" program is off to a good start.

Liz, Richard Trying to Wed In Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts told a press conference Tuesday that the provincial secretary's power to grant the issuance of a marriage license to Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor "would not be used lightly."

Mr. Roberts and Provincial Secretary John Yaremko both confirmed that a lawyer hired by Miss Taylor and Mr. Burton had consulted Mr. Yaremko to investigate marriage laws in Ontario.

Mr. Yaremko said in an interview he doubted the couple would qualify.

He said the proposed marriage hinges on whether Miss Taylor's and Mr. Burton's Mexican divorces are recognized by the countries in which they normally live. Miss Taylor's lawyer said no advice is legally considered a Mexican resident.

Mr. Yaremko said if the countries in which Miss Taylor and Mr. Burton normally live recognize their divorces they will be married legally in Ontario. He said he didn't know what country could be considered Mr. Burton's place of residence.

Mr. Burton and Miss Taylor are sharing a hotel suite while Mr. Burton plays the lead role in a Broadway-bound production of Hamlet.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

BAXTER CANNERY

Ten men are laying block now, for Bradshaw Construction on the Baxter Cannery job in Bloomfield, and more will be brought in next week, according to foreman Frank Edwards. Ten courses (layers), of block have been laid on the warehouse wall facing the road, and all other outside walls will be laid to floor level at five courses. General contractor, The Tatham Co. will then backfill inside the walls, Frank Edwards says, so the masons can work from the inside. Work from the inside is easier because the building lines are strung on the outside, and masons working on the outside must lift the blocks over the lines.

As soon as the inside area is backfilled, twenty or more masons may be put to work to bring the walls up to full heights—24 courses of block. Deadline for the job is about a month off now, and there are nearly 40,000 concrete blocks to be laid.

BLACK DIAMOND

Lawrence (Slim) Yunwak of McAlpine's, came down with the flu over the weekend, and returned to Toronto Monday evening. Gordon Hillman, also of Toronto, has taken his place as supervisor of the Black Diamond job.

Part of the hoarding has been taken off the completed outside wall on the west side of the addition. Masons are still at work on the north and south walls, and are working on partitions inside the plant.

Two sections of the main floor were poured last week, another section is being poured today.

The 90-h.p. boiler for the new section was mounted in place Monday, by Acme Plumbing and Heating. Air conditioning equipment was delivered yesterday, for Beaver Air Conditioning of Toronto.

SMITH TRANSPORT

Forms were stripped yesterday from the last-poured section of roof at the new Smith Transport warehouse. Supports are still in under the last few beams though, and supervisor Howard Lewis says they will remain there for two more weeks. After the supports are removed, masons can return to lay block for the back wall.

In the office section, Tatham's men are putting the strapping on the walls and around the windows, and have already framed for the partitions upstairs. A subcontractor will do the dry-wall work, probably next week.

BRANCH LIBRARY

Pre-fabricated bookshelves are being erected now at the new branch library, at Farley and Victoria. The shelves are supported on steel brackets that clip into steel strips mounted on the dividers, so the shelf arrangement can be varied at will. Acoustic tile for the ceiling and tile for the floor are both on site, but not yet installed. Two long-awaited jalousey windows have arrived, and have been installed.

Y.M.C.A.

Building will be ready by late April for the Y.M.C.A. to move into, according to Archie Parks, foreman for Hugh Murray Construction. Timing of the move has not yet been decided yet though, according to D. G. Diamandides, general secretary of the organization. First use of the new swimming pool is planned for early June. The rest of the programs may remain in the old building until July. City council's decision to buy or not to buy the old building may affect the timing of the move.

Workmen on the job now are just finishing up details, and preparing for painting. The job is close enough to completion that Y staff members are starting to plan the arrangement of their furniture.

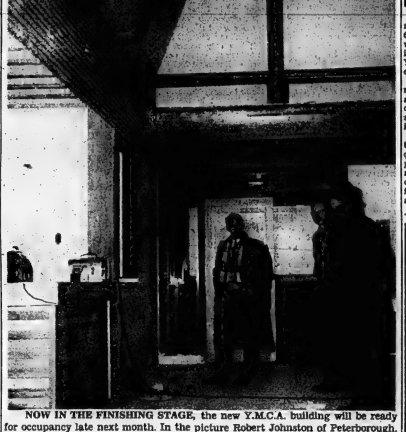
CAR WASH

Floor is poured now in the new car wash on Dundas St., and the front office area is being finished off. Masons, working under foreman John Cresswell, started working on the partitions in the work area Monday and expected to have them finished by this morning. Work included seating of washrooms and equipment rooms on one side of the "production line" along which the cars will be moved, and a half-wall for the customers on the other side of the line.

CONCRETE WAS POURED at the Black Diamond addition this morning, for the third section of the floor. Four is directly from the truck to the forms in this picture, but most concrete was carted by wheelbarrow over duckboards. About half the floor has been poured now.

Three Charged With Robbery At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—A man and two women were charged today following an armed robbery Tuesday night in which a couple was bound and gagged in their home and a $4,000 coin collection stolen.



Albert N. Grigsby, 40, of Kingston was charged with robbery with violence. He was remanded to March 16 on bail of $5,000.

Joan Astley and Elinore Faye Benoit, both of Kingston, were charged with possession of stolen goods. They were remanded to March 16 on bail of $2,000 each.

Police are searching for two other men involved in the robbery.

Three men, armed with rifles and wearing nylon stockings over their faces forced their way into the home of Charles and Amey Loucks. The couple was bound and gagged and forced to lie on the floor while the bandits made off with the coin collection.

Later a coin collection was recovered from an apartment.

NOW IN THE FINISHING STAGE, the new Y.M.C.A. building will be ready for occupancy late next month. In the picture Robert Johnston of Peterborough, representing architects Craig, Ziedler and Strong, Archie Parks, superintendent for Hugh Murray Construction and (back to camera) D. G. Diamandides, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Belleville, discuss plans for furnishing the adults' lounge.

Call Tenders End of March For New School

The Belleville Public School Board is expected to be in position by the end of March to call tenders for the construction of its proposed new seventeen room school in West Belleville.

L. A. Kells, schools administrat r, said the Ontario Department of Education and the Ontario Fire Marshal's department has now approved of sketch plans for the new school to be erected on the projection of Leland Drive, just west of Sidney Street.

Plans call for seven regular classrooms, together with an industrial arts and home economics rooms and a playroom auditorium.

On completion of the building the present industrial arts and home economics rooms in the basement at Queen Mary school will be moved to the new school.

The new building will bring the number of public schools in the city to fourteen.

COMEBACK BY TEBALDI

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Ten months ago opera star Renata Tebaldi lost her voice while singing in New York's Metropolitan Opera. Tuesday night, she staged a dramatic comeback, singing in the Lyric Opera Company's production of La Boheme at the Academy of Music. Miss Tebaldi broke into tears as the audience and chorus which stayed on stage to cheer—gave her an 18-minute ovation.

Robin Arrives From South In Blizzard

That must have been the thought of a lone robin which arrived back to the Quinte area yesterday—right in the middle of one of the worst snow blizzards of the entire winter.

Mrs. L. A. Daugherty, Dundas Street, East, has a bird feeder in her backyard and Tuesday afternoon during the blizzard which reduced visibility to near zero, she spotted the lone robin at the feeding station.

"What a day to arrive back from the south", Mrs. Daugherty said. "It was the first robin I've seen this year."

Don Keller Wins Contest At Meeting

Don Keller won a contest among Belleville home builders last night, by setting a lockset in a board in two point eight minutes. Second in the contest was Charles Lambert, who set one in two point nine minutes, and Joseph Cox came in third with three point seven minutes. The contest was held at the Quinte Home Builders' Association meeting at the Bay or Quinte Yacht Club.

Corbin Lock and Rollins Lamber teamed up to supply the locks and the board for the contest. A total of 33 locks were set during the evening.

The association decided, during the meeting, to refuse a request from the Chamber of Commerce that it provide a bus next October, for the wives of the Ontario Building Officials' Convention delegates. The officials are holding their annual convention in Belleville during October and the Quinte Home Builders had already agreed to sponsor a bar for one night of the convention. The Chamber of Commerce, not informed of this, had asked the builders to supply a bus for a tour of the area and of the Corby Distillery, planned for the wives of the officials.

WOT ZUP? — Belleville home builder Jack Parrott is up on a chair at last night's meeting of the Quinte Home Builders' Association, as he races the clock to set a lockset in a board. Twenty three contestants last night set locks in the same board, times ranged from Don Keller's winning two point eight minutes to about ten minutes.

Y's Activities

Last evening's snowstorm did not hamper the spirit of over 60 enthusiastic golf players who attended the first of a series of golf instruction, in the Y.M.C.A. gym, under Fred Purcell, golf pro at Picton.

To accomodate the large enrollment another class has been added which meets each Tuesday at 10.00 p.m. This class is also for beginners and there is room for a few more in it.

This evening, Wednesday, in the "How to Invest Wisely" course, head of the stock department of Walwyn Stodgell and Company Ltd. will lecture on "common stocks" and a film will be shown on the mechanical workings of the market.

No Fingerprints On Rifle Says Trial Witness

NAPANEE (CP) — A provincial police constable was the only witness called Tuesday to testify for the Crown at the opening day of the capital murder trial of Charles Morton Loyst, 51, of nearby Kaladar.

Loyst is charged with the Oct. 9 rifle slaying of Hugh James McMahon, 64, also of Kaladar.

Corporal Harold Howling, an identification officer, testified for nearly 3½ hours. He told the jury McMahon had been shot twice in the neck in the one-room shack where he and his wife, Anna, and Loyst had lived for several months.

Corporal Howting said he found a 303-calibre rifle about 1½ miles from the scene and three expended rifle cartridges outside the McMahon shack.

He said he was unable to find any fingerprints on the rifle.

A grand jury had returned a true bill earlier in the day, requiring Loyst, who pleaded not guilty to stand trial on the capital murder charge.

Every Action Should Bring Reaction

Amongst tariff devices, one familiar to many is the granting of "most favored nations" status.

What this means is that the nation so designated is automatically entitled to receive the full benefits of tariff cuts which may be granted to any other nation as the result of trade treaties.

This device suggests the appropriate remedy for any U.S. action against countries trading with certain communist nations. U.S. Assistant Commerce Secretary Jack Behrman indicated to Canadian Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp that some such was being considered.

The U.S. trades with some communist countries, in some commodities. It objects, however, to its allies trading with other communist lands, or in other commodities. In effect, it is endeavoring to set itself up as sole judge of what should be considered permissible trade between the West and East.

Countries which suspect that they may be affected by any U.S. punitive action ought to write into their trade regulations a declaration that any special trade restrictions aimed at them for any reason will automatically invoke reciprocal restrictions.

The U.S. might hesitate if it knew that, no matter what action it took, it would be punishing itself just as severely as it is punishing the "offending" nation.

There is all the difference in the world between provocation for such automatic reaction and engagement in a program of protests, threats and eventual reprisals, which in themselves invite further retaliation.

Action Should Be Simple

Ontario Attorney General Fred Cass is reported conferring with federal authorities in an effort to discover ways to prevent the distribution of "hate" literature.

Meanwhile the Toronto Telegram reports that young thugs are planning a one night "blitz" with anti-Semitic literature in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver.

Planes will be used to drop material and leaflets will be scattered in streets and stuffed in mailboxes, says the Telegram.

It ought to be possible to punish such a performance under existing laws, and to do so without any reference to the nature of the material distributed.

The perpetrators should be prosecuted for being litter-bugs and creating a public nuisance.

And just to make it clear that no martyrs are being made, precisely similar treatment should be accorded any other organization, political party or commercial, which makes a nuisance of itself in a similar way.

As for legal action, the best plan would be for the authorities to make it possible for the general public to punish hate-mongers.

An existing law requires printing establishments to put their name on all material they print for connection with an election. If this law were extended to cover all printed matter, regardless of its type, the public would be able to discover the names of the firms which are not above stooping to the gutter in order to make a few dollars. Appropriate publicity regarding the sources of this material might dry it up, if the public would exercise its right to refrain from patronizing firms guilty of participating in a hate-mongering campaign.

"The thing that struck me most about Mexico was the sense of style. Though most of them are dreadfully poor, Mexicans have a natural and elegant kind of gusto—panache is perhaps the word. It comes out in everything. The vivid, flowing designs of their shawls, lacquer-work and pottery; the graceful swagger of their bearing; the melancholy vigor of their guitars."— D. Toswill, an English teacher, speaking on the BBC about a vacation in Mexico.

The idea of belonging to a community, of belonging to a family, of belonging to a town, of belonging to a people, of belonging eventually to the world—these are very strong ideas and I don't think the fact that people feel a sense of responsibility to their own communities first necessarily means that they shrug off responsibility to mankind.—Novelist, and television playwright John Bowen.

Democracy cannot be maintained without its foundations, free public opinion and free discussion throughout the nation of all matters affecting the state within the limits set by the Criminal Code and the common law.—The Supreme Court of Canada, 1938.

Ruling Insects by Sex

By R. H. Wright in the New Scientist

When we speak of "controlling" an insect, what we usually mean is control of its numbers. This may enable us to minimize the damage it does and, if so, the results should be for the most part satisfactory, though there may be undesired side-effects on other living things.

But controlling the size of the population is not really the same thing as controlling the insects themselves. To control an insect in any real sense, we must learn to tell them "come here" or "go there", "eat this" or "don't eat that", "lay your eggs here" or "don't lay your eggs there!"

To exercise this kind of control, we must know and use the language that the insects understand and obey. This is an almost virgin field for investigation, and one that promises great things for practical pest control.

* * *

Insect language is mostly a series of categorical imperatives: "do this!", or occasionally, "don't do that!", with the understanding that the order has to be obeyed only as long as it is reiterated. When the order stops or is changed, the response stops or is changed. An insect is like an old fashioned soldier: he can only be ordered to go and when it has no orders it does nothing.

It has been reported that silkworm larvae are attracted to mulberry leaves by a chemical, induced to bite the leaves by a different chemical and "told" to remain and feed. With the appropriate chemicals, spotted on to filter paper strips large enough to eat, one can be made to take place one at a time.

Such a pattern of blind obedience raises the interesting possibility that we might throw the normal behavior into confusion by issuing conflicting or ambiguous orders. The military adage: order first, then disorder equals disorder, applies to any system of behavior-control that relies on unquestioning obedience...

Insect brains are mostly too small to permit much if any independent "thought", and the apparently complex parts of their behavior activities they display are the result of a similar blind obedience to orders.

If we think of the "sex-attractant chemical" as part of a physiological "command" which the insects are ordered to do certain things, then we can begin to attack some real and useful control over their actions, and hence, ultimately, over their numbers. This is not a rather new concept in applied entomology. At least one interesting possibility suggests itself.

It is known that many female insects give off a sex-attractant chemical that is able to excite males of the same species when they are present in unimaginably small amounts.

One species of silkworm moth has fewer than 30 molecules of the attractant of the American cockroach, for example, has proved to react in a highly characteristic fashion. It is also said that 10 molecules of the sex attractant is enough to keep 30,000 traps baited for a whole season. All this is to say that chemical companies have tended to neglect these substances because, regarded simply as "attractants," the potential market is limited to the comparatively few interesting.

If, instead of thinking of them as "bait," we regard these chemicals as words in a "language," we can contemplate a very different way to use them.

* * *

Normally, the male insect makes its way up to the female by following the scent trail the wind brings him.

But what will happen if we overload the wind with scent to a point where the trail from the female no longer stands out? Although the male may "know" that there is a female somewhere about, he will have no means of locating her except by accident. We will have saturated his receptor organs so that he cannot receive her "come hither" signal. The enormous potency of these sex-attractant chemicals should make this kind of thing technically possible.

It should be perfectly feasible, and probably economical, to "saturate" an area with a chemical sex-attractant and to keep it saturated long enough to prevent the males and females from coming together except by chance all through their breeding season.

In a biological sense, an insect that does not reproduce itself is "killed" as effectively as if it is actually poisoned. There is, however, a vital and welcome difference.

Most of the poisons that kill insects are also dangerous to other forms of life, but the chemical sex attractants are normally not poisonous; moreover, from their very nature, their biological effect is usually felt by only one species of insect, or at most by a small group of closely related species (otherwise we would have great confusion at the mating season) so that those attractants provide a very clear means of attacking a pest without affecting the ecologically useful species.

Still more important is the fact that from the nature of the effect, the risk of "resistant" strains being developed should be small. Insecticide-resistant strains of houseflies or mosquitoes are well known, but it is hard to see how a strain that was "resistant" to sex attractants could be brought into being...

So far only sex attractants have been considered but there are by no means the only "words" in the chemical language of insects. The food lures, such as sugarloaf, which attracts both male and females of the Japanese beetle.

There are also indications that females of other species to the "correct" egg-laying site by some kind of chemical sign. But very little is yet known about these substances than about the sex attractants and hence, for practical purposes their remarkable species specificity and vital role in species perpetuation, they are the most promising approach to a really sophisticated technique of insect control.

Speaks Up For Parents

Ottawa Journal

At last someone has spoken up for parents. It doesn't happen often, now that all right-thinking people know there is no such thing as a delinquent child, only delinquent parents.

Parents will love Dr. John Rach, chairman of the child psychiatry committee of the University of Toronto, who advises teenagers to give their parents some sympathy and encouragement, particularly during the difficult years of the middle forties when they go through a wayward phase.

"Parents feel insecure while they are going through the difficult years. They feel they are losing their sexual attractions; they worry about getting along with their neighbors, about the stock market, the bomb."

Parents may even start joining clubs or other adult-aged gangs.

"In the company of such colleagues it has to be admitted that sexuality stories are told."

But rather than try to restrict such escapades, Dr. Rich advises teenagers to try to understand your parents as individuals and delight in seeing them behave like persons. At school, will call in his children and tell them severely that he wished they had allowed him to make them bear the punishment, as it must have the guilt, for their prodigal father. "There is no such thing as a bad man. He is a sick man, or 'only a bad boy.' And liberally-minded people everywhere will applaud.

His talk took on the nature of a listing of the benefits a community derives from public-spirited Clubs of the Kiwanis-Rotary Kinsmen type, pointing out the various charitable and patriotic works done by such Clubs.

Introduced by Lorne McDougall, Mr. Boyce of the Rotary Club spoke about the value of a service club to a community and that it was only necessary to point to the achievements of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, the equipping of playgrounds for children, their sponsoring of the Victorian Order of Nurses, their Kiwanis interest in the young boys of the city through their Ki-Y League, and the Blood Donors Clinic.

"The Kinsmen," continued Mr. Boyce "brought their Crippled Children's Fund and performed similar community services."

Strictly Personal Literature Is a Product Of Its Time

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who recently saw and enjoyed the film, Tom Jones, decided to read the Fielding novel of 1749 from which the movie was adapted. After ploughing about a third of the way through the book, he abandoned it as "too slow moving and discursive."

This was no insult to Fielding, who was a fine literary artist. But he was also a man of his century — and it was the century of the invention of the novel. The first novel in English ever written, Richardson's "Pamela," had been published only eight years previously.

The art of fiction was considered a leisurely "entertainment" in that era. Books were read aloud, around the fire, by the whole family circle, a chapter at a time; and each book was designed to take many weeks to read.

Except for sporting events, there were few other media of entertainment. Families stayed home after dinner, with little to do in the way of extraneous amusement. Even as late as Dickens' time, a century later, his novels were designed to be read by, or to, the family in the same way. Many were published in magazines, in monthly installments, and as eagerly awaited as a new "all-star" motion picture in our time.

Art is not created in a vacuum, but in the context of the demands of a given society; great art also transcends these needs, but that is another matter. "Hamlet" is both a traditional play of revenge and a work of psychology, and yet Shakespeare wrote it to appeal, on its primary level, to the theatre-goers of his own age and culture.

"Tom Jones" is slow-moving and discursive because its author wanted it to be that way. Readers needed to be less pressed if the book had moved as swiftly as the film does; it would not have been long enough to supply their entertainment needs.

The book is full of asides by the author, long, descriptive passages, and the kind of "filler" we impatiently race through today. Some of it is artful, but much of it is mere decoration, embroidery, a way of spinning out a tale beyond its natural narrative length. There was simply no hurry in the 18th century, for there was no competition in this area, and the demand far outran the supply.

All literature must, finally, be judged by a universal and eternal standard, but it must be understood as a product of its own time, like clothes or modes of transportation. Art is both timeless and very much a child of its time; in form "Tom Jones" is an 18th century relic, but in content, it remains forever fresh, early and important. It is the film's triumph to preserve the spirit while compressing the form.

To Your Good Health

Post-Nasal Drip in Many Cases Can Be Corrected

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Post-nasal drip is not as mysterious or baffling as many sufferers think. And in a great many cases it can be corrected or at least helped. Here's a letter:

Dear Doctor: Our three-year-old girl suffers from a dry, choking type of cough.

It is slight during the day but very distressing at night. The doctor thinks she has a post-nasal drip and not much can be done about it except by some medication. — Mrs. J. W.

We'll take it for granted that chronic infection of adenoids or tonsils is not the cause.

With little children, this sort of coughing can often be traced to an allergy. In fact, it is not a bad idea to start suspecting allergy right from the beginning.

Additionally, hard work is required to detect the allergy, but this pays off.

Now here's another letter:

Dear Doctor: My husband is a heavy smoker, both cigars and cigarettes, and he coughs violently and frequently. It is worse at night when he is lying down.

He says he has a post-nasal drip and that nothing can be done about it. I am concerned because in his opinion his voice is unusually important and such a hard, dry cough is a habit is distressing. — S. R.

This threat - clearing could well be caused by an irritating post-nasal drip. Smoking, chronic sinus infection, and nasal polyps or deformations could be factors. Allergy, in such adult cases, is less likely but is still a possibility.

And it could, after all, be a habit. But an examination to determine any of these physical factors are present would be worthwhile. If there is no detectable illness, the process on the theory that it is a habit and habits can be changed.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to get over diabetes if you have had it for many years? I am 16 now. I am sending 30 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "Diabetes, The Snaky Disease." — Miss D. B.

No. But don't be too downhearted, because you can now lead a virtually normal life in spite of diabetes. When it starts in childhood, usually insulin and careful diet will be required permanently. We are constantly hopeful that some better treatment may be discovered. What we have now is immeasurably better than when I was young, because then if a child developed diabetes, he usually died before much progress has been made.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter will soon have her first baby. The doctor is going to give her a pituitrin at delivery. I am worried because I had a pituitrin when I was in labor and could not move a muscle. — M. L. A.

You aren't supposed to be able to move!

A spinal anesthetic or a caudal anesthetic is commonly used for childbirth. There is nothing to worry about, so do not frighten your daughter.

Man Wastes Water Supply

BBC London Letter

"Great civilizations have died of thirst," says Professor Ritchie Calder, the well-known scientific writer, in the "Science and Industry" program broadcast in the BBC General Overseas Service. "And in spite of the lessons of the past, we are still squandering water.

Professor Calder, who was recently appointed to the new chair of international relations at Edinburgh University, stressed that men, who had hitherto been content to achieve his purposes, must work in partnership with her if he was to survive.

Historically, said Professor Calder, the greatest mistake made by man was in not setting down large areas of vegetation and forest, thus causing deserts. Deep in the Sahara, a thousand miles from the Atlas Mountains, he had seen great trees had dried up because the vegetation on those mountains had been cut down. Those forests used to temper the rain, seeping it into the sponge of the earth to fill up the water-table and supply these oases. Now the water ran off and evaporated in the deserts, so that large areas had become arid.

Professor Calder gave two striking examples of the squandering of water today. In Pakistan, he said, the great desert of the Indus had been brought into cultivation by the building of barrages and the distribution of irrigation canals, but this process had been so much increased over the last twenty-five years that today one acre of land was being lost every five minutes, because the water was now going down the ground, and had raised the water-table so that there was salt on the surface and waterlogging. This kind of land was happening in a region where ten people were being born every five minutes. The situation in Lower California provided a second example. Attracted by a good climate (and was, a climate without rain), the population had increased so enormously that it was overcapitation. They were either living off the water supplied in other states, or exploiting geological water which had been locked away underground millions of years ago.

With modern knowledge, said Professor Calder, there would be no problem of feeding the world's population, if man, instead of using up natural resources with "terrific speed," developed a new state of mind. It was unnecessary, at least nine-tenths of all the water in the world was undrinkable. If man were prepared to use that legacy of nature intelligently, scientifically and humanely, he would not have to shut down in the past, deserts could be reserved and large areas be developed for food production.

Aim of Health League Is Prevention of Disease

DR. McCOLL METCALFE

In 1919 a voluntary organization known as the Health League of Canada was formed with the objectives of raising the standards of living by raising the standards of health in the country. As most illness may be prevented and as the greatest single cause of poverty is illness, the aim of this organization is the prevention of disease.

Health is the physical and mental well being, soundness, freedom from defect, pain or disease, normality of mental and physical functions. The definition of health given by the World Health Organization, is a state of complete physical and mental well - being and not merely the absence of disease and infirmity.

All fields of health are covered by the Health League through the medical profession, the various health units and the health departments throughout Canada. Among the many fields, more specifically we find child and maternal health, nutrition, food handling, pasteurization of milk and immunization, to mention only a few. All the fields are covered by the Belleville Health Department.

Diseases of the heart are the leading cause of death and disability in Canada causing over half the deaths. Thanks to medical research and medical advances are being made in cardiovascular knowledge and care.

With the exception of heart disease, cancer causes more deaths than any other disease. Statistics for 1962 showed that 24,619 deaths in Canada were caused by cancer in some form, while other words there were 67 deaths each day, almost three every hour, day and night. Further 45,000 new cases are diagnosed annually in Canada. Over the past 20 years there has been an increase of cancer among males and a decrease among females. The increase in males is due in part to lung cancer.

CANCER CONTROLLABLE

Since the introduction of Salk vaccine there has been a steady decline in the number of cases of poliomyelitis in the country. The vaccine has been effective in markedly reducing paralytic polio. In the initial series three doses are required followed by a fourth dose in a year, and thereafter at least three to five year intervals. Immunization should be started at the age of three to four months. The oral or Sabin vaccine may be used for booster purposes in those, who already have had Salk vaccine.

The discovery and application of Toxoid has caused a very marked reduction in the numbers of cases and deaths from Diphtheria. In 1927 Canada had a population of a little more than nine million and that year there were 9,207 cases of Diphtheria and 1,281 deaths. In 1950 with a population of over 17 million there were no deaths, however in 1962 there were 95 cases and 9 deaths. Parents especially should not become complacent.

Each year over 6,000 cases of active tuberculosis are found and a big percentage of these cases are either moderately or far advanced. Y-ray diagnosis and prompt treatment are essential. The Ontario Department have chest clinics located at various throughout the province and each year mass surveys are held in different counties. These services are free. At the present time there are only two Belleville residents in Sask.

There is an estimated 250,000 persons with diabetes in Canada as well as a further 100,000 that have not been diagnosed. With the discovery of insulin the outlook for those being treated with it is good; however it is those whom the disease is not detected, the outlook is poo promising as unchecked diabetes causes injury to the heart, blood vessels, and liver. Deaths from diabetes increased 45% from 1950 to 1962.

VENEREAL DISEASE INCREASES

Venereal disease is again on the increase. It is true that the cases of certain antibiotics has reduced the incidence of venereal disease, but these cases cannot stamp out venereal disease. Prevention depends upon conduct; it is the responsibility of everyone. In 1927 statistics show that there were 2,213 cases of syphilis reported and in 1962—2,432 cases. The number of cases of gonorrhea reported in 1927 was 14,313 and in 1962—17,697. During the period from 1927 to 1962 the number of cases of infectious syphilis trebled.

Arthritis is one of the three leading causes of physical disability and although it does not cause many deaths it ranks second only to mental illness as a crippler. Arthritis is not one disease but many; those common characteristic is the involvement of one or more joints of the body and are quite different in cause, symptoms, method of treatment and the disabilities which may result.

Seven times as many people suffer from rheumatic disease as from cancer and ten times as many as from tuberculosis or diabetes.

There has been no single health measure which has been so effective in saving the lives of infants and small children as the pasteurization of milk. Milk containing almost all the nutritional parts of life but when raw milk is consumed, no matter how carefully it has been handled or how well inspected the cows, it can carry the germs that borne diseases such as septic sore throat, diarrhoea, undulant and typhoid fever, diphtheria and bovine tuberculosis.

Immunization is the modern weapon which medical science has developed for the eradication of certain communicable diseases. Diphtheria, small pox and tetanus are 100 per cent preventable and whooping cough and poliomyelitis are nearly so.

Epidemics are still a possibility as there are many people who have not yet been immunized. Immunization can be had from your family doctor or the Belleville Health Department where the following clinics are held.

Every Thursday—Health Department, 266 Pinnacle St., 2 to 4.00 p.m.

1st Tuesday—Fire Station, West Moira St., 2.00 - 4.00 p.m.

2nd Tuesday—Centre Street Church, 2.00 - 4.00 p.m.

3rd Tuesday — Eastminster Church, Dorchester Ave., 2.00 to 4.00 p.m.

Public School Requisition Down $60,000 From 1963

Good news for Belleville taxpayers — direct educational costs in 1964 are expected to be $60,000 lower than they were in the case of public schools, the amount of money to be raised locally will be slightly reduced.

Public Schools Superintendent L. A. Kells today said the board's requisition for the council this year will be about $60,000 less than it was in 1963.

The Board's requisition to the city will be for $613,775, made up of operating costs of $462,500, and $151,275 debenture costs.

Mr. Kells said it was the first time that the operating cost of school board had been able to reduce its requirements from city taxpayers.

In recent years the Board has barely been able to hold the mill rate steady at 22.7 mills residential and 28.2 mills commercial.

GREATER EFFICIENCY

All this, of course, does not mean that overall costs for operation of city public schools are remaining static.

What it does means is that the direct cost to local taxpayers is being reduced by an improvement in the provincial educational grant system.

Mr. Kells could not explain the new grant picture in detail but said it appeared the new foundation grants were giving recognition to the fact that assessments in Belleville were not keeping pace with the cost of education.

With the assessments completed in Belleville last year raising assessments approximately three-fold the public school mill rate will of course be reduced accordingly.

Tenders Called For Two 401 Service Centres

The location of two new service centres to be constructed on Highway 401 in Eastern Ontario is announced jointly by Highways Minister Charles S. MacNaughton. One will be approximately four miles west of Odessa on the north side of the highway; the other, some three miles east of Odessa on the south side.

In accordance with the established policy of locating Service Centres at intervals as close as possible to 90 miles —within practical limits —the new centre east of Odessa on the south side will be some 52 miles from the centre in operation near Trenton on the same side of Highway 401.

Tenders for the new centre to be built east of Odessa will be opened March 25 and for the one west of Odessa on April 1. In both cases, it is hoped, the Department will be able to advise the successful bidder the following day.

Deadline for the Department of Highways for completion of permanent facilities— for both centres and restaurants—is April 1, 1965.

The new centres will not be allowed to open for business until all four lanes of Highway 401 in front of the respective sites are in service.

The closing of the 8½-mile "gap" in Highway 401 between Maryville and Napanee last fall—within days of opening of fourlane 13-mile section between the Adolphus Reach and Cornwall—made possible a through drive of close to 138 miles on Highway 401 in Eastern Ontario between the Service Centres west of Trenton and Lancaster, only nine miles from the Quebec border. Thus the necessity for new centres then became apparent.

For each of the new Service Centres, the Department of Highways also made provision for Picnic Areas, which it will develop adjacent to the new facilities.

Regular Safety Inspection of Cars Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The Garage Operators Association of Ontario Tuesday approved plans of regular safety inspection for cars and trucks—despite some misgivings by opposition.

The garagemen also voted at their annual meeting to seek a central registry for liens against cars and, subsequently, certificates of title to car ownership.

Spokesmen said it is a compulsory inspection by a mechanic be caught with an unpaid bill on a car which already has debt against it to another area, and a central registry for liens would help to avoid this situation.

Robert Taylor, treasurer of the association, said there are 47 lien registers in Ontario at present.

Regarding the promotion of the safety inspection idea, he said garage operators could ask the government to require all vehicles be inspected periodically or the association could launch a safety campaign through local member associations and garages.

Opposition to the idea came from a few operators who said they feared that customers would believe the garage operators were promoting work for themselves under the guise of a public safety campaign.

George Stratford of Toronto was re-elected president of the association. Vice-presidents are Sault Ste. Marie and H. Edward Grainger of Perth were elected vice-presidents.

Other officers include: Robert Taylor, Whitby, treasurer; Robert Wilson, Toronto, secretary and Arnold Donohoe, Renfrew; Charles Russelle, Peterborough and Donald Tolton, Stratford, directors.

Distilleries Won't Get Rich On Price-Increase Profits

Canadian distilleries will not show any exceptional profits from "the recent increase in retail prices of their products.

After everything is deducted they will benefit to the amount of approximately five cents per bottle.

Mr. G. Ross Herington president of the Corby Distilleries Ltd. of Montreal authored the statement in a newspaper interview last night.

"It is the first increase since 1956" Mr. Herington pointed out.

"In the meantime," he said, "costs of production labor etc have gone up by a marked effect in the profit and loss columns."

Price increase has not affected sales, he said. "Some people turned to the cheaper brands while others went back to their preference for gin over their competitors' brands."

Mr. Herington was in the city in his official capacity attending the 25th National Marketing Conference of the Wiser Distillery, an affiliate of Corby's.

Upwards of seventy sales representatives from coast-to-coast were here for the opening of the three-day conference.

This was marked by an informal reception held in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte last night.

No business was conducted, sales representatives readying themselves for the more serious business of the conference.

CORDOVA GOLD CLAIMS TO BE OPENED UP

For years many people in the area here wondered why the Cordova Gold Mines property in the Bancroft more District has been idle. At one time it was a flourishing gold mine yielding close to a million dollars worth of gold and silver at today's prices.

Many attempts were made by mining groups to acquire the Cordova property from the late Mr. R. Bowen, but confident he had a rich gold mine he set a high figure on the claims. He held out for a price over $300,000.00.

Recently, Mr. Ivan Sopha of Cordova Mines made a deal with Mrs. Mary Bowen and a new company, Orvana Mines Limited, was incorporated and will open up and develop the claims.

Opening up the claims by Orvana Mines could be a very important mining venture. The claims are in a proven gold-bearing area and drilling is amply financed for its program. Work is about to start.

DR. CHASE'S ANTIPRURITIC OINTMENT

Ann Landers

Too Much Best Pal Routine Warning Signal for Girl

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have slaved over this letter for three hours, trying to find words to convey the idea so that it will be printable. Please for the sake of ALL young and innocent people, try to get the message across, somehow.

The letter in your column which triggered mine was from a young girl whose fiance broke their engagement because his "best pal" kept filling him full of lies about her. The girl finally told her fiance to choose between his "best pal" and her. He chose the pal. You replied, (and correctly) "Consider yourself ANN LANDERS lucky. You need this guy like a giraffe needs a strep throat."

Now I wish my niece had written to you before she married a man who also had a "best pal." Two children and three years later my niece's husband left her, heartsick and bewildered — not for another woman, but for a "best pal."

How could this girl have avoided the tragedy? What are the danger signals? And please explain to me why a homosexual would WANT to get married! — SANTA FE.

* * *

DEAR SANTA FE — Your last question first: Some homosexuals marry because they (1) yearn to be normal and they mistakenly believe marriage will "straighten them out"; (2) they embrace marriage and children as a cover — it provides them with a cloak of respectability.

What are the danger signals? How can a girl tell? There is no 100% foolproof way to tell. But a girl should be wary of a fiance who might after night would prefer a gleesome threesome to a cossome twosome. She should also be wary of a fiance who insists on several night out with "the boys" — or "the boy".

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We moved into a large new home several months ago and were able to entertain forty friends at a sit-down supper New Year's Eve.

We went to considerable expense and invested a great deal of time and energy in the party plans. After the last guest had left my husband and I agreed the party was a huge success. We felt sure everyone had a wonderful time.

Of the 20 couples, only one called to say "thank you." Two wrote notes. I have seen almost all the others at one time or another since New Year's and not even one person has mentioned the party. We are beginning to wonder if we only imagined they had a good time.

Are we overly sensitive? — COLORADO READER.

* * *

DEAR READER — It is not essential to phone or write to the hostess following a party, but it is indeed a hallmark of good manners. Don't be too hard on the lazy or socially imperfect. The test of a party is not how many people wrote or called to say "thank you", but how they responded when they were there.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — There is trouble in our family. Mom took a 10-day-vacation with two married women who work in the same office with her. (Their husbands could not get away.) Dad wanted to go but mom said he would be out of place with three women.

Now dad wants to go on a fishing trip with three of his buddies and mom wants to go along. He says "Nothing doing." Mom is making a fuss; it's a mess. What should be done! — TROUBLED SON.

* * *

DEAR SON — Your mom owes your dad on a fishing trip. They should have an agreement, however, that from now on all vacations are taken together.

WATCHING THE BIRDIE — Maureen Fidler, 19, of Ottawa totes the seven-pound, 12-gauge shotgun she uses in her skeet shooting hobby. Green-eyed, brunette Maureen is an arts student at Carleton University, majoring in history. She was Northern Ontario ladies skeet champion last year. (CP Photo)

Skeet-Shooting Favorite Hobby of 19-Year-Old Girl

"It's a fairly expensive sport and not too many college boys like to see their money explode in the air," says the attractive 19-year-old Carleton University student.

Although the cost of the shells varies from club to club, an afternoon's shooting may cost the skeet enthusiast as much as $5, counting the expense of ammunition and clay targets.

Besides, Miss Fidler would probably show up most of the boys. She is one of 25 Canadian women registered with the U.S. National Skeet Association and has prizes to prove her skill at shattering the targets as they fly through the air.

Twenty-five clay discs travelling 60 m.p.h. are fired in each round and the trick is to hit as many as possible.

"It holds a tremendous challenge—you are always trying to better your score, no matter how accurate you become.

"Also, it is one of the few sports where women can compete on equal terms with men."

NAMED BY WOMAN

In fact, it was a woman who gave the sport, an American development of English trap-shooting, its name.

The story is that Gertrude Hurtsell of Dayton, Mont., won a $100 prize in a contest sponsored by a magazine seeking a name.

Maureen, who now hits 23 or 24 out of 25 targets in an average round, became interested in shooting after she went partridge hunting with her father, Maurice Fidler, from their Gatineau cottage five years ago.

Mr. Fidler, also a skeet enthusiast, encouraged his daughter to try it by joining the Ottawa Skeet Club, she received some excellent coaching from Barney Hartman, former world champion who was then a member of the club but now lives in Montreal.

Last year she entered skeet tournaments in Ottawa, Sudbury, Ont., the Thousand Islands and Lake Placid, N.Y., and was on the prize list in three, including a championship medal in the Northern Ontario ladies' championship.

An arts student majoring in history, Miss Fidler has a post-graduation dream. She likes to shoot in hot weather and wants to tour the winter skeet circuit in the Bahamas, Puerto Rico and Florida with her seven-pound 12-gauge shotgun.

Speaking Personally

SWEET DREAMS

The newest teenage rage is the Pillowcase P.J, a shift meant to be worn for pyjama parties, study outfits or old robes. They are turning pillowcases into robes and creating new designs. Here are the sewing instructions for two basic designs.

For a sleep shift that can be made in about an hour, allow one cotton percale pillowcase printed in a favorite color. Use the hemmed bottom of the pillowcase for the bottom of the sleep shirt. Slit a button basted neckline at the top of the pillowcase. Hem the neckline with bias tape to match the print.

Next cut out armholes starting three inches from the seamed end of the pillowcase, and hem. Flatten corners under and stitch in place. Turn back the peaks at the shoulders and fashion into fake puff sleeves for a fashionable sleep shift.

The obl robe is slightly different. Two pillowcases are needed for the extra width in this style. Striped percale makes an interesting robe.

To make it, first slit each pillowcase along the seamed side and bottom. The pillowcase hem is the hem to your obl robe. Sew the cases together and on end. This seam becomes the back seam of the robe. Put in a deep box pleat at the centre back. Hem the free ends which will be the front opening.

Make slits at least nine inches deep for the armholes. At this point try on the robe so you can decide how long you would like your drop shoulder sleeves to be. Ideally they should fall just above the elbow. Hem sleeves at desired length.

Seam in neckline, but keep it wide. Use three snap fasteners along opening from waist to neckline. For authentic touches, add a wide obl sash made from a co-ordinating color, and a hanky pocket on the shoulder.

GOOD JUDGMENT

Advice to young men: If you are wondering what kind of wife your girl will make, take a good hard look at her mother. If you like what you see, go ahead and marry the girl. But if you don't, think about it again. It may not always be true, but most often a girl is a pretty good image of her mother.

"If her mother is a kind, warm and outgoing person, daughter should be a pretty safe bet as a wife. If her mother likes to bake and sew and is a good housekeeper, chances are the daughter will be too. If the mother is interested in culture, literature, music and art, probably daughter will enjoy these things too. If mother is sloppy about the house and her clothes, and if Dad never has a clean shirt ready to wear when he needs one, and if mother's voice is immature, and her emotional age is frozen at an adolescent level — keep looking. There may be exceptions, but they only prove the rule.

H. AND S. VARIETY NIGHT

WELLINGTON — Something for everyone—this was the theme of the Variety Night sponsored by the Home and School Association at the Wellington public school on Friday evening.

The show was opened by the girls of grades 7 and 8 performing a dance. Two lively numbers were played by Brenda Campbell and David Thompson on the accordion, followed by a jazz dance by Gail Chapman. Elaine Bishop and Sharon McNeill, accompanied by Mr. Burnett at the piano and Daryle Boyce on the drums, sang two numbers.

WRESTLING MATCH

A surprise item was a selection of pipe music performed by Ray Monro of Belleville, in full highland costume. Miss Jackie Cooke entertained with step dance followed by a selection performed by the Melodic Band of grades 7 and 8. Ray Monro with his bagpipes brought the first half of the show to a close.

The junior choir, pupils of grades 4 and 5 under the direction of Mr. Waywell, opened the second half of the program with two European folk songs. This was followed by a display by Miss Bailey's majorettes in their pretty, colorful costumes. A number by two tiny majorettes, Cindy Martin and Jeanette Wilke, delighted the audience. Following this Jackie Cooke performed a jazz dance and Elsine Bishop and Sharon McNeill sang a duet.

THE BEATTLES

Another surprise item was an unexpected visit by the "Beattles," who almost brought the house down with a typical number. There was some suspicion though that familiar faces might be under the Beattle wigs.

A whistling group from Allisonville, Emerson McPaul, Laird Ferguson and Wayne McFaul with Mr. Burnett at the piano entertained with singalong numbers in which the audience joined.

The evening was brought to a rousing close by the instrumentalists playing a group of lively numbers.

The items on the program were ably introduced by Mr. Keith Burnett, who organized the show, and who is to be congratulated on producing such an entertaining evening on behalf of the Home and School Association.

Thanks are extended to Mr. Burnett and all the performers and others who helped make this a successful venture.

Women of 60 To Have Show In Montreal

WINNIPEG (CP) — Phyllis Hobday, a Winnipeg grandmother who was nearly 60 before she started to paint seriously, is going to see an exhibition of her art in Montreal.

The exhibition will be at the Walter Klinkhoff Gallery March 14-28, and the artist will be there for the first few days with her husband, Reginald. They have three daughters—Eunice of Burlingame, Calif., Mrs. Earl E. McKellar of Winnipeg and Mrs. Robert Dawson of Whitehorse, Yukon, and five grandchildren.

Mrs. Hobday used to be an "inveterate doodler," absently drawing faces, figures or designs while talking on the telephone or just sitting.

"The family used to urge me to do something about art. . . . I felt I didn't have time for such things. Finally, to keep them all happy, I started."

That was in 1960. She attended art classes at the University of Manitoba. After a few years, instructors told her she was "a primitive" and she shouldn't try to be anything else.

They also told her it would be foolish to continue at art school, suggesting she should continue on her own "in complete freedom from formal guidance."

INVITES IN KITCHEN

Since then, "by just letting imagination run riot," Mrs. Hobday has done more than 300 paintings, mostly in oils and usually on big canvasses.

"I paint mostly in the kitchen because I'm happy in the kitchen."

Not partial to painting scenics, she prefers to do figures, often in symbolic compositions, and portraits.

She talks of an "odd kind of inspiration that comes out in the things I do."

"It's strange but sometimes when I have finished a painting, we all agree it looks like someone from the past whom I might not have seen since early years.

"And often I start out on one thing and it emerges as something entirely different from my original thought."

She says she thinks some of her ideas are outcomes of impressions she gained in extensive travel. She has travelled in the United States, Mexico, the Caribbean and Europe as well as Canada.

Mr. Klinkhoff asked permission to arrange the Montreal show after John A. Hackney, a Winnipeg art enthusiast, took him to the Hobday home to see her paintings.

Formula for Cuban Rum Brought Out by Refugees

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Refugees from Fidel Castro's Cuban regime have smuggled the formula for the island's renowned rum into exile with them.

A group of refugees and American businessmen, with formulas brought out of Cuba, are producing in Florida a drink they hope will carry on the tradition of the famous Cuban rums.

Zubillaga said that through chance, his and a former business client got together to go into the rum business.

"Once preliminary plans were going, I began looking around for a chemist," Zubillaga said. "A woman called in answer to one of our advertisements and said her husband, Cesar Incera, was a rum chemist."

BROUGHT FORMULAS

When he left Cuba, Incera took with him formulas and techniques used in preparing the high-quality Cuban rum. He turned them over to Florida's new enterprise.

With funds acquired through a stock sale approved by the Florida Securities Commission, the company bought an old grain and feed warehouse, completely overhauled the building, bought equipment and was in the rum business.

The first bottles came off the production line last year.

Zubillaga feels the new company will bolster Florida's blossoming sugar cane industry. But equally important, he said, is that it is providing jobs for some of the many Cuban exiles in this country.

"We have many Cubans working here," Zubillaga proudly pointed out. "We are trying to help the Florida unemployment situation as much as we can."

Exiles and native Americans work in various capacities from supervisor to secretary to janitor.

Red Postman Got Revenge For $10 Fine

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Gamekeeper Vasili Ievlev found himself with no newspaper, no mail and no telegrams, all because he had caught the postman poaching, Pravda reported today.

Whenever he complained to the authorities the complaint came back to the postman, so Ievlev remained cut off from the world in his home on the edge of the forest, near Voronezh.

At last he wrote to the newspaper, which followed up his story. When they asked the postman about it, the poacher replied: "He pinched nine rubles off me, and I should deliver him a fresh newspaper for his breakfast! It's too much!"

Kuryanov was fined nine rubles (about $10) for poaching.

Pravda concluded ironically that Ievlev's mail was restored now but "look what a great victory the regional communications management has won and how much work it cost us."

Three Children Drown in River At Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — Scuff marks in the snow told graphically how two little children struggled to save their sister before all three drowned Tuesday in the ice waters of the South Saskatchewan River.

The three were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Thul of Saskatoon, Mary Anne, 4, David, 3, and Eleanor, 2, were pulled from the water about 15 minutes after they fell in but revival attempts failed.

Mrs. Thul said the children had left the house in the morning to play and she thought they were next door. At noon, when they hadn't returned, she set out to find them.

Sleigh tracks and little footprints from their home led directly to the nearby river.

Scuff marks at the edge of the ice indicated one child fell in and the other two attempted to pull her out.

Western Tourists Have Easy Access to Czechoslovakia

By PETER REHAK

PRAGUE (AP) — Western visitors now have easy access to Czechoslovakia, long forbidden territory to all except the most stalwart students of red tape. The government has put into effect an open-border policy that makes this, after Yugoslavia, the easiest Communist country to visit.

It is also easier for Czechoslovaks to visit Austria.

What is the reason for this change?

Western officials here point to the need for hard currency to pay for large-scale purchases in the West, notably wheat from Canada.

But the deputy minister of foreign affairs, Otto Klicka, told an interviewer:

"It is a mistake to interpret our move purely in the light of economics. We cannot overlook the political aspects. Our efforts to increase tourism in Czechoslovakia are a contribution, and an important contribution, to loosening of international tensions."

RED BLOC TRAVEL

Coupled with the border opening to the West is a move to facilitate travel between the countries of the Communist bloc. Citizens of Czechoslovakia can go to Hungary without a passport, armed only with an exit permit issued by a travel agency. Officials say negotiations promise a similar arrangement with Poland and East Germany.

An average of 8,000 Austrians streamed across the Iron Curtain during the first few weeks that the new regulations were in force.

This flood from the West most of it in cars is expected to increase considerably during the summer months. It will, officials admit, create a problem. Until recently hotels and pubs were being closed as signs of "bourgeois decadence" and taken over for government offices and workers' recreation centres.

While some Communist countries have been building hotels, motels and other installations to attract Western tourists, Czechoslovakia has stood idle.

Bulgaria and Roumania have a string of recently built hotels on the Black Sea. Yugoslavia is thickly studded with motels along the Adriatic coast and other resort areas.

Most roads in Czechoslovakia are of pre-war vintage. Since domestic car traffic is only a trickle by Western standards, service stations and garages are few.

Two 400-bed hotels are planned for Prague. Construction of one has started, the other is scheduled to begin in 1965. Plans include conversion of two castles into deluxe tourist resorts. They are Topolcanky hunting resort.

Some 20 camping sites and five new motels are expected to be ready by 1965 and some 30 former hotels will be put back into operation this year, an official said.

"A trip behind the so-called Iron Curtain is an entirely new experience for most," he commented. "We hope to gain by this."

In Slovakia and Lysice, near Brno, in Moravia. Officials hope to have these ready for the 1964

Chinchilla Ranching Good Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chinchilla ranching is becoming well established in British Columbia.

Mrs. E. C. Mead, a chinchilla rancher, produced the two quotations for a regional chinchilla show in neighboring New Westminster.

The first is from an article published in Barcelona in 1581 and the second is attributed to an Elizabethan sea captain.

Most pelts fall between the scarce good ones, selling at $25 to $45, and poor ones, described as "hardly worth the money it took to feed the animals, and certainly not worth the capital

Barbara Tapp Of Burlington Ontario Is 1964 Cherry Pie Champion

by Mary Moore

Fun prevailed in the bowling lanes at Prudhomme's Garden Centre, Vineland, Ontario, the night before the Annual Cherry Pie Contest.

Judges and contestans on hand for an early start next morning, were bowling together. We asked one 15-year-old boy from Barrie "Are you a bowling champion?" "No". Are you a Cherry Pie Champion?" "Yes". We lovedhis confidence. He is a regional champion and, we predict he will be first prize winner next year.

Judging these finalists is a privilege but not easy. All of the contestants are young and eager and excited.

But any red-blooded Canadian boy who asks lovely 16-year-old Barbara Tapp "Can you bake a cherry pie, little maid" can expect a modest but unmistakable "Yes". Barbara's pie won first prize.

BARBARA TAPP'S FIRST PRIZE CHERRY PIE 1964

(Nelson High School — Home Economics Teacher, Miss Shirley Cummings)
Temperature 450 degrees — 30 minutes.

Pastry: 2¼ cups sifted cake and pastry flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ cup shortening, 1 egg yolk, ⅓ cup cold water.

Sift and measure flour. Add salt and sift into mixing bowl. With pastry blender cut in one-half of the shortening until it is the size of cornmeal. Cut in remainder until particles are size of peas. Beat egg yolk and water together in a small bowl. Sprinkle flour-fat mixture with the egg-water mixture, a tablespoon at a time, mixing lightly with a fork and adding only enough to moisten all the flour. Put dough on wax paper and press into a ball. Chill while preparing filling. Roll out approximately two-thirds of dough for bottom crust of pie and place in 9" pie plate. Trim off even with edge of pan. Roll out remaining pastry and cut into ½" strips for the top and edging. Pour filling (below) into pastry-lined pan. Cover with a lattice top. Lay two strips, on top of each other, around edge of pie. Flute edge. Brush egg white on lattice strips. Place a circle of aluminum foil around the fluted edge for the first 10 minutes of baking (See baking temperature and time above.)

Filling: 3 cups frozen cherries (thawed) 3 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup white sugar, 1 cup cherry juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, red food coloring.

Drain cherries. Mix cornstarch and sugar in saucepan and blend in juice. Heat rapidly until thickening is complete. Remove from heat and add salt and butter and suitable amount of red food coloring. Fold cherries into above mixture.

Next week I will give you Connie Jenner's (Blenheim, Ontario) Second Prize Cherry Pie Recipe.

WHEN YOUR toddler first discovers how to use door knobs, a new freedom begins. It can be a hazard—whether he's a wanderer or simply opens doors and shuts them on his fingers. A portable lock can be purchased which requires no tools. It goes on doors (and windows) easily and locks them securely.

The Experts Say

Don't Be Too Quick To Blame Cleaning Firms

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Don't be too quick to blame the cleaner when your clothes come back from a dry cleaning firm in less than perfect condition.

Members of the Canadian Research Institute of Launderers and Cleaners say manufacturers who use inferior materials are often responsible for damage to clothing during the dry cleaning process.

Fancy buttons made of inferior plastic often dissolve in the cleaning solvent, marring all clothes around them, says a pamphlet issued by the institute. Poor dyes on buttons run, and paper backing disintegrates.

Dresses covered with sequins are poor dry-cleaning risks. The sequins, if made of gelatine, dissolve in water. Their color wears off easily and sometimes numbers of them are held to the material by one thread which cannot withstand the action of cleaning machines.

Another hazard in dry cleaning is found in the interlinings of light-colored clothes which are sometimes colored with cheap black dye. It runs through during cleaning. The cleaner has no way of knowing about the interlinings without ripping the garment apart.

The only way he can save the garment, says the pamphlet, is to wash out quickly all of the dye in the interlining.

DYES DECEPTIVE

If the dye is still there when you receive the article from the cleaners, it is too late to do anything about it other than make a claim to the manufacturer for damages.

Clothing dyes can be deceptive. Poor dyes aren't always apparent after the first cleaning. They may hold up for three or four cleanings before washing out or fading.

The pamphlet says customers may be responsible for much of the clothing damage blamed on cleaners.

For example, if you splatter lotion from cold-wave home permanents on clothes, you may find that loss of color will not show up until the heat of the cleaner's drying process brings it out.

Perfume also can remove color and leave dye rings. It sometimes leaves a stain that cannot be removed. The institute advises you to keep perfume off your clothes, "unless the maker specifically recommends it for such use."

Ironing a stained garment could set the stain permanently. If deodorants are ironed in without washing, the acid may weaken the fabric to the point where it gives way at the cleaners.

It isn't fair to blame the dry cleaner if your clothes come back to you with holes which look like they were made by moths, says the pamphlet.

"Moth damage doesn't always show until after cleaning loosens weakened fibres and virtually nothing in the cleaning process can make a hole like a moth's."

ST. ANNE'S C.W.I.

POINT ANNE—St. Anne's C.W.I. meeting was held in the school hall with 11 members present. The secretary's report was given by Miss Patsy Whalen, while Mrs. Olga Deveau, as treasurer, gave the financial report.

During the business it was decided that the members would purchase six new card tables. Mrs. J. Buckley, spiritual convenor stated that April 26th was the Feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel and all C.W.I. members were requested to go to the communion. Father Buckley will be asked to say Mass on the first Friday in April for the director, living and deceased C.W.I. members.

Plans were also made for a euchre party and bake sale to be held in March in the school; also for a Girl Guide communion breakfast, after Mass on March 15.

The meeting was adjourned after which a few hands of euchre were played.

Lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. M. Weese and Mrs. Betty Geehan.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W.I.

Mrs. H. Bleecker was hostess of 17 members and three visitors Thursday evening when Uniondale Women's Institute held their meeting there.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Grenville Sine gave a favorable report on the recent Junior Farmers' banquet and read a letter also from Mrs. Holden which stated that the officers' conference in Guelph is for the district directors or their alternates and will be held May 6 and 7. The group chose "More About Finishes" as their next sewing project.

The annual report from the Women's Institutes adopted child was read; also a personal letter from her.

The Institute will take part in visiting week at the County Home from May 3 to 9. It was also decided to have a canvass for the blind. Mrs. H. Bleecker donated a crocheted centrepiece to be sent to the National Conference in Nova Scotia in April.

Mrs. George Burkitt held a session on the hand book — stressing standing committees and functions. Mrs. Alton Sine reported as convenor of current events by reading an article "Brain Drain to United States". The three directors Mrs. K. Faul, Mrs. B. Bush and Mrs. M. Sine were appointed as the nominating committee to bring in the slate of officers for the April meeting.

Mrs. H. Bleecker contributed the program based on "Education Today and Yesterday". A few of the remarks brought forth were: "This is education week in Ontario — education has become a controversial subject. The Federal Government should guide educators so the provinces would be on a more stable footing. At one time teachers received $6. per month and boarded around". Mrs. R. Burkitt gave a reading from "Homespun and Patches" relative to the old school. Small schools are disappearing with larger units taking their place. The cost of education has risen with a number of new universities being built and she mentioned the Trent University, Peterborough. Mrs. G. Harrington read an article on Albert College. The greatest problem at the present time is the shortage of teachers in Secondary Schools.

Next year there will be free text books for grades 9 and 10 and for all grades by 1966 or 67. There is now a swing back to teaching phonics. She noted that education is the key to future and as education pays in dollars and cents.

Mrs. R. Fleming read a poem which was followed by a show of dresses by the senior club based on "Focus on Finishes" when the girls modelled the articles made.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Bleecker and her assistants Mesdames J. Morris, K. Faul, F. Loney and A. Sine.

Successful Living

Friendship Is Frozen Out by the Lack of Heat

DEAR DORIS — We have two close friends whom we like very much. Our problem is this: They have a beautiful new home and everything in it, but they keep it so cold that you just cannot be comfortable.

Two weeks ago we were there for dinner. It was zero outside and their thermostat was set at 60. Both the husband and wife always have a jacket or sweater on and the children too. We are used to the temperature at home which we have around 73-75, as most of our friends do when it is that cold. Doris, it is hard to be sociable and pleasant when you are chilled through.

We have overcome the situation thus far by either going out somewhere or being together more in the summer. They have two small children and always want us to visit them.

We do not want to lose their friendship, yet cannot take any more cold visits either. — FROZEN OUT.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR FROZEN — Brrr! I know just how it feels. After a while you either begin congealing and start to yawn, or your teeth start to chatter. Either symptom threatens to chill friendship even more.

You could: 1. Trot out your prettiest woollen stole, or beaded sweater, or woollen suit, in which to sit it out; 2. Urge that they visit you in winter; and when they question this, 3. Explain that you are not as warmblooded as they are and need to keep your house quite warm in zero weather.

Good friends are likely to turn up the heat once the cold facts get through to them.

If you would like to write in again, giving your name and address on a stamped envelope, I could pass it on. (Thank you, Mrs. A. E.)

River Valley W.I. Enjoys Tour of Footwear Plant

On Thursday, March 5th, 34 members and three visitors attended the meeting of River Valley Women's Institute which took the form of a tour of the Elastic Footwear plant at Stirling and a meeting at the home of Mrs. Glenn Bush, Stirling, R.R. 4.

Mr. Albert Wilhelm, foreman of the cement finishing line and Mr. John Feitt, designer, were the guides for the group.

The sample room was a starting point where a large selection of spring and summer styles was shown as well as several of the fall and winter variety. The stockroom was well laden with various materials from leather to plastic. The group viewed the intricate designs of patterns and specialized machines which required skilled workmanship. Some of the shoes were decorated with French cord which was most attractive. Various kinds of insoles were used and the better grades of shoes were fashioned to suit the needs of the day.

VIEW PROCESS

The group was shown the step by step process of fashioning the shoes as they viewed the sewing of all kinds of material for men, women and children, also the cementing of the soles. As the various parts were set in place eventually the finished product was stamped and packed in boxes for shipment. The shoes are sold to dealers all over Canada, and in the United States with exports to Trinidad and Jamaica.

During this visit a large package was being prepared for Nova Scotia. It was a most interesting hour for many of the ladies who had never been inside the plant previously.

Mr. Joe Mickalek is president of the company with Mr. John Svoboda as vice-president. The treasurer is Mr. Joe Valchar. The payroll each month is over $40,000 for the 158 people employed there.

At the close of the tour the group assembled in the sample room and were able to look once again over the large assortment of finished articles.

On behalf of River Valley W.I. Mrs. Kenneth Myers, convener of Canadian Industries voiced thanks for the enjoyable hour and the informative hour.

The group journeyed to the home of Mrs. Glenn Bush and Mrs. Roy Bush where the meeting continued under the direction of the president Mrs. Vernon Harry, with Mrs. Roy Tucker presiding over the program.

FORMER INDUSTRIES

The roll call told of several former industries in the River Valley district such as making pumps for wells, a casket factory, saw mills, grinding of flour and feed and probably one of the first cheese factories in Ontario.

The convener Mrs. Tucker gave a worthwhile paper on the theme "Business and home are like a wheelbarrow, it takes a good man and woman to push it." Later she read a poem and conducted a contest.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe gave a full report of the receipts and expenditures to date. Mrs. Ernest Carr presented her report and the correspondence included thank-you notes and a letter of thanks from the Institute's adopted child in Germany, Zlelna Zellner for his gift at Christmas.

The president announced that she and the secretary had presented Mrs. Alex Bush with a life membership certificate and badge as a token of her valuable assistance to River Valley W.I.

An invitation was received from Pine Grove W.I. to attend an Extension Service course given by Mrs. Mary McInnes based on the theme, "Food shopping in the sixties" on Thursday March 19th, in March Hill United church, each lady to provide her own box lunch. It is expected that a few of the members will attend.

Honorariums will be given to the 4H club leaders and the Senior training leaders for their efforts in promoting this work.

The conference at Guelph in May will be for District Directors or their alternates and the pooling fee of $30 will be forwarded. The school children will be given $10 to assist their bus trip. The February meeting gave the treasurer $78 proceeds for their four social evenings, and they were thanked for their efforts.

A nominating committee was appointed to prepare the slate of officers for the April meeting on April 2nd at the home of Mrs. Vernon Harry. The membership fee of one dollar is payable at this meeting.

Conveners of standing committees gave brief items on agriculture, home economics and historical research. These were given by Mrs. K. Myers, Mrs. Jack Bush and Mrs. Charles Wilson.

WORKSHOP AT Y

Mrs. Percy MacMullen announced a workshop for branch curators of the Hastings East district on April 14 at the YMCA on Campbell Street, Belleville. Mrs. R. C. Walker, St. George, Ontario, the Provincial curator of Tweedsmuir histories will conduct this workshop. Any branch curators from Hastings West, Hastings North or Prince Edward will be most welcome.

The following day Mrs. Walker will conduct a workshop for the District curators of the Trent Valley area at the same location. The hours are from ten to four and each lady is to bring her own noon lunch and a cup for her beverage.

Mrs. MacMullen gave a brief description of a press report of Campbell's Corners W.I. as it appeared in the "Hanover Post" which she had received from a pen pal.

VISITS PUERTO RICO

Mrs. Roy Tucker gave a description of the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Haven Smith to Puerto Rico. Mrs. Smith is the U.S.A. deputy president for A.C.W.W. At the plane she was greeted by 14 representatives of different organizations. The interest in A.C.W.W. was tremendous even though there are no member societies in this area.

Ministers of agriculture and all agencies working with rural people were intensely interested and committees were appointed to spread information and stimulate interest. They also visited Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Panama, Columbia, Ecuador and Venezuela. Mrs. Smith held her A.C.W.W. story to thousands of people, in presidential palaces, in capital buildings, in homes, in huts, in halls with thatched roofs, in medical centres and in schools.

The club leaders Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Roy Irven set up a display of the 4-H club work which they had exhibited at the Achievement day held in Moira Secondary school. The group's display was centred around "The Magic Milk Bottle". It also included some of the record books and gave important information.

The mothers of three of the girls are non-members but they were invited to attend this meeting and tour. Mrs. Douglas Campbell voiced thanks to the Institute and to the leaders and said both the girls and their mothers appreciated this opportunity to join in 4-H club work.

The lunch committee, Mrs. John Beswick, Miss Flossie Rosebush, Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. Harry Corby, assisted the hostess and served refreshments. Mrs. Allen McDonell voiced appreciative thanks for hospitality, program and refreshments.

THE "A" LINE — This suit in natural beeswax color and honeycomb weave of wool and stretch nylon was designed by Olivia of Hamilton for the spring-summer showing of the Association of Canadian Couturiers held this week in Montreal. The sweeping A-line skirt is cut with deep fold in either side. Collar and sleeves of brief fitted jacket are bound with satin. (CP Photo)

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I went to return a book to a neighbor the other day but didn't realize until I was inside the door they had company. I felt awkward to intrude and tried to leave as soon as I gave my neighbor her book, but she insisted I meet her guests and stay a while. Since she insisted, I sat and chatted for a few minutes, then left, but I felt horribly embarrassed about the whole thing. What is correctly done when one gets into such a predicament?

— Mrs. B. A., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: You handled the situation correctly by staying only a short time at the hostess' insistence. But, as I've often said, a person can always save herself this kind of difficult situation by calling first before popping in on a friend or neighbor, even if it's just to return a book or a cup of sugar.

Question: Some friends invited us to visit their home last Saturday afternoon and stay to dinner. We drove up from the city and arrived about four. Dinner wasn't until seven, and the drive made us hungry. I held my tongue, but about an hour after we arrived my husband asked if he could have a sandwich to tide him over until dinner. I could have dropped through the floor with embarrassment, but when our hostess dropped everything in rush to the kitchen to fix him a snack, my husband whispered it was perfectly alright to ask for something to eat if nothing was offered. What would you say. — Mrs. D. F., New York City.

Answer: When people are invited to dinner, they should wait until it's served and not expect a late lunch to be thrown in for good measure. If you and your husband were so famished, it would have been more polite to stop for a hamburger en route rather than inconvenience your hostess smack in the middle of her preparations for dinner.

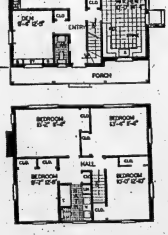
Second Folk School Planned

Plans were well underway for a second Prince Edward County folk school. The planning committee has met several times and the program has been outlined using the theme, "In the Looking-Glass" with the purpose, "To Understand Ourselves and Others".



Some of the problems in dealing with one's self were noted as follows: environment; how others affect us; projections; goals and values, and attitudes toward change. Problems in understanding others to be discussed are: detecting role playing; understanding social and community values, and learning to express old values in new ways.

Resource persons for the school to be held May 16, 17 and 18 are: Miss Isabel Stewart, national secretary for training, Y.W.C.A.; Mr. Victor Morrow, secretary - fieldman, Ontario Folk School Council, and Mr. Grant Wallace, fieldman, Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

This is a voluntary adult education program and anyone wishing further information is asked to contact Mrs. Shirley Vincent, Picton, R.R. 1.

MAORI DEATH RATE

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (Reuters)—At no age up to 65 is the native Maori death rate less than twice the European. For females of adolescent and working years, the tribal rate is three times that of Europeans. Susceptibility of the Maori to epidemic and communicable disease is well known, says a health department report.

Floods Force Thousands to Evacuate Homes

CHICAGO (AP) — Surging flood waters swirled through portions of seven middle western and eastern states today, forcing thousands of persons to evacuate their homes and leaving dead and extensive damage in their wake.

At least 19 persons died as torrential rainstorms, heavy snow and strong winds whipped through hundreds of cities and communities.

Portions of Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Illinois and West Virginia lay under flood waters.

The Red Cross sent disaster workers to Cincinnati and Louisville. The Ohio River overflowed its banks in Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky, and threatened to become the fourth worst flood in Ohio Valley history.

ABANDON HOMES

Hundreds of families in Missouri and southern Illinois left their homes as rivers overflowed and sent water edging to doorsteps.

Residents prepared to evacuate as the Ohio River reached flood stages from Pittsburgh to Wheeling, W. Va.

Some 5,000 families in Ohio and Kentucky were affected by flood waters. Some 900 persons —500 of them children — were taken to shelters.

In Indiana, waters reached the tops of some house eaves in the southern portion of the state as the Ohio threatened its worst flood in the state since 1945.

The Ohio crested at 32 feet—seven feet above flood stage—in Pittsburgh, flooding many basements and some streets.

Many parts of the United States were struck with torrential rainstorms, snow and blinding winds.

FIVE DIE IN OHIO

Five persons died in Ohio, three in Indiana, three in Massachusetts, three in Missouri, two in Mississippi and one each in Alabama, Virginia and New York as a result of the weather.

Snowfalls ranged from six inches to a foot in most sections of upstate New York through central New England.

Tornadoes rumbled through northwestern Alabama. Nearly 10 inches of snow stranded hundreds of motorists in northwestern Arkansas.

Municipalities Said Trying to Get Kickbacks

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial Auditor J. A. Vezina says he has uncovered attempts by numerous small municipalities to get kickbacks from men employed on winter works programs under a federal-provincial plan to ease unemployment.

There was a "general tendency" among many of the municipalities to hold back 10 per cent of an employee's salary to cover cost of materials or the municipality's own share of labor costs, he said.

The system worked between 1958 and 1962, he told a meeting Tuesday of the public accounts committee.

Kickbacks reached between $200,000 and $300,000 on total winter works of $200,000,000, Mr. Vezina told the committee.

Mr. Vezina gave the committee a hypothetical example of what would happen. The municipality would sign a man on at $1.25 an hour, then dock 25 cents on grounds it was required for a recreation fund or public charity.

The auditor also brought to light the case of a mechanical shovel that went haywire and issued unauthorized cheques totalling $1,688,000 to Quebec students during 1962-63.

Most of the money was eventually recovered but $275,000 had gone astray "and there isn't much hope of getting it back."

Because of a sharp increase in the number of grants and subventions, it was impossible to check all the forms that should be submitted by students receiving grants. Many of the cases were improper. "I'd not with the result that the machine started sending out cheques to unauthorized persons."

Plans

ple, there would be a chief of staff for all armed forces personnel, a chief of staff for training, another for research, still another for supply.

Integration also would percolate down through all levels of the services.

How long would this take?

The best guess is a number of years, but fewer than five.

COMMUNISTS MOVE?

Defence Minister Hellyer said last week he has been studying the first moves aimed at ultimate unification of the armed forces.

It now is apparent that he cautiously is feeling his way, basings in operations and maintenance costs—his avowed objective—whenever he can make big reductions in the number of headquarters and training staffs.

These staffs number at least 10,000. They can be severely cut by amalgamating common functions of the three services. At present, each service has its own trades language. Even its schools, supply networks and flying methods are different. The RCAF even has a marine service.

Unification of the services is likely to go hand in hand with reductions in the rank-and-file, in adm'nistrative staffs.

The defence department has said it wants to reduce the civilians on new weapons and equipment to 25 per cent of the defence budget compared with the present 13.3 per cent.

BRIGHT AHEAD

It believes it will be able to do this by integration of the forces and a five-year budget plan. Under this plan the department will know in advance that it will have approximately $1,500,000,000 a year. The cabinet has already agreed that the defence department may put any savings in operations and maintenance costs into new equipment.

Mr. Hellyer has also said that he is seriously concerned about the lack of mobility in the armed forces.

A good example is the recall of the airborne Bonaventure from fleet exercises in case she is needed to carry equipment for a Canadian contingent to Cyprus. There aren't enough transport planes to carry men and equipment at the same time.

Consequently, an already well publicized feature of the white paper will be an increase in airlift. The defence department has already allotted $47,000,000 for new transport planes as a start on this program.

With defence expenditures worked out over five-year periods, the Canadian defence industry would have a much better idea how to plan its research and production schedules.

in this press before he read it in the house, were that the increase would bring the distillers enough money to recoup in one year their contributions, which he estimated at $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

He said that before the election the distillers were told that if they wanted a price increase they would have to contribute to the Conservative war chest.

ASKS OMBUDSMAN

In other business, Andrew Thompson (L—Toronto Dovercourt) said an ombudsman, to consider complaints from people who felt they had been dealt with unfairly by government agencies, should be attached to the citizenship branch of the provincial secretary's department.

At present new Canadians and others have no process of appeal from decisions of about 90 government commissions in the province, he said.

Leo Troy (L — Nipissing) asked that signs along the Champlain Trail, an historic route between Mattawa and Georgian Bay, be erected in both French and English since the area is visited by many French-speaking tourists.

After his request was made to the legislature's committee on highways and tourism, Lloyd Letherby (PC — Simcoe East) said Mr. Troy should join Quebec and stay there. "You have been brainwashed good."

Mr. Letherby also told the committee he would like to see provincial police have more authority to remove "young punks" from old cars and take the cars away from them for highway safety.

and former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota were barely in the race.

Nearly complete unofficial returns showed Lodge the winner with 28,071 write-in votes. Goldwater was second with 19,222, Rockefeller third with 17,605 and Nixon fourth with 14,438. Mrs. Smith polled 2,690 and Stassen 1,229.

There was a scattering of write-in votes for Governors William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan.

Despite the snowstorm, the Republican turnout totalled more than 90,000 votes. Advance forecasts had placed it at 90,000 to 100,000. The record is some 96,000.

New Hampshire Democrats staged a write-in drive of their own, in what Governor John W. King of the state called "a recommendation" that Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy be the party's nominee for vice-president.

Its leaders had some last-minute misgivings, fearing a Kennedy write-in had stopped him embarrass the president.

The drive quieted those fears. The figures read Johnson 17,558, Kennedy 14,265.

APPROVE SWEEPS

At the same time, New Hampshire voters approved their state's big gamble: A sweepstakes designed to raise money for education.

The local option vote on the sale of sweepstakes tickets conducted throughout New Hampshire but effective only in the 13 communities having horse-racing stores or race tracks, produced a lopsided yes—about 3½ to 1. In all, 13 communities and precince primaries are scheduled in the 1964 election but this spring. They serve the dual purpose of allowing voters to check off or write in their choice for the party's nomination for president and also elect delegates to the state Democratic and Republican conventions.

RELATES THANKS

Through his son, George Lodge relayed his thanks to New Hampshire voters who gave them no hint of his plans.

"They have paid me the high est of compliments and I shall very carefully consider their action and all its meaning," he said.

Ambassador Lodge said in Saigon he would not quit the diplomatic service.

"I do not plan to go to the United States," he said. "I do not plan to leave Saigon. I do not intend to resign."

Lodge learned of his victory while in Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, on a fact-finding mission.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy made it clear Tuesday he feels no incumbrance against after the administration's present term expires.

"I'm not going to remain as attorney-general after November," Kennedy told a high school assembly.

An aide said later Kennedy didn't mean to set November 3 as a deadline for resigning, leaving open the possibility he will stay on the job until President Johnson's term expires next Jan. 20.

In the past, the 38-year-old attorney-general has said he will remain in his cabinet job through the November election period. But Kennedy Tuesday were just another way of putting it, the aide said.

Ice Moves Out Of Big Bay Into Lower End

DESERONTO — Although present weather may not excite the boating enthusiast high winds and mild temperatures have occured in his favor.

Ice which has never been more than thin during the whole of winter disappeared from the area of Forresters Island early in February. Last week gales cleared the narrows allowing Big Bay to dump its floes into the lower end of the Bay of Quinte.

This did not prevent the Napanee River from breaking free and adding to the open water in this area.

The only objections to this early break-up came from Dawson's Boating Centre where many boats have been in the progress preparing the marine railway that will carry the Thousand Island excursion boat The Miss Kingston.

Don Dawson was counting on the ice to help him manoeuvre the giant trolleys under the vessel. Now the task has become more difficult.

Difficulties may also be in store for the crew that has been contracted to the Bayanna now derelict on the sunken reef off the Deseronto Boat Club.

The Bayanna ran aground in fog a year ago last fall while making her way west about Forresters' Island. She carried a cargo of coal at the time. The heavy load caused the vessel to break in two and flood.

Salvage of the seventy-year-old craft did not begin until last fall and not until the local federal member took interest.

Now that the coal has been removed, the wooden superstructure burned off and the major section of the hull broken out into scrap. Next task will be to float a hull that may not want to float.

will still be "loaded" in favor of rural areas. Cities would continue to be over-represented and rural areas over - represented in the 263-seat Commons.

Taking his attitude view, Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) said the bill does not provide enough protection for rural areas. He also said a single commission could do the job faster and better than 10.

The three splinter parties took exception to a provision under which the leaders of the two major parties would each nominate a member for each provincial commission. They implied that these commissioners would favor the two major parties and discriminate against the others.

ON 10 COMMISSIONS

The bill provides that the representation commissioner, Nelson Castonguay, would sit on all 10 commissions to offer technical advice and co-ordinate the work. The fourth commissioner in each province would be a judge of the provincial supreme court, selected by the chief justice.

A "tolerance" of 20 per cent would be permitted in the variation between the population figures from the national average. This would mean that urban ridings could exceed the average population by 20 per cent and rural ridings could be 20 per cent under.

Mr. Nielsen said Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) would like the tolerance figure should be boosted to 25 per cent to prevent the disappearance of too many rural seats.

Mr. Knowles countered that 10 or 15 per cent would be a fairer and more appropriate figure.

Because of constitutional guarantees to some provinces, various boundaries existed in the population of constituencies, he said. These ranged from an average of 41,000 in Prince Edward Island to 71,160 in Saskatchewan.

FOUGH GET WORSE

Under the 20-per-cent tolerance, these inequities would get even worse. The largest Manitoba riding would have 57,000 residents and the smallest in Saskatchewan 47,830.

Mr. Knowles said the object of redistribution should be equal representation of the voters. The geographical size of a riding was a secondary consideration.

Gilbert Rondeau (Creditiste—Shefford) said the third and fourth commissioners should be nominated by the leaders of the two largest parties in that particular province at the last election. Under that formula, Prime Minister Pearson and Creditiste leader Real Caouette, respectively, would each nominate a member of the Quebec commission.

Mr. Rondeau also favored four commissions instead of 10. The commissioners would cover the Atlantic provinces, Quebec, Ontario and the four Western provinces.

Mr. Aiken said Parliament should have the final say in redistribution. It makes decisions. Parliament should act as an appeal court if one-quarter of MPs from a particular province objected to the commission's new electoral map.

Mr. Aiken said that if the government has an open mind on opposition amendments, the legislation will get a good majority of the House would be acceptable to the government.

He expressed the hope that the commissions could file their reports within a year of their appointment. The reports would then have to be enacted into law by Parliament, but the decisions of the commissions would be final.

DRY CLEANING SHIRT LAUNDERING BY WOODLAND

Set Stage for Partnership In Meeting Labor Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial ministers of labor have set the stage for a new partnership in tackling the problems of the technological revolution in Canada.

The stage was set by the chief result of a two-day conference of provincial labor ministers with Allan J. MacEachen, the former economics professor who took over the federal labor portfolio last April.

Mr. MacEachen said the meeting—the first labor ministers' gathering in 18 years—was not called to produce decisions but to air some of the broad manpower problems facing the country and draft possible "lines of action" for dealing with them.

SUMS UP

Meeting reporters after the conference ended Tuesday, the minister summed up its achievements this way:

1. General agreement on the need for "progressive" labor standards for Canada as a whole, a step the federal government has promised to take at this session of Parliament in a labor code embodying a national minimum wage, a normal week, paid vacations and statutory holidays for workers within federal jurisdiction.

2. Provincial support for a new federal - provincial cost-sharing agreement to develop skilled manpower through a more flexible, national system of apprenticeship and youth training.

3. A joint federal-provincial campaign to encourage greater co-operation between labor and management in the economic interest of the nation.

4. A promise of provincial support for a new manpower consultative service in its pioneering program of encouraging labor-management studies of potential technological trouble spots.

5. Agreement in principle on ratification by Canada of International Labor Organization conventions on industrial relations matters, with machinery for federal-provincial efforts to this field to be developed later.

SEE NEW SPIRIT

There appeared to be a new team spirit between the federal and provincial ministers in tackling manpower and industrial problems that cross the lines of labor jurisdiction between the two levels of government.

Although the federal government has jurisdiction over labor matters involving a few national industries — such as the railways, shipping, airlines, broadcasting and broadcasting — it has traditionally played a smaller role by supporting cost-sharing projects with the provinces.

Mr. MacEachen has given no details about his proposed labor standards legislation — one of the hottest items discussed with the provincial ministers.

But Saskatchewan's veteran labor minister, C. C. Williams, disclosed the standards that were discussed—and three his staff support behind them. The other ministers are reported to have expressed misgivings about the possible impact of the federal labor standards on their own jurisdictions.

BACKS $1.25 WAGE

Mr. Williams endorsed a $1.25 hourly minimum wage, a 40-hour work week, eight statutory holidays and two weeks vacation with pay after one year on the job—the standards said to be under federal study.

If the federal government should set an example which others could follow by introducing the 40-hour week, 55 minutes. The patient arrived in good condition.

A dust storm preceded the snow in Stratford when high winds hit the bed of the Avon River, drained for the construction of a bridge and dam. More than three inches of snow fell in the next three hours.

St. Catherines police called their cars off the streets and sent out cruisers only in emergencies. Poor visibility forced closure of the Niagara district airport.

CONCLUDE MOON SOLID

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet scientists have concluded that the moon is covered with a thick porous substance" and that its interior is solid, the news agency said this conclusion was based on a study of radio waves penetrating the moon. "The data on radio emanation," Tass said, "suggests that the 30- to 50-metre (94- to 56-foot) layer of loose porous substance on the surface of the moon lies apparently on hard rock."

Storm

from London, Sarnia piled by George C. Capers, 33, reached his $53,000 Bonanza aircraft when he made a forced landing in blinding snow. He walked away unhurt.

Mr. Capers, chief pilot for Great Lakes Air Services Ltd., said he was flying from Sarnia to Toronto at 7,000 feet when both his engines cut out.

Hundreds of Oshawa-area residents were left without assistance and Kingston police said the traffic snarl was the worst ever in Kingston. However, the storm caused few accidents and little damage aside from intermittent power failures.

Strong winds dropped the water level at the east end of Lake Ontario by four inches, causing a Kingston ferry to interrupt operation after its keel touched bottom.

At Niagara Falls, the wind held back the flow from Lake Erie and cut water volume entering Ontario Hydro's generating plant on the Niagara River.

At Hamilton, gusts of 70 miles an hour tore a construction crane from its moorings. Officers ordered double lines on all naval vessels.

An ambulance firm in Windsor said it took 2½ hours to bring a patient in from Chatham, Ont., a trip that usually takes 55 minutes. The patient arrived in good condition.

Charges of Dishonesty Laid Against Quebec, Ontario Govts. in Legislatures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec and Ontario governments Tuesday defended themselves against charges of dishonesty.

Roads Minister Bernard Pinard of Quebec said there was "nothing scandalous" involved in letting $13,000,000 in contracts for rural road work last year without tenders.

Union Nationale opposition members charged the government with patronage, and Maurice Bellemare (UN — Champlain) said friends of the government would get two, three or more contracts, each less than $50,000 for the same job without having to bid for them publicly.

Premier Lesage said the government was making it possible for small contractors to get contracts.

Premier Roberts of Ontario denied a charge by Kenneth Bryden (PND — Toronto Woodbine) who said the Conservatives raised liquor prices as a payoff to distillers for campaign contributions.

DENIES ANY PART

Mr. Roberts said his government played no part in negotiating the increase with the distillers. The charges were false. A true accusation his government was dishonest.

In other legislatures:

Newfoundland—A 10-per-cent increase in salaries for lawyers paid categories of non-professional employees in Newfoundland hospitals was announced by Health Minister James McGrath. He said the increases would cost the government about $650,000 during a three-year period.

Nova Scotia—Mines Minister Donald M. Smith introduced a bill proposing elimination of union dues checkoff for coal miners. The Coal Mines Regulation Act now requires an employee to take from a miner's pay all deductions requested by the miner.

New Brunswick — Premier Louis J. Robichaud announced the labor department for not being drawn into the "bitter debate" over a strike at the Irving refinery at Saint John which ended last weekend. Opposition Leader C. B. Sherwood said he was satisfied the dispute has been finally settled.

Manitoba — Agriculture Thelma Forbes ruled out of order a Liberal motion calling for the resignation of Mines Minister Sterling Lyon. Opposition Leader Gildas Molgat said the former attorney-general was the home "regarding arrangements and contracts" for the reduction of charges in criminal cases.

Saskatchewan — A private member's bill to eliminate a provision of the Saskatchewan Elections Act requiring armed forces personnel to vote in Saskatchewan as their place of residence before voting in provincial elections was defeated by a 21 to 19 vote. The CCF government opposed the motion but the Liberals abstained.

Alberta—A resolution to permit Alberta cities to stopd daylight time in the summer was defeated after brief debate.

British Columbia—Third and final reading was given a bill empowering Premier Bennett, as finance minister, to use funds from unappropriated revenue to purchase up to 25 per cent of the shares of a proposed Bank of British Columbia. The flag-man Liberal group voted against the motion. They failed in a bid to get the premier to give details of the government's plan to sponsor the bank.

Four Escape Death as Car Goes Through Ice

STURGEON FALLS (CP) — Searchers Monday found four Sudbury men who escaped death Sunday when their car plunged through the ice in the remote Hay Narrows region of western Lake Nipissing.

Maurice Sauve, 24, and Raymond LaForest, 24, were brought here from a ranger's cabin where the four had spent the night. Their companions, Robert Sigouin, 26, and Roland LaForest, 27, had walked five miles to a camp in search of help.

The men were on an ice-fishing trip when the ice gave way. There is open water in the Hay Narrows area nearly all winter.

Police said Tuesday that Robert Sigouin jumped clear of the car before it started sinking. Others fell into the water but quickly pulled himself out.

The LaForest brothers went down with the vehicle. Roland managed to get out of the car and swim to the surface but his younger brother was trapped in the car.

Police said Roland dove into the water to pull his brother out. Raymond LaForest had stopped breathing and required 20 minutes' artificial respiration before he began to breathe again.

Gale-Driven Snow Blankets District, Traffic Tied Up

The Bay of Quinte district escaped lightly in comparison to other lakefront centres but the three-and-a-half inches of gale - driven snow which blanketed the Belleville area yesterday made residents realize that Spring is not yet here.

Less than four inches of snow fell but this was enough to send traffic, already slightly to almost zero and to bring out the city's snow plowing equipment in full force.

In contrast to the less than four inches in Belleville, up to 11 inches fell in the Toronto-Hamilton area creating one of the worst traffic tie-ups of the winter.

In Belleville the snow commenced in the early afternoon and built up to 20 inches per hour swept the storm in from the east.

DRIVERS HAVE TROUBLES

And by mid-afternoon motorists were beginning to have trouble getting in and out of parking spots and in negotiating the hills.

With the commencement of the storm however the city works department ordered out its sanding equipment and by three o'clock the plows were in operation.

But even this didn't prevent the odd minor traffic tie-up.

In the downtown area during the evening rush hour the motor of a delivery truck cut out and traffic was stalled in the blinding snow until a tow truck was able to haul it away.

On the hills motorists with smooth tires found the going difficult especially when they were forced to slow or stop on the grades.

EVENTS CANCELLED

The snowstorm petered out in the early evening, but not before the many scheduled for last night had been cancelled.

At Batawa a district Industrial Accident Prevention dinner was called off, while in Belleville at the Prince Charles public school a Home and School Association meeting was cancelled.

It wasn't local conditions that cancelled the meeting however. The guest speaker, CBC-TV programmer Daniel McCarthy, couldn't make it — he couldn't even get to the railway station in Toronto.

One Belleville motorist took over seven hours to drive home from Toronto. He left at about 3:00 p.m. and didn't get to Belleville until after 10:00.

Death of Ship's Pilot Said Due To Overwork

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Corporation of Great Lakes Pilots says the death of a pilot on the Welland Canal in 1961 was the direct result of overwork.

In a brief presented Monday to the royal commission on maritime pilotage, the corporation said working conditions in the Welland Canal-Lake Erie-Sarnia area are the worst of any pilotage district in Canada.

The commission's brief said area pilots are treated like boys by their employer, the federal transport department, and have no voice in policy decisions on pilotage.

It said that a pilot who died at lock No. 7 on the Welland Canal in 1961 was an overwork victim.

UP FOR 700 MILES

"He had been up all the way from Milwaukee to the place where he died, a distance of 700 miles," it said.

In addition to piloting the vessel in the Sarnia southwest shoal and the Welland Canal, the pilot was also in fog on Lake Michigan, Lake Huron and Lake Erie, the brief said.

"It appears that the department's chain of command, on one is willing to put his signature to the orders which give sufficience for fear of censure from above," the corporation stated. The brief was signed by Jacques Hebert, whose book sparked the inquiry, noted that the rifle was for sale with a time lock set for 9:30 a.m.

Leech Lambert, 75, director of the QPF Intelligence Service during the 1950s, testified Tuesday that a meeting between Constable Lewis Symard and Capt. Raoul Sirois was held at a subheadquarters and not at headquarters. Lambert wouldn't run into Sgt. Doyon.

BOTH INVOLVED

Sirois, now then at Quebec City headquarters while Const. Synnett was with the Gaspe detachment, had been involved in the investigation of the slaying of three Pennsylvania hunters in Gaspe in 1953.

Mr. Lambert testified that the meeting was necessary said it was called by Deputy Attorney-General C. E. Cantin as a result of publication of stories and talk about the Coffin case.

He said Capt. Sirois questioned Const. Synnett about the tracks near the scene of the slayings and about a jeep found in northern New Brunswick.

Mr. Lambert said he attended the meeting at the request of Mr. Cantin as he felt the inquest was exercised upon Const. Synnett and to ensure that all went properly.

The witness also was questioned about alleged contession made to Malmi, Fla., police in 1958 by Francis Thompson, who said he and a man named Johnnie Green had killed the hunters and committed several hold-ups in Montreal.

Mr. Lambert testified, "because the man who was found guilty was hanged 3½ years ago."

He said questionnaire had been sent Miami police to test Thompson's knowledge of the crime. It was completed but Thompson retracted his confession and the matter was closed.

Mr. Dacost asked why detectives hadn't been sent to Miami to check the story in view of the importance of the case. And why hadn't the matter been dropped when Thompson's reply to the question showed knowledge of "troubling details" of the case?

Mr. Dacost asked whether this was a "usual manner" of handling a murder case.

Mr. Lambert said "it was logical" at the time.

OTTAWA (CP) — A justice department officer has turned over to the Coffin royal commission documents and files which may be helpful in the Quebec inquiry into the conviction and hanging of Wilbert Coffin, Justice Minister Favreau said Tuesday.

Mr. Favreau, replying in the Commons to Reid Scott (NDP —Toronto Danforth), said the material, collected by Crown officers, has been attending the inquiry and had assured the Quebec commission the Ottawa department is prepared to render any assistance it can.

Commission to Look Into Defence as Well as Crown Acts in the Coffin Case

QUEBEC (CP) — Mr. Justice Roger Brossard said Tuesday the conduct of defence in the Coffin case will be under scrutiny by his royal commission as well as that of the Crown.

And he said he may ask the Quebec government for an extension of the commission's powers to allow it to go into details of Wilbert Coffin's final hours in the "general interests of justice." Coffin was hanged in 1956 for the 1953 slaying of one of three American hunters found dead in Gaspe.

His remarks followed a heated and lengthy debate between Noel Dorion, a Crown prosecutor at the trial, and Francois Gravel, one of Coffin's lawyers, over whether Coffin's last will and testament should be studied.

Mr. Dorion wanted to know the full circumstances under which Coffin made his death-cell testament, in the presence of Mr. Gravel, a minister and a notary.

Mr. Dorion asked why a will was made when the will of a condemned man was worthless. He also asked why the Toronto Star had been given exclusive rights to the will.

QUERIES STATEMENT

The will left everything to Coffin's son, Mr. Dorion said, but had also included a letter stating that "I would like the public to know that since my arrest I have not been fairly treated."

Mr. Dorion said Coffin had said this months before in a sworn statement. Why was he repeating it? What was supposed to be a will?

Mr. Gravel objected that Mr. Dorion should have passed and three books have been written about the Coffin case, no body has questioned the will. What bearing did the condemned man's last wishes have on the commission's work?

Mr. Justice Brossard asked whether Mr. Gravel felt this line of inquiry was within the mandate of the commission.

Mr. Gravel said he didn't wish to reply at the moment.

DEFENDING SELF?

Later the commissioner asked whether the lawyer was defending the Coffin family, or himself in the matter.

Mr. Gravel replied: "I am defending Coffin, Marion Petrie and the Coffin family." Mr. Gravel retorted. Marion Petrie was the woman with whom Coffin was living, and James Coffin is their son.

Mr. Justice Brossard over this affair caused testimony by Sgt. Henri Doyon, dismissed from the Quebec provincial police force in 1961, to be postponed until today.

Mr. Doyon was asked to bring to court a portion of a rifle involved in the case. Lawyer Raymond Daoust, Crown prosecutor Jacques Hebert, whose book sparked the inquiry, noted that the rifle was for sale with a time lock set for 9:30 a.m.

Leech Lambert, 75, director of the QPF Intelligence Service during the 1950s, testified Tuesday that a meeting between Constable Lewis Symard and Capt. Raoul Sirois was held at a subheadquarters and not at police headquarters in Quebec City.

Sirois, now then at Quebec City headquarters while Const. Synnett was with the Gaspe detachment, had been involved in the investigation of the slaying of three Pennsylvania hunters in Gaspe in 1953.

Toronto Man Posing as Priest Jailed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A Toronto man who posed as a priest pleaded guilty in criminal court Tuesday to charges of theft from two Grand Ole Opry performers and was sentenced to a year and a day in prison.

Police said that Ralph Eddins of Hamilton, Ont., sold a pair of cowboy books and a watch from Opry Star Hank Snow's dressing room Monday night and using the alias, Father Jack Miller.

De Laval also pleaded guilty to stealing a wallet from Mrs. Ramona Jones, wife of Opry star George Jones.

A companion, Garrick Thomas Auger, 20, pleaded guilty to abetting the attempted to commit a crime and was sentenced to six months in the workhouse.

Police said De Laval and Auger visited the homes of several Grand Ole Opry stars during a trip here in January. They were arrested a few days later in Memphis.

Favreau Says Govt. to Act Against 'Hate Literature'

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau said Tuesday the federal government will act against "hate literature" as soon as a formula is found which is compatible with such things as freedom of speech.

He told a delegation from the Quebec Liberal Federation's ethnic group commission that all NDP share the disgust of the delegation at current anti-Jewish and anti-Negro literature being distributed through the mails.

The delegation called on Mr. Favreau to urge that the government accept a private member's bill on the subject sponsored by Miss Klein (L—Montreal Cartier).

The bill would establish genocide (mass murder) as a crime and provide a maximum five-year prison term for publishing statements "incitement to national, ethnic, racial or religious groups.

Mr. Favreau suggested individual rights and freedom of speech are factors which must be considered in connection with government action.

PROMISES ACTION

"But the necessary measures will be taken as early as may be possible when a formula compatible with all relevant factors has been found," he said.

He gave the delegation a commitment with regard to Mr. Klein's bill, mentioning that another private bill dealing with hate literature is before Parliament.

The second bill, sponsored by David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North), is aimed at during the sale of materials for dissemination of hate literature. It would prohibit use of the mails to send "anything that is calculated to bring into hatred, ridicule or contempt, any person or group of persons by reason of race, national origin, color or religion."

The delegation included, persons of Italian, Romanian, Polish, Ukrainian, German and Greek ethnic origin. Several members of the group explained to their reasons for supporting Mr. Klein's bill.

DESTROY COUNTRY

Helmut Lein said he had witnessed in his native Germany how such literature can destroy a country.

Richard Lord, a Negro, said the delegation pleads to disintegrate when policies aimed at dividing races or ethnic groups are not met with united condemnation.

Mr. Favreau said in the Commons the government is considering whether legislation is needed to control "control publishers of anti - Negro and anti-Jewish literature.

Mr. Favreau undertook in reply to questions by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who said propaganda of the National White American Party, being distributed through a post office box address in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, could be seized.

"It is the most virulent and diabolical type of anti-Jewish propaganda and a venemous attack on the Negroes of our country," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Manager Fined After Woman's Death in Factory

TORONTO (CP)—The manager of a Toronto factory where a woman employee died March 18, 1963, was fined $400 and costs Tuesday for failing to provide adequate safeguards.

Magistrate James Butler said the fine against Ernest Hurst, 39, just $100 short of the maximum, was a deterrent to others. The maximum is $500 or up to 12 months in jail.

Magistrate Butler expressed amusement penalties provided under the Industrial Factory Act were so small.

The charge was laid following an inquest into the death of Maria Gigliozzi, 35, who died while at work on a machine at Trans Canada Industries Limited.

Labor department inspectors said the cover was missing from an electrical switch box on the machine where the woman was working.

LANDS SAFELY

MONTREAL (CP) — The pilot and pilot of a World-Wide Airlines C-54 cargo plane escaped injury Tuesday in a forced landing on the runway of Montreal International Airport suburban Dorval. A department of transport spokesman said the accident took place the landing gear was jammed. The plane made a belly landing.

Indian Liquor Laws Called 'Antiquated'

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MP Ian Watson criticized Indian liquor laws Tuesday as "a completely antique, outdated, rarely ridiculous hangover from the 19th century."

He said in the Commons he is hopeful that the government will amend the Indian Act to make Indians subject only to provincial liquor laws.

Mr. Watson, Assiniboia riding of Chateguay - Huntingdon - Laprairie includes the prosperous Caughnawaga member's home, Hawks near Montreal, also was a step further and said the act should be overhauled to remove all restrictions and keep only the regulations to protect the Indian special treaty rights.

Mr. Watson spoke as the House debated — during the private member's hours — a bill by Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox Alberni) seeking to remove all federal laws restrictions from Indians, except that they could still vote, if they wished, to liquor off reserves.

The bill was "talked out"— debated for the full hour, without coming to a vote.

Mr. Watson noted that most Caughnawaga Indians work in the United States and can buy liquor anywhere. But on returning to Canada they couldn't have liquor in their homes or even buy it off the reserve.

The present act implied that the Indian, in owning liquor, was not equal to other Canadians in a self-control. This was without foundation.

Time Is Fast Running Out For Khanh, U.S. in Viet Nam

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In war - weary South Viet Nam, it's an old custom for men with troubles on their mind to grow a beard.

Premier Nguyen Khanh, who on New Year's Day solemnly bloodless coup, began growing a black goatee when the dictatorial ex-premier Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown last November.

Chanoo Singh, a handsome 38-year-old general, described by Khanh's colleagues as "the best beard-wearer in Asia" when they're got," will be sporting his beard for some time to come.

U.S. LOSING

For Khanh and the United States forces backing him, time is fast running out in South Viet Nam. U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, now beginning a two-week journey in the campaign area, must decide quickly what to do about a war the U.S. is clearly losing at a cost of some $1,500,000 a day.

The U.S. now has about 16,000 servicemen "advising" the 200,000-strong South Vietnamese Army — most of whom have modern weapons and first-class logistical support.

Yet the Viet Cong Communist guerrilla force, operating off the land and using captured U.S. equipment, is intensifying its activities, attacking sometimes in battalion strength with as many as 500 to 1,000 terrorist raids a week.

The Viet Cong suffered enormous casualties in the last year — about 20,000 killed and 12,500 captured — but their numbers don't seem to diminish. Instead they have 27,000 crack regulars and about 75,000 irregular supporters. They now control about 70 per cent of the fertile Mekong Delta southwest of Saigon, the capital.

Diem's tragic legacy is only now being revealed. His program of 8,000 - odd strategic hamlets, designed, confidence in the government of its lowest ebb and it is problematical whether even a man of Khanh's calibre can restore order and overcome the apathy of 20 years of tired war. Most of the farmers now want peace more than they want victory.

McNamara is said to be under pressure from "hard-line" advisers in Washington to end the war with an all-out attack on guerrilla headquarters in North Viet Nam.

Neutral observers doubt the wisdom of this: First, because it may shatter delicate political machinery throughout Southeast Asia and invite retaliation from Red China; second because the Viet Cong appear largely independent of the north.

A second approach could be the idea advanced by France's President de Gaulle—neutralization of South Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia. This would need to be guaranteed by all the major powers, including a neutralist government in South Viet Nam would be tantamount to an American defeat.

CNR Signs Contract With Engineers

MONTREAL (CP) — A new contract between the CNR and locomotive engineers in Eastern Canada was announced today.

The contract covers 1,600 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (CLC) in the Maritime provinces, Quebec and Ontario. Negotiations covering engineers in Western Canada are expected to start soon.

The contract signed today provides terms approximately the same as those reached between the CPR and the union in the last week of January.

Yard engineers, who are paid hour by shifts, will receive 12 per cent over the three-year contract, designed to "cushion a reduction in the work week to five days from six," the joint union-CNR statement said.

Road engineers, paid on a time and mileage basis, will receive a 3½ per cent wage increase in three stages.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, March 10, 1964

External Affairs Minister Martin said certain difficulties must be overcome before a decision can be made on joining the UN-Cyprus force.

Defence Minister Pearkes said Quebec Eskimos will be consulted before any final decision on schedules them to provincial jurisdiction.

Transport Minister Pickersgill introduced a measure to set up 10 commissions to reshape federal electoral boundaries.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) said there should be a single committee assigned to the job, not one for each province.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) opposed the idea of having the major party leaders appoint commission members.

LEFT LARGE ESTATE

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A retired lighthouse keeper and auto worker who lived alone in a cluttered small house left about $100,000 when he died, authorities estimated Tuesday. Sheriff Tom Bell said bank books for the 68-year-old man showed about $70 000 in the name of Martin J. Nelson, who died of a heart attack March 1 at age 78. The remainder was in bonds, which were found in his house, and insurance.

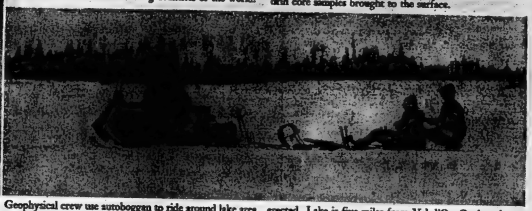
Canadian Winter Helps The Search

Drilling For Gold

When the hard-freeze of winter comes to the land, many mineral explorers across Canada take advantage of good travelling surfaces to increase the tempo of their search. Following the prospectors are others who also use sub-zero temperatures as a practical friend. In the Malartic-Val d'Or region of western Quebec, 300 miles north of Lake Ontario, nearly a dozen diamond-drill rigs have been searching for gold from the frozen surface of Lake de Montigny. On the flat ice surface the drill rigs are easily erected. With no need for boats and barges the drilling of many thousands of feet of rock core becomes economical and exact. Careful studies of the drill samples have now established the presence of 5,000,000 tons of gold-bearing ore averaging nearly two ounces of the precious (37-dollars-an-ounce) metal per ton. Backed by the knowledge gained from the drill holes, a main shaft is being sunk 1,150 feet; a new gold mine, scheduled to go into production next year, has been born —ready to help Canada maintain number three position (after South Africa and Russia) among the gold-producing countries of the world.

Exploratory drill rigs rise up on the frozen surface of Lake de Montigny in northwestern Quebec. Thousands of feet of rock core from various points across the lake are examined to plot the depth and extent of gold-bearing orebody. Mine shaft is then sunk at most favourable site.



Geologist in charge, Glen Rushton, examines diamond-drill core samples brought to the surface.

Some Day Prisoners May Toil to Earn a Nestegg

LONDON (CP)—British prisons may one day clang with industry as prisoners toil to earn a nestegg for their release.

Home Secretary Henry Brooke has accepted a recommendation that prison work should be put on an efficient and modern footing with higher pay for prisoners.

The recommendation by a 14-member advisory council, led by Sir Wilfred Anson, 70, former deputy chairman of the Imperial Tobacco Company, looks toward a time when prison industries will study the market in the same way as industrial firms.

There would be no hesitation in using modern market research techniques and employing specialist firms for the purpose. An industrial atmosphere would be created, including such practices as "clocking in," changing into working clothes and having tea breaks.

REHABILITATION IDEA

The theme—largely inspired by experience in Sweden—is the rehabilitation of prisoners for the benefit of themselves and of society.

By coincidence, publication of the Anson report followed a small - scale controversy initiated by Kathleen Jo-Smith, former assistant governor of Holloway women's prison, who wrote in the weekly Spectator that "crime must pay for itself."

Going far beyond anything yet contemplated by the government, Miss Smith urged:

"To cut crime down to its proper size every crime should be valued in cash, to be repaid in full by the offender's work in prison.

"To benefit prisoners with a sense of proportion, hope and self-respect, prisons must be turned into rich assets of energy for the nation, from institutes of parasitism."

Under Miss Smith's "self-determinate" sentence, capital punishment would disappear. Instead a murderer would "use much of his life to support the dependents of his victim." If the victim had no dependents, the prisoner's earnings would go to a fund.

DANGEROUS HERESY

T. L. Iremonger, Conservative member of Parliament and a member of the Anson committee, was one of Miss Smith's critics in subsequent letters to The Spectator.

He said the article might unwittingly foster a "dangerous popular heresy—namely, that crime is something, like measles, which is extraneous to the normal order of things and for which one can find a 'cause' and a 'cure.'" This would lead to the delusion that the level of crime can be regulated by the penal or law-enforcement systems as one regulates the level of water in a bath by adjusting the tap.

Timothy Cook, an assistant prison warden, said convicts must be taught to stay out of jail and that "means much more than the ability to earn money."

"They need to know how to live satisfactorily with other people. Work may help but it is not the answer."

Cook did say he would like to see some prisons turned into a residential factory "but unless work is accompanied by an effort to see the men as he really is and to help the man to see himself the work will flow, over him as does so much else which is tried."

The Anson report proposes establishment of a pilot project for large-scale production in England-Wales and another in Scotland, with an expert to guide development.

SMALL FORCE

The council did not consider there was any reason to fear competition by prison industries, however much they developed. The prison labor force represents only 0.1 per cent of the working population of the country, and less than one-half the prisoners are employed in manufacturing industry.

The Evening Standard, praising the report, says the standard occupation in prisons now is sewing up coal sacks, with the working day often limited to 3½ hours and the weekly pay only about 50 cents.

Labor unions have said in the past that as long as there is unemployment, there should be no competition from prison labor, but some sources believe this view would change if prisoners' pay was increased.

The Manchester Guardian says: "The money might go in part to build up a sum to be drawn by the prisoner on discharge, or to his wife and family if any, or to compensate someone who has suffered from his wrongdoing, or to improve the amenities of the prison . . . best for his self-respect it should be earned and, in some form, paid."

PALATE TICKLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundlanders call it caribou, and it's been tickling their palates for about 200 years. "You pour three ounces of black rum into a tall glass over two ice cubes," says a St. John's bartender. "Then you add half an ounce of molasses. Next comes three ounces of spruce beer, which you can get from Mrs. Snow out on the Gould's Road."

Canada Is 'El Dorado' To Thousands in British Caribbean Countries

RUSSELL ELMAN

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP)—At a theatre in this over-populated sugar island a poorly paid Negro usher pleaded with me to take him back to Canada as a valet.

In hurricane-ravaged Tobago a woman whose home had been destroyed begged for help in moving to Canada.

In Georgetown, capital of troubled British Guiana, an unemployed electrician stopped me in the street and asked that I help get him into the RCAF.

To these people—and to thousands of others in the British Caribbean countries—Canada is El Dorado.

For crowded islands, such as Barbados and Jamaica, with growing unemployment, migration abroad is considered an essential safety valve, albeit a stop-gap measure.

But it's a sore point with many West Indian politicians that Canada, Britain and the United States don't open their doors wider.

A typical comment was by Donald Sangster, Jamaica's deputy prime minister, who said:

"If Canada can take in thousands of immigrants from central Europe who don't know English or have no idea of the British way of life, why can't it take in people who do speak English and are basically geared in a democratic tradition?"

COLOR BAR HINTED

The implication is that Canada's immigration law serves as a color bar against West Indian Negroes.

Actually the revised Canadian immigration law makes no mention of color or quotas. The criteria are skills and whether there are employment and this tends to keep out unskilled persons of any country.

It appears that many West Indian politicians who voice demands for more liberal immigration rules may really be thinking in terms of getting rid of their excess unskilled labor.

Premier Errol Barrow of Barbados says the new Canadian policy "really tends to aggravate the situation, whereby we lose the kind of people we need most at home."

A case in point is trained nurses. They can easily find jobs in Canadian hospitals while West Indian hospitals have a shortage of nurses.

Since the Second World War there has been a flood of immigrants to Britain and when it curtailed free entry as a right for Commonwealth citizens last year there was an immediate impact in the West Indies.

MANY LEAVING

However, the stream of migrants has not been stemmed altogether. From British Guiana there is a steady flow of skilled tradesmen and clerical help; the London Transport Executive still provides jobs for some 70 people a month; wives and relatives still leave Jamaica to join their menfolk in Britain.

There has always been a considerable amount of inter-island migration, including a major movement from Grenada to more prosperous Trinidad. But since independence, Trinidad has discouraged this sort of migration. And so far little has been done to develop British Guiana, whose unpopulated interior is frequently cited as the most likely outlet for the island's excess population.

"What's really needed," says a Guianese journalist who has travelled widely in the area, "is for the West Indian countries, including British Guiana, to sit down together and work out a system of migration within the Caribbean."

They've Got The ir Zoning Problems Too!

By JOHN WARREN

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—The new Hay River may be free of the danger of flooding but it can't altogether escape the tide of discontentment.

Federal officials say they are doing everything possible to help develop a modern and functional townsite several miles away from last year's flood scene. But the mayor and some businessmen have some reservations about what is going on.

Hay River, a community of 1,800 on tiny Vale Island at the mouth of the Hay, was crushed by flooding last May. More than 1,000 people were evacuated by air. The bill for damages and relief will total more than $1,000,000.

The government, by restricting the development of the old community, is concentrating on a new subdivision on the mainland two miles away.

Residents, many of them government employees, are generally pleased with the new subdivision. In any case the government is giving the people of Hay River little choice in the matter of where they may live.

As a first step toward avoiding a recurrence of last spring's problems, the government said no compensation would be paid for future flood damage suffered by persons who move back to the island. Until the end of 1963 it permitted an exchange of island residential lots for property in the subdivision.

BUILDING BANNED

This winter a bylaw prohibiting a new residential construction on Vale Island was passed by town council under the then mayor, W. R. (Red) McBryan, a highway superintendent with the department of public works.

"It just squeaked by," says assistan t a r e a administrator Fred White.

Since then Hay River has elected a new town council. The mayor is Don Stewart, a businessman with considerable property in the Vale Island community, and a frequent critic of government handling of the town's redevelopment.

The building restrictions on the island "are causing definite hardship," says Mr. Stewart, whose business interests include the town's theatre, a hardware store and a construction company.

"We're splitting the population to begin with (many residents returned to their dwellings on the island before restrictions were imposed) and [illegible] are faced with the problem of how to serve the people.

"Every day more or less sitting and waiting for the government to put commercial zoning in the new development. I don't think they'll have a definite pattern until this fall."

INDIANS WILL STAY

The mayor said businessmen are hoping the new Great Slave Lake Railway will follow tentative plans and run its line down what now is the main street of the community on Vale Island.

"If we get some compensation as a result, more businesses will move to the new subdivision. But half the people are still going to be living down here. We do a lot of business with the Indians and they won't be moving."

While the problems of a divided town remain, the overall economic outlook in Hay River is promising. With the coming of the railway, the development of a mine and community of 1,000 at Pine Point, 55 miles east, expansion of the north's communications network and oil exploration, the town's future looks bright.

But, as often happens, people tend to focus attention on their individual problems rather than the overall picture. And Jennie Labossiere's difficulties are typical.

Her Great Slave Lake beauty parlor was wrecked by the flood and she operated a portable shop for, three months carrying a hair dryer in the back seat of her car.

SOUGHT NEW SITE

When the new townsite began to develop she got permission to build a small shop there, but only on a squatter basis pending preparation of the commercial section.

She and her husband, who runs a coin laundry, made early application for six of the lots and understood they would receive first consideration when the northern affairs department sold the land.

Now the government has decided to auction the parcels, with a reserve bid of $250 on each lot, giving first chance to businesses located in Hay River before the flood, second to Hay River residents wishing to start a business and third to any other interested parties.

"Sure the government helped us out after the flood," says Mrs. Labossiere. "But they're going to get it back through this. We haven't a chance now."

The auction is planned for this spring before essential draining and filling of land in the proposed commercial section are carried out and before sewer lines are laid.

"Nobody ever knows what they'll be getting until that work is done," says Mayor Stewart.

Mr. White, speaking as a government representative, concedes "there is some resentment" about restrictions on building or extending new homes on Vale Island. However, by next fall, we should have 50 per cent of the population living in the new subdivision."

Adds area administrator Jack Taylor: "People tell you they'll do this and that and then they don't do anything unless given some direction by the government."

Making Scale Models Proves To Be Profitable

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) The kind of buildings Jack Lindsay constructs are only a few inches high.

He heads a profitable business as one of Canada's few professional model engineers, making scale models in miniature for industry.

Mr. Lindsay is a former member of a small group of engineers in England who work only in miniature. The only one of the group to come to Canada, he established Lindsay Models and Metalcraft here in 1959.

Since then, the company has turned out everything from a topographical model of the canyon walls of the Peace River to a design model of a downtown redevelopment for a western Canadian city.

He also has done pulp mill projects, conveyor systems and even a ship model commissioned by a Vancouver woman as a gift for her husband.

Mr. Lindsay, joined the Rolls Royce aircraft engine division as an engineer in England, making scale models, antique car parts and various gadgets as a hobby. Then he saw an exhibition of working models of machinery put together by a model engineering society and joined the group.

"The more complex a project, the more difficult for any single person is it to get a complete grasp of it," he says. "It may be that no one has realized all the implications in a set of drawings for an industrial project. So if a picture is worth 1,000 words, a three - dimensional model is worth 1,000 pictures."

Model engineering isn't all fun, however. "It's the most difficult business I have ever been in."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Another "first" for this city is the formation of the Quinte Western Horse Association, a meddling youngster that gives promise of burgeoning into a lusty manhood.

Actually the association is a Confederate rebel which broke away from the Union blue of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club and decided to run its own show.

While it is generally conceded that the decision to operate independently was a general one, the fact that Don McMartin, a staunch member of the club, trained one or two of his quarter horses as four-legged deer stalkers may have had something to do with it.

A rule governing the shooting of elusive stags or bucks from the pompoint of a fleet, but high-strung Dobbin not found in the constitutions of blue-blooded saddle associations.

But that is beside the point. There is nothing in the governmental rule-books that deal with deer-hunting that says a horse cannot seek his antlered quarry astride his favorite nag.

In fact the success of cavalryman McNevin last season when he brought down two deer from his saddle command post could lead to an adoption of this method of hunting.

I would not be surprised to see within the next few years a troop of fully-equipped deer-hunting Horsers leave the city for the forest floors of the northland.

In serious vein I "sat in" on a recent meeting of the new Western Horse Association and if enthusiasm and interest is any criterion, the future of the infant organization is assured.

I found it to be exceptionally well organized with a fine executive and a membership that proved by its willingness to discuss generally the agenda business that they are far from being "yes-men" and "yes-women."

What struck me was the large percentage of members of the distaff side that belong to the club. Also the number of teen-age girls whose interest in the proceedings was marked by their participation in agenda items discussion.

There seemed to be an attitude of prevailing independence on the part of all concerned. There were no expressions of criticism of the Driving and Riding Club but definite desire and willingness to lay the proper foundation for their new association.

There was a spirit of solid co-operation. Members asked to act as chairmen or members of working committees accepted the "jobs" on the spot. In most sports organizations you find people who come for decorative purposes, to offer advice and suggestions, then recoil in almost horror if they are asked to shed the coat, roll the sleeves and go to work.

If you will excuse a trite expression "you must crawl before you walk," that was the impression I received at this, the third meeting of the club since its formation.

The club is numerically small as yet, compared to the strong associations of Western Ontario. Its executive realizes that much must be done, training, horses, and show-wise before it can enter actual competition with its Western Ontario counterparts. This is a fine attitude.

But the executive realizes the potential. With such outstanding horsemen as McNevin, Ernie Colbourne, Morley Smith, Art Corfield and others as a foundation, the indication is that it will not be too long before the Quinte Western Horse Association takes its place among the better organizations of the province.

Its exhibition of showmanship, racing and other items on its performance agenda as seen at the Belleville Fair last year caught the public fancy. There are some fine horsemen and horsewomen on the club roster with youngsters on the way up.

With such a fine charter membership and executive and the co-operative spirit of all concerned, the facilities available and a determination to make the club one of the best, I fail to see anything but a bright future for the new Quinte Western Horse Association.

Rangers Tangle With Bruins ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Habs Meet Leafs In Big One Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Goyette has been undersaid this season and he'll likely miss out on the bonus money offered by the National Hockey League players.

But the 23-year-old New York Rangers centreman has no complaints.

"This has been a gratifying season," says friendly Phil, who has 22 goals and 39 points to date. "I've been to myself and everyone else that, with enough ice-time, I can get my share of points and help any team.

"If the Rangers think my play has been surprising, maybe they'll make up some of the bonus money I would have had from the playoffs."

The blueshirts aren't eliminated yet, but it'll take a miracle to save them. They are 15 points behind fourth-place Detroit and must win all their remaining six games while the Wings lose all five they have left to play.

Missing the Stanley Cup playoffs will be a new experience for Goyette, who was "traded baggage" with the Montreal Canadiens for seven seasons before being sent to New York last summer in the Plante-Worsley exchange.

PRONOUNCTION DROPPED OFF

He toiled in the shadows of the Bellveaus, Richards and Geoffrions during the Habs' powerhouse years. One season he scored 21 goals, but in his last three years with the club he collected a total of 18.

"They told me I was going to be traded, so I knew what to expect."

But Goyette says he would have quit if he had been sent to the minors.

"I've always been at the top and want to finish my career at the top."

What was surplus luggage on the jet - propelled Canadiens turned out to be a prize package for the single-engine Rangers. He ranked second to only Andy Bathgate in production and now that the latter is in Toronto, Goyette has moved into the room at the top.

The New York brass didn't expect that much when they signed Goyette for $12,000—probably making him one of the lowest-paid 20-goal scorers in the league today. Furthermore, it's a two-year deal and he's headed for the same salary next season.

HOPES FOR NEW PACT

Almost needless to say, Goyette hopes the Rangers will tear up the contract and start again.

The Rangers go into action tonight against Boston in New York and Toronto hosts slumping Montreal in the only two NHL games scheduled.

New York has called up defenceman-left wing Rod Selling from Toronto of the OHA Junior A, a highly-rated prospect they picked up in the five-for-Bathgate-and-McKenzey trade with the Maple Leafs. Selling played one game with New York last week, picking up an assist and impressing coach Red Sullivan.

The Montreal-Toronto clash is an important contest for both clubs and the Leafs will be without captain George Armstrong, still out with a shoulder injury. Frank Mahovlich, ill Tuesday and listed as a doubtful starter, said later he would be able to play.

Th Canadiens, winless in four straight games, are two points behind first place Chicago and will use up one of their two games in hand. If they lose, Monday's meeting in Montreal with the Hawks could be the most important game this season.

The Leafs, shut out by Charlie Hodge in their last three meetings with Montreal, need a win to escape the pressing Wings. Toronto is only two points ahead of Detroit, but has played one game less.

Wellington Romps Over Stinsons 14-7

Wellington trounced Stinson Construction 14-7 in a sloppy free-scoring affair at Wellington last night to grab a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Petros Zoward North Shore Hockey League finals.

Third game of the set is slated for Thursday night, at eight o'clock.

The winners outscored Stinson's in every period, to win 6-4 after one heat and 8-5 going into the final twenty minutes.

One Stinson goal occurred when the puck went high in the air, almost reaching the overhead lights, before dropping into the net behind the Wellington goalie, was typical of the night's play.

Gary Fyfe sparked Wellington's scoring parade with four goals and four assists, followed by Eldon Carson with three goals and two helpers. Joe Scott and Al Pentimalli each had two goals and one assist, Ed Rose one and two, Vic Allen one of each and Earl Bauer one goal.

Gary Genereaux scored twice and helped on two others for Stinson's. Billy Genereaux had a goal and two assists with the other markers going to George Daniels, Elgen Currie, Pete Mitchell and Arnold Weatherall.

Stinson's drew nine of the game's 16 minor penalties.

At The Training Camps

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bo Belinsky is as wild as a March hare.

At least he was Tuesday in his first start for Los Angeles Angels on the spring exhibition baseball schedule.

The southpaw who became a celebrity with a no-hitter in 1962, then slumped and was sent down to Hawaii in the Pacific Coast League last season, gave up only two hits and fanned four in a two-inning stint against Cleveland Indians.

In between, he issued three bases on balls, made a wild pitch and nearly beaned pitcher Dick Donovan of the Indians. And one of the two hits he yielded was a 450-foot homer by Wally Post with two on in the first inning. The wallop started Cleveland on the way to a 9-7 victory.

Belinsky blanked the Indians in the second inning by striking out the side after two walks. Bo was slated to work three innings but manager Bill Rigney removed him after the second "because he threw too many pitches."

San Francisco Giants beat Boston 5-1 at Phoenix for their fourth straight victory in the only other exhibition game Tuesday. Rookies Jesus Alou and Jim Hart starred for the Giants.

Alou tripled in the first and came home on Hart's sacrifice fly. In the seventh Alou beat out an infield single and Hart doubled him home to start a three-run uprising.

WARN U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The government newspaper Izvestia said Tuesday that if the new U.S. super-supersonic plane, the A-11, flies over Communist territory it will have the same fate as the U-2 shot down over the Soviet Union in 1960.

Fitness Council Studies Proposals

Sports Bodies Seek $1,200,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport concluded a two-day meeting here Tuesday during which members pondered more than 40 briefs from sports governing bodies asking for an estimated $1,200,000.

The fitness program has a budget of $3,000,000 this year, half of which is spent by the provinces.

In a departure from past years, the council's recommendations were not revealed at the close of the session.

A spokesman said Health Minister LaMarsh would make an announcement shortly.

The council, headed by chairman Ken Farmer of Montreal, heeds every year to study requests for money and to make recommendations on them to the government.

CENTRE CONSIDERED

In addition this year, the council studied proposals for a national sports centre and examined ways in which the fitness program could be integrated with the centennial program.

The spokesman said the council wasn't able to finish up all its business due to a heavy agenda and to the necessity of going over old ground to acquaint the council's six new members with its work.

He said another meeting probably will be held in the next few months.

One of the biggest demands on the council this year was one from the Canadian Amateur Sports Federation. It is asking for $700,000 to stage the first Canadian winter games in Quebec City and nearby Beauprc in 1968.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Basketball officials here and in Alberni on Vancouver Island are drawing up blueprints for a plan to stage a Canadian senior men's basketball tournament.

All they need is money and co-operation.

"We are prepared to host a tourney if there is a federal grant to basketball," chairman Norm Glogg said following a Vancouver Basketball Commission meeting.

Winnipeg originally offered to hold a tournament this year but turned out because of lack of money.

"With $5,000 for a start we could get out and raise the rest," Glogg said.

Gun-Toting Liston Nailed By Police

—Five Charges

DENVER (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston was arrested Tuesday night by a traffic officer who said Liston was driving 70 miles an hour in a 30-mile-an-hour zone.

Patrolman James Snider said after stopping Liston's Cadillac he found in a search of Liston that he was carrying a seven-shot .22-calibre pistol with six cartridges and an empty shell.

Snider, alone when he stopped Liston's car, said he had to call another patrol car for help in handcuffing Liston "when he became belligerent." He was taken in handcuffs to police headquarters.

Snider said he charged Liston with reckless and careless driving, speeding, carrying a concealed weapon and driving without a valid Colorado license. Liston was booked at the jail and released after posting $300 bond.

The officer said he didn't know who Liston was "until I got down to headquarters and one of the other officers who do knew him said: 'Hello Sonny.'"

Win Fifth Game 10-4

Picton Eliminates Flyers

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Picton Intermediates made every period a winning one as they clobbered the ECAF Trenton by a 10-4 score here last night to win the OHA Intermediate "B" championship. Picton took a 4-1 edge in the best of seven finals to win all the marbles.

Trenton gave an admirable display, even when down 6-1 in the last period, they were trying just as hard as if the score was reversed. It was not until the 2.01 mark of the last period that they could crack the armor of Tom O'Halloran in the Picton nets.

The game was indicative of the final score. Picton outplayed and outhustled the "Flyboys" in the first forty minutes, let down a little in the last frame, but did manage to score four goals. In the first two periods, Picton outshot the visitors by 29-15 margin as the last frame Trenton outshot them by 13-7.

There were only seven minor penalties in the game, all coming in the first two stanzas. Trenton took the only one.

Keith McDonald took possession from playing coach Davey Jones and Bob Fawcett to give Picton into a one goal lead at the 1.41 mark and from there on it was a case "by bow many".

Penalties hurt Trenton in the opening frame as Pug Reilly fired his first of two at the 6.49 mark, and Carl Stacey added the third first period goal at 9.13. Picton had the odd man advantage on both scores.

Picton fired three unanswered goals in the middle frame, with Bob Fawcett, Glen Schrader each potting one, and Kellar firing his second.

Trenton came out fighting in the final period, Jim Peterson taking O'Halloran's shut-out away from him at the 2.01 mark. Just ten minutes later, Mel Houston fired the second Trenton goal, before Carl Schrader fired his second of the night for Picton, at the 10.34 mark.

Doug Seymour drilled a shot past O'Halloran at the 11.45 mark. Davey Jones fired his only marker at 11.52. Jones scored one goal, assisted on four others and shared the scoring honors with Larry Petro who figured in five of his team's goals.

Seymour fired his second of the night at the 18.08 mark, and it took just 16 seconds for big Doug Murray to get that one back, when he blasted one in from close range. Rolland Berry rounded out the scoring when he belted home passes from Petro and Schrader at the 19.41 mark and that was that.

After the game, playing coach Davey Jones told the Intelligencer, "I don't haven't a clue as to who will supply our next opposition".

Junior Gilliam Waxes Nostalgic

New Dodgers Not Like 'Old Bums'

By JACK HAND

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jim Gilliam is the dean of Los Angeles Dodgers.

He still answers to "Junior" but at 35 the Dodger is several lifth years removed from the kid who drew the nickname because he was the youngest member of Baltimore Elite Giants in the late 1940s.

Today the dean, Gilliam has seniority over the skipper, Walter Alston, who joined the club in 1954, a year after Junior and Johnny Podres, 31, is the only other survivor from the 1953 crop.

"You just can't compare this club with the 1953-57 teams," Gilliam said in an idle moment. "On those clubs every man used to know what he was doing from A to Z. These are kids, still learning. Two old fellows had the ability plus the experience.

"Fellows like Roy Campanella, Jackie Robinson, Pee Wee Reese, Gil Hodges, Duke Snider, Billy Cox, Carl Furillo. They were the best in the league at their positions. Nobody was close. And we had a great bench and pinch hitters.

"Maybe in time these boys will be just as good. They have a lot of ability. But those fellows didn't make mistakes, didn't hurt themselves with mistakes."

A man observed that the current Dodgers could not match the old-timers in power. Gilliam agreed but with some reservations.

"They say this club doesn't have power," he said. "Nobody has power in Dodger Stadium. Put our club in San Francisco, St. Louis or Ebbets Field and see how many home runs we would hit. In Dodger Stadium 370 feet is nothing but a long out. So you try to change your swing and hit more line drives. There are not many Frank Howards around no place."

"If we played in a park with fences 325 or 330 feet, not just down the line but out into left centre and right centre, we would have four or five men hitting 20 to 25 home runs. Men like Ron Fairly, Tommy Davis, Willie Davis, Frank Howard and John Roseboro."

Courtney Scores Four

Habs, Hawks Win Openers

Yvan Cournoyer fired four goals as Montreal Junior Canadiens defeated Peterborough Petes 8-1 to open their best-of-seven quarter-final series in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs Tuesday night.

In the other scheduled game, St. Catharines Black Hawks took a 1-0 lead in their series by dumping Oshawa Generals 4-1.

The winners of these two series meet in the semi-finals with the victors gaining a berth in the finals against the winner of the Toronto Marlboros-Niagara Falls Flyers semi-final.

Jacques Lamaire, Rene Drolet, Mike Hyndman and Christian Bordeleau were the other Montreal marksmen as the Canadiens took advantage of a weak Peterborough defensive unit to score consistently.

Jim Sportt was the only Peterborough goal - getter. The Petes were without Ron Naud, their top scorer, who is sidelined with a shoulder injury. Two other players missed the plane because of adverse weather conditions.

Montreal scored an unanswered goal in the opening period, outscored the Petes 3-1 in the second and added four more in the third.

Fred Stanfield, Art Graham, Ken Laidlaw and Ken Hodge fired one goal each as Black Hawks walloped Oshawa crew. Laidlaw got the winner on a rink-length rush in the second period.

Ron Buchanan was the only Oshawa marksman.

A slugfest in the third period brought major penalties to Rick Gay of Oshawa and Laidlaw.

New Track At St. Kitts

Seek Winter Race Meets

TORONTO (CP) — Winter harness racing may be one of the attractions of the Garden City Raceway which is to open near St. Catharines later this year, John J. Mooney, managing director of the Jockey Club, indicated in an interview Tuesday.

"I've been an advocate of winter racing for three years," Mooney said, "and so far as I'm concerned, we'll have it soon."

Mooney said St. Catharines is accessible from Toronto and Buffalo and added: "There isn't much the people in Buffalo do in the winter and, as an attraction, it wouldn't have much competition."

The Garden City Raceway will be an addition to the Jockey Club's Greenwood Race-way here and Mohawk Raceway at Campbellville, 32 miles west of Toronto.

"It doesn't cost any more to race a horse in the winter than it does in the summer," Mooney said, with winter racing, horsemen have a chance to meet expenses and make money," Mooney said.

Saturday afternoon harness meets have been held this winter at Western Fair Raceway in London, Ont., and have met with success.

'Yaz' Gets Batting Tips

'Sliver' Talks, Bosox Listen

By CHARLES MAHER

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—The guy with No. 9 on his back, he's a few extra pounds up front, reluctantly stopped hitting fungoes to the Boston outfield and came over to pose for pictures.

Within a minute he was talking about hitting and four of five Red Sox were gathered around with an unpublished poets at the feet of the bard.

"Now the first rule of hitting is to get a good pitch to hit," said Ted Williams. "If the pitcher fools you with a ball that's over, you take until he's got two strikes on you.

"Then you concede that the pitcher is in the driver's seat, and you bring your bands up on that bat."

Among the listeners was Carl Yastrzemski, the American League batting champion. Now you'd figure he needs a lecture on hitting like Frank Howard needs elevator shoes.

KEPT LISTENING

But Yastrzemski kept listening. What he was a 22-year-old, the lecturer bit .406. In 1957, the same guy hit .388. Those are the two highest major league batting averages in the last third of a century.

"I'll probably be here a couple of weeks," Williams told a reporter after the picture session. "I'll talk about hitting to anybody who wants to listen.

"Most of the young players like to talk about it because it's the hardest thing to do consistently well in baseball. How often do you hear of an outfielder going into a long fielding slump?

"Now, to do any good here, I've got to be able to talk to a hitter without giving him the idea I'm trying to change his style. It's possible to be a good hitter with any style, short of standing on your head."

Williams is an executive assistant on the Boston staff.

Minor Hockey

Black Hawks captured their Squirt division semi-finals over Maple Leafs by a total score of 7-3 after topping the Leafs 4-3 last night.

A Mulvihill fired two Hawk goals with one each going to F. Fralick and W. Warner. T. Mulvihill and Fralick drew assists. Leaf marksmen were R. Muldoon, B. Creelman and G. Wilson, with assists.

In Tyke play, Barons and Browns ousted Leafs and Flyers.

Flygrs blanked the Browns 3-0 last night but still lost the round for the goals to four. M. Dales triggered all three Flygrs' goals.

Rangers nipped the Leafs 2-1 for a 3-2 victory on the series. L. White and J. Belanger scored for the Barons. W. Gibson potted the Leaf goal.

Peewee finals at 6 on tap in B.M.H.A. action tonight.

Petes Blanked By Kingston

Kingston Frontenac white-washed Peterborough Monarchs 6-0 in Kingston last night in the first game of the OHA Eastern Junior "B" group finals.

Second game in the best-of-seven affair will also be played in Kingston, on Friday night of this week.

Ballet or Baseball

This Is For The Birds!

ST. PETERBURG, Fla. (AP) — All the St. Louis Cardinals lined up in sixes.

At the word of a trim man in a white outfit, they raced toward the stands. Suddenly they turned, whirling like ballet dancers, and ran backwards. Nobody fell.

They repeated it over and over in the batting cage at Al Lang field. "Ain't they purty," said a coach with the immunity of the dugout.

The man in white was Walter Eberhardt, professor of physical education at St. Louis University.

The Cardinals stretched out on the grass and did push-ups until muscles groaned. They broke up into twos and one man did sit-ups while his partner held his feet.

For the finale of the 30-minute workout, the players sat in small circles. One was hoisted and rolled from one man to the next by feet.

Dick Groat volunteered and was tossed on his ear. Others got the same treatment.

"This is great," said Groat, the veteran shortstop. "My body really feels better."

"This is for the birds," said an anonymous Cardinal.

"They hate the push-ups," Eberhardt said. "Baseball is one of the most active sports but when a man hits a double or a triple, suddenly he needs to cut loose with everything he has. That is why we have been doing this for five years.

"In that time the club has not had a single minor injury. Of course they may get a broken arm or ankle or a torn muscle in the season but no minor injuries."

Czechs Tie Maroons 1-1

PRAGUE (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons tied Czechoslovakia's national hockey team for the second time in as many nights Tuesday as the two clubs played to a 1-1 save-all in Opava before a crowd of 6,000.

Murray Couch's goal for the touring Canadian club was matched by Bruda of Czechoslovakia in the first period.

The Czechs, who defeated Canada's Olympic Team-3-1 at Innsbruck, Austria, last month, downed the Maroons by the same score Sunday. They meet for the fourth time Thursday.

Apart from the two ties, the Maroons have won four games and lost two thus far on their 12-game European tour.

WINTER PRACTICE — Don McNeill, in the white shirt, has an early start at this year's golf season. A top amateur from Winnipeg's Niakwa Golf Club, McNeill has his stances corrected by professional Steve Cikaliuk at a winter school run by Cikaliuk and Bill Whibley on the second floor of a downtown Winnipeg furrier's building. By BOB PARKINS

WINNIPEG (CP)—It used to be that when the fairways became blanketed with snow, the average golf professional would hang up his clubs and go into hibernation until spring.

He might sigh enviously while reading of the activities of the touring pros down south. And if he could afford it, he might take off for a few weeks in search of the sun.

But times have changed and across the country winter golf schools are spring up, often in the most unexpected quarters.

Winnipeg pros Bill Whibley and Steve Cikaliuk have set up operations on the second floor of a furrier's building in downtown Winnipeg. And their clients range from raw duffers to polished amateurs.

Whibley is the veteran pro at Pine Ridge Golf Club and the fast-rising young Cikaliuk is a first-year pro at Elmhurst Golf and Country Club.

Twelve hours a day, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., the pair instruct in the fundamentals of putting, pitching, chipping and driving. They have 85 students enrolled.

SHOOT AT NETS

The enrolment fee qualifies a member for eight lessons but he may drop in any time to work on his shots.

This is Cikaliuk's first experience of winter golf schools but Whibley ran one in 1957 with Len Harvey and had a successful season.

Whibley's brother Frank also conducts one in Kitchener, Ont., and there are two other winter schools in the Metropolitan Winnipeg area, one sponsored by the school board and the St. James YMCA.

Whibley emphasizes, however, that while the rival schools use only the lightweight practice golf balls, his school goes with the standard ball in training sessions.

There are five nets for driving practice and others for practising various other shots.

The school operates until March 28, by which time Whibley and Cikaliuk will begin thinking of returning to the scene of the water hazards and rough.

Bulldogs Shade Maroons

WINDSOR (CP) — Bob Brown's third successive winning goal on home ice was the margin Tuesday as Windsor Bulldogs defeated Chatham Maroons 3-2 in an International Hockey League game.

The victory boosted fourth-place Windsor seven points ahead of Des Moines and Muskegon in the battle for the league's final playoff berth.

Tom Walker and Jean Asselin scored the other Windsor goals. Dave Lochuk and Al Cleary tallied for Chatham. Brown's goal broke a 2-2 tie in the third.

NICKLAUS TOP WINNER

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus holds a slight lead over Arnold Palmer in money winnings so far this year, the Professional Golfers Association reported Tuesday. Nicklaus has won $12,100 in three tournaments while Palmer has earned $11,850 in six tournaments. Mason Rudolph is third with $11,431.

Ottawa Montagnards exploded with six goals in the second period Tuesday to snuff out Hull Volants 8-4 and move into the Ottawa - St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League finals.

The win gave Montics a 4-3 edge against Hull in their best-of-seven semi-final series.

The semi-final game between Kingston Aces and Morrisburg Combines was cancelled when Kingston arrived more than an hour late. Admission price was refunded to more than 1,200 fans who had come to see the fourth game in the best-of-five series. Kingston leads two games to one.

Hull led 1-0 at the end of the first period but saw their slim margin evaporate in the second which ended 4-3.

Ottawa marksmen were Guy Besuregard, Duane Beedle, Ian Anderson, Billy Watson, Mike Fitzpatrick, Rollie Larock, Al Stitt and Bill Crawford.

Hull scorers were Hillary Lawiesa, Jules Selisle, Chris Finnerty and Gilbert Seguin.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics reached the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals Tuesday by roasting to an easy 6-2 win over Welland Buriosks in the fourth of a best-of-seven semi-final series.

Hornets, who were deadlocked 2-2 going into the final period against the Regals, exploded for six unanswered goals to gain their third victory.

Bob McKnight added a pair for Galt while Bert Brown, Jack McKnight and Pete Kawalchuk fired one each.

Larry Pfaff counted both of Guelph's markers.

Gord Samgson sparked the Athletics with two goals. Goose Land, Bobby Robinson, Toby Black and Bob Zimmer got the others.

Legion Curling

Three Rinks Tie For Top

CALGARY (CP) — A missed last - rock takeout cost New Brunswick a share of the second-round lead Tuesday night in the Canadian Legion national curling championships.

The miss gave Manitoba an 8-7 victory and sent the winners into a three-way tie for first place with Alberta and Ontario, all with two victories in as many starts.

New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia broke even in their opening-day matches while Nova Scotia, Quebec and Newfoundland trailed the round-robin competition with two straight losses.

Homer Thompson's Pine Falls, Man., foursome had the closest call among the leaders, blowing a three-point lead in the ninth end to trail by one coming home before the miscue by the Moncton crew enabled them to squeak through.

The Manitobans had edged Newfoundland 11-9 in the opening draw while New Brunswick downed Nova Scotia 10-7.

Alberta joined the leaders with comfortable 16-6 and 11-4 decisions over P.E.I. and Nova Scotia while Ontario edged B.C. 11-10 and swamped Quebec 14-6. Saskatchewan shaded Quebec 9-8 and lost to P.E.I. 10-8 in the other matches.

Aces Slip By Indians

QUEBEC (CP) — Ed Hockstra's overtime goal gave Quebec Aces a 4-3 win over Springfield Indians Tuesday in the American Hockey League.

Hockstra's tally in the final minute of over-time before 4,378 wildly cheering fans, came as Aces had a max advantage.

The winning goal was Hockstra's second of the night and brought his season total to 19.

Aces held a wide margin of play and outshot the visitors 35-25 with Bruce Gamble in the Indians' net playing a standout game.

The win was the second this week by the Aces over Springfield.

Also scoring for the Aces were Bill Sutherland and Wayne Hicks.

John Rodger, Bill Sweeney and Brian Kilrea scored for Springfield.

Bills Lost $300,000 Last Year

BUFFALO (AP) — Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of Buffalo Bills, said Tuesday his American Football League team lost "in the neighborhood of $300,000 last season" while leading the league in attendance.

During the AFL's four seasons, he said, the Bills have lost "more than $1,000,000."

Wilson discussed the club's financial position at a session of Buffalo's common council. The council is considering expansion of the Bills' home park, War Memorial Stadium.

"No club in the league has made a profit since it was formed," Wilson said.

"By 1968 or 1969, the franchise might find itself at barely a break-even point. In our opinion, it is no longer feasible to operate in a stadium of only 35,000 seating capacity."

CHICAGO (AP) — A group headed by Texas oilman Nash Dowdle, 40, is seeking a Chicago franchise in the American Football League.

A news conference has been set for today to announce plans of Dowdle and his associates to acquire a Chicago AFL berth.

This is the second bid for a Chicago AFL franchise within a week.

Taylor Trainer Suspended
Stewards Probe Drug Case

MIAMI (AP) — Gulfstream Park stewards will rule today in the case of Horatio Luro, widely known horse trainer suspended when traces of a drug were found in one of his horses.

Leonard Mellon, assistant attorney general, said late Tuesday he had conferred with the stewards and they should have a ruling Wednesday. He did not indicate what the findings might be but said he had been in touch with Fred Ayres, attorney for the Florida State Racing Commission.

The stewards were startled Tuesday when an attorney disclosed Luro, trainer of Canadian - bred Northern Dancer, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, was suspended under a rule held unconstitutional 17 years ago.

The attorney, Dan Chappell, produced a Florida Supreme Court decision of May 6, 1947, which held that the rule making a trainer personally responsible for anything that happens to his horse denied him the right of due process.

BROKE UP HEARING

The revelation broke up a hearing to determine whether Luro should be barred from the tracks for the balance of the Florida racing season on a horse drugging charge.

Luro had been suspended temporarily when a urinalysis on Guy Lothario, taken after the horse won Wednesday's 10th race at Gulfstream, revealed the presence of a drug.

The stewards suspended Luro under the rule which makes a trainer responsible for his horses, regardless of any action by a third party.

Veteran Dr. Francis Southard testified that he administered a drug containing procaine to Guy Lothario in treatment of a throat infection, without Luro's knowledge and unaware that the horse was to race.

Another Trainer, Joe Pierce Jr., was suspended Monday under the rule. He was charged with negligence in connection with the use of a drug on Tamarin, winner of the third race at Hialeah last Tuesday.

Mrs. D. Johnston gave a report of the membership drive and said results had been most satisfactory.

The following officers were appointed: president — Harold Milne. 1st vice-president — Gerald Mitchell; secretary — A. McCook; treasurer — R. Seymour; social convener — Mrs. G. Mitchell.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford Pentecostal Church held its annual Sunday School banquet in St. John's United Church auditorium Saturday with a record 204 persons in attendance.

Guests at the banquet included Morden McMillan, reeve of Seymour township; the Rev. W. B. Greenwood, superintendent of Eastern Ontario and Quebec for the Pentecostal church; and Rev. R. Upton, pastor of Gospel Temple, Scarborough.

Also at the head table were pastors and their wives from a number of nearby churches. Mayor Morley Tanner of Campbellford, was unable to attend due to illness. Visitors were on hand from Norwood, Havelock, Marmora, Stirling, Frankford, Trenton, Belleville, Brighton and Warksworth.

The Catchpoule family of St. Thomas, provided music and songs during the evening, and children of the Campbellford Pentecostal church also took part in the program.

Rev. W. B. Greenwood gave a short resume of the work and progress of the church in recent years, and Mr. Upton gave a timely message on the necessity of a close affiliation with the church in man's everyday living, particularly at the present time. He urged that the young and old alike prepare themselves for the climax of the hope of the church — "the coming again of the Lord".

Bank Building Now Beginning To Take Shape

PICTON (Staff) — The new Bank of Nova Scotia building beside the Post Office is slowly starting to take shape. There have been countless delays, most of which can be blamed on no one.

The main difficulty was when they started excavating, they were afraid the small building to the north of the site, would fall into the excavation. Then when they shored that up, the weather did not co-operate.

The contractor, working between the cold spells, has managed to get the 12-inch walls poured, and the steel for the cement floor in place. The blocks and bricks are all on the site, covered with plastic against the almost zero temperatures on Tuesday.

The worst part is over now, and if we ever get a break in this cold weather, we will go right ahead," said an official of the contractor.

FISH FOR FOOD

Penguins are so accustomed to fishing for food that even a starving bird probably would not recognize its favorite delicacy—shrimp—out of water.

Teaching by TV At University Said Success

FREDERICTON (CP) — Experimental work in teaching by television at the University of New Brunswick includes piping special training classes to a study room of the New Brunswick Telephone Company 60 miles from here.

The university operates two closed - circuit television hookups. One is strictly an on-campus effort, with professors instructing certain student groups and answering questions by remote control.

The other is a link between a UNB classroom and the telephone company offices. This system offers employees specialized training in electronics. It is a one-way channel.

The program has been termed highly successful by two of its chief administrators, UNB Prof. J. D. Dineen, dean of engineering, and B. W. Cosman, the telephone company's chief engineer.

Prof. Dineen feels the method has "real possibilities" under certain conditions, such as extension work. However, he emphasizes it will "never replace the teacher in the classroom."

India's Communists Start Fasting as Political Weapon

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—India's Communists have suddenly started borrowing heavily from the passive resistance techniques of Mahatma Gandhi.

Bombay, the industrial hub of the country, has become the scene of a Communist experiment in fasting as a political weapon. Mahatma Gandhi resorted to fasting, sometimes for as long as three weeks, to highlight what he thought were the injustices of foreign rule.

The Communist party is organizing "relay fasting" in Bombay. Each group of selected passive resisters fasts for three days. The Reds hope to keep the relay going until their basic political demands are met.

The demands include nationalization of all banks, measures to bring down the high food prices, a 25-per-cent wage increase for low-income groups and release of all Communists arrested after the Chinese invasion in 1962.

Bombay's busy Flora Fountain traffic junction was selected for a three-day demonstration of public fasting. A score of Red leaders lay at the foot of the marble statue of Flora on 33 rope cots from each of which fluttered the hammer and sickle.

The Communist party was disappointed at the public response to the Flora Fountain experiment. Though hundreds of thousands of office workers pass through the Flora Fountain area each day, at no time were more than 100 spectators gathered round the fasting Red leaders.

The party also is organizing a six-day non-stop hunger-strike by party members and followers. It also has announced that 1,000 men and women will squat on the road in front of the Council Hall, the legislative buildings.

With the Will to Work

'You Can't Miss in Canada' Says Self-Made Millionaire

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Roy Conover Hill has a simple formula for success:

"If you like your work and have the will to work and providing your desire for leisure is not too great, then you can't miss in Canada."

Mr. Hill, who started with next to nothing and now heads envelope and stationery-manufacturing enterprises with annual sales of more than $15,000,000, is a product of his own formula.

His liking for work and his will to work, however, are so much part of him that he rarely consciously thinks of them.

He seemed easy to me to build this business," he said. "But when I am asked how it was done I have to stop and ask myself."

Then, looking across the desk at which he had been, since 7:45 a.m., he said quietly, "It's nice here, I like it."

Willingness to give up leisure doesn't mean all work and no play in Mr. Hill's philosophy. A brisk-stepping, youthful 71, he fishes, hunts, bowls, golfs and plays bridge as enthusiastically as he works.

An acquaintance says of him: "He is a man who has a lot of fun as he goes along putting his business together."

STARTED IN 1915

Mr. Hill is president of Hilroy Envelope and Stationery Ltd., with main plant in Toronto and other facilities in Winnipeg and Vancouver; Hilroy, Jr., owns Canadian Stationery Co. Ltd., Joliette, Que., bought in 1950; Canada Envelope Co. Ltd., Montreal, which has a branch in Stellarton, N.S., bought in 1951; and Toronto Envelope Co. Ltd., also bought in 1951.

They employ more than 700 people and make envelopes, stationery and school supplies. Brand names include Hilroy, and Eaton, Crane and Pike.

Mr. Hill started all this in 1915 with four employees in a small operation on Toronto's Wellington Street. For capital he had $425 borrowed on a life insurances policy and $1,500 raised by his parents through a mortgage on their home.

In the evening his wife would bring their six-months-old baby to the plant, make the baby comfortable in a basket of paper, and then the two of them would work at packages the writing pads produced during the week.

"Everyone in the business laughed at me and said I would lose my shirt," Mr. Hill recalls. However, by 1919 he was shipping to the Maritime provinces and, by 1922, to Western Canada.

STILL ON TARGET

He operates on five-year programs and says: "I set my sights high and tell my people what I have in mind. It works out well. Every 10 years that's 1918 sales have doubled. I was told 10 years ago this couldn't continue, but we are still doing it."

One of his pet themes is "volume."

"Nowadays, some people say to go after only business that yields a good profit. My idea is get volume. Get it anyway once you have it maybe you can turn a low profit into a fair profit; but if you don't get the business you can't do anything with it."

Other themes include: Treat your customers and employees so that they will stay with you even when others are trying to tempt them away; and always have the latest machinery.

On the internal front, an employee's handbook says: "If you feel strange in your new job or in your new surroundings, don't let it bother you. All of us had the same feeling when we began."

Mr. Hill bowls every Tuesday evening in a company league in which his team partners, changing every six months, may be a machine operator, a salesman, a typesetter or a shipper. "It helps you to get to know your people," he says.

SHARES PROFITS

Ten years ago a profit-sharing plan was adopted at Hilroy. After income tax and payment of a five-per-cent return on capital employed in the company, profits are split 50-50 between employees and shareholders. In the 10 years 1954-63 the employees' share was nearly $1,500,000.

Mr. Hill was born at King, north of Toronto, the son of Joseph W. and Harriet Hill. He was educated at King Public School and high, in Toronto, at night schools.

In 1915 he married Elsie Grace Sayer of Toronto, and next Feb. 6 they will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. They have two daughters, Dorothy Grace, now Mrs. C. C. Hopper, and Mabel Bernice, now Mrs. John Coulter, both of Toronto.

Mr. Hill's outside activities include membership in Masonic and two-score organizations. In the Masonic Order he is a member of Masonic Lodge No. 941, Toronto, Rameses Shrine and the Royal Order of Jesters.

His son-in-law, Douglas Hopper, is president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association for more than 40 years.

TV Networks Move Into New Hampshire Like Army

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The television networks moved into New Hampshire like an army on maneuvers for covering a presidential election.

Tuesday night was just like 1960. The mazes of computers were back in stage position and so were the boards with the changing vote figures.

Because of the computers, the suspense was over early in the evening. Before 7:30 p.m. EST, the electronic machines had digested early returns and the commentators were off a little about the Lodge victory as if all the votes had been counted.

The early evening special programs on CBS and NBC, therefore, were much more concerned with analysis of the speculation than with other aspects of the election.

NBC, with all its top commentators on the job, used its staff for forecasts and predictions on the men, issues and coming events.

DOZES AGAIN

CBS pulled in some interesting outside experts. Political pollster Louis Harris did a brief analysis on the way the vote was chopping into Rockefeller and Goldwater strength. On a second show, he amplified that, to say flatly that the Lodge victory meant a repetition of the two avowed candidates by New Hampshire Republicans.

David Brinkley of NBC, explaining the reason for the enormous turn-out for the New Hampshire primary, suggested it was partly because it was the first one in the election year and also because "it's still season of the year between football and baseball and besides it's fun to see millionaires stumping through the snow being folksy."

Recommended tonight:

Young People's Concert, CBS, 7:30-8:30 p.m. EST — The New York Philharmonic Orchestra and Leonard Bernstein in a program of jazz.

Car Failed To Negotiate Long Curve

CAMPBELLFORD—Two Scarborough residents were hospitalized here Saturday night after their small German car went out of control and crashed into a ditch on county road 31, three miles south of here.

Police said the car, travelling north, failed to negotiate a long curve, ripped out a highway stop sign and a commercial sign and came to rest in the ditch, a complete write-off.

Albert Lucien Bedard, 53 of Scarborough received face and scalp lacerations, and his passenger, Bertha Alexander, 49, suffered a fractured pelvis.

Both were treated at the scene by Campbellford doctor T. K. Hackett and removed by ambulance to Campbellford Hospital.

The condition of both was reported as 'good' today. OPP Constable Eugene Dewey of the Campbellford detachment investigated.

Negotiations On Salaries Are Completed

CAMPBELLFORD — The board of the North East Northumberland District High School here reported on the weekend that salary negotiations had been concluded and the following schedule was now in effect:

Category I: Min. $4,800; max. $8,400. Category 2: Min. $5,100; max., $8,700. With additional certificates, $5,600 to $9,600, and $6,000 to $10,000.

The board also decided that extensive renovations would be carried out to school grounds to improve facilities for their use by the health and physical education department.

A report of a survey made by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation informed the board that it is rated "excellent" in attitude toward education improvement and staff relations.

The application of Gordon Curle as an addition to the caretaking staff was accepted, and the board decided that whenever possible, purchases for the school would be made locally.

Screen's Most Glamorous Ladies Have Been Cary Grant's Love Partners In Films

Debonair and charming Cary Grant has romanced many of the most glamorous actresses in the world during his screen career.

"Charade," the Stanley Donen Technicolor production for Universal, opening today at the Belle Theatre in Belleville, is Cary ,Grant's 61st motion picture and the comedy murder mystery team is his romantically for the first time with lovely Audrey Hepburn. It's a whimsical, frivolous, give-and-take screen love affair, and it's certain Cary and Audrey will ignite new love sparks as a movie love team.

The list of charmers whom Carey has wooed and won since he first appeared before the camera includes the Who's Who of the screen's lovely ladies.

Grant, in his first Hollywood picture, "This is The Night," appeared opposite the vivacious French charmer, Lily Damita and the blonde and statuesque Thelma Todd. The stinky, seductive Mae West spotted Cary on the Paramount lot and selected him as her leading man in "She Done Him Wrong," incidentally, you'll recall that Cary was the lad Mae invited to "Come up and See Me Some time," and described as "tall, dark and handsome." Another by request, again appeared opposite La West in "I'm No Angel".

Cary appeared with the aristocratic Katharine Hepburn in "Sylvia Carlett." They brought a different kind of romance to the screen and they re-teamed in "Bringing Up Baby", "Holiday" and "The Philadelphia Story".

For a distinct change of pace in "When You're In Love," Cary's ex-wife was the tempestuous opera singer Grace Moore. Then there was "Suzy" in which he appeared with Jean Harlow. Cary and the petite Irene Dunne were a favorite romantic team in "The Awful Truth," and "My Favorite Wife" and "Penny Serenade".

The public reacted enthusiastically to the brittle, sparkling love scenes enacted by Cary and Rosalind Russell in such gay farces as "His Girl Friday", Grace Kelly later to become the Princess Grace of Monaco, was the girl Cary

AT THE PARK — Stirlingite — Stern Bergman, Swedish actress co-stars with Jackie Gleason in "Soldier in the Rain," the hilarious warming comedy of life in the present day army. They play sergeant buddies. The hilarious comedy opens today at the Park Theatre. On the same program a big scale outdoor drama starring Audie Murphy in color "Gunfight at Commanche Creek". Complete shows for both at Belleville showing Miss 9pm 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

courted in "To Catch A Thief". In "Indiscreet" the warm and lovely Ingrid Bergman was the girl who fell into his arms. Cary Grant is an urbane and civilviron man who smiles discreetly when he and he sandwiches his favorite partner in screen love scenes.

No-screen love scenes are like off-screen romances. A gentleman never kisses and tells," he answers.

CBC-TV's Festival will repeat its telecast of a 90-minute dramatization of Katherine Anne Porter's "Pale Horse, Pale Rider" March 18.

Little-Known Actress Academy Award Nominee

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's Cinderella story concerns a Viennese actress who has starred in two of mature years and girlish manner. The only trouble is that Cinderella hasn't made it to the ball.

A fortnight ago the academy award nominations were announced, and one nominee was Lilia Skala for her role as the head nun in Lilies of the Field.

She received congratulations at New York's City Center Theatre where she works—in the lost and found department. She's still there among the forgotten galoshes and umbrellas, toiling for $1.50 an hour. But this is a mere interlude in the amazing life of Lilia.

Her reaction to the nomination?

"Of course I am thrilled—I did not expect it. I did not even think about it. I have known too many disappointments in my life to count on anything."

Her life began in Austria, but don't tell her that. "I am a New Yorker in Austria," she says.

After her marriage to a Jewish manufacturer, she was able to satisfy her passion for acting when she appeared in Austrian films. She came to America after the Hitler takeover, and her acting roles were interspersed with jobs as waitress, saleswoman and babysitter.

She had featured roles in Call Me Madam and the Diary of Anne Frank on Broadway and important parts in television—but these also were long periods of idleness.

Miss Skala was enduring such a period 18 months ago when she read a newspaper item that Ralph Nelson was casting for a new film. She had worked for Nelson on the I Remember Mama television series, and she sent him a note that she would like to be in his movie.

Nelson came through with the plum role of the mother superior in Lilies of the Field.

Did her fortunes change?

"No," she says. "Last year I did one co-starring role in The Nervous Set, an off-Broadway soap opera. It was my worst year since I had come to America."

But things seem to be picking up. Stanley Kramer has said he wants her for Ship of Fools. And the Oscar night April 13 will bring her more attention.

SUPPORT PEACE FORCE

OTTAWA (CP) — The World Federalists of Canada Tuesday asked Prime Minister Pearson to pledge immediate support to a United Nations peacekeeping effort in Cyprus. In a letter to Mr. Pearson, the executive committee of the organization said that the conditions laid down by Canada for participation "must be subsequent to the immediate need for endless talk, avoidance of civil war and containing a conflict which could well extend beyond Cyprus."

Nelson Rockefeller Appears To Have Hopped Ahead of Goldwater for Nomination

WASHINGTON (CP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller appears to have hopped ahead of ultra-conservative Barry Goldwater in the 1964 Republican popularity contest. But that by itself doesn't add complete assurance that the wealthy New York governor will get the party's presidential nomination next July.

Both the smiling New Yorker and the stiff - lipped Arizona senator face an uphill battle. At their backs are other Republican presidential aspirants, all hoping to get the convention nod, in July in San Francisco, to defeat Lyndon B. Johnson for the White House in November's presidential election.

With the Democrats solidly behind Johnson, there appears to be little doubt Johnson will be the Democratic standard-bearer at the party convention in August.

But the Republican party is so fractured in its field of potential presidential candidates so crowded that everyone appears to be running indicator in the hope of finding a candidate the party could solidly support.

Rockefeller's problem is that he has a divorced man who has married another divorcee. Goldwater's problem is that he presents a right-wing, nationalistic policy that appears to be losing appeal among the masses.

LOOK TO PRIMARIES

These and others, such as Richard M. Nixon, Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and perennial loser Harold Stassen, are looking to the primaries to provide them with pyramiding support, following the same path that the late president John F. Kennedy used in 1960.

Running from March 10 in New Hampshire to June 2 in California, the primaries in 16 states are in essence elections among state - party supporters for a slate of convention delegates favoring some particular presidential aspirant.

In some states, the delegates are firmly pledged to support the candidate for at least two ballots. In most other states the delegates can switch support to other candidates if their candidate can't get enough votes to have a spring leg in May with several groups invited.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Russell.

PLAN NEW BRAND

Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd. has announced it will introduce a new brand of cigarettes in mid-March containing coupons in its package. Each package will carry a coupon which smokers may collect and exchange for gifts. The company said three major U.S. companies offer premiums and that a coupon brand introduced in Britain late in 1962 became a best-seller almost immediately.

SOLD TO SHELL

El Paso Natural Gas Products Co. marketing and refining properties were sold to Shell Oil Co. Monday for a reported $37,000,000. Included in the sale were refining properties at Ciniza, N.M., Odessa, Tex., and El Paso and Flanx service stations in west Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Utah.

SALES RISE

Bathurst Power and Paper Co. Ltd. today announced in their annual report for 1963 that consolidated net sales increased to $44,008,280 from $42,782,289 the previous year. Consolidated net profit was $1,933,960 compared with $1,819,860 in 1963. After declaring dividends on preferred stock, the earnings a common share were $1.44 compared with 96 cents.

Today Is Said Crucial For Ontario Tobacco Men

TORONTO (CP) — Today is a crucial one for Ontario tobacco growers.

The Ontario Flue-cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board is expected to decide today when three auction centres, shut down by farmers protests Feb. 28, will be reopened.

The board has announced it hopes to be in a position Friday "to resolve the situation."

It abruptly closed down operations at auction exchanges in Aylmer, Delhi and Tillsbhurg 13 days ago to avoid violence after hundreds of growers demonstrated against what they called fluctuating market prices. The Aylmer exchange was closed after police received a false bomb threat.

There were unconfirmed reports that a majority of the marketing board favored a resumption of tobacco bidding by next Monday.

The board was to meet privately with Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart in the legislative building today.

The minister met with buyers from eight tobacco companies Tuesday in an effort to clarify the marketing problems mentioned by growers. No statement was issued after the talks.

However, one company spokesman said after the meeting that buyers want the auctions reopened as much as, if not more, than some growers.

About two-thirds of the 1963 Ontario crop has been sold but there are need to acquire more of it to build up their stocks, he added. Approximately 63,000,000 pounds of tobacco worth nearly $32,000,000, still is to be sold.

The spokesman said international tobacco companies might start buying from Rhodesia instead of Ontario if exchanges remain closed. International companies usually buy about one-fifth of the Ontario crop.

Three major companies have warned that if the exchanges remain closed beyond today up to 1,000 workers will be laid off at area tobacco plants.

A number of farmers are worried that if the stalemate continues large supplies of tobacco still in the barns will spoil when warm weather begins.

In London Tuesday night, Middlesex county council was told that some farmers in the county have appealed to their townships for a reduction in assessments. The farmers have said they are near bankruptcy because they are unable to sell their tobacco crops.

There also is a conflict between growers who want a continuation of this year's free auction — or open market system while others advocate a return to the minimum price grading system which was in force up until this season.

Farmers complained that tobacco that sold for 60 cents a pound one day dropped as low as three cents another day under the new system.

NOT THE GOBI — Harold Merilees, general manager of the Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau, has protested to the department of transport, that this mural in the new Edmonton International Airport indicates the West Coast is inhabited by a collection of idiots. For the new Vancouver airport he said: "I want something that tells you that you are in Vancouver — not in the middle of the Gobi Desert." (CP Photo)

Art Trend in Some Airport Terminals Sends Manager Of B. C. Bureau Into a Rage

VANCOUVER (CP)—The art trend in some of Canada's new airport terminals sends Harold Merilees into a rage.

Mr. Merilees, general manager of the Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau and sworn enemy of the "modernistic blob," is so upset he is protesting the decor of Vancouver's new terminal before it is built.

"I don't want it messed up by a bunch of idiotic faces with stupid grins and goo-goo eyes."

Mr. Merilees says he became "irate" when he flew to Edmonton to address the Alberta Tourist Association and got his first glimpse at the Edmonton terminal.

"It was quite a shock. The decor doesn't tell you anything about Edmonton or Alberta. It is in the style of international meaninglessness. The master mural is just a modernistic blob."

Most painful, says Mr. Merilees, was a panel behind the Trans-Canada Air Lines ticket counter representing Vancouver —and consisting in his view of "caricatured faces with vacuous, silly expressions."

NOT ALL IDIOTS

Mr. Merilees fired off a letter to the department of transport. In it, he said:

"While we realize everyone can't quarrel with modern art I do hope from a standpoint of decor and color that the new Vancouver air terminal gets the kind of treatment it requires.

"We certainly hope that you do not forget the early Spanish and Indian cultures that have so definitely left their imprint on this part of Canada. . . .

"I must say that I took a very dim view indeed of the (Edmonton) panel allegedly symbolizing Vancouver. To refresh your memory it consisted of a group of caricatured faces with vacuous, silly expressions that would seem to indicate this part of the world was inhabited by a collection of idiots.

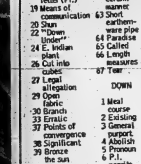
"I admit we have our share but I don't think they are in the majority."

Mr. Merilees says he feels the new Vancouver airport's art should be recognizable and distinctive, and truly illustrative of British Columbia.

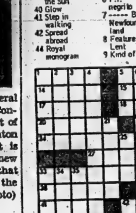
"I detest the complete surrender to uniformity. When you've seen one of these bolos you have seen them all. I want something that tells you that you are in Vancouver—not in the middle of the Gobi desert."

"Jest a Second"

"All this talking must have made you thirsty — who's for a saucer of milk?"



SERVES DRINKS



OAMARU, N.Z. (CP) — At an xero club pageant here, a woman with two small children wandered by mistake into the airport VIP lounge and asked the man in attendance for two bottles of soft drink. Civi Aviation Minister J. K. McAlpine wasn't the least disconcerted. He found a case of soft drinks, handed over two bottles, requested a shilling and sent the party on its way.

P.E.I. Wildlife Park Dream Of Native of St. Stephen, N.B.

By ED SMITH

NORTH RUSTICO, P.E.I. (CP)—The scream of a lynx shatters the stillness of the night and the hare-lailed deer and yearling caribou shrink nervously back among the leafless alders.

The lynx's answer is a snarl and it's followed by the long-drawn howl of the timber wolf. Then silence.

It is the silence that this land of Green Gables has been most accustomed to on a snowy winter night. The alien sounds come from inside an 87-acre enclosure — ponds, fields and forest — that make up this province's first wildlife park.

Officially opened last July by Premier Walter Shaw and former lieutenant-governor F. W. Hyndman, P.E.I. Wildlife Park Inc. gives most visitors their first close-up view of live wild animals bigger than the indigenous muskrat and rabbit and the spring-visiting seal.

The park was the dream of Charles Omar Bartlett, 41, a native of St. Stephen, N.B. who resigned his position with the ornithology branch of the Canadian Wildlife Service at Sackville, N.B., to go into the park venture.

AIDS UNDERSTANDING

Says Bartlett's president and general manager of the park company:

"I think most professional wildlife workers in the field today will agree there is a great need for better public understanding of our native wildlife and the factors affecting their welfare.

"The establishment of a wildlife park on P.E.I. is in keeping with the trend to provide more opportunities for people to observe and become acquainted with not only the exotic species but also the large variety of native animals."

A former district biologist with the Ontario department of game lands and forests at Aylmer and regional biologist at North Bay, Bartlett is author of a number of Ontario and federal government publications on wildlife studies, particularly waterfowl.

The park is situated near this village on the north shore of Prince Edward Island, a few miles from Green Gables, the setting for Lucy Maud Montgomery's widely read fiction stories.

RAISE OWN FEED

Only 35 of the 87 acres have been developed for public use. The remaining 52 includes a 18-acre woodlot providing timber for display pens and buildings, while 20 acres were cultivated last year and will be used for more than 800 bushels of feed grain.

The park features animals and birds native to the Atlantic provinces and 200 species of birds and 54 animals in its collection. Bartlett says Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Ontario "have all been most helpful in providing specimens for our exhibits."

Among them are white-tailed deer, moose, caribou, black bear, wolf, fisher, fox, porcupine and other animals not indigenous to the island. A pair of marten were obtained from the Calgary zoo and negotiations are under way to obtain cougar, otter and fisher.

Snowy owls, great - horned owls, squirrels, fox, mink and seals were also obtained.

Bartlett says it's his feeling that the park can pay for itself by charging admission and drawing the tourist season. But during the rest of the year the park is open to school and camp groups with Charlie Bartlett on hand to explain the animals and their ways.

Cheaper to Load At Holyrood Than St. John's

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A ship took on a harbor pilot here, steamed about 100 miles to Holyrood, loaded her required tons of bunker fuel and then returned here to set the pilot ashore.

It paid the ship, even with the pilot's fee thrown in, to deal with oil dealers in Holyrood instead of here. The reason the ship planned the port of St. John's was a two-cent municipal tax on every gallon of bunker fuel loaded here.

This example was brought out by St. John's harbor pilots who say the situation has grown so bad that some ships have been diverted by their companies to take on only bare requirements here—"just enough to get the vessel to Halifax where fuel is cheaper."

The pilots say a ship coming in to load only 300 tons of fuel would be taxed more than $1,500.

The high fuel tax is not the only fault the pilots find with the port operation. Besides eliminating the tax, they say, would like to see the water rate system improved so that only ships that use vessel to Halifax where fuel is cheaper."

Election Hones Arguments

Britons Show Bad Temper Over Defence

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—The national spirit provides combustible fuel for Britain's stew of bad temper over defence.

With election frenzy hosing arguments to razor-edge, rival political parties represent themselves as the original John Bull. This was shown in last week's row over the Royal Navy.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, leading a Conservative party that sometimes claims a monopoly in patriotism, brandishes the nuclear bomb. He says it is the paramount election issue.

Labor claims the independent British deterrent is not independent, nor British, nor a deterrent. For all that, it often feels on the defensive, forced to show that it, too, lacks nothing in virility.

As a party of protest, with a traditional humanitarian and idealistic bias—as well as an ancestral hatred—Labor is occasionally reproached for pulling colonial peoples first, for instinctively favoring the foreigner.

HAVE PECKING

Underneath the idealism, there's a granite core of national feeling. What-we-have-we hold can be working class as well as Churchillian.

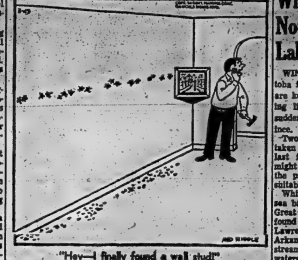
Labor Chairman was seen during the Suez crisis. While party leaders denounced the Anglo-French attack on Egypt, rank-and-file labor supporters in pubs and clubs vociferously supported Sir Anthony Eden.

With an election just around the corner, prickly nationalism now is as rampant in Britain as in Gaullist France.

Douglas Home, emerging from comparative obscurity last October to become Tory leader, has made a limited time in which to impress his personality on the electorate. His speeches so far have indicated an aggressive, fire-and-brimstone approach.

Some Conservative papers, welcoming the new Tory truculence after two trying years of Macmillan's suavity, seemed to be egging the prime minister on. Anything that makes Labor look "soft" on defence gets big play.

WANT TO BE HAWKS



The desire of both parties to appear as hawks rather than doves is natural. Britain is in the final stage of liquidating the Empire which made the Romans. Events in Africa, where newly-liberated regimes stand on small foundations, signal the "unwinding" may have been too fast.

Alec is known to feel strongly that American pressure for British retreat in Africa was often premature and ill-judged.

For all that, independent commentators regret the emotional excitement surrounding British defence role. The Observer in an editorial says Sir Alec wanting the country to be "strong and prosperity," in contrast to Wilson's desire that it should be, as the paper says, "the center of a European-Canada—non-nuclear but not neutral."

Fortunately, The Observer adds, countries like Canada and Sweden seem to be "less emotionally disturbed" about defence, perhaps because unlike Britain they have not been demoted from great-power status. Similarly, The Economist, weekly magazine, sees no substitute for interdependence, but concludes that neither political party can see its way to giving voters straight answers to straight questions.

"Lamentably, the subject now is snarled up in election semantics.

White Bass Now Found in Lake Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba fisheries branch biologists are keeping an eye on a fighting little game fish that has suddenly appeared in the province.

Two white bass have been taken from Lake Winnipeg since last fall. Biologists feel they might establish themselves in the province if they can find suitable habitat.

White bass, members of the sea bass family, abound in the Great Lakes and have been found as far east as the St. Lawrence and as far south as Arkansas. Seldom found in streams, they prefer deep, still waters.

No Birds Need Apply!

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver International Airport is definitely not for the birds.

Mechanical noise-makers on 24-hour duty, together with a few employees armed with guns are making war on seagulls, ducks and pheasants.

The idea is to prevent any thing like the 1960 crash at Boston, which killed 62 persons.

The program is a joint effort of the airport and a national research group known as the Committee on Bird Strikes in Aircraft.

The noise-makers sound like being fired from shotguns. Six were installed when the operation began last fall but complaints (from people) about the noise prompted a reduction in two.

"We found seagulls were dangerous during the day but the ager W. L. Baffie. "Since October, we haven't had a hit (on a plane), which proves the guns and the odd shooting have been successful."

There's a long-range plan to make the whole airport as unattractive to birds as possible, he said.

"We know the noise makers aren't the complete answer, so we are cutting down all the bush areas so they won't have any feeding or nesting areas.

"We are not allowing grain to be planted on our lands and think their lives are at stake."

The guns can be heard four miles away at night but, says Mr. Baffie, "people will become immune to the noise faster than the birds, who after all

Hoffa Is Sentenced To Eight Years

Teamster Boss Asks New Trial; Is Fined $10,000

Heavy Penalty Imposed For Trying to Fix Jury

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters President James R. Hoffa, professing his innocence to the last, was sentenced today to eight years in prison for seeking to tamper with a federal court jury. He was fined in addition a total of $10,000.

U.S. District Judge Frank Wilson, who quietly told the stocky labor leader that he had been convicted "of having tampered with the very soul of this nation," could have sentenced Hoffa to 10 years in prison. The fine was the maximum under the law.

Three men convicted with Hoffa were sentenced to three years each in prison. They could have been sentenced to five years and fined a total of $5,000 each.

The others convicted are Essing King, former president of the Nashville Teamsters local; Larry Cannnell, business agent of the Detroit Teamsters local, and Thomas E. Parks, Camp Hill, Ala., undertaker and real estate man. All three professed their innocence in court.

After the sentencing, the judge paused for a full minute and then read into the record a criticism of the jury that he had received from a prominent New York lawyer.

The judge sentenced Schiffer to 60 days in jail and fined him $1,000 for "wilful and criminal contempt," which he said arose from the fiery New York lawyer's frequent outbursts during the course of the trial.

Schiffer announced plans to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court after the judge overruled his motion for a hearing before another jury.

Hoffa said, "I understand the sentence perfectly and I will appeal as head of the Teamsters union.

The judge continued bond for Hoffa and the others, pending appeal, and asked the lawyers to file motions for an appeal within the next 10 days.

Impartial Experts Wanted

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A prominent Liberal MP and political scientist has joined the three splinter parties in the Commons in opposing a key feature of the government's redistribution bill.

Pauline Jewett (Northumberland), on leave from the political science department at Carleton University in Ottawa, objected Wednesday to the section that would empower the prime minister and the opposition leader to appoint 20 of the 31 persons who will be assigned to revamp Canada's electoral map.

She suggested that the 20 appointments be made instead by the Chief Justice of Canada, now Hon. Robert Taschereau, and the president of the Exchequer Court, now Hon. J. T. Thorson, from among impartial experts such as the provincial chief electoral officers and others.

This would show clearly to the public that the next redistribution of commons seats will be "thoroughly impartial" and out of the hands of politicians.

She had no doubt that the bill was impartial in its present form, but she urged the change "to make it appear to be completely impartial."

The same position was taken Tuesday by spokesmen for the New Democratic Credibiste and Social Credit groups. The debate continues today.

PRAISES BILL

Miss Jewett praised the bill as a milestone in Canadian history but suggested a second major change.

The measure provides that constituencies could have a population 20 per cent above or below the provincial average. She argued that this "tolerance" figure be increased to 25 per cent to prevent a sharp drop in representation from rural areas.

Rural districts needed special consideration because their MPs usually were the only link with the federal civil service, unlike city ridings which had government branch offices. Also, most of the pressure groups and the majority of the press were urban-oriented and this influenced the government considerably.

Miss Jewett acknowledged that her own riding is three-cornered, rural and has a drastic realignment in the next redistribution. The Ontario constituteness would be expanded greatly or would be carved up to enlarge the area of neighboring ridings.

110,000 Left Homeless By Floods in Five States

CHICAGO (AP) — Disaster headquarters were established in Cincinnati today to assist some 110,000 persons in five states made homeless by the swirling, murky flood waters of the Ohio River and its tributaries.

The gushing floods dealt death, destruction and misery to thousands of persons, closing schools and roads and even creating a new pastime in Cincinnati.

At least nine persons have died in the flooding.

Some 29,175 families have been evacuated in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Approximately 12,000 persons are living in 53 American Red Cross shelters.

Seven persons have been killed in Ohio, where 15,000 families in 22 counties were driven from their homes.

One flood death was reported in Indiana and one in Kentucky.

Kentucky Governor Edward T. Breathitt has asked President Johnson to declare 30 counties disaster areas.

National guardsmen averted disaster Wednesday when they sand - bagged a leak in the Louisville floodwall. Flood waters from the raging Ohio River plunged into the city, in undating low areas of the downtown section.

The Ohio hit 16.9 feet above the flood stage in Louisville, and the army Corps of Engineers took over direction of the 176-mile protection system.

Hundreds of persons were evacuated from homes outside the floodwall.

In Indiana, Governor Matthew Welsh asked President Johnson to declare disaster areas for 20 southern counties.

In Ohio, police search to stop a new fad in Cincinnati's flooded streets. "Hot tubbers" were zooming along the inundated, streets in motorboats, leaving a wake strong enough to shatter windows.

The Ohio River was expected to crest at 66½ feet in Cincinnati, 14½ feet above flood stage. Some refugees began moving back into their homes in some areas of the state.

Separatist Demonstration Called Off, Scuffle Ensues

Salesmen Target Of New Law

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts indicated Wednesday that legislation to protect the public against unscrupulous salesmen will be introduced during the current session of the legislature.

He said legislation now being drawn up by the attorney-general's department, but he gave no hint whether it would include provision for the licensing of used-car dealers.

The action arises from an interim report presented to the legislature by its select committee on consumer credit. One of the recommendations was that used-car dealers be licensed because of "palpable abuses" in the financing and sale of these autos.

Premier Robarts said the committee would be reappointed to delve into such fields as insurance companies, retailers and door-to-door selling. He said he was pleased with results to date. Publicity had convinced consumers to read the small print in sales contracts.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic party leader, suggested the provincial government should return to the field of second mortgages to drive excess interest rates out of existence.

WILL RAISE PROBLEM

In another matter, Mr. Robarts said he will bring the problem of the distribution of hate literature in Canada to the federal - provincial conference

MONTREAL (CP) — A demonstration by Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale was called off Wednesday but a scuffle nevertheless developed on downtown Dominion Square between English-speaking students and members of the French - language separatist group.

Two blocks away and a short time later, a passerby found a Union Jack burning at the entrance to a veterans' social club.

Two students — Dickety Modolo, 22, of St. Catharines, and Paul Coxhead, 20, of Granby, Que. — were injured slightly in the brief Dominion Square scuffle. Five others were held by police for a "cooling off" period and were not expected to be charged.

At least 100 Montreal policemen were looking on as the separatist leaders cancelled the demonstration during the supper rush-hour, telling their supporters to go home "in silence and dignity."

About 40 members of le Rassemblement, including a few women, showed up at 5 p.m. for the demonstration, planned to retaliate for a flag-trampling incident at Sir George Williams last week when Guy Poulin, president of the secessionist group, addressed students during bicultural week.

Following Mr. Poulin's speech, a flag apparently was thrown from a college window and a student trampled the blue and white Quebec fleur-de-lis emblem.

A large throng was attracted to Dominion Square, one block off busy St. Catherine street, as people streamed from office buildings during the rush-hour.

Police already had circled the area and kept control throughout.

Deficit Third Highest In Peacetime History

By ALAN DONNELLY

Ottawa (CP) — A federal budget deficit of an estimated $685,000,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31 — a slender reduction of $6,600,000 from the 1962-63 deficit — was reported Thursday by Finance Minister Gordon.

The third highest deficit in peacetime history, it followed a string of six consecutive deficits under the former Conservative government. The total red ink on government accounts for the seven years since April 1, 1957: $3,569,000,000.

Mr. Gordon's preliminary accounts for 1963-64 were tabled in the Commons in a white paper which sets the stage for his budget speech Monday night.

The reduction in the deficit from the previous year's $691,600,000 marked the second successive decline from the peak peacetime deficit of $791,000,000 in 1961-62.

But the short step towards a balanced budget was considerably smaller than the one Mr. Gordon hoped for in his first budget speech last June 13 when he forecast a $585,000,000 deficit. Last June he forecast this a major retreat over a new sales tax on building materials and construction equipment, he revised the forecast upwards to $655,000,000—$30,000,000 short of the deficit reported in the white paper.

ECONOMY STRONG

The white paper contained one big sign of optimism for next year—the view that the long-lasting economic upswing

Cost Snow, Ice Removal To Double

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Research Council says the annual cost of snow removal and ice control will double in the next 10 years to between $120,000,000 and $200,000,000 unless better methods are adopted.

The council's associate committee on soil and snow mechanics reached this conclusion in a report analyzing technical discussions which took place at a two-day conference here in mid-February on snow removal and ice control.

Some 150 delegates attended the conference, representing the federal government, provincial highway departments, cities, airport maintenance organizations and the railways.

The report said four major steps could be taken immediately in an effort to check rising costs.

1. Greater use of weather information provided by the meteorological services of the federal transport department.

2. Provision of more adequate dump areas to receive snow removed from city streets.

3. Adoption of methods to prevent moving traffic and parked cars interfering with snow removal.

4. Studies into the use of heating systems to melt snow as it is removed from streets and to flush the water into drains.

SNOW MAJOR COST

"Snow removal and ice control have become of major economic significance to Canada," the report said. "These operations can consume as much as 60 per cent of the total annual maintenance budget for city streets or highways."

"It is estimated that for Canada the direct cost from public funds of snow removal and ice control now is between $60,000,000 and $100,000,000. Trends indicate that this cost will double within 10 years."

Ruby's Case Will Go to Jury At Dallas Friday the Thirteenth

DALLAS (AP) — Counsel for both sides say they expect to put Jack Ruby's fate in the hands of the jury tomorrow—Friday the 13th.

The lawyers agreed that testimony will be completed today. Ruby has not taken the witness stand and there are no indications that he will.

As the end of the trial neared it appeared much the same as he has from the beginning. At times, he looks worried; at other times, his face is a mask.

However, in the last few days, his lawyers have been talking more frequently with him, putting an arm around his shoulders, patting his hand.

Ruby is charged with murder in the shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of president Kennedy. The state demands that Ruby be sentenced to die in the electric chair. His defence is temporary insanity.

Because of this plea, his lawyers must prove that he did not know right from wrong nor the nature and quality of his act when he killed Oswald.

Prosecution lawyers contend he did know what he was doing. They have suggested to the jury of eight men and four women that Ruby had some purpose, such as "gaining fame and fortune."

Weighty — and contradictory — psychiatric testimony has been given for both sides by specialists.

Wednesday, the prosecution called a parade of psychiatric experts to discuss Ruby's mental condition, the meaning of the "abnormalities" on encephalograms (tracings of brain waves) taken when Ruby was examined, and the critical questions of whether he was legally sane on Nov. 24, 1963, when he shot Oswald.

Dr. John T. Holbrook, 40, a Dallas psychiatrist, said:

"I felt he did know the difference between the right and wrong and did know the nature and consequences of his act at the time."

Psychiatrists were scheduled to appear again today. Dr. Walter Schoch of Harvard medical school, a state witness, flew to Dallas Wednesday. Chief defense counsel Melvin Belli said his last witness would be Dr. Walter Bromberg, clinical director of a Psychiatric Hospital at Katonah, N.Y.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Some very light snow over southwestern Ontario and a few light snowflurries across eastern Ontario indicate the passage of another March storm through the district. Snowfall amounts will be rather light with a good chance that some areas will get none at all. By evening the disturbance will be well east of the district. Skies will clear in behind it and the fair weather will persist through Friday over all regions.

Thant Has Half Money Needed To Finance Cyprus UN Force

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The prospects for a UN peace force for Cyprus improved today as Secretary-General U Thant found himself over the halfway mark in his fund-raising campaign.

Britain, however, warned it won't carry the police burden alone much longer on the troubled Mediterranean island.

As Greek-Cypriots denounced the United States and Britain in Nicosia Wednesday, those two countries announced they would contribute half the estimated $6,000,000 needed to keep the force on Cyprus for three months.

The U.S. state department said it would donate up to $2,000,000 from an agency for international development contingency fund. This is in addition to an earlier U.S. offer to provide transportation and some supplies from the force. The state department noted that an obstacle to creating the force was the financial problem but added, "it is essential to move promptly to stop further needless loss of life."

Britain offered $1,000,000 but at the same time warned it will pull its troops out of Cyprus, letting the Greek and Turkish-Cypriots fight it out, unless there is quick relief for British soldiers.

Amid cheers from both Labor and Conservative members, Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys told the House of Commons:

"There is a limit to the dangers and indignities which we have a right to ask them (British soldiers) to endure."

Sandys said Britain had given Thant until today to report some progress in putting together the international force authorized by the Security Council to relieve the bulk of the 7,000 British troops on Cyprus. Britain has offered to keep some soldiers on Cyprus and to provide quarters for the international force at its permanent bases on the island.

West Germany, which is not a UN member, will contribute about $500,000, diplomatic sources said.

Thant appealed for contributions from UN members last Saturday after some of the small nations asked to provide troops said they were unwilling to bear the cost. In authorizing the force, the Security Council suggested each participating nation pay for its own soldiers.

The secretary-general asked for troops from Austria, Brazil, Canada, Finland, the Republic of Ireland and Sweden.

Brazil balked because of the cost but diplomats said she may reconsider.

Canada ordered the aircraft carrier Bonaventure to Halifax to be prepared to carry supplies for Canadian troops to Cyprus.

Record Beaver Harvest in Tweed District

Tweed District trappers are experiencing the exceptionally good harvest of beaver this winter. With one month remaining in the season, the trappers have taken over 12,000 pelts. It is expected that the month of March should produce another 2,000 beaver.

Other species of fur-bearers harvested to date include 1,894 mink, 239 otter, 41 fisher, 8 lynx and 4 marten.

The Ontario Trappers' Association has announced that the date of their next general sale of raw pelts will be held in North Bay on April 20. Trappers are reminded to get their shipments in by April 15.

Driving Car While Licence Was Revoked

Driving with one headlight cost a Trenton man $100 this morning.

When OPP Constable E. G. MacDonnell stopped him on Highway 2 west of Belleville, to remonstrate him about the light, Weedman couldn't produce a driver's licence.

Hailed into court he pleaded guilty this morning to driving while under suspension.

His licence was revoked after a careless driving charge last year.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson said Weedman's action in driving after losing his licence was tantamount to "direct contempt of court" as well as evasion of a court penalty.

Murder Weapon Is Identified By Officers

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Two provincial police officers testified Wednesday during the second day of the trial of murder suspect Charles Morton Loyst, 31, of nearby Kaladar.

Loyst is charged with the Oct. 9 rifle slaying of High James McMahon, 64, also of Kaladar.

Constable Lorne Lyons told of wounds in the one-room shack where he lived with his wife and son and of several months prior to the incident.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Harry Willoughby of Kingston, Cpl. Harold Howring said no fingerprints could be found on the gun he seized, his wife or Loyst following the shooting.

He testified that paraffin tests were not, performed on any of the three persons and no test for alcohol content in the blood was performed on Mrs. McMahon or Loyst.

Const. R. W. Byers identified photographs of the scene taken after the shooting. He also identified the rifle, alleged to be the murder weapon.

The trial continues.

Canada's

which began early in 1961 "shows no signs of weakening".

Barring major tax cuts in his new budget—and these are unlikely—the economic buoyancy will fatten government revenues. Last year's growth in national output, rated at six per cent, pushed federal revenues up 8.6 per cent in 1963-64.

Last June 13 Mr. Gordon termed his budget then as the first step "toward balancing our federal budget under conditions of high employment". On July 8, while announcing major revisions, he said: "We cannot contemplate an indefinite series of budget deficits."

The "white paper's preliminary estimate for the spring fiscal year, with February and March results estimated, projects:

—Budgetary revenues up to $6,207,000,000 from $5,878,700,000.

—Budgetary expenditures up 4.9 per cent to $6,892,000,000 from $6,570,300,000.

—The government's net debt up by $1,216,000,000 to $18,136,000,000, with the increase resulting both from the deficit and a write-off of $331,000,000 in long-standing deficiencies in pension funds of the armed forces and RCMP.

The budgetary figures don't tell the whole story of federal tax revenues and spending. Excluded from budget accounts is the old age security fund which finances the universal $75 monthly old age pensions to all aged 70 and over.

The fund ran a $64,000,000 deficit this year, compared with a $42,000,000 deficit last year. The shortage is covered by a treasury loan.

The combined budgetary and pension deficits — $749,000,000 — exceed last year's total of $734,000,000.

PENSION COSTS UP

Pension outlays jumped to $800,000,000 from $734,000,000, during the year, and $10 pension increase Oct. 1, while revenues into the fund from specially-earmarked income and sales taxes climbed to $745,000,000 from $691,000,000.

Altogether, total spending rose by $396,700,000 to $7,701,000,000 and revenues advanced $382,300,000 to $6,452,000,00.

The two biggest items behind the 1 in 4 rise in budgetary spending were a $73,000,000 jump in the cost of carrying the public debt to $990,000,000, and a rise of $99,100,000 in total defence spending to $1,899,000,000. Most of the defence increase was due to a special $76,500,000 payment into the armed forces pension fund.

There was a $53,300,000 boost in payments for the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan, which took $360,000,000, and a $50,200,000 rise in the agricultural price support program to $122,000,000.

There was a $69,400,000 drop in payments for provincial technical and vocational training schools and a $62,900,000 decline in outlays under federal-provincial tax arrangements. As well, the minister saved $25,300,000 by not repeating last year's depreciation write-off on the NRU atomic reactor at Chalk River, Ont.

The white paper's review of the economic picture was a rosy one.

It said that at the end of 1963 the economic expansion had already reduced the 1958-60 upswing and indications were that the economy was gaining speed in the last quarter of 1963.

GNP GAINS

Mr. Gordon's estimate of a six-per-cent gain in gross national product in the value of all goods and services produced—would put 1963 output at $42,-635,000,000 compared with $40,-401,000,000 in 1962.

He said most prices have been relatively stable during the current upswing.

Average employment rose by 3.4 per cent last year and unemployment averaged 5.5 per cent of the labor force compared with 5.9 per cent in 1962. At year end the jobless rate, adjusted to discount seasonal factors, was 4.8 per cent—the lowest since 1957.

The government's over - all cash requirements for 1963-64 were considerably less than the previous year's $519,000,000 compared with $1,446,000,000.

This cash deficit reflects both the budgetary deficit and a wide variety of non-budgetary transactions which affect government asset and liabilities.

Service Officer To Pay Visit Here

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Harry Willoughby of Kingston, Cpl. Harold Howring said no fingerprints could be found on the gun he seized, his wife or Loyst following the shooting.

He testified that paraffin tests were not, performed on any of the three persons and no test for alcohol content in the blood was performed on Mrs. McMahon or Loyst.

Const. R. W. Byers identified photographs of the scene taken after the shooting. He also identified the rifle, alleged to be the murder weapon.

Many European Monarchs Attend King Paul's Funeral

CP from AP-Reuters

ATHENS — King Paul of Greece was borne to his grave today, attended in death by most of Europe's reigning monarchs and other world figures in mourning dress from around the world.

The dead king's son and successor, 23-year-old King Constantine, walked with his mother, Queen Frederika, directly behind the body of Paul as 3,000 Greek Navy sailors pulled the wagon that carried the flag-draped coffin.

Behind came King Baudouin of Belgium, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, King Frederik of Denmark, King Gustav of Sweden and King Olav of Norway.

And behind them came the others who have come to Greece, to join with King Paul's grieving countrymen and bid him their last farewell in a solemn assembly of the titled and the famous such as Europe has seldom seen.

Britain was represented by Queen Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, and Princess Margaret, the Duchess of Kent. Both are first cousins of King Paul.

REPRESENTS CANADA

Industry Ministery Drury represented Canada.

An estimated 800,000 persons lined the 1½-mile route of the funeral procession to the cathedral in Athens to weep, pray and say their silent last goodbyes.

They had started to gather early Wednesday night, wholefamilies bringing blankets to sleep on the curbs.

Harry Truman and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson were there for the United States. Walking with them were 18 princes, eight princesses, two presidents—and envoys from Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union.

In the line of March were three kings of thrones that no longer exist—Humbert of Italy, Michael of Romania and Simeon of Bulgaria.

FUNERAL SERVICE

The mournful procession, heading for the burial plot Paul himself chose at Tatoi Palace where he died last Friday of cancer at the age of 62, began after a 50-minute funeral service in Athens' Orthodox Cathedral. Women and men alike wept openly as the black - robed priests and choir asked God in prayer to forgive his trespasses and take his soul into heaven. Queen Frederika knelt sobbing before the coffin for the first full minutes and was so upset she forgot her purse when she left the cathedral and sent Princess Irene to get it.

At the beginning of the mass one of the priests officiating fainted and had to be carried away.

EVZONES CARRY BODY

When the final chants faded away in the cool silence of the domed church of the Annunciation, the doors were opened and skirted evzone soldiers — King Paul's elite royal guard — lifted his coffin from the catafalque before the altar and slowly carried it to the gun carriage waiting afore the door.

A military band broke into the national anthem in a slow mourning time and the crash of many cannon boomed off the surrounding hills.

The new king, his sweeping mustache drooping, princesses Irene and Sophie, left the church and took their places behind the coffin.

Bells pealed out from the church towers as the procession and mingled with the crack of cannon fired at two minute intervals, started its long journey away from the church and into the heart of Athens and beyond on King Paul's final journey..

Gibbard Bros. of Napanee Open Plant in Deseronto

DESERONTO — Spring has come a little early this year for local residents with the news that Deseronto has acquired a new industry.

The Napanee Manufacturing Limited, formerly Napanee Novelties, Ltd. agreed to purchase the former Ideal Venders Limited building on Bay Shore Road for the price of one dollar.

Mayor Loit of Deseronto, in announcing the sale of the building to Richard and William Gibbard of Napanee, noted that the price was the same as that paid by the town when the building was purchased from Ideal Venders Limited.

"We are not in the real estate business," he said. "The size and type of building tends to make it obsolete. Those who could use it are limited. We are pleased that the Gibbard brothers find it suitable and welcome them to Deseronto. They will be a definite asset to the town."

The Mayor pointed out that there has been no tax concessions made other than that the top two floors of the building would be exempt until put to use.

USE FOR STORAGE

The manufacturing company plans to use the main floor to house its rapidly expanding furniture business. The second floor will be used for storage.

In making the sale for one dollar the Mayor and Council opened for business a building that will bring an annual tax increment in the vicinity of four thousand dollars to Deseronto.

In addition the new industry will add ten employees to its staff of fifty in the near future.

A major cause for the shift of this firm from Deseronto is the lack of space in Napanee to meet the growing trade. When originally formed the company manufactured occasional furniture. Their line grew from tables, to chairs and bedroom furniture. They now deal almost exclusively in motel furniture and store fixtures.

The company has been seeking new quarter ever since a fire in 1961 which destroyed their Thomas Street building. At present they are leasing a building on Centre Street in Napanee.

OPENED BY FATHER

Deseronto's new industry was first established in 1938 by the late Ernie Gifford, father of the present owners and a member of Napanee's well-known furniture family. Originally employing a handful of workers the firm now has more than fifty on its payroll.

With the advent of this industry to Deseronto it is expected that its business, hindered by the smallness of its temporary quarters, will show a marked increase. It already employs five local workers and expects to add more. Some of its Napanee personnel have been seeking residence in Deseronto.

Although an early occupancy is expected the Gibbard brothers have indicated that some extensive changes will have to be made prior to this.

One of the major changes will be to renovate the existing paint shop so that the new firm can handle its highly volatile lacquers with complete safety.

SHORT NEGOTIATIONS

The agreement to purchase the building came after a short two weeks' negotiations with council. The only rider contained is that the manufacturing company will agree to sell back the building to the town in the event that it uses the building less than five years.

Although this provides for a complete change of ownership only the building and its immediate property are involved. Property south of the bay shore road has been retained by the town as well as the right-of-way (Walnut Street) running to the west and north of the site.

In addition a considerable lot to the northwest of the building has been retained by the town. Frontage owned by the new firm is approximately 370 feet.

The factory building on Mechanic and Bay Shore Road has been a waterfront landmark for years. At one time it was occupied by the Dominion Match Company and later by its recent owners, the Eddy Match Company. This was in the building's best days.

After the Second World War the Eddy Company opened Deseronto Electronics Limited on the site. The business gradually switched to the manufacture of coin vending machines, and became known as Ideal Venders Limited. The move of Ideal Venders to its new modern location on Highway 2 west of town, brought about the sale of the building to the town.

White Cane Club Members Hold Meeting

The March Recreational Meeting of the White Cane Club was held in the Kiwanis Centre Monday night. President Helen Wardhaugh presided and 22 members and their escorts were present.

Birthday greetings were extended to Annie Casement. Violet Waite is still confined to the hospital but is making good progress. Mrs. H. Rollins read the monthly White Cane Chronicle, also a letter from the Canadian Council to the Blind asking if the local club had any ideas to present on how best to recognize Canada's Centennial. The Belleville Club will be entering two teams in the Bowling Tournament to be held in Kingston on May 9th when contestants will be coming from Cornwall, Ottawa, Kingston and Peterborough.

The Belleville Quintebelles were the entertainers for the evening and they delighted their audience with their very delightful music. They were thanked for giving so generously of their time to the Club whenever requested.

Several games of Table Bowling were played the winners being, Clarence Morris, Arils Scott, Ted Rowe, George Mulcmele and Annie Casement. Until Two of Tabernacle United Church Women who supplied the very delicious refreshments and Carm Mott and Mickey Macdonald, Kiwanis Kewanna who served them were thanked most graciously by Mr. G. Zimmele. The members of the Lions Club who transport the Blind members to and from the meeting were given a special vote of thanks.

The 14th Birthday party of the White Cane Club will be held on March 25th when it is hoped that all members will be able to be present.

THE WEDDING PARTY — Although Donna Weiss and Mickey Vickers are a little young to be embarking on the troubled sea of matrimony, their "wedding" last night at St. Mary's School spring fashion parade was certainly one of the highlights of the evening. TRENTON — Something different in the current spate of spring fashion shows was presented last night at St. Mary's School in Trenton with the frocks and suits being modelled by the students. No Cougar In Area Says Game Official

TRENTON—Reports of a cougar wandering in the Spring Valley area on Highway 30 near Brighton are unfounded, according to Const. Mason of the OPP., stationed at Brighton. Const. Mason accompanied fish and game wardens Reg McCullough of Campbellford and Victor Harris of Gores Landing on two searches of the area.

Tracks of a large cat were found, but the game wardens agreed they were the tracks of a lynx. A cougar is a western cat, which weighs up to nearly 200 pounds. A lynx is a Northern Ontario cat, which weighs up to about 30 pounds.

The lynx is about 36 inches long, with a tail about four inches long. The tip of the tail is completely black. Normal food includes rabbits and small rodents, and the occasional bird. The animal is nocturnal and completely harmless to man.

Auxiliary Will Buy Machine For Hospital

TRENTON — The members of the Women's Auxiliary at Trenton Memorial Hospital voted Monday night to buy a new electro-cardiograph machine for the hospital to replace the older machine which has seen more than ten years' service. The new equipment will cost around $900.

Hospital administrator, Miss Hazel Naudett, accepted a cheque for $193 from Mrs. Grace Hatch, RCAF Auxiliary appointee to the Trenton body, and this money will be used to buy a wheel chair for the hospital.

Mrs. Wm. McLaren was named to head up the membership drive committee and she will be assisted by Mrs. C. Campbell, Mrs. Bruce Ireland, Mrs. Harold Keefer, Mrs. K. Hamilton, Mrs. W. Bowen and Mrs. Thorne Speer. The drive starts this week and will continue until the end of the month.

Mrs. Keefer, reporting for the Volunteer Services Committee made an appeal for foreign language magazines for the use of some patients. Mrs. Keefer and the auxiliary president, Mrs. J. E. Bearne will attend a one-day course in Toronto on training for hospital volunteer workers.

Can Bus Deficit Be Cut?

Last year Belleville taxpayers subsidized the city bus service to the extent of $48,923.

This coming year the deficit is expected to be $53,995.

Almost everybody, we think, realizes the necessity for a bus service, but even necessities can come at too high a price. The bus deficit is in that area.

Could not something be done to reduce the loss?

Would it be possible to devise a system whereby a check could be kept, without too much trouble or expense, on the number of passengers to, or from, each bus stop? If this could be done, stops which did not provide a certain number of passengers could be eliminated. This, in itself, would produce some saving, in time and in gasoline. If several successive stops fell below the standard, it might be possible to re-route the bus, shortening its run.

This would bring protests from areas which lost service. Residents in these areas would argue that they were paying part of the cost of subsidizing the service, but reaping none of the benefits. This, though, will always be the case per many taxpayers in the less populous districts which feel that a bus service is essential, even if they are not patronizing it sufficiently to warrant such a service, there is a simple remedy. We have seen, in recent years, the formation of a number of regional ratepayers' associations. If an area does not provide enough passengers to warrant service, but the residents generally want such a service maintained, could not the ratepayers' association make an appropriate donation?

Little patronage and no donation—no service. What's wrong with that for a cost-cutting policy?

What United Appeal?

"Does Belleville really want a United Appeal?"

That is the question asked Monday evening by the retiring president of the United Appeal, E. G. Gurnett.

It is a good question—though perhaps not in the sense in which Mr. Gurnett meant it.

He and the other citizens who have given so generously of their time and energies, with little thanks and even less support from their fellow citizens, are, not unnaturally, concerned with whether the United Appeal can continue in its present form.

That, though, is not quite the same as the question of whether Belleville citizens want a United Appeal.

They have never had it.

Any person who questions the accuracy of that statement is referred to the second-front page of Tuesday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer which carried the report of Mr. Gurnett's remarks.

The same page also carried a story on the launching of the annual Easter Seals appeal by the Belleville Rotary Club.

Then we have Christmas Seals, the March of Dimes and a hundred and one other campaigns for funds, of greater or lesser importance, for causes more or less charitable.

Perhaps one reason why Belleville citizens have given such poor support to the United Appeal is that there never has been any such thing here, in a realistic sense.

Those who favor the United Appeal method might give some consideration to revising membership in the organization.

Quite a number of groups now outside its scope ought to be included. And some of the present members might perhaps be doing the Appeal a good turn if they quit and paddled their own canoes, for they are not truly charitable organizations and many citizens, rightly or wrongly, believe that those who benefit from their work ought to be prepared to pay their own way.

An Australian woman has been jailed for fraud. She wrote to parents of mothers of sailors killed when the destroyer Voyager sank, telling them their sons had paid deposits on Mother's Day gifts which she would send on payment of the balance.

This is carrying the Mother's Day racket a step too far.

Some Frightening Changes Made on Parliament Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — How long has it been like this, a relative newcomer to Parliament Hill asked the other day.

Like what, everything you enquire.

Like the prime minister not knowing whether there was a threat to blow up the Centre Block (where both the Commons and Senate sit), like the posting of guards at all the doors, like the arming of the Mounties patrols on Parliament Hill, like . . .

He could have gone on, but of that there was no need.

The Hill freshman had got the point—security is the new-comer. It was almost instinctively apparent that things couldn't long have been the way they are now on the Hill . . . that something drastic and new has been happening . . . that things are somehow not the . . . they should be.

And he was right.

It has never been like this before. Not, at least, that anybody is actually frightened. Worried, perhaps.

Maybe even deeply concerned.

But not plain scared.

Not yet, anyway.

ALMOST ROUTINE:

Measure of the strange feeling of this cold new atmosphere on The Hill is that, as it turned out, the prime minister didn't know because he hadn't been told, that there had actually had been a threat to blow up the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings.

He hadn't been told for the very good reason that threats to explode bombs in hand-phoned warnings that bombs have been secreted in the big building in Ottawa have become almost routine.

Both the Security and Intelligence Branches of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Parliament's own police service, the Protective Staff of the Commons and Senate, are getting used to answering the phone and being told by cranks, kooks, terrorists and assorted other nuts and crackpots that the place has been mined.

To say that this strange state of affairs has developed since the so-called "quiet revolution" in Quebec began, perhaps is to run the risk of being accused of complicity in the most exclusively with the posing of pictures for tourists, in former mostly admiring Americans.

At one time, the Mounties even carried a battle horse to The Hill, to give one of their patrolmen that extra added touch of the Rose Marie, Nelson Eddy, Jeanette Macdonald, Quebec and New York state.

The American market is crucial to the Canadian economy. And now Westinghouse says it can supply the Canadian nuclear power for six mills—two mills less than the estimated cost of power from Labrador.

Since the Westinghouse offer was received, New York power officials have delayed signing the Labrador agreement. They may never sign it.

If they don't, the decision could be a key factor bearing on the Peace scheme.

Is it possible that by the time the Portage Bay dam that is supplying power in 1968, advances in nuclear technology will have made the project obsolete?

B.C. Hydro Czar Gordon Shrum has repeatedly said that it isn't possible. Yet the Canadian uranium industry apparently disagrees.

It is basing all its plans for future expansion on the assumption that nuclear power will become vitally competitive by the early 1970s. The Westinghouse bid can only add weight to this conception.

Their ex- . . . still price, it should be noted, is within haggling distance of the price of the Peace power delivered in the Lower Mainland.

How much softer could it be four years from now?

These are probably irrelevant questions. The Peace scheme has been unnecessary since it was conceived, and cheaper power has always been available from several other sources.

But it's going to be interesting, as the premier presses on regardless over the next few years, to find out just how much cheaper those alternate sources can be. . . .

Wants Explanation About Water's Taste

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Water, water . . . nowhere but there is none (fit) . . . to drink.

It is felt Lennoxs had Belleville in mind when this statement was made.

Is the present unpalatable taste of water something we are going to have to live with? If so, we should change the name of the John Fain Filtration plant from purification to putrification. Could it be possible with the advent of our new sewage treatment plant our municipal services are crossed and we are getting our w- from the wrong plant? Considering the taste this could be the . . . straw enough of veiled innendos at our public services; surely in this modern day and age with all the modern chemistry we should not have to suffer this intolerable taste in our water. Could we have the medium of your newspaper hear what the experts have to say?

Yesterday.

Tautollaer.

Editor's Note — See story on Page 2 of this issue.

A-Power May Beat Hydro

Vancouver Sun

Eastern Canada's biggest hydro . . . electric project is now in jeopardy because of competition from nuclear power.

Where it fits is into Western Canada's biggest hydro scheme, the Peace River development.

We trust C.. Premier Bennett is pondering this question. For it is possible that the answer could prove highly embarrassing to him or dreadfully expensive to B.C.

The eastern scheme is the $1.8 billion Churchill Falls project, which would supply vast quantities of Labrador's hydro-electric power to Montreal, Quebec and New York state.

The American market is crucial to the project's success. And now Westinghouse says it can supply the same nuclear power for six mills—two mills less than the estimated cost of power from Labrador.

Since the Westinghouse offer was received, New York power officials have delayed signing the Labrador agreement. They may never sign it.

If they don't, the decision could be a key factor bearing on the Peace scheme.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MARCH 12, 1944

Wing Commander J. R. Cairns of the RCAF, was guest speaker at the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday evening, giving a most interesting and informative talk on "Photography."

He commenced by giving its root from the Greek words "photos" meaning light, and "graphos" meaning "I trace," and told that even up until the time of the Great War the camera was just beginning to take its place in the world. First photographs were not of such importance until a picture taken by one of the airmen showed clearly the trenches of the enemy that this proved valuable information to direct the attack against the foe. The first cameras for air photography were taken from the side of the plane and were of the fixed focus type.

However, since the last war, air photography has played a very important part in the development and mapping of the north country and areas in Canada which would normally take them years to survey and map, but now can be done in the matter of one month by air.

From Trenton by way of the work conveyer of the local Red Cross of that place comes information that a letter has been received from headquarters containing an urgent appeal for more and more sweaters and asking that any who possible can will assist in this great work. The bulletin received of estimated requirements for England alone is frightening in its size; and it is stressed that the vast majority of these must always be made of wheeling wool, as it is utterly impossible to procure Scotch fingering or physical service wool in sufficient quantities to meet more than a very small fraction of the number needed.

After a successful season the local arena was closed on Friday. Mr. W. H. Patterson and Mr. Sanford Burrows the Belleville arena lessees have closed down January and thereby assured the sport loving populace of the continuance of the use of up-to-date skating arena for the season. The records show that during the season of 1933 nearly 7,500 children were afforded free skating. This speaks well for the generosity of Mr. Patterson and Mr. Burrows. It is reported that the revenue from the Weal OHA hockey game of the season, both in Belleville and Trenton, practically sufficient to pull the arena out of the "red" and assure the managers of the arena no heavy loss. The untiring efforts of manager E. Ford and the ice maker, George Gay, also added to the success of the enterprise. A public vote of thanks is extended to Mr. Patterson and Mr. Burrows, who afforded a fine skating rink during the past season.

Belleville defeated West Huntingdon in a fast hockey game at Stirling in the first of the final playdowns in the Centre League loop by a score of 3 to 1. There was a large crowd of fans present to witness the game. The following composed the team: Cannifton—Sharpe, Bleakman, A. Calories Are Calories Regardless of Their Form

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please settle a friendly argument in our TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) Club. Though we all know that a calorie is a calorie, some of us feel that if taken in protein form it is used up faster and helps us to lose weight.

Others say it doesn't matter if you eat a hot dog, two boiled eggs at 140 calories or a sweet roll at 140 calories; as long as your daily intake is 1000 calories or less you'll lose weight. Does this make any difference?—R.N.

The ones who favor protein foods are right, but for the wrong reason.

Yes, 1,000 calories are 1,000 calories, and a calorie is what, ever form, represents the same amount of energy, whether it is used up to keep you warm, or to support your physical activity, or to be transformed into fat and stored away.

Whether the calories come from protein or starch doesn't make any difference from that standpoint.

However, the food you eat doesn't always reach your stomach and digestive tract in the form which can be converted instantly into energy. Sugars and starches rapidly reach the blood stream in the form of blood sugar.

Protein, on the other hand, is converted more slowly by the digestive processes. That's why protein foods are the ideal appetite for a somewhat longer time. Hence they help a person who is trying to maintain a reducing diet.

In passing, let's not forget that meat-and-fish protein, the basic "building blocks" of the body, are important for sound health. Starchy foods alone don't give you calories but will not furnish all the nutrients for keeping bone, muscle and other tissues in good condition.

—G.G.

Dear Dr. Molner: I enclose 45 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "How To Cure Peptic Ulcers," and your booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." For years I have used mineral oil but now cannot due to ulcers. What objections are there to glycerin suppositories?—G.G.

You have two problems, and the treatment for one must be prohibited by the other. That's a common contradiction with which every doctor is familiar. It's one of several reasons why people shouldn't advise others. "MY doctor told me to do this and so. Why don't you?"

However, I send the two booklets I am sending. Glycerin suppositories, used judiciously, are fine. But people don't take for granted that you need to do something special for your constipation. Five suggestions in the booklet a fair trial a month or two. You may find that neither the mineral oil or suppositories was really necessary.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will swimming develop the breasts? I am 35 and not underweight — 117 pounds at 5 ft. 4 — and am very flat-chested. I tried exercise, using weights for a year at a salon, but that didn't help at all.—E.J.

I doubt that exercise, in itself, ever does much good in this regard, except as it increases the muscle tone of the upper chest wall (the pectorals). Exercises such as push-ups and others involving the arms can develop this area. You see, the breast is primarily fatty tissues and is under strong glandular control. This varies in different women. Adding weight will help but you can't be sure you won't bulge in other areas, too. But posture DOES make a difference. My advice is to swim, add a few pounds — and put a great deal of emphasis on posture. But at 35 I guess I'd rely on a padded brassiere, too.

WORRIED WIFE: No, ulcers if you are careful, because, two boiled eggs at 140 calories or a sweet roll at 140 calories; as long as your daily intake is 1000 calories or less you'll lose weight. Does this make any difference?—R.N.

Strictly Personal

Most Educated People Held in Great Mistrust

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: One of the most ironic symptoms of our national schizophrenia is that while we have a great respect for "education" in the abstract, we have an equally great mistrust of the educated person in the particular; it is much like our religion, which abstractly worships the Christian virtues, but is scandalized by any individual who changes the teachings of Christ "too seriously."

There is no such thing as the "dead past" — it is the future that is dead, and whether or not it comes alive for us depends largely upon the lessons we draw from the past and utilize in the present. History, it may be defined as the art of trying to understand and control tomorrow.

There seems something strained and twisted to me in those who seek to separate Nature to the exclusion, or denigration, of human being; for human beings represent the quintessence of Nature, in all its glorious possibilities and horrible potentialities.

Receiving an unexpected letter from abroad, I recalled Schopenhauer's perceptive remark: "If you want to discover what true opinion of anybody, observe the impression made on you by the first sight of a letter from him."

One of the hardest tasks for parents is to distinguish between the child and the behind the character and the stage the child is going through in order to fit him for being bad without making him feel he "is" bad; to reprimand him for failing to do his duty without making him feel he "is" a liar; and our failure to make these distinctions is why so many ugly traits we are trying to eradicate.

A man marries a woman because she reminds him of his mother, and then is irritated when she behaves like a mother; and then resent her because she is different from his mother. Such men, perhaps, should not marry at all — but they are the ones who marry most often.

To look upon something inferior with distaste, without at the same time feeling contempt for our distaste, is the rarest and noblest form of discriminating judgment that moralizers are incapable of.

No woman is responsible for her sex but every woman is for her expression; and, especially after 30, a woman's attractiveness is the product of face, one-fourth artifice, but fully one-half expression; if the latter is faulty, no mean, or silken, or discontented, the other half goes for nothing.

Pool Railway Cars Popular Meeting Told

Rapidly increasing congestion on the highways will result in a wider popularity of the pool railway cars as a means of freight forwarding, members of the Quinte Traffic Club were told at their regular monthly dinner meeting on Wednesday evening.

Guest speaker for the meeting, presided over by club president Ronald Godden, of Direct Western Transport, was Irvin Cheyne of Howell Forwarding Co. Ltd., Toronto.

Mr. Cheyne spoke on the past, present and future of freight forwarding by pool cars through which different customers pool freight shipments to make up a full carload, thus taking advantage of a lower freight rate.

The speaker said that not too many years ago there were only three vehicles for each mile of roadway in Ontario and prophesied that within 10 or 15 years there would be 22 vehicles per mile of road.

Mr. Cheyne was introduced by Oliver Owen of Stephens-Adamson and thanked by John Hearn of Mead Johnson.

Captain Gordon Walker (right) of Rivers Camp, Manitoba, accepts a carving of a "Griffin" from Flight Lieutenant John I. Barton, on behalf of the Army Aviation Tactical Training School at Rivers.

The Griffin, a mythical monster with the body of a lion, the head and wings of an eagle and back covered with feathers, is the symbol of the Army Aviation Tactical Training School. Flight Lieutenant Barton, now of Air Transport Command Headquarters, RCAF Station Trenton, became interested in Army aviation while serving six years at the Canadian Joint Air Training Centre, Rivers. Flight Lieutenant Barton, whose hobby is carving, was asked to carve the "Griffin" for the school. It was carved from Thailand teak and took him approximately six months to complete in his spare time.

Welfare Recipients Down In Dec. But Costs Higher

The number of persons in Belleville receiving general welfare assistance during December last year was 20 per cent lower than for the same month in 1962 but the amount paid out over the year was up by 8.2 per cent.

Figures show there were 667 persons receiving welfare assistance in Belleville in December, this figure representing 2.3 per cent of the population. In December 1962 there were 830 receiving assistance, or 2.8 per cent of the population.

However, a total of $308,686 was paid out in Belleville for welfare assistance in 1963 as compared with $285,316 in 1962.

The report of city manager J. R. Reynolds submitted to council last week showed last March as the high point in the numbers of local residents receiving assistance. On the roll at that time were 1,048 persons.

Mr. Reynolds reported that while a slight reduction in applicants for general welfare assistance appeared during the fall and early winter a definite trend of reductions due to employment has not been established.

Kingston Cook Given 10 Years For Robberies

MONTREAL (CP)—A Kingston cook who said he turned to crime to get money to pay an operation to save the life of his young son was sentenced Wednesday to 10 years in prison.

Jack Delina, 23, pleaded guilty to staging five holdups that netted him a total of $201. The first holdup occurred Feb. 28 when $18 was stolen from a bakery.

Delina was apprehended Monday, a few minutes after the fifth robbery occurred, at a lingerie shop where $40 was stolen.

All the holdups occurred in the downtown St. Catherine Street district.

In answer to a question, Delina said he had turned to holdups "because I have a six-month-old boy who has to be operated on or he will die."

Separatist

young, seemed unhappy about the cancellation and then were shouts of "That's democracy for you," and "We've been stopped by police brutality."

Jean-Gabriel Maranda, a rassemblement official, said the executive had decided to call off the demonstration because "the occasion is inauspicious for a peaceful demonstration."

Standing on the steps of a Boer War memorial in the middle of the square he said "it is discipline that counts."

MUST SHOW MATURITY

"As separatists it is our duty to show the maturity of our movement. The best thing all of us can do for the cause right now is disperse and go to our homes in silence and dignity."

While another rassemblement spokesman told reporters police had asked them to cancel the demonstration, Mr. Maranda would make no comment on this.

Sir George Williams students had been released from classes at 4 p.m. with instructions from university officials to go home. Some students wearing armbands were kept on university premises as monitors to prevent other students from causing any trouble there.

Meanwhile, two blocks away from Dominion Square, the passerby later spotted the Union Jack aflame in the doorway of the veterans social club (Army and Navy).

There was no indication whether the flag had any connection with the Dominion Square demonstration.

The passerby extinguished the fire but the flag was half-burned.

Club president Bill Shirley said: "We are shocked that this could happen here. There were a few hundred people in the club at the time and it could have been a holocaust.

"Sixty per cent of our members are French-speaking Canadian war veterans. And they too are shocked."

Rodrigue Guite, a regional rassemblement official, when told of the flag-burning incident at a later press conference, said that "I understand this very well."

"Any Union Jack which flies in this province is in itself a provocation."

No Animosity Among Que. Police Officers Before Coffin Case Commission Is Told

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — There was no animosity among Quebec Provincial Police before the Coffin case, former QPP Sgt.-Maurice Doyon, 44, testified Wednesday before the royal commission into the Coffin affair.

But he told a tale of events following the shooting of three Pemmyivania hunters in Quebec's Gaspe in 1955.

The death of the hunters led to the hanging of 43-year-old Gaspe prospector Wilbert Coffin Feb. 10, 1956.

Coffin died maintaining his innocence.

Mr. Doyon said that when he was replaced as chief investigator in 1953 by Capt. J. A. Mathe, now chief inspector with the QPP, and Capt. Raoul Sirois, he felt relieved.

Replying to a question by commission counsel Jules Deschenes, he said it "quite possible" he might have referred to them later as "the disgusting ones from Quebec City." This was because of the way they treated him.

He blamed the case for his dismissal from the QPP in 1961, after 21½ years of service. He asked for his release June 5 but was notified 11 days later he was fired, without pension.

He will be cross-examined today by several of the lawyers, among them Jean Grenier, appointed by the Quebec government to represent civil servants and police officers in the case.

The government also appointed Mr. Justice Roger Brossard the one-man commission following publication in December of a book titled J'Accuse les Assassins de Coffin: (I Accuse Coffin's Assassins.)

Mr. Doyon said that years after the trial, Donald Coffin, brother of Wilbert Coffin, told him that he had gone to Wilbert's camp with Raymond Maher, one of Wilbert's lawyers, and another man the night following the coroner's inquest. Donald told him he had found a rifle behind the camp and they took it away.

Mr. Doyon said Wilbert Coffin himself told him he had hidden a rifle in a tree at his camp. The sergeant went to the parish hall in Gaspe, where the coroner's inquest was about to take place, and told Capt. Matte of the gift.

He testified that Capt. Matte told him that night to go after him the following day.

Sgt. Doyon and other policemen found fresh car tracks at Coffin's camp at daybreak, but no rifle.

He produced as evidence the lever, including the trigger ring, of a rifle. He said the rusty eight-inch piece of metal was found on a cement piling beneath the Quebec Bridge in the spring of 1955.

Mr. Doyon said he had asked bridge employees to look out for a rifle or pieces of one. Stories that the rifle had been thrown in the St. Lawrence prompted him to do so, he said.

Mr. Doyon said he sent the piece of the rifle to the QPP laboratory in Montreal for identification, and later took it to the Gaspe.

He said Jack Eagle and Wilfred Patterson, former owners of the rifle Coffin had hidden, identified the lever as a piece of the 1893-model .32-40 calibre carbine.

Mr. Doyon said he made three reports to Solicitor-General Rivard and spent several hundred dollars on the investigation in the year before Coffin was hanged.

But he said he heard of no reaction to the reports.

Earlier in the day, he testified that Coffin had stayed in his home during the coroner's inquest.

Mr. Deschenes announced that the commission will sit in Montreal April 7-9 to hear testimony from Francis Thompson, an Indian who told Miami police in 1958 he and another man killed the hunters.

Thompson later retracted the confession.

Explorers Told To Quit Canadian Base in Arctic

OSLO (AP)—The Oslo newspaper Aftenposten says in a special report from the Canadian arctic air base Alert that Bjoern Stalb's 1964 north pole expedition has been given 24 hours to get off the base.

The report from Aftenposten's reporter Erik Lunde said that station commander Jim Sherry had given the order immediately after two Hercules transport planes had landed on the base with the expedition, dogs and the equipment.

Stalb and his team are planning to ski across the arctic ice cap.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CP)—Short Brothers of Belfast have built a "flying van"—a three - ton truck with wings. They will get a £1,500,000 backing from the government to help develop the idea.

He said a federal law enforced by the provinces is the only way to prosecute persons who distribute hate literature.

"We will not tolerate such activity here," he said, "and everything within our power will be done to prevent it and to bring to justice those who are participating."

Stephen-Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) said hate literature in Ontario is emanating from a "small, perverted, hostile fringe." The anti-semites today become anti-Negro tomorrow, anti-Catholic the next day and anti-Christian thereafter.

Society readily prosecutes books such as Fanny Hill or Lady Chatterley's Lover and moral purisms were quick to make remarks about visiting dignitaries to Toronto.

SLOWER TO REACT

These people, he said, were much slower to react when dealing with the immorality represented by neo-Nazism, racial and religious discrimination and the spreading of hate.

In other business, Ontario's municipalities asked the provincial government to set up a commission to settle automobile claims; to provide dental care for welfare recipients, and to pay 20 per cent of the cost of drugs for indigents. Municipalities have been paying the total cost of drugs.

However, his announcement after a 2½-hour meeting at the legislative buildings here brought renewed fears that some of the province's 4,500 tobacco farmers might resort to violent demonstrations to keep the auctions closed.

Mr. Demeyere planned to meet today in Tillsonburg with leaders of the extremist group to persuade them of the value of getting sales started again.

John Tarr of Niton, who headed a march by farmers on the Queen's Park last Friday, said he was "quite satisfied" with Mr. Demeyere's promise to appoint a commission to settle the problems of the growers and demands for a stable market.

Dies in Hospital

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Debra Morley, 7, critically burned Saturday when her nightclothes touched a red-hot element and caught fire, died Tuesday in hospital.

Wednesday the auction centres should have remained closed until minimum grade prices for tobacco were reestablished.

DISPUTES RIGHT

He said Mr. Demeyere had no right to open the auctions without the permission of 3,500 growers who supported the closing.

At his press conference, Mr. Demeyere said only time will tell whether the problems of the growers would be solved. He admitted little progress had been made in a series of meetings between board officials and tobacco buyers arranged by the federal and provincial governments.

But he hoped that both the buyers and the government now were more familiar with the problems of the growers and the seriousness of their demands for a stable market.

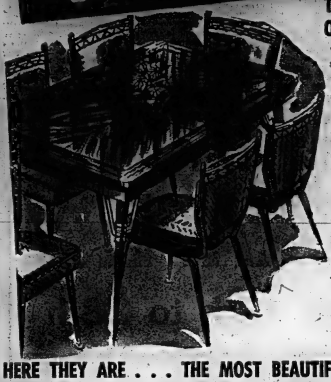
EXERCISES FOR PEOPLE WHO HATE EXERCISES

The fifty mile hikes that the late President Kennedy advocated as part of his physical campaign are too rugged for most of us. But a physical fitness campaign usually finds members, often because it becomes just that — a campaign. The ordinary body exercises has all sorts of routines and regimes, which must be faced on an empty stomach in the dark of Canada's winter dawn. The whole plan is enough to put any normal person off exercise for the rest of her life.

But something new has hit the physical fitness field, called isometrics. The science of "isometrics" involves a system of undemanding exercises. Some of them are so undemanding that they can be performed while sitting in a chair. The whole idea of isometrics is the art of holding a set of muscles in static contraction — not easily still — for moments at a time.



There are four basic isometrics — or routines — that can be done without equipment, teacher or a special exercise area. The whole idea is to concentrate on muscle contraction, allowing

U.C.W. Meeting

MARSH HILL — The March meeting of Marsh Hill United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. Ivan Clare with 12 members present. The president, Mrs. Harold Detlor presided and the hostess conducted the worship service using the theme "Alive with He Life" which included a vocal solo by Mrs. Leslie Finkle with Mrs. Berson Mitts at the piano.

Mrs. Harry Coulter gave an interesting report of the second annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial of the United Church Women which was held recently at Napanee. Mrs. Allyn Finkle conducted the Bible study with the topic "God and Evil" which was followed by an interesting discussion.

It was reported that 21 cards and two letters had been sent with seven hospital and eight house calls having been made. A letter was read concerning a devotional book "Christian Belief and Christian Practice"; also a letter from the Stirling Festival of Praise committee.

The hostess served refreshments.

Objectives of Junior Red Cross Society Outlined

The month of March has been designated as Red Cross Month in Canada and one week of this month is Junior Red Cross Week in the schools. The Junior Red Cross Society is a member of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Some of the objectives of the Junior Red Cross is to promote health, to serve others and increase an international understanding. The Junior Society has sent aid to 26 foreign lands in 1963. All moneys raised by the branches are devoted to their work for youth. The administration costs are borne by the Senior Society.

The members are vitally interested in crippled and handicapped children.

"IN-SCHOOL" ACTIVITY

In Ontario the Junior Red Cross is encouraged by the Department of Education as an "in-school" activity. Each class room becomes a branch and all its pupils members. They elect a president and a secretary and carry on their meetings in a parliamentary fashion with the teacher acting as supervisor.

The raising of funds for the Junior Red Cross is the only fund raising activity permitted by the school boards within the schools.

In order to raise those funds collections are taken, fees are paid and various money-raising projects are carried out by the pupils.

At the end of the school year last June there were 19,239 branches enrolled with a membership of over 700,000.

Here in Ontario in 1963, the Junior Red Cross funds provided an eye vision coach which was located in various sections of the north country. Over 800 children received vision tests and 90 received glasses.

The Fund for Needy Children provided drugs, medical care, hearing aids, glasses and orthodontic treatment for over 900 children. The loan cupboard is maintained for the purpose of loaning wheelchairs and other equipment on a short term basis.

Sixty-two children who were unable to attend school received homecraft parcels each month. These children are bedridden or wheelchair patients.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Aid was also provided for children who required heart surgery and transportation provided to medical centres.

Branches in the schools have at times provided gifts and aid to families in this locality.

The members of the Junior Red Cross believe in healthy minds and bodies and better human relations throughout the world.

U.C.W. Meeting

SPRINGBROOK U.C.W.

Mrs. Clayton Burkitt and Mrs. Murney Mason were hostesses to the Springbrook United Church Women, friends and school children at a potluck dinner held in the church hall.

Following the dinner the president Mrs. Mason, welcomed all and opened the meeting with an appropriate poem.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Roy Shortt and Mrs. Sanford Mckleljohn, using as their theme "People Who Know Who They Are." Mrs. Delbert Fleming gave an interesting missionary topic on India and explained the modern protestant missionary movement in India. How they help the Indian Christian to take more responsibility in the communities as teachers in Christian schools, doctors and nurses in hospitals and as advisors to their people.

Mrs. Fleming also answered many questions on the customs and people in India, and the help given on the reservation in Canada.

Mrs. Gordon Baily, dressed in a sari, explained the dress and everyday life of the Indian woman.

A report on the recent UCW convention held in Napanee was given by Mrs. Gerald McFaul and Mrs. Mervin Rowland. Mrs. Gerald Broadworth reported for the sick and visiting committee of several calls made to sick and shutins.

A potluck supper will be held in the church hall on March 17.

All enjoyed a contest conducted by Mrs. Fleming.

Ann Landers

Youth Is Upset by His Mother's Indiscretions

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a boy 14 who has been reading your column for three years.

My father is a trucker and has to be away from home about two night a week. I know now for sure my mother has another man in the house at night when my father is gone. A separate door leads to my mother's room and the man uses that door to come in and leave.

My mother doesn't know that I know this, but I'm sure I'm right because I have seen the man in broad daylight four or five times.

The question is, should I tell my father? He has a very hot temper and I'm afraid he would just about kill my mother if he found out about this other man.

Please tell me what to do, I can't sleep nights from worrying. — SCARED.

* * *

DEAR SCARED — Don't tell your father — tell your mother. Let's hope that when she learns her shameful behavior is causing you anxiety and sleepless nights she will straighten around. If this doesn't do it, write to me again and I'll advise you further.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What can I do about my husband's sister? Irene telephones my husband every night at 8:45 — right in the middle of supper. He had an extension cord put on the phone. The phone sits right on the dining room table.

The children hate it, and so do I. We can never have a family discussion because we know Aunt Irene is going to use up our meal time with her nonsense and gossip. Sometimes she reads articles from the church bulletin or Bible quotations which she thinks are timely.

For years I have put up with this. I wrote to you last October and asked what to do. You said to "Tell him." Well, I told him, and here is what he told me: "Irene has been like a mother to me. I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world."

What do I do now? — SECOND TO SISTER.

* * *

DEAR SECOND — Don't you think $5.45 is a trifle early for supper? Why don't you change it to 6:15 — After Irene's call?

This change of schedule could solve the problem. It's a cinch your husband isn't going to change and neither is Irene.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a clergyman with a problem. Our church is small and the congregation is large. On Sunday there is never sufficient room on the first floor to seat all the people. We have adopted a procedure that many of our ushers do not think is right.

Often the younger children (grammar school age) occupy the front pews. When the older members of the congregation arrive (often just a few moments before the services begin), the youngsters are asked to surrender their seats and go sit in the choir loft. The choir loft is comfortable and they can see and hear just as well as downstairs.

Since the opinions are so evenly divided will you give us your thinking? — FATHER J. P. OF KAHULUI, HAWAII.

* * *

DEAR FATHER — In congregations which have no assigned seats I believe in "first come first served."

The youngsters should not be asked to surrender their seats to adults who arrive moments before the service. Of course, if a latecomer is aged or infirm he should not be asked to climb the stairs. Some polite youngster would then cheerfully surrender his seat.

P.S. — Father, you have high class worries. A crowded church is the highest compliment that can be paid to a clergyman.)

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex," ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

REVIEWING THE SEATING SITUATION

"Shouldn't my husband and I be seated together at a dinner party?"

"When we entertain in a restaurant, how should the seating be arranged?"

"At the theatre, how should we be seated when we're with another couple?"

These are typical of many questions we're often asked about how a husband and wife should be seated when entertaining at dinner at home, or when dining out in a restaurant or at a friend's house. Briefly, the situation is this:

On the home front, a husband and wife most often sit opposite each other with guests arranged — male, then female — in the rest of the seats. The wife usually sits at the end of the table nearest the kitchen. At times, the host and hostess may sit across from each other at the middle of the table instead of taking the traditional seats at either end. This may be a matter of convenience, or just to vary things.

On occasion, the wife may give up her traditional seat opposite her husband, although he keeps his seat at the head of the table. For instance, if there are eight for dinner, it's easier to intersperse male and female if the hostess gives up her seat to one of the men guests and takes a seat at one side, but at the opposite end from her husband.

LARGE PARTY

If the party is large and possibly two tables are used, then the host and hostess split up, and each takes a seat at one of the tables.

When dining at someone else's home, a man and wife do not sit side by side. They take the places designated by the hostess and she'll rarely put a husband and a wife together. The idea is to break up the conversation. After all, when a couple goes out they're expected to mix with others instead of concentrating on each other.

At a restaurant, the host and hostess sit opposite each other and the seating is the same as if they were entertaining at home. If they are dining with another couple and the table is at a banquet, the women take the seats against the wall and the men take places opposite.

At the theatre, if two couples are together, seating may be staggered — woman, man, woman, man — but usually the women take the two inside seats and the men take the outside seats.

On the whole, whether they're hosts or guests, married couples are seated separately so they may share conversation and interests with others, which contributes to the enjoyment of the evening for everyone in the group.

Canned Tomatoes Glamorized

by Mary Moore

Simple things may amuse simple people. If so I'm simple, for I enjoy taking inexpensive food in hand and making it into a gourmet dish. For instance, in a few weeks I am going to give here a recipe for Navy Bean Soup which I served to 8 guests from my silver soup tureen and which was very popular.

But a dish which comes under this heading is a Casserole of Tomatoes which is one of my prides. An overlong baking period is the step, which gives it a flavor plus.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Pot Roast of Beef with Rich Brown Gravy; Mashed Turnip; Spinach; Homemade Crusty Rolls (see Tuesday); Grapefruit Halves; Tea.

SUNDAY

Chicken Divan (Chicken Legs Baked on Bed of Chopped Broccoli in Cheese Sauce); Glazed Carrot Strips; Tomato and Lettuce Salad; French Dressing; First Prize Cherry Pie (see Wednesday); Coffee.

EMEN'S CASSEROLE OF TOMATOES (serves 7):

Butter 7 slices of white bread with crusts on. Cut each slice into 4 quarters. Place in single layer on broiler pan, butter side up. Broil 3 inches from heat until golden brown. Put half of the bread squares in bottom of large buttered casserole. Pour over evenly one 20-oz. can tomatoes. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon grated mild onion, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and a little pepper. Cover with remaining bread squares, an other 20-oz. can of tomatoes and repeat the flavorings (that is another 1 tablespoon grated mild onion, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and sprinkle of pepper). Some of the points of the bread squares should protrude above surface to brown attractively in oven. Dot top with 1 or 2 tablespoons butter. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours. The very dry buttered bread soaks up the excess tomato liquid and is luscious.

This tomato casserole may be prepared in advance and refrigerated until it is baked before mealtime.

HELEN POLLOCK'S TOMATO TIMBALES (repeated from April 23/59):

NOTE:

This was popular 5 years ago this month and may be from 4 to 6, depending on the size of your individual baking dishes.

1 1/3 cups canned tomatoes, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon sugar, 8 salted crackers crushed, finely (about 2/3 cup), 2 eggs.

Heat tomatoes with salt, pepper and sugar. Add crushed crackers and mix well. Remove from heat and add to slightly beaten eggs. Mix and pour into greased individual baking dishes. Stand in pan of hot water and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes; or if in 1 baking dish about 50 to 60 minutes.

Lines on Life

by Dr. Stuart R. Rosberg

Freedom never grows. It is always won by those who struggle to achieve it. What is it, even by society as a whole; only the individual can be one by one.

Governments must set the right to be free, or the power to be free, the more to be able to do what we will, as attained only by each citizen's soul, struggling. It is that power, it matters not whether we have political freedom. We are much political freedom we have, if our own powers to be are locked up and impounded within us, we have freed the gaunt of true freedom. Unless we learn to use those personal powers within us and give them their direction, we remain in bondage to lords, tyrants or tyrants, but to ourselves.

Freedom and personal happiness and human fulfillment stand in hand. One cannot be happy or fulfilled as a person without political freedom. Unless we have the right to be himself. Yet we cannot achieve human happiness as men, unless our personal powers have been given the fullest freedom of expression. No other man or group can emancipate those incarcerated powers; only each man himself.

But how does a man do this? By practising and learning the arts of self-discipline.

It may seem odd to make discipline a requirement for the attainment of freedom. Discipline suggests restraint, and restraint implies bondage; freedom seems to mean the total absence of any fetters. Upon closer scrutiny, however, we will discover that while discipline is restraining, true freedom is not possible without proper and adequate forms of restraint. Just as we come to understand the need for discipline in the realm of political freedom — the enforcement of law and the punishment for the violation — so, too, we learn as we mature, how dependent we are on personal discipline for the achievement of personal freedom.

All human skills are dependent upon the achievement of mastery which comes only with "practice" — which is but another way of describing "self-discipline". Mastery of skills comes easily to no one. We must drive hard, work hard to attain those skills upon which we have set our minds; and only it would have been so much easier, more pleasant and less taxing "to sit back and relax" instead of learning by doing, and doing, and doing some more. Many, indeed, do sit back idly, critical of those who have mastered their skills, claiming that "it was all a matter of luck".

They are wrong. They deceive themselves this way because they like to hope that they might yet achieve the easy way, the "lucky way," what others could only have achieved the harder way — the way of self-restraint, practice and discipline. Ask the skilled surgeon what he had to give up in order to grow up as a master. Or the artist, the musician, the writer, the scholar: inquire of them how many sacrifices of time and fleeting pleasure they have made, in order to unlock the powers they had within them.

The greatest enemy of self-discipline is self-indulgence. Self-indulgence sees only the immediate, momentary pleasure and seizes upon this as the greatest good. Self-discipline is other. It places larger demands upon us; it takes nothing for granted. It measures the present against the future, the lesser good against the greater. It seeks to match its means with the ends.

We need always remember that self-indulgence enslaves, whilst self-discipline makes free. Those who have been given the right to be free, yet lack the power to be free, have forgotten this.

Successful Living

Not Necessary to Endure Constant Belittling

DEAR DORIS — Every time a guest comes to the house my husband loves to belittle us in their eyes. I have a daughter whom he delights in teasing (as he says it is) until he gets her so nervous she cries.

Now, should this upset me or am I too thin-skinned? Why does one person want to hurt a whole family and make everyone's life miserable? The married ones don't want to come near the house.

As I have only two children, when they don't come I am very lonesome. — TOO SENSITIVE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SENSITIVE — It is time the whole family ganged up on father. He uses teasing and belittling as a way of putting up his own ego — which must be rather low to need it! Deliver fair warning — as a group — that you are taking no more of same.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — For the past eight months I have been dating a very nice, good-looking fellow. Now John is very wealthy and is constantly bringing this up in my presence.

He is forever telling me that he loves me alone, yet when we go double dating he completely ignores me and pays attention to the other girl. This breaks my heart because I am truly fond of him. — NINETEEN AND BEWILDERED.

• • •

DEAR NINETEEN — Your swaggering moneybags is acting childish. He is rude and inconsiderate also dishonest. Love does not ignore, but makes much of the beloved.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My mother is old fashioned. She won't let me go out on weekdays very often and I have an 11 o'clock deadline on weekends. I am 15 and all my girl friends have more privileges. How can I explain to my mother to "let loose"? — FRUSTRATED.

• • •

DEAR FRUSTRATED — Curfews are still in style in the best-regulated families. If you can get special-occasion concessions right now, consider yourself privileged. My heartfelt sympathy goes to the girl whose mother just doesn't give two hoots about when she comes in.

• • •

Confidential to HOSTILITY — Objecting to unwashed hands on food is not hostility. I agree that we all have likes and dislikes. But it's when we show disapproval of guests in no uncertain way that our more easy-going relatives begin to squirm — and protest.

• • •

DEAR DORIS— When two people meet, a man and a woman, who is the first to say "Hello"? I say a male should speak first. This does not mean strangers, but when it is someone we know. — JUST WONDERING.

• • •

DEAR JUST WONDERING — Mrs. Grundy says the gentleman waits for the lady to speak first. But I say there's no hewy here for friendship's sake. Maybe the lady happens not to notice — or is walking along in a daze. Does she want the gent to think she'd snub him?

Presbyterian Women Mark Two Anniversaries of Work

One hundred years ago, in the city of Montreal, a small group of women came together to form the Church of Scotland in its French mission work.

This year, the women of the Presbyterian Church in Canada will gather in Montreal on May 9, 10 and 10 in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, to commemorate the century of organized Presbyterian women's work in Canada.

Almost immediately after its formation this small group supported a missionary at Cote St. Paul and started a school on Dorchester Street. A few years later they secured the services of Francis Bibbe Woman, Madame Cote, who ministered to the French poor for over 30 years. Working among the English-speaking poor at the same time was a deaconess, Miss McIntyre.

As interest increased in the larger mission of the Church, money and clothing were sent to India, and the salary of Dr. Lucinda Graham in Honan, China, was raised. Nevertheless, a few years later, in 1900, Dr. Susan McCalla was sent to India and in 1901 Miss Agnes Dickson and Miss Isabella Little started work among the women and children in South India.

In 1904 the name of this group became "The Women's Missionary Society" and covers the beginnings in Montreal.

Early in 1876, the Toronto daily papers carried notices of a meeting to consider forming a Women's Society for Foreign Missions and on March 21st, 1876, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society was organized. In 1882 this Society adopted the motto "Who Will Go?" That fall still the motto of the Society, and will be the theme of the celebrations in Montreal.

With the discovery of gold in the Klondyke and the subsequent opening up of the Canadian west, a need arose for help at home. Rev. John Pringle, ministering to 1,200 miners in Atlin, B.C., asked the women of the Church to send one Christian nurse at once, as men were dying for lack of care. The Atlin Nurse Committee was formed and included representatives from nearly every Presbyterian congregation in Toronto. In July 1899, Miss Elizabeth Mitchell and Miss Helen Rose arrived in Atlin.

Their first hospital was a small cabin with a mud roof and sawdust floor and held 4 cots. When the cabin became crowded a tent was put up for an annex. The following Spring everyone in camp gave free labor and Mr. Rowley's home, the first Presbyterian hospital in Canada — was erected.

As the Home Mission Work of the Church grew, more hospitals were opened and schools and residences built and the Women's Home Missionary Society was born in May 1908.

On May 12th, 1914, in Knox Church, Toronto, these three Women's Groups came together to form the Women's Missionary Society (W.D.) of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

This dates the occasion a double celebration: 100 years of organized Presbyterian Women's work and 50 years since the amalgamation of the three groups.

Jaycees' Home, Sport Show Opened Wednesday

OFFICIAL TOUR — Members of the official party gathered in front of Jaycees' booth above, before being taken on a guided tour of the show by Jaycee members. Shown from left to right are His Worship the Mayor, Jack R. Ellis, P. Houston, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, Lou Fontinato, former Montreal Canadiens' defenceman, Miss Canada (Carol Ann Balmer), Barry Clegg, president of Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Donald Dafoe, chairman of 1964 Home and Sport Show committee.

Armouries Scene of Four-Day Event

Miss Canada and Lou Fontinato Cut Ribbon After Street Parade

The four - day Quinte District Home and Sport Show, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, got off to a good start last night as the pre-show left the Federal Building to parade down Front Street and up Bridge Street to the Armour'y.

The colorful parade moved quickly, led by the RCAF Pipe Band and a corps of majorettes. Among the official party were Miss Canada (Carol Ann Balmer) and former Montreal Canadiens' defenceman Lou Fontinato, along with local and government officials.

The pipe band formed a guard of honor inside the Bridge Street entrance of the armouries where Miss Canada and Mr. Fontinato cut the ribbon, before moving onto the stage where Miss Canada declared the 1964 show officially opened.

Following remarks by President of the Jaycees, Barry Clegg, greetings were extended on behalf of the city by his Worship the Mayor, Jack, R. Ellis. Mayor Ellis said, "We are very proud of the Jaycees in Belleville". Greetings were also extended by Lou Fontinato and by the president of the local Chamber of Commerce, Mr. P. Houston.

VIEW EXHIBIT

The official party was then taken on a tour of the exhibits by members of the Jaycees.

Twenty-five booths are located along both outside walls with 24 in the centre aisle. There are five crossover terminals surrounding the blocks of booths.

From the East Bridge Street entrance, upon arriving, the tour could be started with the CJBQ radio station booth from where live broadcasts were carried last night. Moving down the line one comes to a booth for Citizens Committee for Belleville Youth. Next comes a display sponsored by Maxfield trailers, showing the latest in mobile homes.

Turning the corner and to sports, one sees the Belleville Bowmen Club exhibit and next in line is Chapman's home beverage delivery, offering soft drinks and snacks. After passing the goody counter, one moves on to see the latest in interior decorating exhibited by Quinte Paint and Wallpaper and the latest electrical conveniences offered by the Ontario Hydro Commission.

For the boat lover, Quinte Marine has a boat and equipment on display in the southwest corner and to go with that new boat is either the new Chevelle sports car, displayed by Trudeau Motors or a Studebaker on display by Vader's Car Sales.

RCAF SHOWS FILM

At the west end of the floor is the arts and crafts division and in the same location the RCAF booth where films on survival are being shown.

Next one moves into the furniture and appliance division with displays by Rad Boy and the John Lewis Company, and then to the Chamber of Commerce and Emergency Measures Organization booth. In the same immediate area Ray Rose is displaying collapsible trailers and the latest in home furnishings are shown by Adams Furniture. Also on display is the latest in home heating offered by Moira Schuster Limited.

Wandering through the cross aisles one sees a portable recreation room demonstrated by Rollin's Construction, and the latest in concrete patios exhibited by Wilson Concrete. Then to the Algonquin Lodge booth where there is an interesting display of stuffed animals.

Crossing over the centre aisle there is a joint display of travel and adventure offered by the Canadian National Railways and Rolaf's Travel Centre. For those who cannot afford both a car and a boat, the amphibian displayed by Foley Foundry.

There is something for the historian at the Hastings County Museum display. Next one comes to the Arthur A. Sills and Son booth displaying home improvement methods and to the family Y.M.C.A. booth.

GOOD SHOW GIVEN

The stage is located along the south wall where a fine show was given by a wide variety of local talent, featuring folk singing and the Gail Chapman dancers. Located directly to the west is the Belleville Jaycees' own booth where you will be given an opportunity to meet with their members.

Chairman of the Home and Sport Show Committee, Donald Dafoe, said this morning that the boat purchased for the draw, which was later cancelled, is on display at the east end of the building, directly behind the YMCA booth. Sealed bids for the boat will be received at the Jaycees booth during the next three days of the show.

On Wednesday afternoon, Miss Norma Wildgoose, staff commentator for the women's division of the Canadian National Exhibition, directed a fashion show at the armories, featuring the latest in spring fashions, through the courtesy of Artistic Ladies Wear Limited. Miss Canada and five other professional models took part in the show.

SIGNING UP NEW MEMBER — Former Montreal Canadien defenceman Lou Fontinato is seen above being signed up as a member of the Belleville Youth Committee by Belleville's Fire Chief, Gerald Vance, at last night's opening of 1964 Home and Sport Show. Looking on in approval are E. Adamson and Lionel Boily. Also adding their aproval are Jane and Peggy McCutcheon.

Non-Certificate Teachers In Newfoundland Schools Get 10 Per Cent Increase

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Education Minister G. A. Frecker Wednesday announced a 10-per-cent increase in salaries for non-certificate teachers in Newfoundland schools.

It was the third major announcement regarding salary increases for Newfoundlanders since the provincial legislature began its current session Monday. Nurses and non - professional hospital workers also received major salary increases.

The salary increases will affect about 2,000 teachers. Last year the government approved increases for teachers holding varying grades of certificates amounting to $750,000. The new increases will amount to about 200,000.

"When the two increases are taken into account . . . it will represent a total of more than $1,000,000 for our teachers," he said.

In other legislatures:

Nova Scotia — Members unanimously approved a resolution calling for a second ferry service between western Nova Scotia and New England.

IS PRACTICABLE

Trade Minister E. A. Manson said his department has studied the existing ferry service between Yarmouth and Bar Harbor, Me., and found a second service was practicable.

New Brunswick — Two opposition members attacked the province's financing policies during the budget debate.

Richard Hatfield (PC — Carleton) said money which should be used for provincial development is going to pay the costs of a rising debt.

Dr. J. P. McInerney (PC—York) said the government had increased the provincial debt by half as much as all other administrations accumulated since the province's first government was formed in 1785.

Quebec — Premier Lesage said the government is disposed to accept compromise amendments by the upper house to legislation creating an education department.

The announcement made it certain that the controversial bill, twice shunted back and forth between the two houses, will become law.

ATTACKS PLAN

Manitoba—Opposition Leader Gil Molgat formed the government's attempts to decide whether denturists should be allowed to deal directly with the public as "weak-kneed" and "wishy-washy."

He was commenting on a government resolution to establish a special house committee to study all aspects of dental technicians' operations.

Appointment of such a committee would be "sheer abdication of responsibility," he said.

Saskatchewan — Mary Bethune (PC—Humboldt) objected to a bill which would set up an appeal board and make other provisions to ensure doctors were not refused hospital privileges unjustifiably.

She said she opposed a provision in the hospital privileges bill requiring boards to give written reasons to doctors who are refused privileges.

WANTS MORE INCOME

Alberta — Frank Gahner, coalition member for Banff-Cochrane, said the government should demand a new agreement with all oil and gas companies in the province to get more revenue for increasing education costs.

He said Venezuela receives 67 per cent of the profits from 14 oil companies and similar agreements in Alberta could pay for education and reduce the property tax burden.

British Columbia — Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) presented a bill that would require cigarette containers in B.C. to bear the warning: "These cigarettes have a tar and nicotine content and are dangerous to human health."

Speaker William Murray ruled that a section of the bill implied the act would apply to radio or television, a federal jurisdiction, and ruled the entire bill out of order.

Bilingualism Plus Biculturalism

Traditional Twins at 'Bytown' College

By BENOIT HOULE

OTTAWA (CP)—Two decades before Confederation, the University of Ottawa adopted principles of bilingualism and biculturalism that have become a cherished tradition.

It was called Bytown College in September, 1848, when it opened its doors to 80 students. The college was granted a royal charter in 1866, the year before the Dominion of Canada came into being.

Today the university has 3,200 students — 1,638 from Ontario, 1,234 from Quebec, the remainder from other provinces or from abroad.

It is still run by its founders, the Roman Catholic Oblate order, and its guiding principle remains the same—to foster better understanding between Canada's two main ethnic groups.

This isn't always easy, especially in these days of ferment and discord over bilingualism and biculturalism.

BOTH SIDES CRITICIZE

"We have to maintain equilibrium between the two elements who make up our student body," says the university's rector, Very Rev. Henri Legaré.

"French-speaking people accuse us of being too English, and English-speaking people say we are too French.

"But if other educational institutions in Canada had adopted the same principles as ours—at least after Confederation—then Confederation today would be more proud of its national achievements than preoccupied by its internal tensions."

The University of Ottawa implements bilingualism by offering parallel courses in both English and French for the first two undergraduate years in most arts and science subjects.

In law, courses covering Quebec's civil code are given in French while those dealing with British common law are in English.

All courses in medicine are given in English, because authorities say they lack the money, the professors and the appropriate textbooks to offer any in French.

The university began modestly in one small building, situated less than a mile from Parliament Hill. Today its 42-acre campus groups 40 buildings, and something new is added almost every year.

ITS ... MENT TO DOUBLE

In 1963, the Vanier Library of Medicine and Science was opened. This year should see the completion of a new 15-storey residence to accommodate 350 students.

Authorities are looking forward to an enrolment of 8,000 by 1970. Plans for expanding the campus call for the closing of eight streets in the surrounding residential district.

The university's main problems are financial. Only two of its faculties are eligible for Ontario government grants, and Father Legaré feels that federal assistance ought to be increased.

"Education is the responsibility of the provincial governments, and as long as the Confederation agreement remains as it is, the federal government cannot intrude upon provincial jurisdiction," he said.

"However, the federal government should take a bigger supplementary role. It profits from the Canadian university elite in its diplomatic and other services.

"The federal government already provides grants, through the Canada Council for example. Such grants should be increased, but this does not mean we need a federal department of education."

ONLY FOR ELITE

Father Legaré, 46, has been rector of the University of Ottawa since 1953 and is well known in university circles. He has served two terms as president of the National Conference of Universities and Colleges and now is Ontario vice-president of l'Association Canadienne des Educateurs de Langue Francaise.

Born in Willow Bunch, Sask., in 1918, he was ordained in the priesthood in 1943 and studied economics, social and political science in Canada, the United States and Europe.

"Canada's school system does not encourage bilingualism greatly," he says.

"If Canada does become bilingual, it will be only a bilingualism of the elite, not a truly national bilingualism.

"That is this very elite which shapes and orients the country, that ought to be bilingual."

The health department says salads are just as important in winter when fewer fresh vegetables are available.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The city's curling fraternity, and sorority, since both own a share of the glory gained in tape throw over the brilliant feat of the Quinte rink in wresting the Ontario mixed championship from the cream of provincial "brawn-'n-stoners."

Mac White, the doughty skip, Mrs. Heather White, vice; Mrs. Agnes Bonn, lead, and Ken Bonn, second, are receiving the well-deserved plaudits of fellow curlers after their sensational victory at Thornhill.

MAC WHITE

The feat is all the more remarkable, our vice-president in charge of curling feels, because the Quinte Curling Club rink started curling six years ago when the club came into being.

And it has a lesson for hardy benedicts who prefer playing a lone hand when going out of town for tournament, convention, or holiday.

It definitely proved what two guys can do when the little women are along to lend a helping hand.

The genial skip naturally comes in for a lot of the glory, but his male pal and the distaff side of the quartet were mighty important cogs in the victory wheel.

I understand it is the first time an Ontario curling championship has come to this city. This, in itself, adds more lustre to the collective crown.

The big one looms ahead. The National Mixed Curling Championship for the O'Keefe Cup is up for the taking for the first time at the Royal Canadian Curling Club, Beaverton avenue, Toronto, starting Monday, March 16th, through Saturday, March 21.

At this writing eight provincial championship rinks have been declared from Ontario, British Columbia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The full roster of champions is expected to be complete and in the hands of the committee by tonight. On Sunday eleven champions assemble in Toronto for the start of the first National Mixed Bonspiel ever held in Canada.

From Newfie comes the Bally Rally Golf and Curling Club rink skipped by Bill Allen. Saskatchewan is sending the Weyburn Curling Club rink skipped by Dean E. Miller; from Manitoba comes the Heather Curling Club rink with Ernie Bonsky as skip; living Milton skips the Moncton Beaver Curling Club from New Brunswick; Quebec is sending the RCAF Bagotville rink under the skipship of W. R. "Bill" Treacy; the Charlottetown Curling Club rink represents "Spud Island" with Cliff MacDonald as skip. British Columbia, the home of the first champions, is sending Gil LeMoel's Trail Curling Club rink and, of course, Bellerville's own Quinte rink with Mac White, representing Ontario.

Formidable foemen and "foewomen" all. Gallant curlers who will go all out for the honor of having their names the first to be engraved on the handsome O'Keefe Trophy. It should be mixed curling at its best. After all what can one expect in a tournament of champions.

The rinks arrive in Toronto, Sunday, March 15, with a reception scheduled for 5.30 at the Westbury Hotel. The first draw and opening ceremonies are slated for 8.30 p.m., Monday at the Royal Canadian Curling Club.

Should a playoff be required it will be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday, March 21. The seeded draw is expected to be released today.

Canada's first mixed curling championship has attracted wide interest throughout the curling fraternity. If the enthusiasm of members of Toronto area clubs can be used as yardstick, then the big spiel is already a success. So much so that the Royal Canadian Curling Club is installing additional seating to accommodate the expected crowds.

I talked with Mrs. White, in fact interrupted her at a curling seance at the club. She was modestly confident. "If we curl like we did at Thornhill, I think we have a pretty good chance," she said.

City curlers missed excellent curling by not attending the provincial championships, she said.

Pressure may prove an important factor since, in the Quinte rink's case, it is their first appearance in national battle. Some home town faces at the titular bonspiel could prove a big confidence builder for the White-Bonn rink. I think a few carloads of Quinte "rooters" would help our side no end.

ALL THE LUCK, MAC!

Bower Collars Habs; Leafs Win 1-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

His mannerisms might be a bit jerky.

He doesn't seem to see half the shots that bounce off various parts of his anatomy.

He's fidgety. He doesn't say much. And he appears to be scowling at something or somebody whenever you look at him.

But Johnny Bower has been the most effective goaltender in the National Hockey League this season, advanced years or no.

His Toronto Maple Leafs were two more potent on the attack than they have been all season. But Bower made Frank Mahovlich's 32nd goal of the campaign stand up in a 1-0 win over the back-slipping Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night.

At this point in the schedule, wacky things sometimes happen and so it was in another game.

BOSTON'S BIG THREE

Guy Gendron, Orland Kurtenbach and Forbes Kennedy are three fellows who have had more trouble than most on the attack this season. But playing as a unit they collected a total of five points and Boston Bruins destroyed New York's playoff aspirations—if there were any—by belting the Rangers 5-3.

Before 14,041 fans in Toronto, Mahovlich scored his club's first goal against the Canadiens in four games, tipping in a shot from the blueline by defenceman Tim Horton in the opening period. Larry Hillman also drew an assist.

That helped pad out Toronto's third-place cushion and it was a severe setback to the Canadiens, jostling Chicago Black Hawks for the league championship. Going under for the fourth consecutive game, they remained two points behind the Black Hawks. And no longer is it two games in hand. Now it's cut to one.

"We have to win Saturday night against Chicago (in Montreal) or the season is all over," said Montreal coach Toe Blake after the game.

BOWER 'PRETTY FAIR'

"We had the chances but we couldn't finish off the plays when in close," was his analysis. "And don't forget a guy called Bower in the net. He played a pretty fair game."

Redoubtable old Johnny took a stitch for a cut lower lip suffered in a first-period pileup.

But he lowered his personal goals-allowed average to a tight 2.06 a game with his fifth shutout of the season. The work for him and Montreal's Charlie Hodge was 26 shots against.

Hodge and Chicago's Glenn Hall are well off Bower's 2.06 mark. But they lead in the Vezina Trophy competition. That is in reality a team trophy and Bower is behind because Toronto's alternate goalie Don Simmons has a sky-high mark.

TRAIL CHICAGO

The Canadiens were left with 70 points to Chicago's 80. Both teams have played 187 goals with the Hawks having played one more game. The Maple Leafs follow with 69 points, they've given up five more goals—and then four points to the rear lie Detroit and Red Wings, who meet the Bruins tonight in Detroit, the schedule's only game.

Why the collapse by Montreal now?

Said Frank Selke, the club's managing director:

"We have a lot of young players on this team. The pressure of being in a close race for first place is going to tell on them. They're over-anxious and making mistakes."

SMALL CROWD

In the other game, the crowd of 8,158 was the smallest of the season at New York's Madison Square Garden. And ironically it was the other club outside the playoff circle that knocked the Rangers out, although such a blow from some team appeared inevitable.

The Red Wings are 11 points up and the Rangers have only five games to play now, a potential 10 points.

Gendron, a three-goal man going into the game, scored twice and added an assist. Kennedy got a goal and a pair of assists and Kurtenbach three assists.

Murray Oliver and Johnny Bucyk were the other Boston goal-getters. New York's big three, the Phil Goyette-Camille Henry-Rod Gilbert line, accounted for their club's offence, each player scoring once. New York's veteran defenceman Harry Howell took five stitches for a cut over the right eye in the pre-game warmup and did not play.

Scream 'Fix', Hurl Bottles

Angry Fans Halt Welter Fight

ROME (AP) — Angry fight fans, looking for action and some yelling "Fix," hurled bottles, oranges and shoes into the ring Wednesday and forced suspension in the seventh round of the non-title bout between welterweight champion Emile Griffith and Argentina's Juan Carlos Duran.

Referee Fernando Fiza and the three judges officially called the scheduled 10-counter because of the intemperance of the crowd.

The 13,000 spectators, some of whom paid $11.20 for ringside seats, started booing and yelling for action in the fourth round. By the time the seventh started, the referee was unable to clear away the litter of oranges, bottles and paper.

He warned the boxers for the third time to throw more punches. Seconds later he consulted with the judges and the fight was over.

Griffith tried to make a fight of it but the 26-year-old Argentine backed and sidestepped most of the time.

No Knowledge Of Drug

Trainer Luro Exonerated

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Trainer Horatio Luro was exonerated in a horse-drugging case Wednesday and the Florida Racing Commission prepared to erase from its books the rule under which he was suspended.

The Gulfstream Park stewards hastened to reinstate Luro, trainer of Canadian-bred Northern Dancer, after a surprise disclosure that Florida's trainer-responsibility rule had been knocked down by the state Supreme Court 17 years ago.

The rule, similar to those in effect in every racing state except New York, provided that a trainer must be automatically suspended in a drugging case, even though evidence proved him to be personally innocent.

Luro had given such evidence after the presence of the drug procaine was found in a urinalysis of his horse, Gay Lothario, following a victory in the 10th race at Gulfstream March 4.

The trainer's veterinarian, Francis Southard, said he administered the drug to the horse the morning of March 5 without Luro's knowledge in treatment of a throat infection.

Beatle Or Mohawk

LOS ANGELES (AP)

Vancouver Canucks were stunned from the start by the new coiffure of Los Angeles Blade Orval Tessenman Howie Young.

Perhaps that's why they bowed to Los Angeles 8-2 Wednesday night in Western Hockey League play.

Young met the sports arena crowd roaring with laughter when he skated on wearing a Beatle wig. But he brought down the house when he removed the wig and revealed a Mohawk haircut underneath.

His head was shaved, except for a strip down the middle.

"I just did it for kicks," Young explained.

The volatile Young was sold to the Blades by Chicago Black Hawks a month ago after being waived out of the National Hockey League.

A. Boudrias Junior A Champion

Andre Boudrias of Montreal Junior Canadiens is the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A scoring champion this year, a title he earned for holding the league's leading player spot all most constantly in the regular playing season.

At the finish of the regular game schedule Sunday, Boudrias had 38 goals and 97 assists in 55 games for a total of 135 points.

Trailing him was teammate Yvan Cournoyer who scored 62 goals to become the top goal-scorer in the eight-team league. He also mustered 49 assists to bring his points total to 111.

Fred Stanfield of St. Catharines Black Hawks finished the season in third place in the points race with 34 goals and 75 assists. Fourth spot went to Pete Stemkowski of Toronto Marlboros, who fired 42 goals and picked up 61 assists for 103 points.

Bernie Parent of Niagara Falls Flyers led the goaltenders with an average of 2.86 in 38 games. He had four shutouts.

Goalie Doug Wakely, called up by Montreal Canadiens of the NHL from Omaha, still leads the netminding race with a 2.75 average.

Bronko Plager of Omaha is the leader in penalties with 169 minutes.

Threw Snowball-Runner Out!

By CHARLES MAHER

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Stories you hear in the spring, tra-la:

"We were playing this exhibition game against Cleveland in Denver," said Larry Jansen, once a Giant pitcher and now the San Francisco pitching coach. "There'd been some snow so they had to clear the field. There was a pile of snow from two to maybe four feet deep around the outfield.

"Anyway, our right fielder —I think it was George Wilson—went back for this fly ball and backed into the snow bank. He went right over backwards just as the ball was coming down to him.

"Well, George came up and made his throw back toward the infield. And when the umpire saw him start the throw he called the batter out and then turned away from the play.

"What the umpire didn't know—for a minute, anyway —was that the ball George threw back was a snowball. The baseball was still 'out there in that snow bank."

HECKLER GETS COOKIE

"We were playing at Ebbets Field one day when a heckler got on me," said Cookie Lavagetto, the Giant coach who played for Brooklyn Dodgers in the late '30s and '40s.

"The catcher and I were chasing a pop foul over by the seats. I brushed him just as I got the ball and it slipped away from me.

"Lavagetto, you bum,' this guy yells from the stands. 'Why didn't you let the catcher have it?'

"I ask the guy why he doesn't drop dead.

"So after the game I'm leaving the park when a fellow comes up and says a man wants to talk to me. He takes me to a car and there's this big guy sitting inside.

"You want we should take care of that heckler?' the big guy asks me. I say no but thanks a lot. I want to get out of there. This guy is in the Mafia."

"Ever see the heckler again?" Cookie was asked.

"Never did," he said.

A couple of sports writers recall the time one of their associates and a famous baseball executive "got into a debate made unforgettable by one line.

Exhibition Baseball

TUCSON, Ariz. (CP) — Gene Conley is standing tall on the mound again for Boston Red Sox.

Ineffective last season because of injuries but a 15-game winner two years ago, the six-foot eight-inch veteran has a seven-inning shutout streak going after his first two appearances of the baseball training season.

The 33-year-old right hander set down Cleveland Indians with one hit over the first four innings Wednesday and was backed by a 13-hit assault as the Red Sox bombed the Tribe 12-4 for their first exhibition victory in five starts. It was Cleveland's third defeat against two wins.

In the only other game played, Chicago Cubs squandered a three-run lead but eventually downed Los Angeles Angels 4-3 on a ninth-inning homer by shortstop Don Eaddy.

Catcher Bob Tillman was the big man at the plate for Boston, driving in three runs with a triple, two doubles and a single. Dick Stuart contributed three singles and Frank Malzone and Lu Clinton had two apiece.

'Sudden Death' Will Settle Semi-Finals

KINGSTON (CP) — The Ottawa St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League semi-final between Kingston Aces and Montreal-area Combines will be settled by a sudden-death game in Brockville Friday, league president Ed Taylor of Kemptville said Wednesday.

The action penalizes Kingston which led the series 3-1. The Aces were late arriving for a game in Morrisburg Tuesday because of a snowstorm and ticket money was refunded to about 1,100 persons.

Reds, Bison Tie 1-1, Amerks Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds padded their margin for the last playoff spot in the eastern division of the American Hockey League Wednesday by battling Buffalo Bisons to a 1-1 overtime tie.

The single point provided a four-point bulge over Baltimore Clippers, who lost a 4-1 decision to Rochester Americans in the other scheduled game.

The win for the Americans clinched third place in the western division and assured them a berth in the playoffs.

Bronco Horvath fired the winning goal. Ed Litzenberg, Lou Angotti and Red Armstrong got the other Rochester goals.

George Konik was the Baltimore marksman.

Ed Mazur connected for Providence and Billy Dea tied the count less than four minutes later in the third period.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Now that the end of the regular National Hockey League season is imminent and everybody's battling to finish as high as they can, the fellows go all out a little more.

The reason I say this is just the talk in the dressing room during a game. For instance, the other night we were ahead going into the third period.

One of the remarks I like to make, and I really believe it, is when you're ahead, like that everybody plays their next shift as if it was the last shift of the night, go all out.

We were going with four lines that night. We were one man short of four lines. So I took a shift at left wing with Pit Martin and Paul Henderson. Then Alex Delvecchio took it once, then Parker MacDonald. So it gave the other two on the line a little breather.

Terry Sawchuk is the dean of all goalies now that he has exceeded Harry Lumley's record of playing 803 games. And his record of 96 shutouts, two more than George Hainsworth, is a record that probably never will be beaten.

In the warmup before the game the other night, he just stood there and kicked at the puck most of the time. Plenty of them were going in on him. But he didn't exert himself too much. He was saving his energy. We were playing our fourth game in five nights.

I think he is the greatest goaltender I've ever seen. When he's right, I don't think anyone can equal him. When I say right, I mean healthy, because Terry's got a bad left arm.

Earlier in his career he had his elbow operated on several times for removal of bone chips. When he gets hit on that sore elbow by a puck going 90-100 miles an hour, it can hamper him.

The other night against Montreal he had been forced to go on the ice to make a save. Gilles Tremblay got the rebound and lifted it high. I've never seen anything faster than the way Sawchuk's, left arm flashed up to bat the puck away like a baseball player making a return.

Liston Troubles Pile Up

DENVER (AP) — Troubles are piling high for Sonny Liston, who lost his heavyweight boxing title to Cassius Clay last month.

Municipal court officials said he will be tried between March 17 and April 10 on charges of speeding, reckless and careless driving carrying a concealed weapon and driving without a valid operator's licence. He was arrested Tuesday and released on $300 bond.

Liston's former manager George Katz of Philadelphia, filed suit in New York city Wednesday asking $1,300,000 from Liston for breach of contract.

In another action, federal marshals served Liston with papers Wednesday in a suit for $116,000 filed in Chicago by Ben Bentley, also known as Ben Goldberg, who said he was hired as publicity agent.

Minor Hockey

Macs will carry a three-goal lead into the second game of the Peewee "A" finals after tripping the Bruins 5-2 last night. Second game in the two-game, goals-to-count set will be played Saturday morning.

Leafs and Browns, who also play their second game Saturday morning, fought to a 4-4 tie in the Peewee "B" finals opener.

Dennis MacCormack triggered three goals and assisted on another to pace the Mac victory. A. Wilson scored the other two goals, while P. Hayes and C. Powell drew assists. Fred Sickle and Steve Moore each scored once and assisted on the other for Bruins. L. Burley also had an assist.

Darryl Demers starred for the Leafs by firing all four of his team's goals. J. Kilpatrick drew the lone assist. Bill Storms was the Browns' ace, with three goals, the other going to S. Christopher. M. Poole, B. Bunnett and S. Muldoon earned assists.

Extra Conditioning
Kaline Trains Like Pitcher

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Al Kaline, Detroit's No. 1 hitter, has turned to pitching.

It's the first step in a conditioning program aimed at strengthening a weak right arm and guaranteeing a quick getaway when the baseball season opens.

"When I was younger," said the 29-year-old outfielder after a workout at the Tigers' training base, "I never had any trouble. But in recent years I've been running into problems with my arm and I've had to ease up on my swing. It's kept me from getting off to a good start.

"So I've been working out just just like a pitcher—throwing, catching, running."

Kaline, who challenged for the American League batting title last year and finished with a .313 average, also has been doing exercises on a ruller-type system of equipment designed to build up his right knee.

'MANTLE-TYPE THING'

"It's a Mantle-type... thing," said Kaline, who agreed he could have suffered serious damage when he banged against a wall during a game at Los Angeles last July. Mantle broke his leg in a similar accident at Baltimore last season. Kaline pulled a ligament.

Now he's started the extra conditioning while preparing to fill the dual role drafted by manager Chuck Dressen. Kaline will be one of the keys to the Tigers' hit-and-run strategy and still take over the clean-up spot in the batting order vacated by the trade of Rocky Colavito.

"I enjoy playing hit-and-run and I think it's made me a better hitter," Kaline said. "We did it a lot last year—and I wasn't trying to go for home runs. They just came."

Twenty - seven came, along with 101 runs batted in.

"You know, you don't need a lot of big hitters to win the pennant," Kaline added, "just three or four guys who can hit .275 or .280. That's what wins. It does for the Yankees."

Des Moines Topple Komets 6-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Des Moines Oak Leafs turned the tables in the International Hockey League Wednesday, toppling the second - place Fort Wayne Komets 6-2 to remain deadlocked for fifth place with Muskegon Zephyrs.

The loss for the Komets spoiled their bid to overtake the idle Toledo Blades, who lead them by one point.

Muskegon kept pace with Des Moines in the other scheduled game by edging the Port Huron Flags 7-6. Pat Ginnell and Cliff Brister were the big guns in the Oak Leafs' victory, with two goals each. Harry Jakeman and John Bailey got the others.

John Goodwin scored both Komets' markers.

PLANS COMEBACK

GOTEBORG (AP) — Ingemar Johansson, former world heavyweight boxing champion, plans to come out of retirement to challenge Cassius Clay to a title bout next September, says the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet. "If I try a comeback it must be done in time, and I think the time is now," the newspaper quotes the Swede as saying. "I've never liked beggers. It would be a pleasure to give Clay a treat."

Canadian Press Sports Editor

If Native Dancer could talk, he undoubtedly would have a word of advice for his grandson, Native Dancer, who carries Canada's hopes in the Kentucky Derby at Louisville May 2. The elderly Dancer, now living a glorious life at Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farms in Glyndon, Md., had a frustrating 1953 Derby afternoon.

That was the day he lost a photo - finish verdict to Dark Star in the run for the roses. Not only that, it was the big grey's only loss in a 22-st.rt. three - year career that gave rich boy Vanderbilt a total $783,260 in purses.

Vanderbilt probably kicks the slats out of Native Dancer's stall whenever he recalls the Derby race 11 years ago.

He had his pride and joy pointed to become the eighth horse in history to capture the triple crown—Derby, Preakness and Belmont—since Canadian-owned Sir Barton did it first in 1919. The Derby was first on the schedule and Vanderbilt's dreams were shattered fast.

The legend has grown that Native Dancer lost the race because he was bumped by Money Broker on the first birt of the 1¼-mile classic. But, say historians, that doesn't tell the whole story.

RETIRED TO STUDY

He did lose ground on first turn, but it was not a key point in the race. The horses still had seven furlongs to run, plenty of time and ground for the Dancer to come on again.

He was fourth and in striking distance at the far turn, still one-half mile from the finish. He got through along the rail, regained as much ground as he had lost on the first turn, and had a clear shot at Dark Star in the stretch but just failed to catch the flying leader.

Native Dancer went on to win the Preakness and Belmont, and now is one of 21 three-year-olds who have won two of the three U.S. triple crown classics since 1875.

In 1954, Native Dancer raced three times, won them all, and then was retired to stud. He sired Natalma, Northern Dancer's mommy. The sire is Nearctic, horse of the year in Canada in 1958, and still standing at stud with Natalma at the National Stud in Oshawa, Ont.

Now, the pressure is on Northern Dancer, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto and whose of the $100,000-added Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah earlier this month. The $88,830 Taylor picked up for that one brought Northern Dancer's earnings to $181,165 since he was sent to the races last July.

NOBODY WANTED HIM

Not bad for a colt that everyone passed up at Taylor's previewed yearling sale in 1962 for $25,000. He was a late foal, born May 22, and, on top of that, he was just a little guy. No one wanted to take a chance on him and Taylor was stuck with the yearling.

With his first big race out of the way in the 1⅛ - mile Flamingo, Northern Dancer has an important engagement Saturday, April 4, at Gulfstream Park in the Florida Derby. His main opposition is considered to be Hill Rise, winner of the $100,000-added Santa Anita Derby in California at the end of February. Hill Rise was over the same mile-and-an-eighth distance and Hill Rise ran it in 1:47.2, two-fifths of a second faster than Northern Dancer's Flamingo time.

These two undoubtedly will be the horses to watch at Louisville.

Northern Dancer has a tendency to lug in. His grandpappy could have a word of caution for him:

"Stay out of the way of the other horses. I still think the bump Money Broker gave me cost me the Derby."

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston's Murray Oliver, overshadowed by some of the more glamorous performers in the National Hockey League, but nonetheless effective, edged closer to sixth spot Wednesday night in the point-gathering competition.

Oliver got a goal and assist to run his season's production to 23 goals and 40 assists, leaving him two points shy of Gordie Howe.

The leaders:

Shubenacadie Canal May Yet Come Into Its Own

By CAL HOLLOWAY

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Shubenacadie canal may yet come into its own.

It's a 54-mile stretch of lakes, watercourses, a river and man-made ditches from Dartmouth across central Nova Scotia to the Bay of Fundy.

It was started in 1826, intended to provide cheap water transport to the Bay of Fundy by saving the trip around the south end of Nova Scotia. It was completed 35 years later—but railways had appeared by then.

For a few years the canal was used by small paddle-wheel steamers towing cargo scows, but the railway competition proved too much. The canal gradually fell into disuse.

Now the recreation and tourist potential has been gaining increasing attention.

HISTORIC ROUTE

For centuries before the canal was built the native Micmac Indians used the string of lakes and waterways as a means of cutting across Nova Scotia between ocean and bay.

The man-made sections of the canal are ditches joining lakes and watercourses. At one point a marine railway carries water craft over a half-mile of land.

A year ago the Dartmouth Chamber of Commerce formed a canal committee with Ralph Morton, publisher of the weekly Free Press, as chairman. The committee's object was to have the canal restored for use by small craft.

This committee was enlarged into the Shubenacadie canal committee, and Murray Ritcey of Cole Harbor was elected chairman. The new committee aimed to bring the project within the scope of the federal Agricultural Rehabilitation Act, designed to improve marginal rural areas — including recreation, parks and reforestation.

NEED FUNDS

Nova Scotia Lands and Forests Minister E. D. Haliburton, speaking as a private citizen, outlined the provisions of the federal act to the committee and remarked: "You raise $350,000, and the provincial and federal government each would match it."

But, he added, no money would be made available until the committee was able to contribute its share—one-third of the cost.

R. V. Knight, deputy minister of trade and commerce, said the waterway could be "a wonderful thing for tourism." He pledged his department's co-operation in the project.

The canal begins at Lake Banook in Dartmouth, goes through lakes Micmac, Charles, Williams, Thomas, Fletcher and Grand Lake to the Shubenacadie which flows into the Bay of Fundy.

Some of the old locks, built of Nova Scotia granite, are still there. Others have crumbled and been overgrown.

Surgical Clamp Left Inside Woman's Body

PALMERSTON, Ont. (CP) — Investigation has obtained gathered information for an inquest into the death of a woman following an operation in which a surgical clamp was left inside her.

Dr. H. S. Ostrom, Ontario's supervising coroner, and Inspector H. M. Purdy of the provincial police have spent several hours at Palmerston General Hospital where Mrs. Ina Noer, 44, died Saturday, eight days after a gallstone operation.

They arrived in this town of 1,500 persons 18 miles southwest of Guelph after Attorney-General Fred Cass ordered an inquest into Mrs. Noer's death—the second such inquest he has ordered in a month.

But the pathologist who conducted the autopsy and discovered the clamp said that the clamp did not cause death.

Dr. R. Barton said death was caused by a "massive peritonitis" — an inflammation of the peritoneum, the sac lining the intestines and other organs.

NOT MENTIONED

Undertaker Jack Miller said a death registration certificate made no mention of a surgical clamp. He said it gave perition as the cause of death.

No definite date was set for the inquest, to be conducted by Dr. Ostrom, but it is expected to be held in Guelph in about two weeks.

Mrs. Noer was appointed Lawyer John A. Hoolihan as Crown counsel. Mr. Hoolihan was Crown counsel at a coroner's inquest that found two weeks ago that Patricia Morgan, 34, died from "misadventure" in Toronto General Hospital Nov. 4, 18 days after an operation in which a surgical clamp was left inside her. The jury found Dr. Kenneth A. Brown, Miss Morgan's doctor, responsible for the clamp.

"It is obvious that we are having a spate of these cases and I want all the information brought out that can be brought out," Mr. Cass said.

He announced the inquest as the funeral cortege for Mrs. Noer, whose husband died in the same hospital of a heart ailment Dec. 18, was forming.

Mr. Cass said the deaths were first reported to Wellington County Coroner Dr. Frank H. Farmer who reported it to him. Farmer shows that the Coroner's Act works when these deaths are reported," he said. "There is nothing wrong with the coroners."

Mr. Cass had reprimanded hospitals and doctors for not reporting doubtful operative and post-operative deaths after he learned that none of the doctors involved had reported the circumstances of Miss Morgan's death.

Everything's Up-to-Date In Tokyo

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: Nine million U.S. mothers, including one out of every three who have children under 18, now hold jobs outside the home. . . . The number of cavity-free teeth has doubled in the last 25 years.

Everything's up-to-date in Tokyo these days. . . . All doctors are putting two-way radios in their cars so they can respond to emergency calls. . . . And a new bar has opened that is decorated so as to resemble a jail knee. . . . Patrons wear flight belts to keep them from falling off the bar stools.

Quotable notables: "A beautiful young lady is an accident of nature. A beautiful old lady is a work of art."—Louis Nizer.

Folklore tip on how to get rid of owls: If you walk around and around him, he'll keep turning his head until he wrings his own neck.

Property note: Tony Curtis says nowadays the reason they call it "cold cash" is because you can't keep it long enough to warm it up.

Most drug addict become thieves . . . It's estimated that the 25,000 to 40,000 addicts in New York City alone steal about $750,000,000 a year in money and merchandise to keep their habit going.

Odd hobby: Lester B. Dill, operator of Mercamac Caverns in Missouri, believes in going on a caveman's holiday. . . . It claims to have visited 24,000 cave s throughout the world.

Worth remembering: "If at first you don't succeed, don't succumb." Arnold W. Glasow.

A dog's life: If your pet pooch is planning a career in the movies, we have some bad news for him—he has only one chance in 8,000,000 of becoming a film star. Rusty's is forging ahead as a sea power. . . . During 1961 and 1962 the world merchant fleet increased by nearly 1,000,000 tons.

Gross National Product Up Six Per Cent Last Year Says Gordon in White Paper

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon says he detects no signs of weakening in the country's economic upswing, which now has lasted nearly three full years.

In a budget he said the late-1963 indications were that the economy was actually gaining speed. At that point it already had outlasted the 1958-60 expansion but still was short of the boom-bust 1956-57 period.

In his pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Thursday, Mr. Gordon estimated that last year there was a six-per-cent increase in gross national product—value of all goods and services produced.

That would mean a level of $42,825,000,000 compared with $40,401,000,000 in 1962, when there was an eight-per-cent increase.

Mr. Gordon made no forecast for 1964. Unofficial forecasts are for an advance of five to six per cent.

Elsewhere stability of most prices and costs" was cited as a key feature of the current growth, which has been going on since the economic trough of early 1961.

PRICES UP 2 PC

Since then prices have risen five per cent, compared with the 12-per-cent increase of the 1963-57 period. Last year consumer prices rose 1.8 per cent compared with 1.2 per cent in 1962.

Mr. Gordon said price increases have been less than in Canada's two previous economic upswings—with the exception of higher food prices, and wholesale prices which have been pushed up as dollar devaluation meant higher prices tags on imported goods.

Moreover, Canada's price increases were less than those in Britain, and much less than in continental Europe and Japan, and little more than in the United States.

The result: A strengthening in Canada's world position as an exporter.

One key point made by the expansion, compared with the two previous ones, Canada has been able to meet more of its steadily - rising consumer demand from its own production — relatively slightly less on imports than before.

This is illustrated by these figures:

In the 3 - month upswing starting in mid-1954, imports rose 43 per cent. In 1958-60—an expansion that lasted exactly two years—they went up 14 per cent. But after the first 2¼ years of the current climb, imports had risen only 15 per cent.

An added factor in this period was the upward pressure on imports as a result of the dollar devaluation, in May, 1962.

EXPORTS UP SHARPLY

The white paper said imports rose 18 per cent between 1956 and 1960 but volume increased only slightly, with imports prices 15-per-cent higher. On the other hand, exports in that period rose by about 46 per cent and most of this was due to real volume, which was up 37 per cent.

Some statistics for the first 20 months of the current upswing—that is, from April 1, 1961, to Sept. 30, 1963:

—Corporation profits have increased 36 per cent.

—Labor income is up 18 per cent.

—Investment income grew by 15 per cent.

—Exports of all goods and services rose nearly 25 per cent.

—Personal spending climbed nearly 15 per cent.

—The government spending rose 16 per cent—though virtually all of the increase was by provincial and municipal governments.

—GNP increased 12.9 per cent.

KILLS INSECTS

LONDON (CP)—A paint that kills insects while land on it has been developed by a northern wallpaper and paint firm. The effect of the chemical in the paint lasts for several years.

Insurance Fund $5,100,000 in Hole March 31

OTTAWA (CP)—The unemployment insurance fund will be $5 100,000 in the hole March 31.

But if necessary it can call on a loan from the federal treasury to meet insurance claims of the unemployed, and prospects appear good for rebuilding the fund later in the year.

The fund's red ink position for the March 31 end of the current fiscal year was estimated in the pre-budget white paper tabled Thursday in the Commons.

It showed that while the fund will have $12,600,000 cash on hand, it will have $17,700,000 in liabilities in the form of employer deposits and unclaimed benefits.

During the year the fund had an operating deficit of $14,600,000 with total revenues of $357,-100,000 and outlays of $371,900,-000. However, this operating deficit was steadily diminished from the peak of $182,200,000 in 1960-61. The deficit was $56,500,-000 in 1962-63.

The fund has been shrinking since 1956 when it had more than $800,000,000 in reserves.

Net Federal Debt up $50 for Every Canadian

OTTAWA (CP)—The net federal debt shot up during the 1963-64 fiscal year to $50 for each man, woman and child in Canada.

That is about twice the year-to-year rise of recent years. But it was due in large part to bookkeeping addition to government liabilities.

Finance Minister Gordon reported Thursday in tabling his pre-budget white paper in the Commons that the total net debt is expected to stand at $15,136,000,000 at the end of this month.

While this is a $1,216,000,000 increase in one year, only $685,-000,000 resulted from the government deficit.

The remaining $531,000,000 was added to the debt to cover an actual deficiency reported by Mr. Gordon in his budget last June—in the former Conservative government's amortization of superannuation accounts.

Mr. Gordon said there was a $525,000,000 actuarial shortage in the armed services pension fund and the RCMP account and a $6,000,000 short, on an actuarial basis.

WILL BE WRITE-OFF

He said he will ask Parliament to write off these deficiencies to the net debt. It would be a bookkeeping operation—adding to the liability side of the government's balance sheet, but not a charge on his budget.

At March 31, th total net debt thus would stand at $789.10 per capita on the basis of a March 31 population estimate of 19,180,000.

A year earlier it was $739.50 per capita, on a population estimate 18,846,000 in population at March 31.

Mr. Gordon said that while interest on the federal debt—$867,000,000 this year — has been rising steadily in recent years, as a proportion of total federal spending it has dropped from 18 per cent in 1950 to about 12 per cent this year.

24.7 Per Cent Of All Spending For Defence

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence expenditures, including those of the defence production department, amounted to $1,689,000,-000 in the 1963-64 fiscal year, Finance Minister Gordon disclosed Thursday in a pre-budget white paper.

This represented 24.7 per cent of all federal budgetary expenditures compared with $1,600,-000,000 and 24.4 per cent in 1962-63.

Defence department spending of $1,574,000,000 in the year ending March 31 was $87,600,-000 higher than in 1962-63. It was $23,000,000 higher than the original 1963-64 estimate.

Main reason for the increase was a special government contribution of $76,500,000 to the armed forces pension account. There were smaller increases for defence research and development and for aid programs for Canada's NATO partners in Europe.

Expenditures on the armed forces themselves rose only slightly, by $3,000,000, to $1,-431,000,000.

Spending by the defence production department rose to $40,-300,000 from $28,800,000, mainly because of an $11,000,000 increase to $19,000,000 in the production of the 1958 fleet of CF-101 support of certain development projects in the defence industry.

The defence department estimate for 1964-65 is $1,525,000,-000.

Most of Defence Minister Hellyer's reductions are scheduled for later this year and few of them are reflected in 1963-64 expenditures.

Federal Tax Man Gets Smoker Coming, Going

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal tax man gets the smoker coming and going.

The discomforting — to the smoker—story is shown up vividly in the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Gordon.

First there is an excise duty on tobacco. In the 1963-64 fiscal year this yielded the government an estimated $171,000,-000 as the largest single producer among the commodities subject to this levy. Spirits, whisky, rum, gin and the like — produced $127,000,000 and beer $122,000,000.

Years ago Parliament decided smokers should pay more. To accomplish this it nailed them for an excise tax as well as the excise duty. In this fiscal year ending March 31 cigarettes, tobacco and cigars are expected to provide another $233,800,000, ranking second only to the more general 11-per-cent sales tax yielding $930,000,000 as an excise-tax revenue producer.

Yes smokers without a match or a lighter and these two articles are subject to excise taxes yielding $1,300,000.

Adding it all up, smokers paid Ottawa $406,100,000, or 6.6 per cent of total government revenue estimated at $6,207,-000,000.

SMOKERS BETTER OFF

That's more than drinkers pay into federal coffers. Spirits and beer are subject only to the excise duty. Here the fee of duty but is subject to an excise tax which will yield $3,-800,000 this year.

The combined taxes from alcoholic beverages is $232,000,-000, or 3.8 per cent of the revenue total.

None of this takes into account revenue produced by the federal sales tax on all the commodities. These figures do not show sparately in the white paper.

Excise duties are levied under the Excise Act which dates back to Confederation in 1867. Excise taxes are levied under the Excise Tax Act which had its start as the special War Revenue Act during the First World War. Excise duties are levied on commodities held by the Crown until the duty is paid. Excise tax is paid by a person on purchase of some section by him, such as manufacture or sale of goods.

Unscrupulous Political Leaders Are Only Danger Facing Confederation

- - Favreau

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Favreau said Wednesday that unscrupulous political leaders were the only danger facing Confederation in its present "period of choice and political orientation."

"There is only one danger," he said in an address to the Maisonneuve Kiwanis Club, "and that is to put our fate in the hands of political Don Quixotes who entice the population with myths . . . unconscious of their responsibilities."

Mr. Favreau said the imminent creation of a permanent secretariat in federal-provincial relations was one of the strongest reasons for optimism about the future of Confederation."

"If there isn't direct communication between Ottawa and the provinces, political motives will enter into technical problems causing noisy, widespread argument."

Mr. Favreau said the present "crisis" in Canada was a necessary and normal part of the growth of the country and called on Quebec to become aware of the ferment in the rest of the country as well as asking for attention to its own "quiet revolution."

The justice minister said the report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism will lead to constitutional reform.

"The day we decide that the country's constitution is no longer in need of amendment is the day that this country is doomed to decadence."

NEEDN'T LAST FOREVER

"No constitution must necessarily last forever."

The aim of the royal commission was not to draft a new constitution, but it would hear views on the constitution from hundreds of organizations across the country.

"I believe that one of the important effects of the commission's future report will be to guide us in deciding whether we should amend the constitution, whether it be completely or create another."

Mr. Favreau added that he is very optimistic about the current French-English "crisis." It represented the coming of age of a young country.

He listed several "reasons to hope" for a true partnership between the two major language groups: federal - provincial relations were becoming more flexible and continuous and the press, business and labor all were sympathetic to biculturalism.

Trade Department Reports Business Investment in Canada up Eight Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Planned business investment in Canada this is up eight per cent from last year at $3,804,000,000 more than half the anticipated record total of $10,100,000,000, the trade department reported Wednesday.

It said this means an important expansionary influence on the economy with spending intentions indicated that businessmen "are viewing the economic outlook with confidence."

The spending increase in the business sector of the economy would be about the same as the gain in 1963. An added factor this year is the scheduled April 1 rise in sixth-per-cent sales tax four in the sales tax imposed last year on production equipment and building materials.

With government and housing investment added, the over-all gain this year is expected to be eight per cent, compared with last year's seven per cent.

This would be the biggest year-to-year increase since 1957. The record $10,100,000,000 in capital outlays compared with about $9,300,000,000 last year.

RESULTS FROM SURVEY

The report tabled in the Commons by Trade Minister Sharp is the product of a late-1963 survey of about 20,000 individual companies plus other spending agencies. It was prepared jointly by the trade department and the bureau of statistics.

This is one of the country's main economic yardsticks.

Usually it is quite reliable in the last seven years, the survey has under - estimated actual capital spending in four years and over-estimated it in three. The variation between intentions and actual spending in that period has been 2.4 per cent.

Canada's eight-per-cent gain in the business sector for 1964 compares with an anticipated rise in capital business investment of 20 per cent in the U.S. in the wake of tax cuts there.

Ontario's five-per-cent anticipated increase would make it an over-all capital expenditures totalling $4,580,000,000 this year.

Gains were found come chiefly from manufacturing investment —particularly in primary metals, textiles and transportation equipment.

GIVES BREAKDOWN

As for type of spending, the department said its survey indicates spending of $6,700,000,-000 on construction and $3,400,-000,000 for machinery. Both figures, if realized, would be records.

Sharpest increase in spending intentions among the industrial groups is by manufacturing. Its anticipated outlays are up 15 per cent from last year, compared with a 1963 increase of six per cent.

This includes a 40-per-cent rise in spending on new paper-making facilities. In the primary metals industry, the gain would be also 40 per cent and in the non - metallic minerals group, close to 50 per cent.

Investment plans in secondary manufacturing industries call for a 10-per-cent increase. Main gains would be in transportation equipment, rubber, and textiles.

In mining the increase would be 16 per cent.

After a slight decline in 1963, the survey indicates an eight-per-cent rise this year in building of new retail stores, office buildings and other types of commercial construction.

New Interceptor Would Be Better Than Bomarcs

U. S. Aero-Space Chief Gives 'Hindsight' View

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Robert Friedman, director of the U.S. Air Force's aero-space program, told a congressional committee that the USAF probably would have been better off trying to develop an improved interceptor plane instead of the Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles.

Last January, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara announced that 135 Bomarc-A missiles are to be removed from U.S. bases this year, leaving only 188 Bomarc-B weapons or launchers at six bases. Canada has two squadrons of the solid-fuelled Bomarc-B missiles which have a range of 400 miles, twice the distance of the liquid-fuelled Bomarc-A.

In a heavily-censored transcript of subcommittee hearings held Feb. 4 and made public today, Friedman was asked whether the air force intends to keep the Bomarc-B missiles or eventually remove them also.

Friedman said the air force expects to hold them, but "the final decision, insofar as the air force is concerned, will be contingent on the introduction into the inventory of an improved manned interceptor."

"If you had this to do over again," asked Chairman George Mahon, Texas Democrat, "would the air force seek an improved interceptor rather than a Bomarc capability?"

WOULD BE ANSWER

"I would think so," Friedman replied. "On hindsight, I think that would be the answer."

Feb. 29, President Johnson declared that the U.S. secretly developed a 2,000-mile-an-hour plane which is being tested as a possible interceptor. No decision has yet been made to manufacture the plane for that purpose.

In his testimony, Friedman indicated there are certain problems associated with the use of the Bomarc against the manned bomber threat but most of these remarks were eliminated by the censor.

However, at one point, Congressman Mahon asked whether, in view of the general statement that the air force and navy are taking another look at manned aircraft and manned missiles, "it is important, in the air defence role," Friedman replied, "we have looked at the manned role as the main active defence weapon against manned bombers."

Another Deficit Expected

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite higher tax collections, Finance Minister Gordon said Thursday he expects to end the current fiscal year on March 31 with a $625,000,000 deficit.

It would be a drop of $6,000,000 from the final deficit of the former Conservative government, which had six in a row. The seven deficits total $3,569,000,000.

The latest figure—subject to later revision—was included in Mr. Gordon's white paper, tabled in the Commons as a prelude to his budget speech scheduled for 8 p.m. EST Monday.

Another deficit is generally expected for the fiscal year starting April 1. But the finance minister may be able to take a giant's step toward his goal of reducing the deficit.

"We cannot contemplate an indefinite series of budget deficits," he said last July in revising his original June 23 budget.

Mr. Gordon's white paper estimated the 1963 growth in gross national product at six per cent in value, or four per cent in volume. This is the estimated total of all goods and services produced.

REFLECTED IN REVENUES

That economic upswing—plus revenues from the new sales tax on building materials and production equipment — was reflected in these federal tax revenues.

The federal yield from personal income tax rose 6.8 per cent to $1,825,000,000. Corporation tax advanced 5.5 per cent to $1,249,000,000. Sales taxes produced $837,000,000—up 15.8 per cent.

With other fiscal year revenues stable, the government's over-all budgetary income was up 5.6 per cent to $3,707,000,000. This was remarkably close to Mr. Gordon's prediction—only $17,000,000 on the high side.

Expenditures, mean while, rose 4.9 per cent to $6,892,000,000 this year. That's $97,000,000 more than Mr. Gordon expected when he revised his budget last July.

FBI Arrests Two for Attempt To Wreck Train With Dynamite

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)— Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested two former railway employees early today on charges they attempted to wreck a Florida East Coast Railway train with 50 pounds of dynamite Thursday.

The two were identified by FBI director J. Edgar Hoover as John Wesley Davis, 28, who lives near here, and Joseph Leo Vetter, 32, of Miami.

Hoover said 15 sticks of dynamite were found under the rails at the north end of a railway bridge in Indian River County, north of here.

The explosives were wired so they would detonate when a train's wheels passed over the tracks, the FBI said.

Saboteurs have struck five freight trains off the railway line's tracks this year, two late last month a few miles from Palatka where President Johnson was making a speech on a Florida tour.

The incident prompted the president to call on the FBI and labor department to do all possible to solve the sabotage and settle a 13½-month strike by 11 non-operating unions.

The FBI dispatched a 30-man team to work on the bombings.

Word Will Be Removed

TORONTO (CP) — A reference to separate schools for Negroes in Ontario's Separate Schools Act will be removed from the statute, Education Minister Davis announced Thursday.

Mr. Davis said he felt the inclusion of the word "colored" in the act never was meant to show racial discrimination, but nevertheless the word was unnecessary and would be deleted.

The matter was brought before the legislature earlier this year by the only Negro member in the house, Leonard Braithwaite (L — Etobicoke). Making his maiden speech Feb. 4, he said:

"Those who questioned me on the subject — and myself — cannot understand why provision for segregated schools . . . has not been removed from the statute books."

Mr. Braithwaite said Thursday he was gratified at the government's quick action in complying with his request. But he said he made it not as a member of a racial minority but as a spokesman for the people of Ontario.

THOUGHT DIFFERENTLY

The law has been drawn up by persons in a different age with a different line of thought to that of today, Mr. Braithwaite said. "It's removal will bring the act into line with the general thinking of today."

Most persons found the reference to colored schools "repugnant" but no official provision for these separate schools was made not because of any desire by the legislature but to keep colored students entering Ontario from the U.S. from going to school with white children, he said.

As the act now reads, it says in part:

"Upon the application in writing of five or more heads of families resident in township, city, town or village, being colored people, the council of the municipality by the board of public school trustees of the city, town or village shall authorize the establishment therein of one or more separate schools for colored people."

Mr. Braithwaite said many persons were "quite surprised" when they learned of this provision in the Separate Schools Act.

Under the bill introduced by Mr. Davis Thursday, the whole act would be revised and another substituted for it, making other administrative changes besides deleting the racial reference.

BLAMES ALCOHOL

SAULT Ste. Marie (CP) — Sudbury said about half the inmates of Ontario reform institutions were there because of offences involving alcohol.

Speaking during debate on department of reformatories estimates, he said more centres are needed for rehabilitation of these people. He estimated 29,000 were involved.

Jails merely prolong their stay by giving them away from the adverse effects of alcohol for a period, he said, "and they go out and they immediately begin drinking again."

Reformatories Minister Goodfellow said the department is studying ways to aid the Harold King report in Kenora and any similar homes for rehabilitating ex-convicts.

Mrs. Braithwaite asked that the department take a close look at helping the King home.

Mr. Grossman said the department will do everything possible to encourage homes that are doing good work. He said the department of welfare might be better qualified to help the home while some might prefer not to operate under the stigma of being a government-subsidized institution.

Mr. Braithwaite said outside the house that helping the homes was an obvious duty of the department of reforms institutions rather than welfare.

Ohio Flood Moves West, Leaving Nine Persons Dead

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Ohio River, bloated by rain and melting of some of the highest points in years, moved swiftly westward today and left several states with damage already estimated at more than $20,000,000 The floods killed nine persons.

The Red Cross estimated 110,000 persons were affected. Many thousands of that number were driven from their homes. In other human terms the flood picture was one of wading evacuations and dog - tired flood workers and refugees. Injuries were few.

Flood crests were due today at Cincinnati, upstream, and Louisville, where a final steel gate in the floodwall slanked into place Thursday afternoon. The wall was prepared to stand a 48-foot crest, or 1.6 feet higher than the predicted crest.

There appeared hope the worst was over. Downstream—to the west—water began edging toward riverfront buildings at Evansboro, Ky., but only a few families were expected to be routed. A floodwall protects Paducah, near where the Ohio joins the Mississippi.

"Nigger Neighbor" Issue Now in British Election

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

SMETHWICK, England (CP) — The "nigger neighbor" issue has suddenly thrown this industrial midlands town into national headlines.

Now the question is being asked whether racial discrimination will for the first time become a significant factor—at least in a few areas—in a British general election.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home has not yet announced the date of the next election—it may come in June—but politicians and townsfolk, including many immigrants, say privately that a visiting reporter this week that the racial matter is decidedly an issue here.

"Blame the Tories," is the Labor party cry.

The whole thing was brought into the open by the slogan "If you want a nigger for a neighbor, vote Labor" — a slogan whose parentage is denied by all.

"I've heard a lot worse than that from time to time, man," said one Jamaican laborer, grinning from ear to ear when buttonholed for a sidewalk interview.

Autar Jouhl, an Indian leader from the Punjab, said: "Discrimination may be worse in Britain than in the U.S. south."

Mr. Grossman said the department will do everything possible to encourage homes that are doing good work. He said the department of welfare might be better qualified to help the home while some might prefer not to operate under the stigma of being a government-subsidized institution.

Mr. Braithwaite said outside the house that helping the homes was an obvious duty of the department of reforms institutions rather than welfare.

Bill Bogs Down

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's redistribution bill has bogged down in deep-rooted conflict between representatives of Canada's diverse regions and no progress is in sight until after the Commons Easter recess.

A three-day debate on the proposal to set up a new machinery to revamp the electoral map from top to bottom ended inconclusively Thursday. It is unlikely to resume until April 6 at the earliest.

Today, the Commons turns to th consideration of supplementary spending estimates of $240,884,747 for the fiscal year ending March 31.

At the same time, the government will seek approval of interim spending authority for April and May. This opens the way for all kinds of opposition grievances against the government and debate is likely to continue into April 6 p.m. EST Monday when Finance Minister Gordon starts reading his second budget speech.

Tuesday has been set aside for debate on the highly controversial Canada Pension Plan and the six-day budget debate is expected to begin Wednesday.

The redistribution debate Thursday cut across party lines and developed into a spirited

Greece Warns It Would 'React Decisively' If Turks Act On Threat To Invade

Turkish Note Demands Govt. Order Island-Wide Cease-Fire

CP from AP - Reuters

NICOSIA — Turkey issued an "ultimatum to the Greek - Cypriot government of Cyprus today, warning that it would take unilateral action unless a ceasefire was put in force throughout the island and all acts against the Turkish - Cypriot community were stopped.

The ultimatum, which carried the implied warning of a Turkish invasion of Cyprus, was contained in a note delivered today to the government of Greek - Cypriot President Makarios by the Turkish embassy in Nicosia.

A reliable source said the Cyprus government decided to reject the note.

The note was delivered by Turkish Ambassador Mazhar Oxkol. It called on Greek-Cypriot authorities to cease all acts which it claimed were being perpetrated against the Turkish-Cypriots.

Otherwise Turkey would take unilateral action in Cyprus.

At the same time, Greece stated it would "react decisively by all means" to any Turkish unilateral intervention.

Turkey, Greece and Britain are guarantors of the 1960 constitution which granted Cyprus independence.

Three months of sporadic fighting between the hostile Greek and Turkish communes on Cyprus has threatened to involve Greece and Turkey on behalf of their national groups.

The Turkish "strong warning" also was contained in a note handed over to the American, British and Greek ambassadors in Ankara, Turkey, today.

The three ambassadors were summoned to the Turkish foreign ministry where they had separate meetings with Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Erkin and were handed the notes.

GIVES WARNING

Diplomatic sources in Ankara said "the note addressed to Makarios warned that Turkey was not prepared to allow the present state of affairs to continue on the island indefinitely.

(A Cyprus government spokesman in Athens, Greece, said his government would reject outright the Turkish note as "unacceptable" both for its content and wording.

As the note to Cyprus was delivered shots were heard in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia but a government spokesman said they were of no significance and reports of serious incidents anywhere on the island.

Later it was disclosed that Turkish - Cypriots opened up with machine guns and rifles for half an hour on four British soldiers in Trakhonas. A British officer reported that there was not fire back and no one was injured.

Greek government and military leaders held urgent conferences at dawn today in Athens following the Turkish warning of intervention in Cyprus.

It was reliably learned that Greek armed units were ordered to begin "manoeuvres" between Crete and the Dodecanese Islands as they did when the Cyprus crisis reached a flashpoint in 1958.

RECEIVES AMBASSADORS

Foreign Minister Stavros Kostopoulos of Greece separately received the British and U.S. ambassadors, Sir Ralph Murray and Raymond Labouisse.

He told them the Turkish warning coupled with reported Turkish military movements had caused "serious anxiety" in Athens.

The Greek foreign minister told reporters he summoned Turkish Envoy Nedim Veysel Ilkin and told him "no Greek government would ever accept a unilateral Turkish intervention in Cyprus without adequate Greek reaction."

Canada To Send More Than 1,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will contribute troops to a United Nations peace force in Cyprus, possibly more than the 1,000 men originally suggested as its share of the international contingent.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday that the conditions he laid down last month for Canadian participation have been "substantially fulfilled" and "we will be participating . . . if and when such a force is constituted by the United Nations."

Parliamentary approval of the move seems assured.

Discussing the size of the Canadian force, Mr. Pearson said the final details "will be determined to some extent by the number of peacekeeping forces that can be supplied by other members of the United Nations."

Canada's original offer was a battalion—about 1,000 infantrymen. A battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment at Camp Valcartier, Que., is on standby for the UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada has informed the United Nations that it will contribute to an international peace force for Cyprus — as soon as the force is set up.

External Affairs Minister Martin made a surprise flying trip to New York Thursday to put the Canadian position before Secretary - General U Thant.

The two hrs4 a 90-minute evening conference against a background of reports from Cyprus that new fighting was threatening to break out between the Greek and Turkish factions.

An hour earlier Thant had reported his negotiations on raising troops for the force were "coming to a head," and Martin told reporters Canada is prepared to send a battalion of some 1,000 to 1,100 men as soon as the force is constituted.

He indicated this would be when one more country, besides Britain and Canada, agrees to participate. Parliament must approve the action, he added.

SWEDEN MAY JOIN

Sweden has said it will contribute under certain conditions, including the stipulation that at least one other neutral country must join in.

Finland, Austria, Ireland, and Brazil are the other countries that have been asked for troops.

Brazil at first turned down Thant's request for financial reasons, but the secretary-general said Thursday he has made a new appeal to the Latin American country.

Finland, Ireland and Austria have not yet indicated whether they will contribute.

Ireland Has Some Classic Dishes Based on Superb Raw Materials

DUBLIN (CP) — Ireland may not be noted for "haute cuisine" in the French style, but it has some classic dishes based on superb raw materials like salmon. Dublin Bay prawns and Irish stew.

Saint Patrick's Day, next Tuesday, March 17, will be celebrated in many Irish homes with a special menu like this:

—Poached salmon or Dublin Bay prawns with mayonnaise.

—Boiled bacon and cabbage, or—Roast stuffed chicken, parsley sauce.

—Potatoes baked or steamed whole.

—Apple pie with cream or a custard sauce.

—Irish coffee.

Boiled bacon and cabbage is a national dish. The smoked or dry-cured bacon is first soaked for a few hours, or if salty, overnight. It is then put to cook in cold water and simmered for 30 minutes to an hour, depending on weight; drained, skinned and trimmed. The fat is coated with fine crumbs and the meat put in to toast under the grill or in the top of a hot oven until brown and crisp. In a country home this would be done at the open fire.

Meanwhile the green cabbage is put to cook in the liquor in which the bacon was simmered. This gives a distinctive Irish flavor to the vegetable.

The chicken stuffing is made from fresh parsley and thyme chopped fine with a little onion, mixed with fine white crumbs, seasoned with salt, pepper and a tiny pinch of nutmeg and ore grated lemon peel. The stuffing is bound with a tablespoon of melted butter and filled into the breast of a young, plump bird. About a pint of stuffing is required — the remainder goes into the cavity of the bird.

The bird is then rubbed lightly with butter as it roasts in a hot oven to start—about 425 degrees fahrenheit, or gas mark 6.

The heat should be reduced after prayers to 350 degrees F. or 325 C. On the average, 20 minutes is enough for a young bird.

Saltpeter, in this course is poached and used hot or cold with a egg sauce, if cold with a green mayonnaise. The golden cule with salmon is not to over-cook: usually eight to 10 minutes is enough to poach.

Have the cooking broth well flavored, use a little salt but plenty of pepper. Wrap fish in cheesecloth, put it into the boiling liquid. Reduce the heat at once and leave to poach like that. Lift up and drain well before serving.

For Irish coffee you need a jigger of Irish whisky, hot freshly-made coffee, sugar to taste and lightly whipped cream.

Put the sugar and whisky in a heated glass goblet. Pour in hot strong coffee to within one inch of the brim. Stir well. Top that with the cream, which should float on top of the coffee. Do not stir the cream into the mixture—the idea is to drink the hot whisky - flavored coffee through the silky coolness of the cream.

Suggestions to Beautify City Made by Chamber and Horticultural Society

Hanging floral baskets on light standards in the down-town district, and development of the parking area on the river bank behind Front Street, with green space for benches for tired shoppers, have been suggested to the city parks and recreation committee as part of a "beautify Belleville" campaign.

The floral baskets have been suggested to the parks board by the Belleville Horticultural Society, while the latter proposal, along with several others has been forwarded by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Briefs from both organizations have been forwarded to the parks committee.

It is suggested, however, that a "go easy" policy be adopted for the floral basket idea with only a few baskets to be placed, initially as an experiment to determine which type of plants would best thrive on maintenance.

WANT RIVER CLEANED

Suggestions forwarded by the Chamber of Commerce include bulldozing of the Moira River to clear it of unsightly debris; improvement of boat ramps in the harbor area and ridding the harbor of weeds during the summer season.

Also suggested is a clean-up paint-up campaign on the part of merchants occupying properties facing the river. If this were done it is anticipated that the merchants might take further steps on their own such as building patios and provision of restaurant facilities.

The Chamber also strongly recommended that the parks committee co-operate with stage 1 of the master plan for Zwick's Island. This includes a swimming pool, boating, docking facilities; landscaping; concession building and washrooms, and completion of basic requirements for a football field and baseball diamond for use this summer.

Families Lose All Possessions In Fire

MARMORA — Clearing up squads are busy with the debris following Tuesday morning's conflagration on Forsythe Street, when four fire brigades battled the blaze that held it from sweeping the entire side of the street. Three men were walking pickets.

Mrs. Reine Bourbeau, who escaped in her nightclothes and coat, lost all her belongings, with her ladies' wear and millinery shop. She is staying with her daughter, Mrs. James Marett, in Belleville.

Mrs. Seymour Henry, victim of smoke and water, is with her daughter, Mrs. Jack Smith, in Belleville. The Maynes family were taken in by the aunt's, Mrs. George Empey, but have returned to their home, which was not damaged.

This is the third fire on the west side of Forsythe Street, since the last war. Mr. Percy Banbury's restaurant and grocery of Mr. George Aumper burned down, a few years later the two storey of the St. James Hotel, and the tenants narrowly escaped.

Fortunately no loss of life has been involved.

Mayor Ellis Dinner Speaker At Men's Club

The regular dinner meeting of the Men's Club of Christ Church was well attended despite the weather, which was in progress at the time.

His Honor Mayor Jack Ellis was the after-dinner speaker.

His subject, on the theme of The Christian in the Community, was a challenge to a mission of True Brotherhood, in which he appealed to his listeners to do moral soul-searching along the lines of segregation, anti-semitism, racial discrimination, and all other actions contrary to the Golden Rule.

The speaker pointed out that there were actually very few who practised more than a lip service to these admirables for good Christian living and that there were many who actually spoke out against their actions because of their difference in race or religion.

He pointed out that these were the things which caused wars, hunger and poverty and a good portion of the ills of our world in our time. Also that the threat of war for defence and offence would eliminate the starvation of most of the people of the party in power. were put to this use rather than for weapons and preparations for defence.

Having been introduced as a past president of the club by James Wright, Mr. Ellis was thanked by Clarence Fuzzen, and officially thanked by past president Les Lennox in the absence of president Jack Fletcher.

Quinte Chapter Represented At Convention

A delegation from 12 credit unions in the Quinte District Christian Chapter were among some 1100 credit union members convening in the 3-day convention held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

Attorney General Cass who opened the meeting on behalf of the Premier of Ontario, announced by saying that "in my opinion, credit unions are a wonderful examples of how our democratic processes permit citizens, with legislative assistance, to create practical vehicles of mutual self help." He referred to the success of credit unions by common standards, dollars and numbers. He noted in 1943 the Ontario Credit Union Leagues closed its books with assets of $4,540,000 and 28 number credit unions and now at the end of 1963 has $139 million in assets and 1400 member credit unions.

Quinte Chapter president, Bob Wilkes, describes the convention as a great success. The visits by delegates from all over the Province to the Chapter Room at the Royal Hotel interest in the Quinte area and delegates proved to be great ambassadors for the Quinte District.

Widow Admits Being Ready to Leave Husband

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—The widow of a slain Kaladar, Ont., woodcutter said at the capital murder trial of Charles Merfort Loyst, 51, Thursday that she had nothing to do with her husband's fatal shooting Oct. 8.

Mrs. Anna McMahon testified she had once considered running away with the accused.

Hugh James McMahon, 64, was shot twice in the throat in the bush behind his home at Kaladar, about 45 miles north of Kingston, with his wife and Loyst former several months before the shooting.

Mrs. McMahon identified a 303-calibre rifle, found about 11½ miles from the shooting scene and alleged to be the murder weapon, as one which Loyst had in his possession before the incident.

The 44-year-old widow said she first met Loyst in July, 1962, while berry picking in the village of Henderson. She admitted considering leaving her lawyer-husband, but Loyst, 41, 2½ miles south of Kaladar, with Loyst after the two became involved in a "close relationship."

"I told him (Loyst) I had to have a day to do it when my husband was away," she testified.

She told the court that on two occasions Loyst threatened to shoot her husband.

Loyst told her on the day of the shooting to pick his belongings after Mrs. McMahon returned to go away with him. The widow said it was then that Loyst made the second threat on her husband's life.

Nigger

In the "black country" — so named from the sooty appearance resulting from the many industries. These factories have attracted a large number of immigrants.

Four marginal parliamentary seats in the Birmingham area have heavy populations of colored citizens and some 20 constituencies in Britain have more immigrants than the majority of the party in power. HAVE VOTE POTENTIAL

The potential of the immigrant vote is obvious, yet enigmatic. No one seems willing to predict how many will turn out on polling day.

It seems clear that one main worry of the immigrants is the prospect of segregation in the Smethwick schools.

The Smethwick situation has additional piquance as the parliamentary seat of Patrick Gordon Walker, "shadow" foreign minister for the Labor party. Conservative candidate Peter Griffiths, 35 - year - old school headmaster who drastically whittled Gordon Walker's majority in the last election, hopes to pull off a coup this year.

The racial controversy burst into national prominence Monday night when Labor Leader Harold Wilson, in a television appearance, accused the Smethwick Tories of using the "nigger" slogan. He called it a "squalid" thing to do.

Griffiths, threatening legal action against Wilson, hotly disclaimed use of the slogan but stood by an earlier statement in the London Times in which he was quoted as

SHOWS FEELING

"I should think this is a manifestation of the popular feeling. I would say the condition anyone who said that . . . I fully understand the feelings of the people who say it."

Griffiths, interviewed during a school break, accused Wilson of a "blatant lie" and claimed that Smethwick has 7,000 colored immigrants, the highest percentage in Britain. Other sources put the figure as low as 4,000 or 5,000.

The four night program includes films of both national and international interest and also a wide variety of other topics ranging from the growing of plants to a study of scientific research and modern design in household furniture.

Color travel pictures include an eight-day cruise up the Pacific coast to Alaska, a film dealing with colorful western frontier, scenes from New Brunswick, outdoor living in Perth, Ont., and a film of general interest film on Canadians, who have achieved world renown in motion pictures.

Fire Destroys Storage Barn On Byron Street

City firemen were called to 462 Sidney Thursday at 6.33 last night to extinguish an unattended bonfire at Peake's Lumber. No damage was reported.

Firemen were called out again at 11.00 o'clock to Byron Street shortly after 11.00 o'clock where a storage barn was reported alive behind the residence of Mr. T. Lucas.

An official at the fire department said the two building had been converted from a house into a storage building. Cause of the fire is not yet unknown.

It is not known just exactly what had been stored in the building, however, damage was reported as extensive to the interior of the building. It is believed a saddle and harness shop had been removed from the building.

Firemen returned to the department around 12 o'clock.

Park Facilities Will Be Improved, Additions Made Ald. Joss Tells Y's Men

Increased playground facilities, construction of more natural ice rinks, planting of trees and provision of more benches and picnic tables, will be part of the 1964 program of the city parks and recreation committee, members of the Y's Men's Club were told last night.

Alderman Donald Joss, chairman of the city parks and recreation committee, said this was part of the short term plans of the committee.

Long term plans called for further development of Zwick's Island in the form of a park with a canteen and boathouse to be completed this year; improvements along the banks of the Moira River and also improvements to fairground facilities.

Ald. Joss said his committee was faced with three problems. I analysis of all properties presently owned by the city with sale of lands not suitable for city purposes; purchase of other more suitable properties; a short term parks improvements and long term projects to be carried out over a period of years.

$85,000 BUDGET

He said the parks and recreation committee budget this year would be $85,000, a two thousand dollar increase over the 'amount spent last year on parks and recreation in Belleville.

This figure was still about $5,000 below the budget which the committee would recommend municipal law.

Co-ordinated effort toward the improvement of park facilities was urged by Mr. Joss who said that the individual efforts of local organizations be channelled through the parks committee.

"By co-ordinating efforts much more could be accomplished than on an individual basis," he said.

ADVISORY MEMBERS

In order to get as many new ideas for the committee as possible, Mr. Joss said that four additional advisory members had been added to the present appointment parks and recreational committee.

Serving in an advisory capacity without vote are Lionel Boily, Dick Zelig, Ed. Adamson and Roger C. Craig.

Also this year a new parks superintendent, Mr. Lloyd Joyce has been retained to supervise maintenance of the city parks system.

A question and answer period was held at the conclusion of the talk. Dick Turnbull was in charge of the meeting with Robbie Clarke and Jam Pierson collecting. The speaker's thanks was thanked by Bill Hutchison.

Furniture, Appliance Dealers Hold Meet

The furniture and Appliance Dealers of Belleville held their first meeting of 1964 at the Crest of Hill in the form of a supper meeting on Tuesday. There was an excellent turnout.

At the meeting Mayor Mr. Charles Bristol of Wray's Home Furnishers was elected chairman for the coming year. Mr. Doug Shaw of David's Furniture and Appliances Ltd. and Mr. Elmer (Scotty) Scott of Boots Radio and Television Ltd. were elected directors.

There was considerable discussion of store hours and the merits of the Belleville Downtown Business Men's Association.

Understanding, Skill Needed In Public Welfare Work

Doris Clark Tells C.A.S.

"Our public welfare department must become more professional." If we are to maintain high morale in those families who need governmental help, because receiving money can be a degrading experience, or it can lift, depending on the understanding and skill with which it is given. We can't let public services depend on whether the dispenser is in a good mood or not." Miss Doris Clark, B.A., B.S.W., told the members of the Children's Aid Society of the City of Belleville, the County of Hastings and the town of Trenton and their guests at the annual dinner meeting at Club Canada on Thursday evening.

Miss Clark, whose daily column discussing problems involving personal and family relations is published in The Ontario Intelligencer as well as 32 other papers and 27 weekly papers, has been a social caseworker and has had wide experience in her field.

Reading from an editorial in the Pittsburg Post Gazette Miss Clark summarized, "It is our belief, based on years of observation of practice, that the needs of the indigent are best met through public assistance. If the need is denied there, it must be met by the volunteer welfare agencies, and usually at greater cost. The best answer is the provision of an adequately staffed and financed state program of relief."

NEED MORE HELP

"We know all too well that these facts apply right across Canada too. Thank God there are many sections of Canada where counselling can be had; where the troubled one can be steered to the Children's Aid or when a woman who needs legal protection can be referred to the Family Court, or to a Family Service Bureau. But even in the best of these areas the call is for more staff, more skilled people to handle human problems."

Miss Clark is a warm and witty speaker, and while stressing of the distressing aspects of social work, could also appreciate the lighter side and interspersed her address with some of the amusing things that went into her work.

"We have come a long way in welfare services in Canada," Miss Clark observed. "Our great need now is for more trained workers and the money to pay them. The mental health program in Ontario has positions for over 250 social workers; and just about half that number to fill them. Family service and child welfare care agencies are constantly searching for skilled educated workers who can give the help our people need. In Ontario 1,750 persons are engaged in courts and for social service skills; just 700 of these are members of the Canadian Association of Social Workers which means that the great majority of the remaining thousands are untrained workers.

WARPED CONCEPTION

"It has been suggested that in general the public has a warped conception of what a social worker is; he or she has been thought of as a nosey, stiff-necked, bossy investigator; grabbing people's children away from them, or "shooting" into personal affairs in the name of the law.

"This is extreme, but in most cases the concept of a social worker is hazy, to say the least. To overcome this, every social worker must see to it as part of the job to explain his or her mission in life, and the objectives of his agency at every opportunity, and to never send away from the door the disgruntled, perhaps unreasonable, seeker after help. Every agency must develop a year round program of interpretation, so that the public it serves will really understand what it can do."

Miss Clark was introduced by Mr. Bruce Kerr and was thanked for her address by Rev. Leo W. E. Healey.

Chairman for the evening was Dr. S. C. Rose, substituting for President George Wishart. Alderman Enos Davis, representing City Council brought greetings from the municipality and expressed the hope that it would be a profitable year for the Society.

Warden Thomas Burnside on behalf of the County of Hastings said that the Society provided a useful service, and although it cost a lot of money they felt they were getting full value.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Treasurer Stanley Wiggins presented the financial report which showed services to children in ward and non-ward care of the society had receipts of $130,339.96 and disbursements which included foster home board, receiving home, clothing, medical, dental, professional, transportation, milling, and general administrative expenses, $133,718.01.

Services to families and children in their own homes (prevention services) including unmarried mothers had receipts of $23,856.16 including $2,322.00 from United Appeal, Hastings County Council grant $26,657.17. Mr. J. I. Dickey, C.A. audited the records.

UNITED APPEAL UNSATISFACTORY

In the report of President George Wishart it was pointed out that unfortunately, by reason of the fact that the only way of giving to products sufficient funds, the Society had suffered a deficit on the Belleville operation for each of the past three years. Every spring City Council has made a grant available in the requested amount, and while this is appreciated we would recover the balance of the cost through the United Appeal, but each year finds this is not a satisfactory method of financing an essential service only to have the year ahead, steps must be taken to remedy the situation.

TRENTON BLACK MARK

Trenton has continued, unfortunately to be a black mark on our otherwise unblemished record because the fact that society received no financial support from the community at large (apart from one or two private donations, receipt of which is gratefully acknowledged) for the child welfare service, apart from preventive work with families, was considered a black mark here for the apprehension of neglected children, assistance to unmarried mothers, help with supervision of children placed privately in adoption, etc. In October of 1954 a meeting was held in the hope that it would stimulate interest in a full program of welfare services for families and children. Although advertised by radio and press for a period of four weeks, more than twenty town citizens and representatives attended. From this we can deduce that the citizens of the town are not interested—not only in the CAS when they have personal need for its services.

The society has now provided school attendance counsellor service in the Bay of Quinte District High School Board and the Belleville Public School Board for one full year. We are appreciative of their kind expressions of approval of the job they have done and we shall continue to act for them for so long as the arrangements are mutually satisfactory.

Many years of service was recognized by the Board to three of the members whose terms of office expired this year, with the presentation of certificates to Miss Josephine Bell, Mr. Percy Forrester, and Mr. George Wishart. Mr. Wishart was also the recipient of a table with a ceramic tile top. The presentation was made by Mr. Tom Holden who spoke of the efficient operation of the Board for the efficient of the president in guiding the work of the Society.

CAS Director Gives Report

"A condensed report of the local director of the Children's Aid Society as given by Bruce Kerr at the meeting:

We have made many changes since 1954 and I sincerely believe they have been changes for the better. Child welfare in Ontario has undergone a tremendous change since World War II. While the C.A.S. movement is private in nature, and in its early days the drive and spent were raised by public subscription; today, it is almost entirely tax supported. It was therefore essential that the society effect a relation with its municipal benefactors. Strangely enough, if there has been any criticism to enter into a marriage, it has been on the part of the municipal councils and on certain instances they have not chosen to do so -- despite the fact they pay thousands of dollars to the C.A.S. annually. However, it is noticeable that where there is a sharing of responsibility between the local municipal council and the C.A.S. a worthwhile child welfare service exists. Where there is no such relationship, there is nothing.

Today, in the County of Hastings and the City of Belleville, child welfare is administered as a partnership between lay citizens and their elected municipal officials, a new approach firmly convinced that this is as it should be - under local autonomy.

MANY SERVICES

It would be difficult for most of us to envisage a community without an agency or organization to which a parent can turn for assistance in time of need; without help in time of a marital problem, guidance in resolving a breakdown in relations between parent and his son or daughter, advice concerning the adoption of a child of a former marriage, assistance in planning for the confinement of a teen-age daughter pregnant and without means, assistance for the aged mother of a child abandoned in the night, and so on. These things have become an accepted - and expected - part of our way of life. These are services provided by your Children's Aid Society.

"In the past ten years we have admitted 860 children in care. I'm sure that many of you will find it difficult to believe that here in Hastings County, during one of the greatest ten year periods in history, 860 children were found to be neglected by the courts. It is true. Fortunately, during this same period, there were more children discharged from the society's care than admitted. In fact, more than 1,000 were discharged and as a result there are approximately 200 fewer children in care today than ten years ago.

While many of the children who left our care were re-united with their families, more than 500 were placed in adoption. These were not hit and miss arrangements as anyone who has legally adopted a child knows, but carefully thought-out placements. We have had a professionally qualified and experienced person in charge of our adoption department at all times.

ASSIST WITH EDUCATION

"Of course, there are always children reaching the age of 18 and leaving the care and custody of the society. As you know, the society ceases to receive maintenance for a child when he attains his 18th birthday and this poses a problem. Many of these boys and girls are in the middle of an academic or trades training program. Fortunately, the society has request funds at hand and the interest earned is used to assist with their continuing education. A few years ago, the board established a trust fund known as the Continuing Education Fund to encourage citizens interested in our boys and girls to make available money for such purposes. To date the response has been minimal, but we have a few thousand dollars invested and we are grateful to the donors concerned. In the past ten years we have assisted, seven young people to attend business college, two to attend a Canadian university, one to take nurses' training, one to take a lab technicians' course, two to train as nursing assistants, three to complete grade XII in commerce, one to complete grade XIII, and one to take a course in hairdressing. Any number of others completed grade XII. I'm sure that you will agree that this was money wisely spent.

UNMARRIED MOTHERS

"Since 1954 between 500 and 600 girls and women, pregnant and unmarried, have sought assistance in planning for their confinement and the care of their expected children. While the number involved in relation to the population is not great, it does point out the need for this kind of service in our community.

Child welfare today is impartered business and like many other faces of public welfare it is expensive. Since it is expensive, I feel that the public is entitled to the highest quality of service possible in return for the money it is pressed to spend. In this regard there has been a conscientious effort to improve the academic qualification of the staff, and, of course, this is reflected in the quality of the job performed. I commend the Board for their efforts in this direction.

In the past year, your Society has received and has spent between $1,750,000 and $2,000,000. Of this sum, $1,000,000 was contributed by the Province of Ontario and the most of the rest from the local area. Nearly all of it was spent locally. A half million dollars was paid out in salaries and in caring for our children and another half million was spent in purchasing materials. Two million dollars was spent on clothing and at least $500,000 on medical and dental care. While this money came from your pocket and my pocket and our neighbors pockets — the most of it returned to those same people. Your C.A.S. is pretty much a local effort and just as it serves the community, so does the money it spends is distributed over the entire County.

All citizens should be interested in attracting industry and their attendant payrolls. I ask you, "Why?" Because they buy other business or industry, spending $2,000,000 locally every year, which means a greater contribution to the welfare of the community than taxes. That's a fact.

Proposed Plan To Alter Road Is Discussed

TRENTON — Thursday morning, Mayor James MacDonald and three members of his council Coun Bora C. V. Graham, Ward Todd and Coun. Donald, met in the town office at Trenton with representatives from the Ontario Department of Highways, the federal Board of Transport Commissioners, and engineers from the Canadian National Railway to discuss Trenton's proposed plan to reroute Highway 33, in the north section of the Town.

The highway would pass along Water Street and so on along bends to the right turning north at a point east of the existing CNR subway, making necessary the construction of a new sub-sy.

No decisions were reached at the meeting, it is now up to council to decide whether or not to go ahead with the plan for the re-routing, and to seek government approval of the plan.

Maple Syrup Being Made For Past Week

New crop maple syrup will undoubtedly make its initial appearance on the Belleville market on Saturday with syrup makers in the district take district of Prince Edward county already having their buckets out.

Mr. Cecil Kleinstauber tapped his sugar bush about the first of March and has been making syrup for the past week.

There was very little snow in the bush on Saturday as most of the snowfall and the going was easy for sap collecting.

Bush Prince Edward county is apparently in the "sunny south" as compared to the area north of Belleville where tapping is not expected to get generally underway until the first of next week.

Mrs. Garnet Denyes of Plainfield said her husband was getting ready to take his annual trip to the bush and expected to start putting out sap buckets either on Saturday or on Monday—depending on the weather.

But no forecasts are being made as to what kind of a syrup season this will be.

The success of the season for syrup makers will, as usual, be in the weather.

Frost at night with temperatures rambling to the 40's during the day make for good sap runs.

Desirable, But It Is Feasible?

Hon. A. J. MacEachen, Federal Minister of Labor, is reported to be sounding out the provinces on his plan for a national labor code.

Amongst other things, such a code would set nation-wide minimum wage rates.

A greater uniformity in wages is greatly to be desired. Nothing would make a greater contribution towards uniting the nation than a more equitable distribution of wealth. If it were possible to achieve uniformity of wages, the have-not provinces would be able to increase their revenues and to provide for themselves services and facilities which they need so badly, while the richer provinces, gaining relief from the necessity of subsidising the poorer, would have one of their major grievances removed.

The question is not whether uniformity of wages is desirable; but rather is is whether or not a radical change in existing conditions can be achieved by anything so simple as governmental decree.

It is, of course, quite feasible to enact a national law setting wages at a standard which can be met, without any economic disruption, by the industries of the various provinces. But such a law would be meaningless. It would do nothing to raise the standard of pay in these poorer provinces and wage rates in the richer provinces would remain well above it.

Mr. MacEachen is too able and sincere a man to be satisfied with any such empty legislation. He is said to favor a minimum hourly wage of $1.25, which is in line with the minimum rate in Ontario's "Golden Horseshoe" but in excess of minimum rates elsewhere.

But wage rates are not some arbitrary figure set without regard to economic facts. If a minimum wage of $1.25 were made nation-wide, it would be more likely to harm than to assist the poorer provinces. They are poor because they labor under some handicaps—they lack natural resources, or skilled manpower, or modern factories or are far from the markets for the goods they produce. Such wage rates make it possible for them to compete with the more fortunate provinces, their cheaper labor offsetting some of the advantages which the richer provinces enjoy. But if this advantage of cheaper labor were denied them, the result would more likely be a decline in economic activity than an increase.

Canada's economic problems are not so simple that they can be solved by decree.

Quebec's Export Ban

Hon. Kelso Roberts, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, believes that a Quebec Government ban on the export of timber to Ontario sawmills is "bad business."

Many will share in his view. More important, though, is whether such a ban is intra vires of the Quebec Government.

Federal authorities are looking into this matter. One of the aims of the Fathers of Confederation was the integration of the economies of the British colonies united by the British North America Act, and that act contains a clause banning trade barriers between the provinces. At that time, though, the danger was that provinces would ban sales of produce from other provinces; nobody conceived that anybody would refuse to make a sale if it could do so. Thus the BNA Act prohibition is worded in language which may not cover the Quebec ban on exports of lumber. This is a question which legal experts—perhaps eventually the courts—will have to decide.

Meanwhile, however, we must at least concede that the Quebec Government's stand is not without logic. Hon. Lucien Cliche, Quebec's counterpart to Mr. Roberts, argues that it is not good economics to export wood when Quebec sawmills have not enough to feed their own machines. Since the timber in question is cut on Crown Lands, the Quebec Government may be able to devise methods of enforcing the ban, regardless of what interpretation may eventually be placed by the experts on the relevant section of the BNA Act.

In spite of difference of soil and climate, of language and manners, of laws and customs —in spite of things silently going on in mind, and things violently destroyed, the poet binds together by passion and knowledge the vast empire of human society, as it is spread over the whole earth, and over all time.—William Wordsworth.

If the developing countries are to continue as important and growing markets for Canadian exports—and in almost every case there is a definite imbalance in our favor—then we must continue to provide a market for their developing industries.—Mitchell Sharp, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Why Is Number 13 Considered To Be Unlucky?

By SYDNEY HARRIS

We were riding up to a hotel room, in the elevator went from the 12th to the 14th floor. "Hey, there's no 13th floor", exclaimed my little girl. "What goes on here?"

What goes on here is a persistent form of superstition, which I tried hard, but unsuccessfully, to explain to her. "But why is the number 13 considered unlucky?" she persisted to know, and I had no real answer.

I could tell her something about the history and career of this undiminished superstition. Is there mythology, for instance, sitting down 13 at dinner was deemed unlucky because at a banquet in Valhalla, Loki once intruded, making 13 guests, and Baldur was slain.

Again, in Christian countries, the superstition was confirmed (but not organized) by the Last Supper of Christ and His twelve disciples, which included the betrayer.

Even the Turks so dislike the number, which records that the word "thirteen" is almost expunged from their vocabulary. The Turkish word for it, in making up their lotteries. In Paris, no house bears the number 13; and until the last century, there existed that curious group known as "Quatorziens".

The Quatorziens were persons of recognized position in French society who had themselves in readiness to accept an invitation to dinner when otherwise 13 guests would sit down; would be 12. They were called "fourteeners", and were mentioned, in a 17th century opera ("La Mascotte") of the 19th century.

Everybody, of course, has some superstition, and also tradition in his nature, so that no matter how civilized, cultivated or "scientific" a man may seem to be, it is a primitive way of defending against the return of childhood anxieties, and fix persistence in adult life, and through many centuries, indicates how deep and strong it is in the human organism.

We somehow obscurely continue to believe that the stars ("a Mascotte") of the 19th century.

Everybody, of course, has some superstition in his nature,

Judge's Summary Leads To Guilty Verdict

History Reversed Verdict

If ever there was a trial where history reversed the verdict, it was the trial of Jesus before Pilate. Pilate was the judge; Jesus was the prisoner. Yet today it is Pilate who stands condemned before the court of world opinion, while millions attest to the perfect innocence of Jesus. Pilate had back of him the might of the Roman Empire; Jesus stood alone. His frightened followers had fled at the time of His arrest. Yet today Rome is a historic memory, while the followers of Jesus encircle a world full...ralph.

Pilate was openly embarrassed by the case. Unwilling to sentence an innocent man to death, he tried to "pass the buck" to Herod, but when Herod could make no headway, he sent Jesus back to Pilate. Twice Pilate tried further to evade the responsibility of sentencing Jesus. His offered to release Him in accordance with a custom of releasing a prisoner at the time of the Passover, but the people demanded the release of Barabbas instead.

Pilate tried to disavow responsibility in the case by publicly washing his hands, but in the end it was his words that condemned Jesus to death. Pilate weakened when he was told, "If you release this man, you are not Caesar's friend" (John 19:12 RSV). This destroyed his courage. Rather than run the risk of incurring Rome's disfavor by having a complaint against him carried to Caesar, Pilate gave in, and permitted Jesus to be crucified.

CAME TO BEAR WITNESS

Pilate could not understand his prisoner. "Are you the King of the Jews?" he asked Jesus. Jesus replied, "My kingship is not of this world; if my kingship were of this world, my servants would fight . . ." (John 18:36). Jesus went on to explain: "For this I was born, and for this I came into the world, to bear witness to the truth."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for March 15:: "Pilate Judged by Jesus," Matthew 27:11-26; John 18:33 through 19:22; 13:1-17, 34, 35.

Truth! What kind of a basis is that on which to build a kingdom? Pilate could understand the use of violence in building empires. He even tried to intimidate Jesus by the threat of its use. "Do you not know," he said, "that I have power to release you, and power to crucify you?" But Jesus refused to be intimidated. You would have no power over me," he replied, "unless it had been given you from above." He even believed in the power of truth to prevail long after brute force has done its worst.

Britain Urges Turks to Act With Restraint

LONDON (AP)—The British government today strongly urged Turkey to act with great restraint in the deepening Cyprus crisis.

Britain's action followed delivery of what was described as a final warning to Cypriot President Makarios by the Turkish government that Turkey will intervene in the Mediterranean island unless fighting stops immediately.

The British, at the same time, called for U.S. help in attempts to calm international passions over the island's future.

Cheese Exchange

The average price for both square and regular cheese was 25½ cents per pound.

Friday the 13th

Did you see any black cats, break any mirrors or pass under any ladders today?

If so, watch out, for it's Friday the 13th.

All the above are supposed to be forerunners of bad luck and when Friday the 13th is thrown in, superstitious people feel that double trouble could be on the way.

But then not all are superstitious and like as not when the day is over it will have been just another day.

Work Outlined At W. C. Y. Meet

Miss Helen Gough, assistant executive secretary for the Council for Social Service in the Diocese of Toronto spoke to the Women's Church Year showing the opportunities within the church for service to neighbors.

A 13-week course on marriage preparation, has been known to break engagements but has been successful in giving young people a firm foundation for a happy marriage. There is also a discussion group series for people married three to 15 years helping them to solve their own and one anothers' difficulties.

The Anglican Church runs four different homes in Toronto, one for girls and one for boys who have left home and come to the city seeking a new life. There are approximately ten young people in residence at one time and they are helped to find employment, choose their associates wisely and in approximately one year they are ready to face life in the city on their own. The home for elderly men who have spent some time in a mental institution assists them in adjusting to life outside. Homewood House is for unmarried mothers, which, and to say, is always full and has a waiting list. Girls are admitted at seven months and stay for two months after the birth of the baby. This gives them time to make a decision without pressure.

INFORMATION CENTRE

There is an information centre in Trinity Square in the heart of downtown Toronto, staffed by volunteers. It was started to help the British immigrant find jobs, housing, etc. and carried on helping the Hungarian, and more recently the Indian people coming to the city. The centre was instrumental in helping the Indian find his own central meeting place which is now run by a board comprised of Indians and other Canadians.

Money being a problem at one time, a mother's tea is almost everybody the parishes in Toronto have formed their own credit unions to help the people plan wisely the handling of their money.

This over-all picture of the church at work helped those present see opportunities at her service in their own Parish. "If we are to live a full Christian Life we must serve others as Jesus himself served us."

Miss Gough was thanked for her interesting address by Mrs. R. Ward.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Simmonds and her days and weeks of the month of March.

Search for Penny Does Not Indicate Cheapness

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a widow who has been going with a very fine widower for several months. We are both in our early 40's. Dr. D. is considered quite a catch and many divorcees and widows who are younger than I, and better looking, have shown more than casual interest in him.

Last evening we were walking from the movie to the car when he casually strolled over to the gutter. He leaned over as if to pick up something and said, "I thought it was a penny, but it was only a cigar wrapper." I was embarrassed to think he would bother to pick up a penny.

ANN LANDERS

Dr. D. is not what I would call a wild spender, but neither is he tight. What do you make of this? Does it mean he might be keeping his skin-flint tendencies under wraps and that marriage to such a man might be a financial hell? Please advise. — LOOKING BEYOND.

* * *

DEAR B. — If Dr. D. is in his early 40's he was a youngster during the depression when a penny bought something — a jaw-breaker, a handful of peanuts or jelly beans, a stick of licorice. And five pennies (heaven help us we should be so lucky) bought a hot-dog or a double-dip ice cream cone.

Your friend's respect for a penny undoubtedly dates back to his childhood. This doesn't mean he is cheap. It means he has a good memory.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter who is 22 was engaged to a young man from a well-to-do west coast family. The date was set, the invitations sent out, and tickets purchased by her grandparents for a Jamaican honeymoon.

Six days before the wedding I received a phone call from the groom's mother. She said "Charles is very run-down from practicing for the tournament and the doctor says he must get away for a few weeks. Postpone the wedding." The groom was unable to speak to our daughter because he was "too tired."

She was crushed. I had the monumental task of telephoning and wiring the guests.

Now, four weeks later, my daughter receives a phone call from Charles who says he is "completely rested" and wants to get married next month.

Our daughter is torn with indecision. What would you say if she were your daughter? — M AND D.

* * *

DEAR M AND D — If she were my daughter I'd let her make the decision. I would hope, however, that she would give careful thought to the kind of life she'd have with a young man who exhibited such instability.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My heart went out to "Mary" who wrote that her mother hated her and that she went to sleep every night on a wet pillow.

I had the same kind of mother, but somehow I didn't let it turn me into a whimpering, self-pitying creature. I told myself, "There is nothing wrong with you. There is something wrong with your mother. Make use of your brains, ability and energy and contribute to something."

I pitched into school work and attacked my studies fiercely. I joined organizations and developed leadership qualities. I won honors for academics and music. I told myself there must be no time wasted hating, condemning or whining.

Today I am married to a marvelous man. I know now my mother was a sick woman, filled with jealousy and hate. She had to take it out on someone and I was the victim. Don't ask me where I got the understanding. I don't know. But I did get it. And now I am giving it to you, Mary. —YOUR SISTER UNDER THE SKIN.

DEAR SISTER — Here is your fine letter. I hope "Mary" sees it and takes the cue. It could change her life.

WEDDINGS

KELLAR — MacFARLAND

A lovely winter wedding was solemnized in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, when June Marie, daughter of Mr. Stanley MacFarland, R.R. 1, Belleville, and the late Mrs. MacFarland, was united in marriage to Ernest Kellar, son of Mrs. Fred Kellar, of Crookston, and the late Mr. Kellar.

Rev. Sackville Palmer officiated at the double-ring ceremony before a background of ferns and flowers and a beautiful recessed lighted Baptismal water scene.

The wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Wilbur Leonard, prior to and following the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white embossed satin ballerina-length dress, featuring a sweetheart neckline with matching jacket, white shoes and shoulder-length net veil topped with a queen crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink and orchid roses.

Her only attendant was her sister Mrs. Joseph Turner, of Oshawa, as matron of honor, dressed in a green and blue multi-colored taffeta shirt dress with a bouffant overskirt of the same material, white shoes and white flowered band-style headdress. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The groomsman was Mr. Joseph Turner, Oshawa, brother-in-law of the bride. The usher was Mr. George MacFarland of Peterborough.

The reception was held in the bride's home at Belleville R.R. 1, where approximately 50 relatives and friends gathered and were received by Mrs. Carl MacFarland and Mr. Stanley MacFarland. Here the bride's table was most attractive, centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and bridegroom, which was made and decorated by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Fred MacFarland of Forest Mills.

Guests were present from Toronto, Forest Mills, Springbrook, Picton, Crookston, Peterborough and Oshawa.

Following the reception, amidst a shower of confetti the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip for points north.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Norman Salisbury, Mrs. J. W. Ross, Mrs. Jordan Letchford and Mrs. Ernest Rawlings, at which time she received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Can Overcome Handicap With Therapy

MONTREAL (CP)—The boy who always finishes out on the baseball field and reads words backwards may look like an athletic misfit and a dunce. Chances are, he's neither.

His vision may be perfect, his body strong and lithe and his intelligence above average.

His problem is co-ordinating what he sees with what he does. Psychologists call the handicap an impairment in the visual-motor area.

Jessie Dorrion, assistant executive director of the Montreal Children's Service Centre, says this sort of impairment affects about 10 per cent of all school-age children.

More than 100 of the 740 school-age children in the district in which the centre operates have it.

"We suspect that the pressures of their home life may have contributed to the rather high percentage among spoonsy children," Mrs. Dorrion says.

The handicap can be overcome with therapy. Under guidance of Dr. A. J. Kirschner, director of reading training at Sir George Williams University, the centre has launched its first visual - motor program at its Waverley Park Centre.

PLAY WITH PURPOSE

Nine children aged eight to 13 attended the first of a series of three-week classes begun recently. The classes continue five or six months. The centre hopes eventually to have three separate classes operating at onetimeonly.

For an hour and a half the children bounce balls, work with jig saws, cut out paper, paint and paste. They sprawl on the floor and watch a toy car spin on a battery-operated gyroscope, walk a narrow gangplank and cavort on a trampoline. They also read.

"It may look like play but don't let that fool you," says Mrs. Dorrion. "It's play with a purpose."

The games and handicrafts help train eye and body co-ordination.

Directing the classes is Mrs. A. J. Frueh, a retired school teacher and mother of three, who was in charge of the initial survey to find youngsters affected by motor - visual problems.

Before coming to the school the children were all tested by psychologist Kirschner, an optometrist who confirmed they needed special assistance.

Dr. Kirschner trained Mrs. Frueh for the job and she in turn is training a staff of eight volunteers. The volunteers have a special rule since without them it would cost $100 a month for each child to provide individual professional treatment.

U.C.W. Meeting
(JOHNSTOWN U.C.W.)

JOHNSTOWN—Mrs. Everett Clapp was hostess when the Johnstown United Church Women held their meeting last Wednesday evening with 17 present. Mrs. Alan Vandervoort was in charge of proceedings.

Mrs. Burrell Hamilton conducted the devotional period and read two poems. Mrs. William S. Harry read a paper dealing with Indian life. A letter was read from the Festival of Sacred Praise committee, asking for a donation. Mrs. Maitland Herder thanked the ladies for cards received while she was in hospital. The president expressed thanks to the hostess for the hospitality.

Mrs. Clarence MacDonald and Mrs. Vandervoort were the program conveners who based this portion on "Good News in India". An interesting film unlisted "Poverty and Plenty" was shown. Mrs. MacDonald gave a reading of India after which another film was shown entitled "The Opportunity of India" which showed Canadian engineers helping the Indian people to harness their rivers for electricity and stressed the need for more highly trained people from Canada to help teach the Indian people to help themselves.

Question: Do you have a recipe for Chinese Plum Sauce, you know the one that goes with egg rolls? I have a wonderful recipe for egg rolls. However, the family and I agree that only the plum sauce goes right with them and not the sweet and sour sauce that is made so far . . . Mrs. H. G. H.

Answer: Here is the authentic recipe for

FRIDAY
Dinner Menu

Stuffed Baked Whitefish; Lemon Wedges; Baby Limas; Emem's Casserole of Tomatoes (see Thursday); Sliced Cucumbers in Sour Cream; Rosy Baked Rhubarb; Warm Spice Cake; Coffee.

PLUM SAUCE (to be served with Egg Rolls)

One 15-oz. can whole purple plums, 2 tablespoons vinegar; 1 tablespoon orange juice; 1 teaspoon lemon juice; ¼ teaspoon allspice; ½ teaspoon dry mustard.

Drain plums well, pit and drop into blender or beater bowl. Add remaining ingredients and blend until perfectly smooth.

There are never any strings attached to my gifts of recipes but since you have such a satisfactory recipe for Egg Rolls, would you be kind enough to write it out in detail and mail it to me to try?

Question: You had a raisin square recipe a while back that was a real hit and I have misplaced it. The squares have a crust on and bottom with the raisin filling in the centre . . . Mrs. J. W.

Answer: During the past two months, we have had a rash of requests for raisin pan and bar cookies and squares. Because of their current popularity, I am repeating this highly recommended recipe from D.E.

RAISINS SQUARES (Courtesy D.E.)

Pastry: Two cups flour, 2 tablespoons white sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 2 eggs, separated, ¼ cup sour cream. Filling: Mix one cup raisins, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup hot water, 2 tablespoons lemon rind, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, and cook, stirring until thick. Lastly: One-quarter cup dry bread crumbs, 1 table spoon white sugar.

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Work in shortening. Beat egg yolks, add sour cream. Knead into flour-shortening mixture and form in ball. Chill while cooking filling ingredients. Roll out half of dough 10" x 8" on floured board. Sprinkle with crumbs. Spread on filling. Cover with balance of dough. Brush with unbeaten egg white and sprinkle with white sugar. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven (425 deg. Fahr.) and 15 minutes in moderate oven (350 deg. Fahr.) While warm, cut into neat squares.

Collectors Of Antiques Are Worried

MONTREAL (CP)—When any building of historical interest here is being renovated or demolished, chances are that Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Moore of suburban Baie d'Urfe will be wandering among the debris.

They are collectors of antiques, and this hobby isn't as easy as it used to be.

"Prices are four times as high as when we started 16 years ago," says Mrs. Moore. "A few years ago you could look at something one day and call back to get it three days later. Now, it would no longer be there."

On their farm at Rawdon, Que., which has been turned into a small village that is visited by thousands each summer, is the bathroom from the royal suite in the old wing of the Windsor Hotel.

In the living-room of their home is a slice of a pillar from historic Notre Dame church in Montreal—made into a coffee table.

A noted Montreal landmark, Her Majesty's Theatre, is represented by 1,000 feet of stage flooring put into one of the buildings on the farm along with the theatre's front doors, two chairs from its royal box and the star's dressing room. The "village" includes a 129-year - old schoolhouse, a 115-year-old church and two rebuilt log houses completely furnished with Canadian antique furniture that the Moores tracked down in weekend searches.

"It's a hobby gone wild," Mr. Moore said. Without buildings of their own, there are complete interiors for an early blacksmith shop, a doctor's office, a veterinarian's office, an ice cream parlor and a general store.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

When your children entertain, you're still the senior hostess, even though your son or daughter is nominally in charge of the party. Do you assist with charm and tact? For instance:

1. Do you help plan the menu and the type of service?
2. Do you act mainly as adviser and let your youngster work out details of entertainment?
3. Do you greet your children's guests when they arrive at your home?
4. If you have guests of your own, do you introduce the young arrivals to them?
5. Do you retire from the party room, but put in discreet appearances from time to time in case the young host or hostess needs assistance?
6. Are you prepared to interfere tactfully if a guest gets overly frisky or the party gets too loud?
7. Do you simply put the food on the table, then let your son or daughter manage the rest of the service?
8. Have you set a time limit for the party in accordance with the age of the guests?
9. Are you good-humored, but firm, about sending guests home at the appointed time?
10. Do you make sure guests have proper escort or transportation home, even if you have to help out yourself?

Shoe Fashions Still Showing Bare Look

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian women are adopting new shoe styles much faster than they did before the advent of the point, says Thomas Wallace, Montreal shoe manufacturer.

At a press luncheon here he predicted women will keep the awareness of shoe fashions which grew on them during the five-year reign of the polished toe.

Even though shoes have begun to show markedly and taper to a gentler fingertip point, Mr. Wallace says women will never consent to a return of the baby doll style because it was ugly. Toes may get shorter and rounder, but if they flatten and broaden as the baby dolls did, they will have to be thickened, which was what made the style ugly. "The foot has to have someplace to go," he says.

He defines style as the regional adaptation of trend - setting fashion designs, usually from Europe.

'BARE LOOK'

This year the bare look is the style, adapted from toe-revealsion of the current Paris trend ing Paris fashion. Mr. Wallace considers this a natural extension for the current Paris trend for showing as much female as possible.

With the open heel toe-cleavage style fast becoming a new interest in leathers.

Patents head the list, and Mr. Wallace says synthetic development is making it possible to produce patents that will not crack. Suedes and brides-cent patents are growing in popularity.

He maintains Canadian women are spoiled in their choice of shoe sizes. They have eight widths for women's and most size ranges. In Europe, he says, where fashions originate and leathers are produced, the store which carries double or triple A's in its stock is so proud of the unusual fact, it emphasizes it in advertisements.

Sisters-in-Law Could Be Heading for Trouble

DEAR DORIS — I am worried about my sister-in-law. Our husbands are brothers, and we've known one another all our lives.

My sister-in-law and I have always been very good friends and still are but, Doris, she told me some time ago that she's in love with my husband, but he doesn't know about it. She says that he says nice things to her, compliments, but always when he has been drinking. I know my husband flirts when he drinks, but I've never paid any attention as he usually does it in public and he always says nice things to me too; but she told me her husband never says nice things to her.

DORIS CLARK

I'm wondering maybe my husband has a feeling for her. Now I'm jealous and suspicious of them, although she says to trust her; that she would never make an attempt to make love to him. She says she loves her husband too; he is a very good man but slightly quieter.

I'm not mad at my sister-in-law as I see she is fighting herself against all this, but maybe if her husband knew, he would say nice sweet little nothings to her, as I feel maybe she needs that.

Is it possible that she can be in love with two men at the same time? — JUST SISTER-IN-LAW.

DEAR SISTER-IN-LAW — She may think she is. Your husband's sweet nothings are music to ears starved for expressions of affection.

Your sister-in-law should open her heart to her husband and let him know her needs; and I'd strongly advise that you let yours know where his flowery phrases are leading.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We've been married for almost five years now. We have two children. We are still in love, even more than before. He never leaves the house without kissing me. I know he loves me as much as I love him. We never quarrel. Before we were married we used to quarrel every time we saw each other.

— Do you think this love will last? I know so many married couples who quarrel all the time. — STILL IN LOVE.

DEAR STILL IN LOVE — It could. More stay married than break up. Perhaps anxiety to keep things pleasant, after an upset courtship, will insure your success. Being in love is something to work at.

"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Few persons who have mortgages, personal loans, car loans, or other time payment plans are aware of the actual amount they are paying in interest. They are inclined to accept the face amount of the original interest rate — and this is rarely the true rate. It is difficult to determine the true rates.

Just such confusion made one of our readers unjustly lose faith in her bank...

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

"I was always taught that an interest rate was set based on the degree of risk involved in a loan — that if you had good collateral and were responsible you got a low interest rate and if not you paid a high one. Our bank is apparently confused and has it all backwards.

"Last year, to make some home improvements, we took a $5,000 mortgage on the $20,000 home we owned clear. Although we are very responsible people and owned a considerable equity, deposit in the bank, we pay 5½ per cent interest.

"Last week one of our neighbors - - who is always in debt and whose house is mortgaged to the hilt for $15,000 - got a home improvement loan from the same bank. He signed a personal note and he only has to pay 5 per cent interest. What kind of crazy bank is this?

"If this is the way banks are run, my money might be safer if I buried it in a tin can in the yard."

Answer:

Believe me - - your bank knows what it is doing, and is very careful in determining risks and setting interest rates. Your judgment is based on a common misunderstanding. Your 5½ per cent rate is a true interest - - you are paying only on the unpaid balance.

Your neighbor's loan, on the other hand, although repaid on a monthly basis is 5 per cent of the total amount for the period of the loan. His true interest rate is closer 9.2 per cent.

Although this may sound high even your neighbor is not being treated too badly. Many small bank consumer loans with stated interest rate of perhaps 6 per cent - - and some even 8 per month actually have true interest rate as high as 20 to 30 per cent, and in some cases even higher.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

"Several months ago our house fund reached $10,000 and we prepared to build the home we had planned on for many years. Instead of following our dream, however, it has caused nothing but frustration and grief.

"We paid an architect a good fee to draw plans to our specifications and he assured us the house could be built for $18,000. We have already spent $21,000 and we have run out of money. We estimate it will cost another $3,000 to finish We are really stuck without this.

"We actually had expected to build it for less than the architects estimate as my husband, who is an electrical engineer, acted as the builder and subcontracted the work.

"Is an undestimate like this common, or is there anything we can do to get money to complete our house before it is finished and mortgageable?"

Answer:

I think you may be hasty - - and perhaps unduly so - - in blaming the architect. It is not uncommon for even experienced builders to go over a building budget - - not to the degree you did, of course. Your husband, however competent an electrical engineer, is still an amateur when it comes to construction. Your big mistake was to not engage a builder at a fixed contract fee.

Many banks do not like to give mortgages on houses already under construction, due to the problem of potential mechanics' liens. Some lending institutions do make such loans, however, and since the $5,000 you require is but a small percentage of the total costs, you should not have too much difficulty. Check with your local realtor who can probably provide you with the names of prospective lenders.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

"For that old song that goes 'everytime it rains it rains pennies from heaven' were true we would have a bonus full of small change. Our wooden shingle roof springs new leaks faster than we can stop the old.

"In desperation we decided to install a new roof. We thought we would be clever and got bids from four separate contractors. Now we are sorry we asked. Each one assures us we need to do something different. To make matters worse, to move the old shingles first" - - two say we can put a new roof over the old. Even our neighbors are choosing up sides in the argument.

"We obviously have no choice but to ask you to arbitrate this and are agreed to abide by your decision. Please answer soon as rain is forecast and the roof still leaks."

Answer:

Undoubtedly it is better to install the new roof over the old. The advantages of doing this include the, fact that the resulting double roof acts as an insulator that will retain heat in the winter and repel it in the summer; the structural strength of the roof will be increased; you will avoid the problem of dirt - - both inside and outside - - that results from taking off old shingles, and best of all there will be considerable saving in labor costs.

The old roof must be prepared before installing the new one, however. This includes replacing missing shingles, flashing - - and shingles - - by splitting and nailing down loose shingles.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

"Some frame houses has reached the point where it needs new siding. As I have always admired brick, I am in favor of brick-facing instead.

"My husband agrees, but is afraid it will be too expensive. Could you give us some idea of how much this would cost?"

Answer:

The foundation for the brick will cost about $2 per linear foot of wall. Facing will run about $1.50 per square foot. Measure the perimeter of the house and allow 80 - - double will be the cost of the foundation. Double the area of the exterior walls actually to be covered by the brick, and apply the $1.50 per square foot figure to determine the remaining cost. Prices, of course, may vary considerably, depending upon labor and material costs in different localities.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately, he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Cyprus assignment-

The prime minister's statement was taken as a hint that Canada might end up sending more than a battalion to the strife-ridden Mediterranean island. The UN wants a total of 7,000 troops.

REASSURES U THANT

At UN headquarters in New York Thursday, External Affairs Minister Martin met for 90 minutes with Secretary-General U Thant and reassured him that Canada is 'prepared to join with UN peacekeeping effort.

Ottawa sources said Canada has been all set to join the UN force as soon as a minimum of three countries—Canada, Britain and one other—agreed to go Sweden is believed ready to agree now that financial support for the task appears assured.

Mr. Pearson stressed that Canada intends to pay its own expenses.

Defence Minister Hellyer told the House that the Canadian troops would be airlifted to Cyprus in RCAF Yukon transport planes. Their heavy equipment including vehicles, would be taken there aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure which was recalled from exercises in the eastern Atlantic Tuesday.

Mr. Martin said at New York the cost of the airlift alone would run to $1,000,000.

The prime minister said the Cyprus situation is "a very difficult and delicate" one. That was why Canada had insisted that the force have UN backing and the approval of the Cyprus government.

He added that Canada had also sought satisfactory financing of the force, although this difficulty would not involve the self-supporting Canadian unit.

Jews in Fight On 'Hate' Sheets

BRANTFORD (CP)—Baptists Thursday came out in full support of Jews in a campaign against hate literature now circulating in central Canada.

In a telegram to Federal Justice Minister Favreau, the Ontario-Quebec Baptist Federation said: "Our greatest concern is for our Jewish brethren against whom vilification and threats are directed."

The Telegram assured Mr. Favreau and government officials of the federation's full support.

The Baptist federation said it was deeply distressed "that despite the lessons of history this presentation of falsehood is being subjected to an insidious penetration by the purveyors of hate."

Baptists were opposed to any attempt to foster suspicion and division within Canada, it said.

The Telegram was sent by Rev. R. F. Bullen of Brantford, secretary - treasurer of the Baptist federation.

battle between rural and urban MPs. There were also pleas for special consideration for Quebec, the Prairies and the Maritimes.

Leon Balcer, the Conservatives' Quebec spokesman, warned that redistribution will change the "equilibrium" between Quebec and other regions.

Since the provincial governments were vitally affected, he urged that the 10 premiers be consulted at the March 31 federal - provincial conference in Quebec City.

He said the premiers should be asked informally for their advice on the personnel and the ground rules of the 10 proposed redistribution commissioners.

(Unless the 265-seat lower chamber is expanded, redistribution will result in the loss of four seats for Saskatchewan and one each for Quebec, Manitoba and Nova Scotia. Ontario will gain three seats, Alberta two and British Columbia one.)

WANTS GUARANTEE

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) called for a constitutional amendment that would guarantee that Quebec's representation would not drop below the present level of 75 seats.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) said Parliament has been ruled for years by a "rural tyranny." Rural voters were vastly over - represented and city voters were correspondingly under - represented.

Parliament should abolish this system and return to the democratic principles of equal representation for all—one man, one vote.

Several MPs from rural areas countered that population should not be the only factor in drawing constituency boundaries.

J. J. Greene (Liberal—Renfrew South) said historic rural counties, which usually formed a tight-knit social and economic entity, should not be carved up. The slogan "rep. by pop." was a shibboleth that did not mean much.

SUGGESTS MOTIVE

Maurice J. Moreau (L—York-Scarborough), whose riding is the largest in the country with a population of 300,000, said the Conservatives oppose the government bill because they realize their numbers would be reduced "if we had more equitable representation." Most of the 94 Conservative MPs come from predominantly - rural areas, while the opposite is true for the Liberals and New Democrats.

As the bill stands, it will result in new boundaries for nearly every constituency across Canada. The population of each riding could not exceed or fall short of the provincial average by more than 20 per cent.

In other developments:

Prime Minister Pearson said that the CBC alone has control over its choice of speakers and commentators. He was replying to NDP Leader T. C. Douglas who noted that Yvon Dupuis, minister without portfolio, said last weekend that the publicly-owned corporation was giving too much publicity to separatists and extremists.

Citizenship Minister Tremblay said the government now hopes to re-introduce in the latter stages of the current parliamentary session its legislation to establish an indian claims commission. The legislation was introduced late in the 1963 session and has been known as that Indians and others interested could make representations to the government on it.

URGES SPEED

The government was urged to speed up its inquiry into the amid-depressant drug parnate.

Dr. F. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) warned Health Minister LaMarsh that persons being treated with the drug may end up in mental hospitals if withdrawn from it.

Miss LaMarsh, who announced last month the drug is being withdrawn from general distribution, said five doctors have been asked to make the inquiry and probably will meet next month.

Canadians Are a Race Of Historical Illiterates

By JACK HUTTON

Brock Watson, a 19-year-old orphan who lost a leg to a shark five years before, probably wasn't looking for glory in 1755 when he helped save a British fort on Canada's east coast.

The young man hobbled out of Port Beaubasin to round up cattle when his mates feared a French attack. And he had to swim part of the way to protect the food supply.

But don't look for Brock Chaisler Sir Brock — in your history book. Legends still mention him on the east coast, but he earns almost two lines in most Canadian histories.

Let's face it, we're a race of historical illiterates.

When it comes to recognizing our own heroes and heroines, we'll dump them every time in favor of such overblown fakes as Davey Crockett, Bat Masterson or Calamity Jane.

I'd like to hear who you would nominate for a list of colorful early Canadians. Here, to get you started, is my personal list of favorites. How many do you know?

(Disagree as violently as you like with any of my choices, but give me reason for your disagreement. And try to back up any nominations that you would substitute.)

PUTS TV TO SHAME

1—Pierre D'Iberville. Here's a fellow who would make any TV swashbuckler look tame. Born in 1661, he charted the St. Lawrence when he was 14, founded Louisiana and had enough adventures to fill 10 books.

I've never forgotten the account of D'Iberville taking on three English ships in Hudson's Bay in 1697. He sailed between two of the ships, sinking one 2nd luring the second on to hidden rocks. The third fled.

2—Marie Madeline Jarret de Vercheres was a 14-year-old French - Canadian who refused to panic when Indians attacked her local fort in 1692. She took charge of her two brothers, 12 and 10, an old servant, several women and two soldiers to hold off the attack.

3—Etienne Brule. Here was a chap who stirs up controversy after four centuries. He came to New France in 1608 with Champlain and was sent to learn Indian life a year or two later.

A SCOUNDREL

Brule, no doubt about it, was a scoundrel who sold himself to the English when they first captured Quebec City. And many disapproved of his adoption of Indian morals.

But hew as our first "coureur de bois" — our first Canadian.

4—Rene Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle. Here's the man of whom I stand most in awe in early Canadian history. Compare yourself against La Salle, and you'll wonder how he found time to be a scholar, explorer and dreamer.

For years we preferred to not mention our own heroes or heroines. Lately, the spot has been to debunk our traditional history, pointing out small errors of fact in the original stories.

Prof. J. M. S. Careless, a University of Toronto historian, had this to say about the trend this week: "I would tell people not to worry about the debunking.

DEBUNKING BUNK

"It's just bunk itself, since we're only rediscovering that previous generations were as human as we are."

So don't worry about anyone debunking your nominations. I'd enjoy hearing your choices

A correspondent from the Mennonite Collegiate Institute, Gretna, Man., who signed himself (???) "A Disgusted Teenager," declared: "I have watched the Beatles perform on TV, and the only thing I could appreciate was the style of suits they wore.

"If they're so great why don't the fellows in the audience jump up and down, scream and tear at their hair the way the girls do?"

Child Neglected By Mother Jury's Verdict

TORONTO (CP) — A director of the Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society said Thursday it knew about the case of a four-month old baby before it died last January, but failed to make sure it was receiving proper home care.

A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that Larry Chong died of pneumonia Jan. 21 because his mentally depressed mother neglected him.

Walter Blackburn, assistant executive director of the society, said in an interview: "We made a mistake. It shouldn't have happened. This case wasn't given the priority it should have been."

He said the society found out too late that the baby had been released from the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children, taken by his mother to a foster home and later returned to his parents.

Mr. Blackburn admitted the society's worker involved was lax in checking the case, but said the foster home failed to follow instructions and notify the society the child had been returned to his parents.

Wednesday's inquest was told by Dr. John Percival that when he examined the baby, Mrs Phyllis Chong, the child's mother, told him she hated the baby and mistreated him. She asked for psychiatric help.

An autopsy performed at the Hospital for Sick Children showed the Chong baby had suffered a fractured skull, two broken arms and separations of both thigh bones, but these injuries had healed.

Larry was born three weeks premature, Sept. 4, in Kapuskasing. He was treated for a facial cut soon after birth.

Dr. Bruce Feaver, who treated the child, testified he was told by Larry's father, David Chong, that a fall off a bed caused the injury. He said he did not believe this story because the baby was too young to crawl.

The Chongs moved to Toronto Nov. 12. The child was cared for by his grandmother on various occasions after Mrs. Chong took, a job. The society also found a foster home for Larry with Mrs. Dorothy Lang early in January after he was released from hospital in January.

After a short time, Mrs. Lang gave him back to Mrs. Chong's mother, who in turn returned him to his parents.

Mrs. Chong now is receiving psychiatric care in hospital. The father is a bricklayer and a supermarket in Oshawa.

11 City Areas Show Increase In Population

OTTAWA (CP)—Eleven big-city areas in Canada averaged a population increase of 4.6 per cent in the two years since the June 1, 1961, census.

A Dominion Bureau of Statistics report on populationestimates for major metropolitan areas as of June 1, 1963, shows Calgary with the largest percentage increase, 7.5. Edmonton ranked next at 7.2.Toronto added the most people, 100,518, to bring its total to 2,095,084.

Tabulation in order of percentage gain:

	1963	1961	UP
Calgary	300,000	279,062	7.5
Edmonton	362,000	337,568	7.2
Ottawa	458,000	429,750	6.6
Toronto	1,925,000	1,824,481	5.5
Quebec	376,000	357,568	5.2
Montreal	2,205,000	2,109,509	4.5
London	188,000	181,283	3.7
Hamilton	420,000	405,189	3.7
Vancouver	809,000	790,165	2.4
Winnipeg	485,000	475,980	1.9
Windsor	196,000	195,265	1.9
Totals	7,732,000	7,373,820	4.6

The bureau reached its estimates by adding births and subtracting deaths in the areas between 1961 and 1963. It also added immigrants reporting the cities as places of destinations and made an allowance for losses due to emigration. The net movement in and out of each area from or to points in Canada was calculated from family allowance and other information.

GANG MEMBER JAILED

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Valiee, 22, said to be a member of the hooded gang blamed for a number of rapes and robberies with violence in both Ontario and Quebec, pleaded guilty to six charges Thursday and was sentenced to seven years in penitentiary.

Four Legislatures Deal With Education at Sittings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Legislatures in four Canadian provinces dealt with education matters Thursday.

The Quebec legislative assembly gave first reading approval to two amendments to legislation creating a Quebec department of education. The bill, which is the first came before the legislature last June and caused months of debate, now needs only royal assent which is expected next week.

Education Minister L. G. Dewar announced in Prince Edward Island that students' fees at the Prince of Wales College in Charlottetown would be increased. And Dave Boldt (L—Rosthern) asked the Saskatchewan government to extend increased school grants to even more schools than suggested in a bill currently being debated.

In Ontario, Education Minister William Davis said a reference to separate schools for-Negroes in Ontario's Separate Schools Act will be removed from the Statute.

The Quebec education bill, almost royal assent is expected soon, will take effect only on proclamation. This is expected to be mid-April at the earliest after structures of the new department of education are completed.

In other legislatures:

Newfoundland — Premier Smallwood announced nearly $1,000,000 in salary increases for 2,100 civil servants. He said the rate of increase had not been set but they would be effective from April 1 this year.

ALL BILLS ARE IN

Nova Scotia — Premier Stanfield said he thought all bills the government intended to introduce at this session had been introduced.

The current session has lasted five weeks and the legislature is generally expected to prorogue next week.

New Brunswick — Clarence Menzies (L — Northumberland) said the operation of the unsatisfied judgment fund in the province should be reformed so that accounts could be wiped out when there is no longer any hope of collecting them.

The present terms of the act hold the judgment against a person indefinitely he said, and "the person involved receives a life sentence."

Manitoba — Agriculture Minister George Hutton introduced a bill to curtail sweeping powers of producer-controlled marketing boards.

Under the new acts, producer marketing boards will have the power to regulate prices' only at the producer level.

Alberta — A resolution calling for a record of house proceedings similar to Hansard in the House of Commons was passed by a 60-1 vote.

British Columbia — The cabinet passed an order-in-council which restricts applications for mining permits to parks of more than 5,000 acres.

The order followed recent comments by Mines and Recreation Minister W. K. Kiernan, who said he saw no reason to prevent limited mining and logging in large wilderness parks.

18-Year-Old Sent to Trial For Murder

OTTAWA (CP) — Eighteen-year-old Reginald Binette will be formally committed March 26 for trial on a charge of capital murder, Magistrate C. K. Carter ruled Thursday after a one - day preliminary hearing into a four-death shooting inside a church rector here last December 22.

Binette is charged with the shooting death of Paul Mercier, 24 - year - old scoutmaster of Christ the King Church in midtown Ottawa who was cut down by bullets in the front doorway of the rectory.

He and other parishioners of the small Roman Catholic church had hurried out of a noon-day mass that Sunday after an alarm had been spread that intruders had entered the rectory.

When the shooting stopped, police found three others fatally wounded besides Mercier. They were Albert Edward Richard, 65, second-floor tenant in the rectory building; Miss Alice Guindon, 49, a receptionist and housekeeper of the parish priest, and Roger Binette, 21, half-brother of the accused.

WEAPONSMEN — PO Maurice W. Wood, of Frankford, and Ldg. Sea. Ronald A. Conservatives Pour Ridicule, Scorn on Performance of Defence Minister Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP)— The Conservatives took nearly an hour in the Commons Thursday to pour ridicule, scorn and charges of incompetence on Defence Minister Hellyer in connection with the government's security roundup of arms from armories and cadet corps.

The occasion was a motion by Thomas A. Bell (PC—Saint John-Albert) to have Mr. Hellyer make public all the letters, memos and directives issued in connection with the roundup. It was debated in the private member's hour.

"Slipshod," Mr. Bell said to describe the operation. It had led to a public lack of confidence in the defence department. If—as Mr. Hellyer once said—his orders were not applied uniformly, that was the best reason for the public to scrutinize the directives.

"A comic opera," said R. G. L. Fairweather (PC — Royal). Thanks to Mr. Hellyer, the country had its first laugh in a sombre, difficult period. There seemed to be a new security policy of "disarm those who are said to keep us secure." He suggested somebody set the army's late-night "raid" on Ottawa Salisbury College to music and call it "Hellyers a-poppin'."

"A very sad day," said Conservative Whip Eric Winkler (Grey-Bruce), when the army chooses to attack a college in Orangeville, Ont. This implied that the town was among the so-called "sensitive areas" and it had led to loss of morale by the local citizenry. This is a terrible thing, they've never known such a thing in their history."

'FOULED UP'

"Fouled up somewhere down the line," said Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford). Magistrate C. K. Carter ruled Thursday after a one - day preliminary hearing into a four-death shooting inside a church rector here last December 22.

Binette is charged with the shooting death of Paul Mercier, 24 - year - old scoutmaster of Christ the King Church in midtown Ottawa who was cut down by bullets in the front doorway of the rectory.

He and other parishioners of the small Roman Catholic church had hurried out of a noon-day mass that Sunday after an alarm had been spread that intruders had entered the rectory.

STARTED AFTER THEFT

After the Jan. 30 theft from the Montreal armory, small arms began to be withdrawn from unsecure locations. In some cases this order was "implemented with zeal." There had been no losses since. This was done in the "sensitive areas," which Mr. Hellyer still did not name.

Elsewhere, measures were taken to enforce existing small-arms security regulations. Local militia commanders were made responsible for the security of their weapons. Some reported cases of arms being removed reflected the steps taken by these local officers.

Studies to improve security continue, Mr. Hellyer said. When the situation was right-ed "the whole security of small arms and ammunition in the country will be much tighter than previously."

The Commons did not reach a vote on Mr. Bell's motion—which he said he didn't intend to press to a vote anyway. The time alloted for debate expired, with the result that the motion will come up again on Thursday, March 26.

Panama, U.S. Agree to Hold Talks on Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Panama have agreed on a formula for resuming diplomatic ties and opening negotiations on their differences over the Panama Canal, it was learned Thursday.

Informed diplomats said the only problem stalling an announcement in Washington and Panama was a minor difference over the wording in statements to be made by President Johnson and Panamanian President Roberto Chairi about the agreement.

The essential agreement between the two governments, worked out under the sponsorship of a committee of the Organization of American States, provides for a quick restoration of diplomatic ties. These were broken off Jan. 9 nine months ago after an outbreak of rioting along the Canal Zone over flying of the U.S. flag inside the U.S.-controlled zone.

FOR THE FIRST TIME Mary Janitsch, 14, a grade ten student at Moira Secondary School, went underwater with scuba gear last night, at the Tops Motel pool. In the picture, Y.M.C.A. scuba instructor Bernie Dumond helps her remove goggles. Miss Janitsch is one of eight students giving students who have completed a ten-week course of pool work under Bernie Dumond and lectures by Terry Shore, both of the Quinte Aqua Divers. The eight face exams next week, but took time out last night to try scuba gear. A scuba class of six students will also begin examinations next week.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The case of a Quebec plumber who has an honorable army discharge after Second World War service in Britain, the Mediterranean and continental Europe may develop into a new cause celebre on Parliament Hill.

The man, with five year's war service, says he was turned down for a job in the Canadian penitentiary service — as a plumber—because he is too old. He is 48.

Stewart Graffiey (PC—Bromes-Missisquoi) raised the case in the Commons Thursday and said later in an interview he intends to pursue the matter because it strikes at the root of the preference that has been given war veterans in federal employment.

He said it also runs counter to the labor department's program to encourage employment of older workers—like the plumber.

According to official records, Mr. Graffiey said, the unnamed artillery gunner from Quebec's eastern townships enlisted in July, 1940, and was discharged in October, 1945.

SEEKS JOB

He applied for a job as a plumber with the penitentiary service in building a new institution in Cowansville, Que., and last month received a rejection letter from the regional office of the service.

The rejection had a notation that the maximum age for hiring plumbers is 45, "and you are 48."

"Because of this, your application cannot be considered favorably," the letter said.

Mr. Graffiey said he could understand that penitentiary guards need to be under about 45 to take the rigorous training and do the work required of them.

ASKS POLICY

He asked Justice Minister Favreau in the Commons whether the penitentiary commission refuses other jobs to men over 45. When Liberal MPs protested that it was such a routine question fi should be submitted in routine fashion for a written reply, Mr. Graffiey said it was urgent because it affected the civil service commission, the labor department, and the veterans affairs department.

Mr. Favreau said he knew of no age limit, except for the guards in penitentiaries, and promised to look into the case.

In the interview, Mr. Graffiey said he understands the penitentiary commission does its own hiring, outside the civil service commission which says there can be no such 45-year age limit for the hiring of plumbers.

A. D. Hales (PC — Wellington South) said the case runs counter to the labor department's program to discourage discrimination against workers over 45.

And, Mr. Graffiey said, what has happened to the preference given veterans in federal government employment?

Suggest Newsmen Tone Reports of Quebec Incidents To Assist Tourist Business

QUEBEC (CP) — Spokesmen for the government and the opposition suggested Thursday that newspaper men tone down their reports of incidents in Quebec to help the tourist business.

Lionel Bertrand, minister of tourism, fish and game, said in the legislature that last year the department sent out 1,800,000 pamphlets all over Canada and many hundreds were returned with comments on them.

They remarked that "the warmth of our hospitality could be very much appreciated but it seemed singularly misplaced to them," the minister said.

The tourist business suffered last year because of the situation in Quebec, he said, joining with Claude Gosselin (UN Compton) in asking newspaper men "to help us, on this matter, by not giving added publicity to events which happened in the past and which could happen again."

HAS MORE TOURISTS

Nevertheless, Mr. Bertrand said, the number of tourists was up in 1963 over 1962, although the province had dropped about 50,000 from other parts of Canada.

Mr. Gosselin wondered whether "blaring publicity" had affected the tourist trade. He said requests for information about the province had dropped

I wonder sometimes whether this decrease, this lack of interest, is not caused by blaring publicity over certain incidents which have occurred in this province in the last two or three years."

Prospective visitors see Quebec's advertising and contrast it with news reports in the province. He asked reporters not to "amplify more than necessary certain incidents which have taken place in the province."

The exchange took place as the assembly breezed through the tourism department's estimates for the coming fiscal year.

Three Children Abandoned in Unheated Home

ST. THOMAS (CP)— A 12-day-old baby boy and his two brothers, aged one and two, suffering malnutrition when found abandoned in an unheated farm home, have been taken in by the Children's Aid Society as police seek their parents.

When found, the baby was "beef steak red from the waist down," his 18-month-old brother had "red sores all over his body" and his three-year-old brother was "very undernourished," St. Thomas Police Constable Jack Beattie said Thursday.

The children were found Monday but children's aid officials released no details of the abandonment until Thursday when their condition in Elgin County Hospital, St. Thomas was described as "very much improved and satisfactory."

The boys' identity has not yet been fully established police said but their father, last seen Sunday, came to St. Thomas and took work March 4 as a farm hand. He is believed to be from Ottawa. The children's mother was last seen Monday.

They were found by farmer Ronald Alden, who hired their father. Mr. Alden allowed the family to use the house while the man worked for him.

Mr. Alden said that when found the 12-day-old baby was lying on a pillow in a cardboard box. "His feet were blue. He was uncovered and dres-ed in a diaper and an undershirt.

The 18-month-old boy "was lying on the floor shivering, beside the front door of the unheated home. He only had a diaper and a pajama top."

The three-year-old, whose first name police say is Christopher, was in pajamas sleeping in one of the room's two beds.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carter, Sports Editor

Is sullen Sonny Liston reverting to an early type? Wire stories indicate that he is.

One had it that Liston had been suffering for two years with a shoulder bursitis. It had been kept a deep dark secret, which came out in the news light after his startling upset defeat at the hands of "Cassius X."

SONNY LISTON

The moody, brooding ex-champion of the world who could never win a title in a heavyweight contest, had this—and much more—on his mind before the tough, jilted one and master of the colorful challenger. He did, however, "loosen" somewhat as the time of the fight drew near.

Every champion has at least a scrutilla of pride. In most it is a fierce emotion to be flamed or dimmed according to the fortunes of battle.

Liston's fine ring record with the solution that naturally follows, did not, I believe, go to his head. What little braggadocio he exhibited was more or less facetious, most defeatedly against the wild bragging of his cocky young counterpart.

Defeat brings various reactions to champions. Floyd Patterson after his second one-round knockout at the hands of Liston donned a beard and drove off on a beauty ride on a Tennessee same morning after he was revived. He was stopped by a police officer, who did not recognize him.

If Liston's recent exploits that have once more brought him within the clutches of the law, is a reaction, then the situation is grim indeed.

Taken to the efforts of a kindly priest, Liston emerged from the dark shadow of early misdemeanors. He had apparently "seen the light." He trained hard and his championship potential showed early.

He soon developed into the fighter type of the Dempsey school. A magnificent physique topped with lethal ham-like fists gained for him the sportswriters' description "awesome."

He swept aside his opposition with the exception of two, with a ruthless stack designed to end the fight as quickly as possible.

Defeat except on one rare occasion before his collapse in the Clay fandango was an unknown quantity to the scion of a Philadelphia slums family. Now he has tasted its bitter dregs under the strangest of circumstances.

I doubt if the cleverest psychiatrist in the world can fathom what has occurred in the Liston mental machinery since he sat on his stool in that Miami ring and saw a crowing, screaming challenger take his coveted crown away.

But what price glory?

He has paid once with the sensational loss of his heavyweight title. Now he will pay again with the re-run of a shady football drama in which he has pushed himself front and centre stage.

Liston's recent personal actions and those of his associates will bring loud "I Told You So's" from those who wanted no part of a man with a record like Liston's as heavyweight champion of the world.

And his recent clash with the police will cause those who believed he was a repentent "sinner" who had seen the light, to do some head-scratching.

It could mean the end of Liston's chances to regain the heavyweight championship. State athletic organizations will look askance at his escapades.

The executioner of professional boxing has been blemished since it was first revealed that it was more or less associated with the rackets. Hoodlums and racketeers have torn it down from the once proud pedestal it occupied.

And Sonny Liston's recent outside-the-law activities have done nothing to improve the situation.

Clancy Prefers Mikita

TORONTO (CP) — King Clancy, assistant manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, Thursday referred to Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks as the best hockey player in the National Hockey League.

Clancy, who has been in the NHL as player, referee, coach and assistant manager for 43 years, compared the 25-year-old Mikita with Howie Morenz, considered one of the greatest centres in league history.

"The best—by 100 miles," declared Clancy, whose third-place Maple Leafs are bitter rivals of the league - leading Black Hawks. "To me he's better this year than Montreal Canadiens' star centre Jean Beliveau and more important to Hawks than Bobby Hull. If they lost him they might fall from sight."

"He's a better defensive player than Hull," continued Clancy," and he's only got four goals less. Mikita is the best checking centre in the league but he's leading the scoring, too (35 points), and he's the biggest part of their power play.

Picton Ints Meet Thorold In Playdowns

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Picton intermediates, who won the Eastern Ontario "B" championship, will meet Thorold in the next round of the Ontario playdowns. It is expected the first game will be played in Picton next Tuesday night.

If the Thorold team is still using the same arena they had two years ago when this reporter covered hockey in the Niagara District, the Picton players are in for quite a shock.

Far from being regulation in size, the ice surface at the Thorold arena is known in the area as the "bathtub." It is about 20 feet shorter and ten feet wider than the usual rinks.

The average visiting hockey player finds that he takes two strides from behind his own net and he is at the opposition blue line. Playing in that rink is "murder" as the players have little or no chance to avoid body contacts.

It is possible, however, that these Thorold home games will be played at the St. Catharines arena (only a few blocks away) and there the local lads will find one of the finest arenas in the entire province.

Win, loss or draw, the Picton club will give a good account of themselves on any ice surface.

Bulldogs Take Edge Off Blades

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs put a snag in Toledo Blades' plans for a first-place finish and enhanced their own playoff chances by whipping the league-leaders 4-1 in an International Hockey League game Thursday night.

The Blades retain a one-point edge over Fort Wayne Komets and fourth-place Windsor again moved seven points in front of Des Moines and Muskegon.

Tom Walker, Jim Sasko, Jack Costello and defenceman Terry McGuire connected for Windsor. Moe Morissette situ spoiled Wayne Rutledge's shutout bid.

HEADED OARSMEN

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Jack House, 75, a former president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, died at his home Thursday. He was a past president of the St. Catharines Rowing Club and the Henley Aquatic Association.

In his unobtrusive manner, Norm Ullman has emerged as one of the most effective performers in the National Hockey League since the Christmas turn.

The first half of the season was unqualified flop for the wavy-haired fellow with the plug-away style.

His output, embarrassingly, amounted to four goals.

But only Chicago's prolific Bobby Hull and Kenny Wharram have been going better in the second half.

Ullman, a 28-year-old centre, reached the 20-goal level and set up Gordie Howe's game-winner when Detroit Red Wings shaded Boston Bruins 2-1 in the schedule's only game Thursday night.

The house count at the Olympia was 8,434 and only twice before this season have there been smaller crowds at Detroit, a reflection of Boston's plight in the standings.

For the fourth consecutive season, the Bruins are destined to wind up last.

CLOSING ON LEAFS

But Ullman's Red Wings are still making a scramble of it with Toronto for third place and the win lifted them to within two points of the Maple Leafs although the Canadian team has a game in hand.

Howe's power-play goal 56 seconds after the start of the second period was the difference. In the penalty box at the time was Boston's Forbes Kennedy, serving a minor carryover from 19:37 of the opening period.

Ullman counted at 17:02 of the opener, exactly a half-minute after a minor penalty he was tagged with by referee Vern Buffey expired.

Howe and Alex Delvecchio assisted.

It was Ullman's 16th goal in the second-half of the campaign. A 26-goal man in the two previous seasons, he started the schedule needing only as many again to hit the 200-goal circle. But his inexplicably-poor first-half leaves him shy.

Nonetheless only Hull with 19 goals and Wharram with 18 have been more productive around the league in the second half.

Twenty-year-old Gary Dornhoefer found the mark for Boston's only goal. It was his 13th in 39 games and he undoubtedly would be a serious candidate for Rookie-of-the-Year honors had he been called up earlier by the Bruins from their Minneapolis farm club in the Central Professional Hockey League.

Defencemen Tom Johnson and Bob McCord drew assists on the effort at 13:03 of the first period.

JOHNSON KEPT BUSY

Howe's goal was his 34th.

Detroit's sophomore Doug Barkley, perhaps the NHL's most outstanding defenceman in the second half of the season, was the focal figure in a second - period fracas that sent three men to the penalty box.

Guy Gendron and Kennedy drew minors and Barkley was hit with a double-minor.

The weekend schedule carries five games and the big one is the Chicago - Montreal go in Montreal Saturday night.

Officials of both clubs point to this one as the game that will likely decide who finishes first. The Black Hawks headed into the weekend two points ahead but Montreal has a game in hand.

The Maple Leafs and New York Rangers hook up in a home-and-home set, meeting in Toronto Saturday night and in New York the following night.

Montreal goes against the Bruins in Boston Sunday night while the Hawks take on the Wings in Detroit.

Sox Rookies Impress Williams

Retired Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams held his annual spring training press conference Thursday without any of the fireworks which are traditional when Ted gets together with the Boston press.

Williams called the large group of rookies the Red Sox have in spring training "the best I have ever seen in a Red Sox camp."

Williams, serving as a batting instructor under manager Johnny Pesky, singled out Rico Petrocelli, a 20-year-old shortstop, as the most advanced rookie in the camp.

He also praised Tony Horton, a king-sized first baseman, as "a kid who looks like a good, solid hitter."

When writers attending the press conference lagged in asking questions, Williams got to his feet and said:

"You guys must be slipping. You've run out of questions." Then, he left the room and the 20-minute conference ended.

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta suffered its first defeat and Quebec scored its first victory in the Royal Canadian Legion curling championships Thursday but they remained at the top and the bottom of the standings.

British Columbia upset Dunc Grant's Calgary rink 12-7 in a sixth-round match. But Saskatchewan, with a chance to tie for the lead, dropped a 9-8 decision to Ontario, leaving both rinks tied for second place with 4-2 records.

Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia were next at 3-3, followed by New Brunswick and Newfoundland at 2-4. Quebec still trailed in the 10-rink round-robin competition.

Brock Stackhouse of Otterburn Park, Que., broke his five-game losing streak at the expense of Danny O'Rourke's Charlottetown foursome 9-7. Newfoundland defeated New Brunswick by the same score and Nova Scotia downed Manitoba 14-9 in the remaining sixth-round matches.

In the fifth round, Alberta edged Newfoundland 7-6, Saskatchewan dumped Manitoba 8-6, Nova Scotia whipped Quebec 12-4, P.E.I. downed B.C. 11-7 and New Brunswick upset Ontario 11-9.

The battle between Gordon Nobis of Kindersley, skipping the Saskatchewan quartet, and Rody Steski's Ontario rink from North Bay was a cliff-hanger throughout with neither having much of an edge.

In the seventh draw today, Nova Scotia plays Prince Edward Island, Manitoba meets British Columbia, Ontario battles Newfoundland, Alberta tackles Saskatchewan and New Brunswick tangles with Quebec.

Czechs Nip Maroons 3-2

PRAGUE (CP) — A penalty against Winnipeg Maroons in the last two minutes of play Thursday enabled Czechoslovakia's No. 2 national team to defeat the touring Canadians 3-2.

It was the third game in which the Maroons have received a penalty in the final minutes of play and ended in turmoil with both the Canadian club's executive and the players protesting the officiating.

With three games remaining in their European tour, the Maroons now have four wins, three losses and two ties.

RCAF Rink Wins At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The City of Ottawa Rosapal, one of Canada's largest, went through its second day Thursday.

Jake Edwards of Kingston downed Frank O'Brien of Ottawa 17-3 in the first day at curling for out-of-town competitors.

Mayor Nick Kanab of Cornwall skipped his team to a 9-8 victory over R. H. Davies of Metcalfe, Ont. Bill Lewis of RCAF Station Trenton, Ont., defeated Lorne Routliffe of Fort Coulonge, Que., 6-4.

Tracy Delaney of Prescott, Ont., trounced Al McKay of Montreal 13-7.

The 18 - flight bonspiel will whittle down the field of 256 rinks as the five-day event progresses. Two rinks will enter grand aggregate play on Monday for the City of Ottawa Shield.

Shade Napanee 4-3
Picton Jrs. Square Series

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Picton Juniors evened the best of seven playdowns at one game each as they dropped the Napanee Red Wings by a close 4-3 score here last night before the largest crowd of the season.

They did it the hard way. Trailing 3-0 at the 15.05 mark of the second period, they fired two goals seconds apart, in fact Napanee scored one and Picton scored two in the space of 48 seconds.

The Red Wings took a 1-0 lead into the second period on a first period goal by Phil Meeks, from Dave Fox and Dwight Galt, at the 7.48 mark.

They scored another at 7.25 of the second period, this time Winston Dowdell banged home passes from Mike Crull and Jim Stinson. At 15.05, Bob Brown and George Sainsbury combined, with Brown drilling one that caught the right hand corner behind Tom Mercer. Just nine seconds later, Phil Meeks fired his second of the night.

At the 15.52 mark the Harold Haddock - Bill Hopkins - Gary Hasnell line scored, with Haddock tipping in the disc. The "E" line was very effective all night.

In the third period sticks and tempers came up, and Tim Williams and Bill Hurst, the officials had a hard time keeping both hands in line. They did an excellent job, but were forced to call eight penalties in the last frame, as compared to only five in the first two periods.

At the 55 second mark, Hasnell combined with Haddock and Tim O'Grady to fire one that tied it at 3-3 and from then on the action became really furious.

John Kinnear took a tripping penalty at the 11.58 mark, and while he was sitting it out, Picton fired the winning goal. It came from the stick of Haddock, his second of the night, on passes from Hopkins and Wayne McConnell.

At 14.53 of the last period, O'Grady and Galt tangled but were separated before either could get in a good lick. At the 15.54 mark, O'Connell and Mike Crull tangled briefly along the boards and were banished with minors. Winston Dowdell argued too much with the officials and was given a ten-minute misconduct.

It is hard to single any one player for a star in a game like this, but great credit must go to Tom Mercer in the Red Wing net, he stopped a total of 34 shots and was in no way to blame for the four that got by him. Larry Holmes at the other end had a comparatively easy time of it, he stopped 23 shots.

It was a close checking game from the opening whistle, with neither team giving an inch. Napanee had a decided edge in the first period, and were fore and back checking like fiends all night. Therein lies the big difference in these two teams. The Red Wings backchecked all night, Picton seemed content to sit back and wait for the breaks.

The next game is at Napanee on Saturday night, with the fourth game back here next Monday night. The S.R.O. sign should be out at both arenas long before game time.

Napanee took an 8-5 edge in the 13 penalties called.

Toronto Baseball Club
Asks Fans To Buy Shares

TORONTO (CP) — Professional baseball fans here were asked Wednesday to dig out their wallets and stand up and be counted.

Bob Hunter, president of the Toronto Community Baseball Club, told city council the club's directors intend to put 100,000 shares on the market at $1 a share.

The Toronto Community Baseball Club announced purchase of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club from Jack Kent Cooke last January. The franchise price was an estimated $54,000.

"Since we need money to finance the club, but that's not the real reason we're selling shares in the team," said Hunter. "The original group has about $54,000 invested and we could raise the required $250,000 ourselves. But that would be defeating the whole purpose behind the acquisition of the ball club.

"Baseball has suffered in Toronto because of the absentee ownership of Jack Kent Cooke. Now we want to make the team a community club and make the shareholders feel this is their team."

Hunter said it is the club's intention that no individual will own more than five per cent of the total shares.

Only Gordie Howe among the point-scoring leaders was able to improve his output Thursday night in the National Hockey League.

All five men ahead of Howe were idle and Boston's Murray Oliver netted nothing for his night's effort.

Howe, the six-time scoring champion, ran up a goal and assist to increase his season's production to 24 goals and 43 assists for 67 points.

His Detroit Red Wings and the Bruins were the only active teams. The Wings won 4-1 3-1.

That ill snow-loaded breeze blew at least some good for the skiers, that is.

Both tows will be in operation and skiers can see action tonight from 7 to 10 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m.

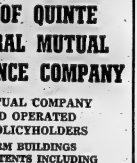
Referee Called 'Disgrace'

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was absolutely disgraceful," said welterweight champion Emile Griffith's co-manager Thursday on their return from Rome.

"I never saw anything like it before," said Gil Clancy, referring to the no-contest fight in Rome Wednesday night between Griffith and Argentina's Juan Carlos Durzo.

Referee Fernando Pica, after consulting with the three judges, ended the scheduled 10-rounder in the seventh round. Fans, angered by the dull contest, threw bottles, oranges, shoes and garbage into the ring.

The referee said the non-title bout was called off because of the, "intemperance of the crowd."



"The referee was as responsible as Duran for what happened," said Clancy. "Firstly, Duran is a tall, skinny guy about six feet compared with Emile's five - foot - seven. Secondly, he was scared th death and ran all night.

"Emile tried to make a fight of it. The way the other guy was running the only way Emile could do it was to get close enough and bang away to the body. But every time he closed in, the referee would stop him, hit him on the head, and indicate Emile was butting. He didn't butt once. The referee must have hit Emile on the head 50 times. And that was the only time Emile got hit in the fight—by the referee."

Clancy said Griffith was paid in full for the fight.

CAUSES DAMAGE

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP) — A bull moose, chased by dogs, invaded a department store here and caused considerable damage. The animal broke a leg and had to be shot.

Delch's Bow To Horlocks, Daubers Win

Ter - Haar Daubers and Horlock Electric fought their way back into series contention in Quinte Hockey League semi-finals last night.

Horlocks downed Belch Construction 4-3 and now trail the best-of-five set two games to one with one tied.

Ter-Haar shaded SACO 3-2 and deadlocked that series at two games apiece.

Due to the ice carnival next weekend, no games will be played next Thursday night.

Daubers held SACO to a scoreless tie in the first period, moved in front 2-1 in the second and split a pair of goals with the losers in the third.

Rod Fohnler bagged two Ter-Haar goals with D. Moore netting the other one. H. Fohnler and B. Thompson drew single assists.

B. Portseous and A. Deline fired SACO markers, D. Knapton getting his club's only assist.

Horlocks built a 4-0 lead against Belch's with three goals in the opening heat and one in the second. Both Belch goals came in the third period but the rally fell short.

B. Lambert scored a pair of Horlock goals with singletons going to Bill Hill and R. Poste, L. Soules, L. McBride and Hill had helpers.

J. Soulier and L. Westfall triggered the Belch goals, helped out by N. Boulier and D. Hallam.

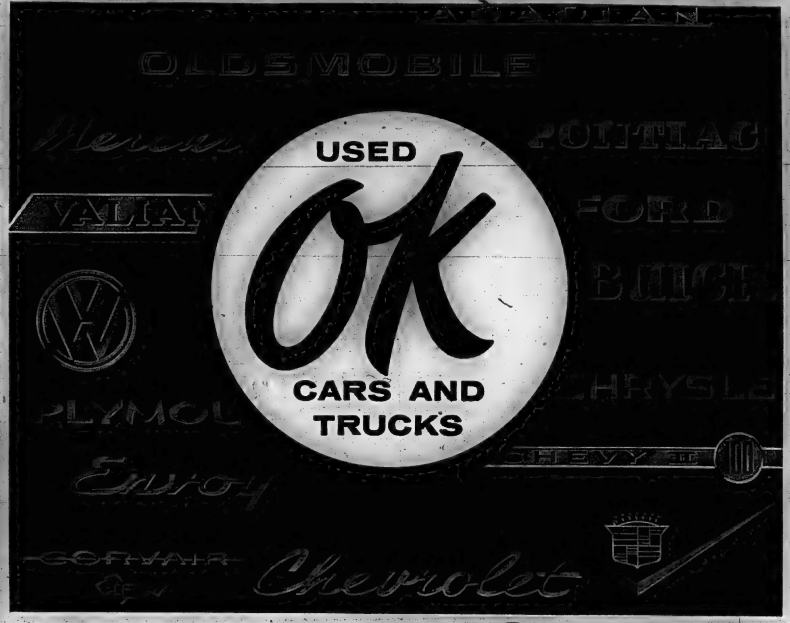
Robinson Eyes Better Record

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — All of Frank Robinson's wounds have healed except one — but you can't patch someone's pride with a row of stitches.

Ask the Cincinnati slugger what happened last year when his batting average plummeted more than 90 points to .259. He thrusts forward a left arm that reveals scars from being stapped on by Milwaukee catcher Gene Oliver and a 30-stitch cut from being spiked by Ron Hunt of New York Mets.

Ask him what he feels about this year, and he thrusts forward his pride.

"I feel I have something to prove," said Robinson, "and the quicker I can the better off I'll be. Everybody's going to be watching to see if I had an off year, or whether I'm beginning to slip. I have to come back and have a good year."



With his pride admittedly flagging his natural ability, Robinson has set his sights not at bettering his 1963 batting marks but at surpassing his 1962 levels—a .342 average, 39 homers, 136 runs batted in and the National League slugging title for the third consecutive year.

Robinson, who threatened to quit baseball after the 1962 season because the game was taking so much out of him physically, made no mention of the beating he took last year when he did manage to lead the league in one department—hit by pitches, 74. Despite that and the Oliver and Hunt wounds Robinson said his only concern was with a self-inflicted injury.

"Early last season I tried to hold up on a pitch, and I guess I tried too hard and strained my left wrist," he said. "I'm still worried about it, but it hasn't been bothering me, so it must be okay."

Jones Seeks Bout With Clay

Liston May Face 7 Charges

DENVER (AP) — Colorado's attorney-general will be asked to determine whether Sonny Liston, former heavyweight boxing champion, could be affected by a state law making it a felony for an ex-convict to carry a concealed weapon.

The law provides a penalty of up to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Liston was arrested Tuesday for alleged speeding. Policeman James Snider said he was carrying a pistol.

The boxer has a felony record in Missouri—and that is where the question arises. Gregory A. Mueller, assistant district attorney for Denver, said the law is not clear in the case of crimes committed in other states.

Liston faces in Denver municipal court charges of speeding, reckless and careless driving, driving without a valid operator's license and carrying a concealed weapon. Each carries, on conviction, a maximum fine of $300 and sentence of 90 days in jail.

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Jones, who lost a disputed split decision to Cassius Clay here a year ago, wants a return match with the heavyweight champion.

"I beat Clay once and I can do it again," he told a press conference Thursday. He said "another Clay - Liston farce would be a death blow to boxing."

The 34-year-old New York fighter said it is ridiculous that former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, twice knocked out in one round by Liston should challenge Clay.

Jones also challenged Patterson, whom he described as "an ex-con, an intellectual and a self - appointed spokesman for his race."

Jones is listed number one contender for Clay's new crown in the World Boxing Association rankings. Liston is third.

ADVANCE SEASON

TORONTO (CP) — The department of lands and forests announced Thursday opening day for the bass and muskinonge season in Ontario has been advanced to June 27. The season was originally scheduled to open July 1, which falls on a Wednesday this year, and was changed in favor of the week-end opening.

Whip Petes; Hawks, Generals Tie

Habs Grab 2-Game Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens, who battled Toronto Marlboros for first place throughout the season, are halfway home to a berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior semi-finals.

Thursday the Canadiens dumped Peterborough Petes 6-3 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final. The third game is slated for Montreal Sunday.

In the other series, Oshawa Generals downed St. Catharines Black Hawks 8-4 to even their best-of-seven set 1-1. The third game is in St. Catharines Sunday.

The winner of the Marlboros-Niagara Falls Flyers semi-final will draw a bye into the final. Toronto leads the best-of-seven set 1-0.

Bob Charlebois fired two goals to pace Montreal. Yvon Cournoyer scored one goal, his fifth in two games. The others went to Andre Boudrias, Rene Drolet and Andre Larocle. Don Herriman, Bob Jamieson and Jim Paterson were Peterborough marksmen.

Danny O'Shea scored four goals for Oshawa. Billy Little added a pair with Ron Schanan and Bill Smith chipping in one each. Fred Stanfield paced the Hawks with two goals and Dennis Hull, Joe Kelly and Mickey Charveaty got the others.

There were several mixups with four majors called in the first period and two majors and two 10-minute misconducts assessed in the third. Hull and Bob Kilger of Oshawa received the misconducts.

WINNER CONFIRMED

NEW YORK (AP)—Art Wall Jr., 40-year-old golf pro from Pocono Manor, Pa., was confirmed Thursday as winner of the Caribbean Tropic and the $1,300 bonus given annually to the golfer who makes the best all-around showing on the Caribbean pro circuit. George Knudson of Toronto, who won the Caracas Open, placed second with 88 points and received $1,100.

Wellington Suffers First Loss

A 3-1 edge in the final period carried Stinson Construction to a 5-7 victory over Wellington in Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League finals at Wellington last night.

The defeat was the first suffered by Wellington this season and left them with a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven titular set. The next two games are on Tuesday and Thursday of next week.

Stinson's had to overcome an early deficit to register the key victory last night. Wellington led 5-4 after one heat and it was 6-6 going into the third period of the hard-fought game.

Defencemen Elgie Currie scored the winning goal, breaking a 7-7 deadlock, and Doug Weese added the insurance goal minutes later. It was Currie's second goal of the game and he also had an assist.

Keith Dickey was the big scoring ace for Stinson's with two goals and three assists. Gerry Genereaux also had two goals and one helper while Billy Genereaux got one of each. Weese and Everett Doxtater rounded out the club's scoring.

Gary Pyke and Al Pettingill paced Wellington with two goals and an assist apiece. Al Bailey got one goal and two assists, Joe Scott one and one and Vic Allen one goal.

There were nine penalties assessed with the losers drawing five. Majors went to Reg Ell and Al Bailey for a third-period fight.

Stirling Juveniles Win E. Ontario Championship

Stirling juveniles advanced to the first round of the OMHA playdowns last night after defeating Norwood 4-3 to win their group championship.

It was a close, hard-fought game played at Marmora and the victory carried with it the Eastern Ontario OMHA juvenile "D" championship.

The Stirling youngsters meet Camp Borden RCAF juveniles in their first battle for the Ontario championship.

Veteran Detective Believes Coffin Was Not the Killer, Might Have Been Involved

QUEBEC (CP) — The veteran detective who opened the investigation into the 1953 slaying of three Pentecostal hunters testified Thursday he has always believed that although Wilbert Coffin might have been involved, he wasn't the killer.

Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, after being tried and found guilty by a jury. Appeals right up to the federal justice department failed to save him from the gallows.

He died maintaining his innocence. A book published late last year titled "Les Assassins de Coffin" (I accuse Coffin's Assassins) contended Coffin was railroaded to the gallows.

It spurred the Quebec government to set up the royal commission at which former Sgt. Henri Dorion of the Quebec Provincial Police was testifying.

"My opinion is that Coffin might have had something to do with it," the 54-year-old witness said, "but I don't believe he killed the three American hunters. That has always been my opinion."

QUESTIONED BY DORION

He was being questioned by Noel Dorion, a Crown prosecutor at the Coffin trial in Perce, Que., in 1954.

"Do you believe Coffin was guilty or innocent?" Mr. Dorion asked, in an exchanged that left the packed court hushed.

"I have always said that he could have been an accomplice before, during or after the fact," the witness replied. "I told you this in your own house."

The lawyer asked if Mr. Dorion hadn't once said Coffin was guilty but might have had an accomplice.

"No," replied the witness, "it was that he could have had something to do with it but that he didn't personally kill."

There was no clear answer to another question:

"Didn't you tell Bernard Feeley (police chief-inspector at Montreal and Quebec that Coffin was guilty but had accomplices? And didn't you even suggest names of possible accomplices?"

APPEAR TODAY

Mr. Dorion is to take the stand again today.

He may possibly be questioned by Jacques Hebert himself, since neither of Mr. Hebert's lawyers — Eugene Lafontaine and Pierre-Elliott Trudeau —will be present. Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, royal commissioner, said Thursday he had no objection to Mr. Hebert asking questions as long as lawyers couldn't be there.

In reply to Mr. Dorion Thursday, Mr. Doyon testified that Coffin often said he was innocent and quoted him as saying "Definitely I never killed those Americans." Mr. Doyon said the Perce jury never was told this.

Mr. Dorion objected that Coffin himself was not called at the trial but Mr. Daoust replied that police were supposed to bring forth all such testimony.

Mr. Dorion said he realized the duty of the Crown was to present every fact favorable or unfavorable, "and I have always done it."

Mr. Doyon, who joined the QPP in 1937, maintained he was fired in 1961 as a result of the Coffin case.

Giants Close Record Ticket Sale

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants closed their advance ticket sale for the 1964 National Football League season Thursday, 10 days after the sale opened.

The Giants reached an all-time high of 51,871 season ticket sales last year. Indications are that this season's total will be close to 56,000.

Explained

By C. A. MILLER

In prior years many letters have been received requesting information as to a parent's claim for exemption on behalf of a child who started working in the taxation year.

In most cases the parents had supported the child until school ended, and when the dependent took employment they supported themselves. The parents usually were of the opinion that as they supported the dependent until employment started, they should be entitled to some exemption for that period of support.

There is no provision in the Income Tax Act whereby partial exemption may be claimed. The claim is for $550 or nothing at all. If the child earned in excess of $650 then no exemption may be claimed. If the dependent child earnings were only a few dollars in excess of $650, the child could still be claimed for $550, if the parent added the excess earnings over $650 to his own tax payable. Do not make the common error of adding this excess to your income. It must be added to your tax on the line indicated as tax adjustments.

The same procedure as outlined above will apply when a child leaves employment and goes back to school. It will also apply when a child under 21 goes through illness or injury ceases to be employed.

The above information is based on the supposition that the child is 16 years or older. If the child is under 16 then the exemption would only be $300. The point to keep in mind is, there is no partial exemption for a child. It is the full exemption or nothing at all.

For personal income tax pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25c in coin for each question you wish answered.

* * *

Question: — I supported my daughter in full up to the time she graduated as a teacher. She earned $1,200 for the balance of the year. Why can I not claim exemption for the 6 months I supported her?

Answer: — There is no provision in the present Act that allows a partial exemption for a child. The earned over $650 as you have no claim.

* * *

Question: — My son, 20, earned $975 after he left school and became employed. Can I still claim him?

Answer: — Yes. If you add the excess of his income over $850, that is $25, to your own tax payable.

Five Miles From Signal Base

OTTAWA (CP) — Bjorn Staib and his group of Norwegian adventurers now are established some five miles away from the Canadian army signal base at Alert in the Arctic, a northern affairs department official said Thursday.

The Norwegians are in the north to attempt a 900-mile overland trek to the North Pole — the first such attempt since Admiral Peary's expedition of 1909. Alert, also Canada's most northerly weather station, is on the northern coast of Ellesmere Island in the eastern Arctic.

Staib and his men set off in a flurry of excitement Tuesday when they arrived at the base which contains classified equipment used in communications and weather research — and announced their intention of remaining there for some time.

Station Commander Jim Sherry was reported to have told the Norwegians to move their dogs and equipment off the base within 24 hours. Staib protested this was impossible and said he would ask the Norwegian embassy in Ottawa to have the Canadian government rescind the order.

In Ottawa, a northern affairs official said he knew of no ultimatum. He said he didn't know how long Staib was on the base before moving on.

WAS TO GO NORTH

The official said Staib's original plans filed with the Canadian government called for him to proceed immediately to Ward Hunt Island, some 100 miles north of Alert, to set up headquarters there before beginning his dash for the pole.

Later, however, Staib said it was impossible to follow this plan and asked permission to land at Alert for a few hours either to change into smaller aircraft or push off by dogsled.

"On the clear understanding that Staib would keep his word and be only a short time, this permission was granted," said the official.

He said that Alert, being a classified station, "is the last place one would want people establishing bases." He added there was no accommodation there for other than station personnel.

He said the Canadian government was ready to extend to the adventurers every help it could despite the poor start in relations.

WINS CROSS-COUNTRY

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Eero Maentyranta, Finland's double Olympic champion, led at every pole Thursday in winning the 15-kilometre cross-country race of the 67th International Holmenkollen Ski Festival. He covered the 9.6-mile route over hills and through trees in 49 minutes 6.4 seconds, beating out his longtime rival, Sixten Jernberg of Sweden, by 38.1 seconds.

Marichal Turn Yank? Fans Object

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Juan Marichal is taking a beating from the sports press and fans because it was reported he wants to give up his citizenship and stay in the United States.

The San Francisco Giants pitcher was blowing off steam, Maximo Hernandez said Thursday in his defence. Hernandez is the president of El Escogido, Marichal's winterime baseball team.

"I think he was embittered because of the attitude of the fans," Hernandez said, "but he brought it on himself because he walked out of Escogido."

Hernandez said that last year when he heard that Marichal did not want to play any more in his homeland, he went to San Francisco to talk to Juan.

"He gave me his word that he would play in the Dominican League," Hernandes said.

Marichal survived but had won the scoring championship and accompanying Ecclestone Trophy as the league's all-star right winger.

The 22-year-old rookie to senior hockey polled 51 votes from the 16 selectors in six cities who participated in the ballot. The voters were not allowed to vote for players in their own cities.

Hergott's closest competitor was teammate Dave Byrnes, winner of the Turofsky Trophy as the league's top goalie, who polled 40 points.

Portland Buckaks forwards Vance Miller and Jimmy Robertson tied with 14 votes each.

GETS ROLE

Canadian-born actress Alexandra Stewart, who achieved stardom on French films, will play opposite Warren Beatty in the movie "Mickey One."

Ron Hergott Wins Senior MVP Award

GALT (CP) — Ron Hergott, Galt Hornet all - star right winger, today added the most valuable player award and the Dave Pinkney Trophy to his collection of honors for the 1963-64 Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League season.

Hergott survived a late bid won the scoring championship and accompanying Ecclestone Trophy as the league's all - star right winger.

Now They Are To Play Series

SMITH FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Kingston Aces and Morrisburg Combines have been selected to play the remainder of their best-of-five semi-final series in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League at Brockville.

Kingston leads the series 2-1 and the fourth game will be played tonight with the fifth game, if necessary, Monday.

The ruling came from the Ottawa District Hockey Association president Frank Hogan Thursday.

The fourth game of the series had originally been scheduled for last Tuesday in Morrisburg but was cancelled when Kingston arrived more than an hour late.

Alf Taylor, league president, ruled that the cancelled game would be played at Morrisburg Friday and the fifth at Kingston Sunday.

Morrisburg protested and Hogan, after consulting Taylor, ordered a sudden-death game at Brockville tonight.

Kingston opposed that decision and a special meeting with both clubs and the ODHA was held Thursday.

Mid-March Busiest Time Of Year for Carmel Quinn

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Mid-March is the busiest month of the year for singer Carmel Quinn, once of Dublin and now of Leonia, N.J., housewife and mother.

"We—I — get literally hundreds of invitations to appear on the great day," said Miss Quinn, in a brogue untouched by American influence.

Although all television variety shows to be seen around the holiday actually emerge are colored green, Miss Quinn will be visible on only one: Ed Sullivan's program Sunday.

On great day itself, next Tuesday, she will be singing some Irish songs on Arthur Godfrey's morning radio show. This is as it should be: She launched on her career as a contestant on Godfrey's old Talent Scouts television program, and was immediately signed as a member of his professional TV-radio troupe.

"When I'm playing an engagement, I like to sing many kinds of songs," she said. "French, German, show tunes. The audience seems to like them. But you can sense they are really just waiting for the Irish songs—you can really feel their impatience."

Year in and year out, she notes, the most popular Irish song is Galway Bay, with Danny Boy a close second.

Grant and Hepburn Playing Comedy, Mystery, Romance Make "Charade" Fun Movie

It's more apparent than ever that there are no limits to the entertainment heights that can be reached on the screen by Cary Grant. Just when folks are certain he has achieved the pinnacle, he comes up with something that tops anything he has accomplished before.

Such is the case with "Charade," a fabulous Technicolor blending of romance, comedy and mystery, starring Grant and Audrey Hepburn. A thoroughly enthralled audience attended the Belle showing and unanimously that this thrilling surprise-a-minute bonbon of entertainment is Cary at his best, Audrey at her finest and story-telling in its most perfect form. They didn't somebody think of putting these two together before this?

From its polished opening shots at the smart ski resort of Megeve in the French Alps to its sophisticated amour in Paris, "Charade" is a cinematic delight of the purest superlatives that fizzes with witty dialogue and blase love-making. Grant is the most fascinating smoothie who offer his help to a lady in distress. The supposition of a missing million cash in the offering appeals to his protective instincts. Nobody, or Hepburn for the audience are sure of his intentions. They may not be honorable but they are assuredly attractive. Grant as a thoroughly mysterious character, part rogue, part gentleman, sweeps his most exciting role in some time. He is the charmer, the smoothest, best dressed riddle an anxious widow could trust with her life, her love and maybe her cash.

Credit for a superb score goes to Henry Mancini, whose background music are looked for with pleasure by screen lovers.

The moving spirit behind "Charade" is Stanley Donen, producer-director who guided it through months of script preparation in Hollywood and actual shooting in Paris. If the film has the mark of distinction, it is because of Donen's infallible good taste. "Charade" tickles the risibilities while it thrills the heart and wrings the nerves . . . the best film of its kind that has reached the screen in some time.

Elia Kazan Would Give Up Stage to Make Movies

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Elia Kazan's office is a panelled cave a few steps off the four flights up from Times Square.

You get the feeling that his words are deep in Broadway's asphalt. Indeed, he has dedicated much of his future to the fortunes of Lincoln Center, a cultural attempt unequalled in this era true repertory theatre amid the commercialism of the New York stage.

Yet Kazan has insisted that his activities for Lincoln Center must not preclude his making of films.

"That is one of the things I made sure," he said. "Films are the most important thing in my life, especially now that I have started making movies about my family. If the stage interfered, I would give up the stage."

The reason for his resolution is the film trilogy he has undertaken. The first feature, America, America, tells of his uncle's struggle to emigrate from Turkey to the United States. The second will show his uncle 10 years later and the third at the end of his life.

BUSINESS MODERATE

Kazan was disturbed but not discouraged because business of America, America has not been exceptional despite generally excellent reviews and academy nominations for best picture, best directing, writing by Kazan and best actor Gregory Peck.

"I'm disappointed, and certainly Warner Brothers are," he said. "They have given it the best of treatment, but maybe it just isn't a picture for general release. Maybe, like some others of my pictures, it should get art-house treatment. Baby Doll could have. Also A Face in the Crowd, although perhaps it cost too much.

"The title America, America doesn't seem to convey anything to the public. I wonder if it will be changed abroad; in England they would think it was an American propaganda picture."

Kazan said he hasn't changed his plan for the next two films, "though Warners may have second thoughts."

But the natural artist all is, and America, America may still prove a moneymaker. It cost $1,800,000, which Kazan considers reasonable in view of the extensive locations he filmed.

Kazan has completed two plays for Lincoln Centre this season — the controversial After the Fall by Arthur Miller and S. N. Behrman's But for Whom Charlie, which opened Wednesday night. During this time he suffered the death of his wife.

The Doukhobors Find an Interlude of Content

By BRUCE LEVETT

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP) — Tim Rebalkin looked up through the plastic skylight of his tarpaper shack and said "we have been content here."

From where he sat the bearded Doukhobor could see the moon at midday sharing the sky with the sun, shining on the snow retreating toward peaks it never leaves.

He spoke for 433 Sons of Freedom, camped in 125 similar structures along a remote road hacked in the mountains crowning the Fraser Valley 75 miles east of Vancouver.

His words were echoed by Mrs. Florence Storgoff, possibly the strongest voice in the community:

"We are not happy here—but we are content."

If the radical sect has found contentment, it will be one of few such interludes in its turbulent history.

How long it will last "only God can tell," Mrs. Storgoff said.

The Sons of Freedom have a past studded with violence, from religious persecution in their native Russia through their migration across Canada into British Columbia more than 50 years ago.

LONG TREK ENDED

They trekked to this spot six months ago after burning their homes in the Kootenay Valley 400 miles to the east. Their stated purpose was to be near their brethren—more than 100 men and women who had been sentenced to long terms for terrorism.

Now they are camped at a crossroads. One road leads to the prison, the other to a graveyard.

The concrete and steel prison, built especially to house the convicted terrorists — some of them arsonists — was named Mountain Prison by the federal government. The Sons call it Buchenwald, after the infamous Nazi death camp.

By setting up their camp outside the prison gate the Sons hoped to force the provincial government into an investigation to free the imprisoned Doukhobors whom they claim are innocent.

But what began as a temporary measure has taken on a gradual air of permanency which even the Sons don't seem to appreciate.

WORK ON FARMS

Buses pick up the children for the five-mile ride to school in Agassiz. Some of the men work as farm laborers through the area and some of the women and teen-agers get part-time jobs in the fruit-packing plants.

There is no thought of returning to the Kootenay. Some have gone back, but many of those have returned here.

"I don't think the people of Nelson and Trail would very much welcome us," Rebalkin said.

"The people here are finding out more about us. They found us a lot different than they had heard. The people here . . . we have no trouble with them."

The Sons have handled the sanitation problem by digging "something like 23 or 25 latrines back in the woods." Six steam-bath huts have been thrown up.

There is a drafty community hall which seats the "something more than 100 children" in the camp. They go there for lessons in Russian customs and language after attending school in Agassiz.

ACCEPT SCHOOLING

Regular voluntary attendance at school is a departure for the Sons. Several years ago, when attendance was forced upon the children, schools were burned down in the Kootenay. The provincial government seized the children and quartered them in a New Denver camp away from their parents. Later, they were returned.

For the last four years, the Sons of Freedom children have attended school wherever the sect has wandered. The Sons still maintain that Canadian public schools teach militarism, but they would rather go along with schooling than lose their children again.

Near the schoolhouse-community hall here, the Sons have dug three wells at spots pointed out for them with a willow fork by John Darabin, Mrs. Storgoff's brother.

They clip raspberry canes from bushes a short distance away.

"It's a laxative," says Rebalkin.

"It's good for colds," says Mrs. Storgoff.

The shacks, some built right over the tents the trekkers began with, are dark but clean, lit by camp lanterns and heated by wood stoves.

FARMERS HELP

"The farmers cut the wood for us. Some cut one cord for themselves and one for us," Mrs. Storgoff says.

The men of the camp cut it to stove lengths and split it. With the inflammable plastic sheets posing a fire hazard, buckets of water are every-where. At night a fire guard prowls the irregular lines of huts and tents.

"We are not comfortable here, but we would have been more uncomfortable living like this in the Kootenay in the snow and freezing cold," says Rebalkin.

The Sons of Freedom met opposition when they moved in Kent municipality, in which Agassiz lies, passed a bylaw to bar them but the RCMP did not enforce it.

One report pointed out that this year the Doukhobors will be eligible to vote in the community and suggested that if Mrs. Storgoff—known through the camp as Big Fanny—were to buy a piece of property she could likely command enough votes among her people to be elected reeve.

"We're not interested," she said.

"There are no reeves among us. We do not believe that private persons should own property."

A banner hangs between two poplar poles outside her abode. Beneath a dove of peace, in Russian and English, is lettered:

"Toil and peaceful life."

"Here we don't experience any prejudice," she said.

"In the Kootenay we were blamed for everything that happened."

What community hostility existed six months ago, the Doukhobors say, is breaking down.

"There are a few kids coming up," Rebalkin said. "People are inquiring. The raspberry and strawberry growers want us to stay."

One grower wants 40 girls to work in his fields.

In the meantime the provincial government — through the Salvation Army — hands out welfare cheques. A sample is $12.50 every two weeks for a mother with two small children.

"It comes to about 30 cents a day per person," Mrs. Storgoff says.

"Why won't the government do their own dirty work? Why bring the Salvation Army into it?"

VISIT PRISONERS

Those outside the prison are allowed to visit their imprisoned relatives once a month. At other times they wave and signal to them from the hillside and the prisoners wave back.

Reeve James Fraser says the municipal council doesn't like the situation but asks "what can we do?"

In the meantime, what tension there was is subsiding. An RCMP guard, which once scrutinized each arriving and departing car, has gone from the bridge spanning the Fraser River at the entrance to Agassiz.

Area residents and tourists come by around 3 p.m. to listen when the school children gather to sing hymns in the plastic-roofed community hall.

John Chernoff, their teacher, is a Tzan O'Shanter — wearing Son of Freedom who wears the traditional beard and carries a long stick.

"We have gum-chewers and gigglers," he says to explain the cane.

His students sing in Russian in the eight-party harmony that once rang through the hills of the Kootenay country.

Sometimes, when there are visitors, he speaks softly and the words change from Russian to English.

"Yes, Jesus loves me . . ."

CAMP SCHOOL — A camp school outside Mountain Prison, 75 miles east of Vancouver, set up by relatives of the more than 100 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors housed in prison, has taken on an air of permanence. More than 100 children attend a makeshift school set up in a drafty community hall for lessons in Russian customs and language. Before attending the camp school they are taken by bus to Agassiz five miles away for regular school classes. (CP Photo)

Burley Tobacco Acreage Will Be Reduced

CHATHAM (CP)—A 50 per cent reduction in the 1964 burley tobacco acreage in Ontario was approved Wednesday by a meeting of the Ontario Burley Tobacco Association and representatives of tobacco buying companies.

The association represents farmers growing burley tobacco, used in making pipe and cigar tobacco. It is not connected with the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board which is at present faced with a crisis between its members and tobacco companies.

Association officials said the 1964 acreage will be the second lowest in the 23-year history of the burley marketing group. The meeting approved planting of only 1,616 acres to burley. Last year 3,232 acres were planted.

J. Fred Thomas, association president, said the cut in burley acreage can be largely blamed on stocks of tobacco still on hand from the 1962 and 1963 crops.

FREEDOMITES CONTENT — Mrs. Florence Storgoff, known as Big Fanny among Sons of Freedom Doukhobors in their makeshift community outside the gates of Mountain Prison near Agassiz, B.C., says the sect is content, but not happy with conditions there. Mrs. Storgoff, one of the strongest voices in the community, says no one knows how long the Freedomites will remain near the prison, which holds more than 100 of their brethren, convicted of acts of terrorism in their former home area in the Kootenay district.

Canadian Cyprus Force Approved By House, Senate

Reconnaissance Party Leaves Trenton Friday

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — In a dramatic show of speed and near-unanimity, both houses of Parliament authorized the government Friday to send 1,150 Canadian soldiers and airmen to Cyprus to help restore peace.

The Commons approved a government resolution in two hours and an unusual Friday night sitting and the Senate concurred 50 minutes later.

Two hours before the Commons special debate began at 8 p.m. EST, a small reconnaissance party left Trenton, Ont., by RCAF Yukon for Nicosia to pave the way for the Canadian contingent.

The army and air force officers aboard were to meet to-

Warrant Issued For Pair

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Police have issued a warrant for the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Cofell of Ottawa and have charged the pair with abandoning their three infant sons in an unheated farm cottage near here Monday.

The children, aged 12 days, 18 months and three years, are recovering from exposure and malnutrition in the St. Thomas-Elgin General Hospital, where they were found shivering and covered with sores.

Police estimate they had been left alone about six hours. The youngest was found on a pillow in a cardboard box, the 18-month-old was lying on the floor and the oldest was in bed.

Their father was last seen Sunday and their mother, Beverly Hilda Michelek of Ottawa, was last seen Monday.

Mr. Cofell left Ottawa three weeks ago to seek work in the St. Thomas area. He was hired by a farmhand by Ronald Alsden, who allowed the family to use the house where he later found the abandoned children.

STARTED LAST FRIDAY

Mr. Alden said a man who called himself Douglas Smith came to work for him Friday. He said he gave Smith $40 Saturday to return to Ottawa to get the couple's furniture. He did not see him again.

He said he went to the cottage again Monday. He heard a child crying and had trouble opening the front door because one of the children was against it.

Mr. Alden said he found the two smallest children clad only in diapers and nightshirts. The 18-month-old was shivering with cold and his face and body were covered with red sores. The baby's feet were blue with cold.

Mr. Alden said there was no fire in the six-room, two-storey house and was just a little warmer than the outside temperature, about freezing at the time.

Children Aid officials have applied to make the children temporary wards. Records show the baby was born in Victoria Hospital, London, Ont., Feb. 26.

Stop at Marville

METZ (Reuters)—An advance party of the Canadian contingent to the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus arrived by air from Germany to France at nearby Marville on their way to Cyprus.

The 15-man party flew in an RCAF Yukon transport aircraft, a spokesman at the RCAF base in Lahr announced.

They were making a refueling staging stop and were due to take off again for Cyprus before lunchtime.

In addition to the reconnaissance party, an RCAF officer, Wing Cmdr. R. K. Trumley of Toronto, will also go to Cyprus.

He will command the RCAF detachment at Nicosia.

day with the UN observer in Cyprus, Lt. Gen. P. S. Gyani of India, and British officers to secure accommodation and services for a Canadian advance party of 150 infantrymen.

The advance party, drawn from the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, at Valcartier, Que., is expected to leave during the weekend or Monday.

The advance party will be joined in Cyprus later by more Van Doos and a tank reconnaissance squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, based at Camp Gagetown, N.B.

An infantry battalion, a tank squadron and 100 RCAF officers and men will be airlifted to Cyprus within the next two weeks to form part of a 7,000-man United Nations peace force.

Trustees' Phones Tapped

TORONTO (CP) —The Globe and Mail says telephone lines of Canada's maritime union trustees have been tapped and police are investigating the source of the security breach. The newspaper says the tap was confirmed by technicians of the Bell Telephone Company after suspicions had been aroused that a third ear had been tuned in to conversations of the trustees in their Montreal office.

It also says a source within the office of the trustees confirmed that the tap had been discovered and that the police and the government were aware of the fact.

The discovery of the "bugging" of the telephone came during a step-up in activities of the three-man government appointed trusteeship. For the first time, the trustees had moved one of their senior officials into the headquarters of the Seafarers International Union of Canada (Ind.).

In Montreal, a Bell Telephone Company spokesman said the company had not received a complaint from the maritime trustees.

No trustees spokesmen were available for comment.

Revenue Minister Garland Dies Suddenly Aboard Train

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister John R. Garland, 46, died suddenly here early today on a train in Union Station.

Mr. Garland attended the special Friday sitting of the Commons which authorized the government to send troops to Cyprus and later boarded a CNR train which left Ottawa at 12:20 a.m. today for North Bay.

He was found dead apparently after suffering a heart attack, after the train had left Union Station. The train returned to the station and Mr. Garland's body was removed.

The body was taken to Hulse and Playfair Funeral Direction. An official said funeral and other arrangements would be made over the weekend.

Mr. Garland, Liberal member of the Commons for Nipissing since June 27, 1948, was one of the youngest members in Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet.

As minister of national revenue, he was responsible for the double job of collecting the nation's taxes and running the federal government's housing policy.

Sees No Spectacular Change In Level Federal Spending

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon said Friday no spectaular changes in the level of federal spending should not be expected to flow from recommendations of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

He said savings resulting from improved government efficiency may be overshadowed by "inevitable increases in government expenditures over the years, consequent upon an expanding economy and a rising population."

Addressing the Ontario Institute of Chartered Accountants—of which he is a member—Mr. Gordon stressed that the Glassco commission was set up to advocate improvements in government organization and management, not changes in policies or programs.

He estimated that only about $1,300,00,0000 or 17 per cent of the total federal spending estimated for 1964-65 is for administration, operation and maintenance of government departments except defence.

"This is the extent to which government expenditures and susceptible to the application of the Glassco commission recommendations for improved management and increased efficiency," Mr. Gordon said.

Ruby Fate In Hands Of Jury

By RELMAN MORIN

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Ruby's fate—life or death—was placed in the hands of the jury in his trial for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald at 1:05 a.m. CST today and his lawyers said they expect a speedy verdict.

Ruby sat through five hours of arguments Friday, unmoving and with a face like a mask.

When Judge Joe B. Brown retired the jury, he said "I presume you will want to begin deliberations in the morning."

Most of the jurors nodded in the affirmative. The judge instructed the eight men and four women to elect a foreman, begin deliberations, and "then write your verdict on the forms provided for that purpose."

The jury then retired for the night and Judge Brown said he did not expect deliberations to begin before 9 a.m. CST.

In Texas, the jury not only determines guilt or innocence but fixes the extent of the penalty.

Ruby faces death in the electric chair if the jurors decide on the maximum penalty.

Four prosecution attorneys in the long, grinding night session, asked for the death penalty.

The other possible sentences run from two years to life imprisonment. A prison sentence, if five years or less, could be suspended.

Judge Brown granted the networks permission to televise the verdict live, although he had

Mr. Gordon In-And-On The Spot

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — When Walter Gordon rises in the Commons Monday evening to deliver his second budget speech, he'll be both in the spotlight and on the spot.

In the spotlight of national interest because the decisions of the 58-year-old finance minister could have a vital bearing on future prosperity, jobs and income.

But also on the spot, politically, because of the violent reaction caused by his first budget last June 13.

The pressure is on Mr. Gordon to present a good, safe budget that won't give rise to political reactions like last year's. But typical of the calm, methodical minister, whose dry sense of humor weathers almost any crisis, the pressure doesn't show.

This weekend he's back home in Toronto, attending a political

Former Quebec Police Officer Under Fire

Bungling, Drinking Suggested in Probe

QUEBEC (CP) — Suggestions of bungling and drunkenness early in the investigation into the 1953 slaying of three Pentagrivalis hunters were made Friday by a Crown prosecutor in a cross-examination of Henri Doyon, a former sergeant in the Quebec Provincial Police.

Youthful Crown Prosecutor Jean Bienvenue, acting as counsel to Chief Inspector J. A.

Today's Chuckle

A small boy came up with this defence of his report card: I was the highest of all the kids who failed.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mild weather will continue over southern regions with showers developing by this afternoon and possibly a few thunderstorms this evening and tonight. In the north precipitation will be mainly occasional rain changing to snow flurries tonight as colder air returns. The cooler weather will reach the lower Great Lakes Sunday morning followed by a gradual clearing.

Mattie of the QPP and Deputy Attorney-General C. E. Cantin, also suggested that Mr. Doyon had broken his oath of discretion while a detective and had withheld evidence in the Wilbert Coffin murder case.

Coffin was convicted of the murder of the hunters and was hanged Feb. 10, 1956. A royal commission into the preparation and presentation of evidence in the controversial case was appointed by the Quebec government early this year.

It followed publication of a book by Montreal author Jacques Hebert called J'accuse les Assassins de Coffin (I accuse Coffin's assassins) in which it was contended Coffin was railroaded to the gallows.

Mr. Bienvenue asked Friday whether Mr. Doyon hadn't often talked to reporters during the trial and also whether he had given lawyers information about which he hadn't advised his superiors.

Mr. Doyon said he "didn't believe" he had ever described Coffin to Mr. Hebert as a generous, cheerful man who would give a friend the shirt off his back.

He also testified he thought both Wilbert Coffin and his brother Donald were involved in some way in the slayings and he at first suspected Donald, who never was charged.

He admitted telling Noel Dorion, Crown prosecutor at the Coffin trial in 1954, only five months ago that he believed both men had been involved.

Donald Coffin is expected to testify before the commission meets in Montreal April 7.

Mr. Bienvenue asked whether Mr. Doyon—in charge of the QPP Gaspe detachment in 1953, hadn't been told by Mr. Cantin a few days after the hunters were missed to get cracking on the case.

Mr. Doyon denied that after the first of the animal-torn bodies had been found, he went to look at it, left it in the woods and returned later to find it had been moved.

"There was no question of murder at that time," he said.

He thought the men might have died of food poisoning, then been eaten by animals.

Mr. Doyon admitted that at times in the investigation he had drunk in the morning, although not during working hours.

He denied animosity about this. Mr. Bienvenue asked if he hadn't mentioned, in front of other officers, getting rid of "the smart guys from Quebec" both men had been involved.

Mr. Doyon didn't deny this. He said Capt. Mattie had given him names and treated him like a subaltern in his own office.

Another key point involved the rifle Mr. Doyon testified Wilbert Coffin had told him was hidden in a tree near his camp.

The rifle was never found. Mr. Doyon testified earlier this week he told Capt. Mattie about it before the coroner's Inquest but wasn't ordered to go after it until late that night.

M. Bienvenue suggested Mr. Doyon didn't go after it the day of the inquest because he had been drinking.

Mr. Doyon denied this strongly.

He is expected to take the stand again Tuesday, when hearings resume here.

Turks Step Back From War Brink Over Cyprus

Welcome Urgent Moves For Peacekeeping Body

CP from Reuters-AP

By CARMAN CUMMING

NICOSIA—The tense situation over troubled Cyprus appeared to ease from the brink of war today following a Turkish statement welcoming urgent moves to set up a United Nations peacekeeping force for the island.

The Turkish statement, issued after a cabinet meeting late Friday, superseded an earlier warning to Cyprus of Turkish unilateral intervention if sweeping measures were not taken to restore peace and normality to the island.

Reports that 10,000 Turkish troops had embarked in ships at Iskenderun, a seaport on Turkey's southern coast facing Cyprus, had backed the Turkish warning and heightened the already sizzling tension in the three-month crisis.

In Athens, a Greek government spokesman expressed satisfaction with the Turkish statement. Following a two-hour emergency cabinet session, a government source said the Greek armed forces would be in a state of preparedness until the UN force arrived in Cyprus and guaranteed the integrity of the island.

At the United Nations, the Security Council Friday unanimously passed a resolution for all members to refrain from any action that might worsen the situation in Cyprus.

Meeting in an emergency session to consider Cypriot charges that a Turkish invasion was imminent, the council called on Secretary-General U Thant to continue his efforts to set up the peace force.

Earlier Greek-Cypriot President Makarios had rejected the Turkish warning and following talks in Athens, where he also attended the funeral of King Paul, said if the Turks landed in Cyprus the Greeks would too.

He said the Turkish warning constituted "further untenable" interference in the internal affairs of Cyprus.

In Paris, the NATO permanent council met at the request of Greece to discuss the situation which, due to Greece and Turkey's membership in the Western defence alliance, has been regarded as a potential serious NATO problem.

PEOPLE RELAX

On Cyprus itself, people relaxed as the threat of a possible Turkish invasion receded. But there still were rumblings.

Several shots were heard in Nicosia suburbs this morning.

Welcome Urgent Moves For Peacekeeping Body

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Cyprus force got off the ground Friday as Canada, acting urgently in the face of a threat of war in the eastern Mediterranean, decided to send a contingent of 1,150 men to embattled Cyprus.

Turkey had warned that it would intervene unless the government of Greek-Cypriot President Makarios halted a "massacre" of the Turkish-Cypriots.

But the Turkish delegate scoffed at Cypriot charges that the invasion might come within hours.

The council meeting ended late Friday night with a unanimous resolutionalling on all parties in the dispute to refrain from any action that might worsen the situation.

Thant had asked a half-dozen countries for troops immediately after the Cyprus force was authorized by the council March 4. Britain, already helping to keep peace in its former colony, had promised to supply half the personnel for a 7,000-man force.

But of the other countries, Canada was first to give a firm commitment that it would participate.

By 6 p.m., Thant went before the Security Council to announce that a force "now is actually being constituted" and that he had received "firm and official assurances from three of the governments I have approached about providing contingents that those contingents will be available."

He named the three as Canada, Sweden and Ireland and said each had defined certain conditions as prerequisites "which either have been met or, in my view, can be coped with."

This statement, put together in consultation with the Canadian delegation and the other countries involved, apparently was meant to permit the Canadian government to go ahead.

Prime Minister Pearson read it to the Commons and said he thought it indicated "that a United Nations peace - keeping force is now being constituted."

OTTAWA NEWS WELCOMED

The news from Ottawa was warmly welcomed by UN diplomats working to quieten the Cyprus crisis.

"I think we all shared a great sense of relief just a few hours ago with the news that an advance party of Canadians is en route to Cyprus," U.S. delegate Charles Yost said just before the council session ended.

"Our blessings go with them and with those that will follow to make up this peace-keeping force."

Diefenbaker Answers Plea For Running Governments As if They Were Businesses

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked a luncheon meeting of businessmen Friday how they would run their businesses if they had daily meetings of their shareholders and threw separate pen testing groups of minority stockholders.

This, he said, is his answer to businessmen's suggest i on a that Parliament should be operated as an efficient business.

Speaking to the Ottawa Kiwanis Club on the function of the opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker said that without it, government would degenerate into an all-powerful bureaucracy.

"You businessmen have heavy responsibilities to your shareholders, but our shareholders are always present. You say, let's have a businesslike government. But wherever the attributes of this opposition system have been destroyed, then you have had dictatorships."

He quoted Prime Minister Pearson as saying, while leading the opposition, that an opposition's duty is to oppose and question.

Mr. Diefenbaker said an opposition must pry, poke, question, and examine government policies, and arouse, educate and mould public opinion.

"While we may not change a government decision once it is made, we can change the government in time and perhaps by the attitude of the public in future decisions."

World's Fair Retains Symbol House Rejected

MONTREAL (CP)—The board of directors of the world's fair decided Friday to retain the symbol parliament rejected last December as a "monstrosity," "weird" and "sickening".

A statement said the lack of an effective emblem has adversely affected preparations for the 1967 event and "more over it appears far from certain that any new emblem would receive unanimous approval" or be as good.

The emblem by Montreal industrial designer Julien Hebert was adopted by the board last Aug. 12.

A vertical line with two diagonal lines stretching upwards to represent arms—and a maple leaf at the base of the design. Mr. Hebert liked them in pairs and arranged eight and in a circle to indicate the shape of the earth and the theme of the fair: Man and his World.

It was understood that under the legislation enacted for the fair last year, approval of the design by Parliament is no longer necessary.

Civil Servants Plan Banquet

The regular monthly meeting of Bronson Lodge No. 2 Civil Service Association was held at the Ontario School for the Deaf. This was a general business meeting and final plans were made for the annual banquet being held at Club Canada the end of April.

A nominating committee was selected to bring in a report at the next meeting with a slate of officers for the year 1964-1965.

Sgt. C. Kirkwood, president of the branch, spoke on traffic safety. He is the chairman of safety officer for the Ontario Provincial Police for No. 3 District. He stated that there were 59 fatal accidents in this district alone last year, with 60 persons killed. Speed is the keynote today, and is the cause of most accidents, he said. There were over 30,000 people killed in automobile accidents in the U.S. last year, which is equivalent to one complete city the size of Belleville wiped out.

Bancroft Woman On Ontario Body

One of 34 Ontario women selected to serve on the Conference of Women of Ontario's year-long study commission, Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith, deputy reeve of Bancroft, has been called to attend the consultation's first meeting next Wednesday in Toronto. Purpose of the meeting is to consider and approve a program of activities for the commission. Possible items on the program include a search for souvenirs and handicrafts produced or used as a base for new industries, and a study of the feasibility of creating a badge of identity awarded Canadian producers of toy quality merchandise.

700 Swedish Soldiers to Join UN Force

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Swedish battalion of 700 men will be ready to leave for Cyprus by around April 10 to join the UN peacekeeping force there, the Swedish defence department said today.

Swedish military authorities, who will have to act fast to get the battalion ready in time, are hoping to get as many soldiers as possible who have served in the UN forces in The Congo and the Gaza strip.

Prime Minister Pearson said the troops will be airlifted by the RCAF.

He called for UN appointment of a mediator to achieve a political settlement in the island.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said he would block unanimous consent to introduction of a resolution on a Cyprus force but didn't.

Conservative and New Democrat opposition attacked a recent back-and-forth switch in agriculture portfolio duties.

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST to continue debate on supplementary estimates. The Senate stands adjourned until Tuesday.

'Foreign' Items Left in Ten Points in '62

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Medical Protective Association has reported 10 cases dealt with in 1962—though many more involve—in which drains, sponges, needles, forceps and other "foreign bodies" were left in surgery patients.

E. P. Newcombe of Ottawa, general counsel for the association which has 14,000 doctors as members, mentions these cases in his annual report in saying he found it "distressing that some mistakes seem to occur with far too much regularity."

Legal action by patients in such cases usually is indefensible because the item was left in the patient "despite all reasonable precautions and without negligence on the part of the doctor," Mr. Newcombe said. But he added that such cases are rare.

Mr. Newcombe's report was included in the annual report of the association itself, made available to the press Friday by Dr. R. G. Fisher, Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the association.

Dr. Fisher stressed that the report was never intended for the public prints. It was a private medical publication intended only for members, and designed to inform doctors about situations that may arise in their practice.

However, he indicated he was making it available in light of recent publicity surrounding the case of two Ontario women, one in Toronto and the other in Palmerston, in which a pair of clamps were left in their bodies.

Dr. Fisher said that in the last five years there have been only 11 cases of forceps being left in patients, the average being about two cases a year, ranging from none in some year to perhaps three in another.

Gave Two Stories to Police Woman Tells Murder Jury

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Anna Elizabeth McMahon, 64, told a jury Friday she gave police two statements in police following the fatal shooting of her husband Hugh McMahon, 66, in their home last Oct. 9.

she was testifying in the fourth day of the Lennox County Court trial of Charles Morton Lloyd, 41, charged with capital murder in connection with Mrs. Mahon's death.

All three lived in Kaladar, Ont., a small village of that Kingston area community.

In answer to questions from Anthony Roberts, Q.C., Mrs. McMahon said she gave one statement shortly after the shooting and another after the Kaladar detachment of the provincial police, and Napanee detachment.

Mr. Willoughby asked her to repeat the first words she said to police at Kaladar and she replied: "I told the police officer my husband had been shot."

"Did the police officer ask you who shot your husband?" Mr. Willoughby asked.

"No, not at the time," she replied.

The witness said she, her husband and Lloyd had consumed between 15 and 17 pints of beer in hotels on the night of her husband's death.

She told the court she and her husband returned home about midnight Oct. 9 and she had gone to her bed because she felt "sleepy."

The case continues.

TCA Captain To Speak to Sales-Ad Club

It is also advised that the title of his talk will be "Superstars" and the committee are looking forward to hearing from this distinguished member of the staff of TCA (referred to be known as Air Canada). Arrangements for Captain Lowry's appearance in Belleville were made by Sales-Adder John Menary through the public relations office of Air Canada. Five Killed In Separate Rail Mishaps

OTTAWA (CP) — Five men, including four CNR maintenance-of-way workers and a provincial civil servant, were killed in the Ottawa district Friday in two separate level crossing accidents.

The four CNR employees died when the railway motor car collided with an automobile at a railway crossing in nearby Nepean Township. The fifth man was killed when the car in which he was a passenger was struck by a CNR passenger train at a level crossing in west-end Ottawa.

The dead CNR employees were identified as Willis White, Goulbourn Township, Tony Perley, Moose Creek, John Farquhar, Renfrew and James K. McLean, Bells Corners. White, Perley and Farquhar died at the scene while McLean died late Friday in hospital.

The civil servant killed was William LaBel, 22, an employee of the national revenue department. Rolf Poems, 23, driver of the car in which LaBel was a passenger, and Edward Lane, 28, another passenger, escaped without serious injuries.

Malcolm Massey of Manotick, driver of the car which struck the railway motor car, is in good condition in hospital with facial injuries.

Forest Fire Safety Program Needed Here

OTTAWA (CP) — A much greater effort is needed to make Canadians conscious of forest fire safety, the Canadian Forestry Association was warned Friday.

Dr. F. A. Harrison of Montreal, president of the association, told the annual meeting that the United States is making better progress than Canada in educating the public about forest fire dangers.

He said the number of forest fires in the U.S. and their average size is on the decline.

"Unfortunately, the trend in Canada is in the other direction."

Dr. Harrison, a vice - president of the Canadian International Paper Company, said the pressures on forest land are growing enormously with the increase in leisure time and family mobility.

Dr. Harrison, who was re-elected as president of the association, also urged CFA directors to start looking seriously about forestry projects to mark the centennial of Confederation in 1967.

Water Travels Clean Pathway To Family Taps

TRENTON Tomorrow morning when you turn on the tap for your first drink of coffee pot, give a thought to the time, science, and engineering that goes into making this necessary commodity available.

Out in Murray Township, Fox's Pond has been drained and the water of the pond, one of Trenton's spring water supply, diverted, to allow workmen to clean and repair two other, smaller, waterholding ponds in the area. Fresh gravel will be spread on the bottom of the ponds before the water is re-routed back into the holding basin.

Water from the creek, "held" in the ponds, is pumped and piped into Trenton's reservoir stored in the 750,000 gallon water tank on the mountain.

The utilities commission hopes to form a new water holding pond on land adjacent to the Legge sideroad where the township's new development road, the Hoard Line, has been bought last year. Road engineers have yet to decide on a suitable location for the pond, but the utilities body will in no way weaken the proposed new roadbed.

Waterworks superintendent Clifford Gunter said yesterday that one of the most beneficial "holding" ponds in the Murray Township well area was the 35 acres of land on which Frankford's golf course is usually Scotch pine treelets. Some of the trees, planted a few years ago, have reached a sizeable growth; others are barely discernable in the dense undergrowth. The new ponds and airplanes were planted last year.

Cancer Branch Sets Objective At $6,600

TRENTON—The Trenton and District unit of the Canadian Cancer Society has set as its objective the $6,000 for the forthcoming canvass for funds to be used by the Ontario division for the work for research purposes. All monies collected in the canvass are used by provincial headquarters, and local operations are financed by the local committee on the provincial budgetary basis.

Robert Ransom and Elmer Bonter this year's co-chairmen for the Cancer drive, will act again this year. Last year's objective was $5,500 and 93.5 per cent of this was raised.

The canvass will be carried on in Trenton, Smithfield, Carrying Place, Brighton, Bayside, Brighton Township, Frankford, Wooler, Stockdale, Smithfield, Carrying Place, Roseland Acres, Wooler and Glen Miller. Dates for the campaign have been set for April 11 12 to 25 and the campaign will be started off by "Daffodil Sunday" when volunteers and district churches, with churches decorated with the cancer Society's symbol and ministers bringing the need for research funds to the attention of their congregations.

Mr. Bonter said today that more than 400 canvassers were needed in this area. Captains who worked last year will be contacted again this year and again this year. Volunteer canvassers may call Mr. Bonter at WO 2-4331 or Mr. Ransom at EX 2-4331.

At Trenton, women of the Trenton Hospital prepare surgical dressings, arrange for transportation of patients to clinics and provide comforts for patients in hospitals or at home. President of the local unit is James Dunlop.

Group Captain W. H. Schroeder, RCAF is area chairman this year for the cancer drive. His area covers roughly the district between Kingston, Picton, Bancroft and Oshawa and the area objective has been set at $70,000.

Will rejoice to see him more.

FROM THIS WRECK Mrs. Pope and her seven-year-old daughter were taken — unhurt, save for some minor cuts and bruises. It was one of two close escapes near the city within minutes of each other yesterday — Friday 18th.

Every Day Should Be Friday 13th For These Fortunate People

Friday the thirteenth was their lucky day! For Mrs. Flossie Pope, 34, and daughter, R.R. 4, Belleville and Antoine Arsenault of Trenton, that is.

Both had harrsbreadth escapes in crashes within minutes of each other on the outskirts of Belleville yesterday.

Mrs. Pope, with her seven-year-old daughter, was turning off Highway 2 east of the city onto the old No. 2 access road, where she lives, when her car was struck from the rear by a passing automobile.

Her compact automobile, say provincial police, rolled over three times, and mother and daughter ended up in the backseat of the wreck.

They were helped from the wreckage by a shaken Victor L. Card, Elmwood Drive, driver of the second car. Mrs. Pope, say police, escaped the accident with scraped knees and some other minor injuries. Her daughter was unhurt.

Her damage to the car automobile was $700.

Just 20 minutes later truck driver Antoine Arsenault was driving his cement tanker back to Belleville, along the Wallbridge Road.

At the CNR level-crossing his empty truck was struck broadside by an east-bound freight train.

Damage to the truck was $2,500.

The Arsenault escaped with a cut finger.

"I told him every day should be his Friday the thirteenth," said the investigating OPP constable.

riot civil war is necessary to prevent hostilities between Greece and Turkey, which would threaten the peace and security of the whole world.

Intervention also was justified for humanitarian reasons and to preserve the authority of the United Nations.

Only three Creditiste MPs spoke out against the resolution and three senators expressed reservations. Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) broke with his leader, Real Caouette, and supported the resolution.

Mr. Caouette tried unsuccessfully to block the emergency debate until Monday, then flew to Trois-Rivieres, Que., to address a party rally in the evening.

Two of his colleagues Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Roberval) and Antoine Belanger (Charlevoix), stayed behind to register the only votes against the resolution in the Commons.

ENDORSE MOVE

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, New Democratic Leader Douglas and Social Credit spokesman A. B. Patterson all endorsed the government's decision.

All three warned, however, that the operation will be dangerous, costly to Canadian taxpayers and bloody.

"In all probability, lives will be lost," said Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Pearson said the UN force was constituted Friday by Canada, Sweden, Ireland, Brazil, Finland and Indonesia.

This statement varied somewhat from one issued at the United Nations an hour earlier by Secretary-General U Thant which said: "This force now is actually being constituted."

At another point, Thant said the force will be established without further delay and elements of it will soon be deployed in Cyprus.

A source close to the cabinet said outside the Commons late Friday night that Canada's swift action may have averted an invasion of Cyprus by Turkish forces.

The Turkish government threatened the invasion Friday morning but abruptly shifted emphasis in the evening with a statement sending the UN sending dispatch of the UN peace force to Cyprus.

The information that Turkey changed its position after External Affairs Minister Martin telephoned the Turkish foreign ministry to inform them that Canada definitely would take part in the UN force.

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons he has no illusions that the force will be required after the initial three - month period approved by the UN Security Council.

It was imperative to appoint a mediator and to work for the settlement of the constitutional dispute between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots, which has caused bloodshed since December.

Mr. Diefenbaker said NATO is in serious danger as a result of mounting hostility between Greece and Turkey.

The evening debate on the government resolution was preceded by two brief discussions on Cyprus earlier in the sitting — diplomatic relations economic currency every few minutes at UN headquarters and at Ecuracas capitals.

Mr. Caouette said he is opposed to Canadian intervention partly on the ground that he regretted that Liberals and Conservatives were more interested in foreign than domestic problems. The government should mind its own business and solve unemployment and poverty.

His lieutenant, Mr. Gregoire, countered that Canada must play its role in maintaining peace in the world. It was not good enough to wait for other countries to send forces to Cyprus.

luncheon today for Prime Minister Pearson and putting finishing touches on his budget speech before returning to the capital Monday.

The pressure was on Mr. Gordon last year, too, to produce his first budget within the "90 days of decision" deadline after the Liberal government took office.

He did it in 89 days and immediately landed in hot water. He was attacked for using non-government advisers to help prepare the ultra-secret budget, in two major budget revisions he was forced to scrap a controversial take-over tax on securities sales to foreign investors and to retreat under fire from his new sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

Five months later, when the smoke of Commons battles cleared and the last of his budget legislation was passed, he remarked dryly:

"For the life of me I cannot understand what all the fuss has been about."

At the height of the "fuss," Parliament Hill buzzed with speculation — even from within Liberal ranks — that Mr. Gordon would be shifted to another cabinet post.

But Prime Minister Pearson, a close friend of long standing, kept him at the helm through the summer and declare the government's support of the finance minister.

As a politician, Mr. Gordon has the reputation of being an enigma. He was chairman of the Liberal national campaign committee for the 1962 and 1963 general elections. But apart from some sharp attacks on the Tory-Conservative government in his first budget speech, he has stayed out of most of the partisan battles in the Commons.

Though he can take a detached and sometimes humorous view of political issues, even those involving himself, he is deadly serious about issues he feels are important. A case in point is the growth of foreign control of Canadian industry, in which he feels Canada's economic and political future is at stake.

Mr. Gordon entered active politics after a successful career as a chartered accountant and management consultant — a troubleshooter for both industry and governments. He was a key wartime aide in the finance department. But his biggest government assignment was as chairman of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects.

During the Conservative government's six years in office, became increasingly involved in Ottawa politics — planning and organization.

He won personal election to the Commons in his first try, easily a Conservative in Toronto Davenport in 1962 and winning again in 1963 with a margin of 6,500 votes.

Picton Company Extends Option To Denison

TORONTO (CP) — Shareholders of Lake Ontario Portland Cement Co., Ltd., Friday approved a proposal to extend for two years an option held by Denison Mines Ltd. to purchase the 350,000 common shares of the company at $3 a share.

The announcement followed a special meeting held in conjunction with the regular annual meeting.

The option was granted to the mining company as major consideration for Denison guaranteeing a $2,000,000 debt of the cement company, and now expires Jan. 13, 1964.

Denison, which controls approximately 45 per cent of the outstanding shares of Lake Ontario, did not vote on the proposal.

Charge 2-Standard Morality In Deals With Communists

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. government has been accused by a Republican of maintaining a double standard of morality in trade with Communist countries.

Senator Karl Mundt of South Dakota said Friday the administration provides long - term credit terms to some Soviet bloc members while discouraging its Western allies from following a similar policy.

The charge came as State Secretary Dean Rusk and Undersecretary of State George Ball appeared before the Senate foreign relations committee which opened an investigation of East-West trade policy.

Senator John Sparkman, Ala. Democrat and acting chairman, described the U.S. position as coming into conflict with the Western Allies.

"We must not permit the Russians to use trade as a divisive wedge to create dissension and mistrust among the allies," he said.

Rusk appealed for trade flexibility; to allow the government to make distinctions among Communist countries, rather than to become "the prisoners of a dogma."

Nearly all of the Communist countries of Eastern Europe are trying to reduce their economic dependence upon the U.S.S.R." he said. "They are showing a nostalgia for their historic relations with the West. They are trying to increase their trade and their contacts not only with Western Europe but with the U.S."

May Require Vote Ere Union Is Certified

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Ontario government is considering changes in labor legislation that would require, among employees before a union can acquire bargaining rights.

The newspaper also says the provincial cabinet is dealing with the question of legislation to compel companies to check off union dues when requested by a majority of employees.

Existing certification procedures allow a union to gain bargaining rights without a vote if it can prove to the Ontario Labor Relations Board through membership cards that it represents 55 per cent of the employees.

The cards must be accompanied by a statement that each applicant for membership has paid $1 to the union.

The suggested change, if approved by the cabinet, would eliminate the need by the union to collect the dollar, but would impose a vote in all cases, the newspaper says.

The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) waged a long and bitter strike against gold mines in 1953 in an unsuccessful attempt to gain the dues check - off. The same issue prompted the Quebec government to include the check-off provision in a new labor bill now before the legislature of Quebec.

May Settle Algerians In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Tremblay said in the Commons Friday his department is awaiting word from the French government on a proposal to establish a group of French-speaking Algerian settlers in a rural area of Canada.

He did not say how many immigrants would be involved in the plan or where they would settle. Several provinces had promised co-operation in locating farms and extending farm loans.

The French government was considering considerable assistance to pay displacement costs for the Algerian families, now living in France.

Mr. Tremblay said an official of his department has been sent to Paris to assist the French government in planning the immigration project.

Mr. Tremblay was replying to Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamingue), who said there are many abandoned farms in his riding which could be redeveloped for the Algerians.

Manslaughter Charge Is Laid Against Woman

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Police Friday charged a 36-year-old St. Catharines stenographer with manslaughter and said they expect more arrests in connection with the death Thursday of Mrs. Egon Westerfeld, 32, of Little Falls, N.Y.

Mrs. Teresa Mary Eltei, former president of the Lincoln County New Democratic Party Association, was remanded in custody for a week after Magistrate Harold Young denied a defence application for bail.

"There could be more arrests coming," Police Chief James Anderson. "Detectives are coming here from Toronto and Herkimer, N.Y. to help in the investigation."

Chief Anderson said police were also investigating reports that women from Toronto and New York State have been coming to St. Catharines for abortions.

Mrs. Westerfeld died shortly after being admitted to hospital. Police said she had arrived here about six hours earlier.

Mrs. Westerfeld and her husband, production manager of a Little Falls shoe company, were married in Fort Colborne, Ont., in '54 and moved to Little Falls about years ago. Both came to North America from Germany.

A young romance which budded more than 60 years ago in Bannockburn district lumber camp is still going strong.

Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Redcliffe of Fuller are celebrating the 60th anniversary of their marriage on March 16th back in 1904.

As a teen-aged girl, Mrs. Redcliffe, then Ethel May Ray, was a cook on her father's lumber mill near Bannockburn when she met her future husband. Mr. Redcliffe was working as a teamster and had the opportunity of sampling his future wife's cooking three times a day.

He liked what he ate — and saw — and still attests to his wife's cooking as well as to her other attributes.

The couple were married at the home of the bride's parents at Fuller by Presbyterian minister Rev. Mr. Burns of Stirling and West Huntingdon.

The weather then was apparently just as unpredictable as it is today.

The day they were married the snow was very deep and cutters and sleighs were driven over top of the fences. A few days later a sudden switch in the weather melted the snow and coming home from a brief wedding trip they had to drive along the ditches to take advantage of roadside ice.

Mr. Redcliffe was born 85 years ago at Springbrook and was one of a family of six boys. Mrs. Redcliffe is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ray and was one of five girls and four boys.

For the past 52 years they have lived on their present farm, now operated by their son Bordon. A daughter, Mrs. Arthur Morgan, lives near Tweed.

Members of Knox Presbyterial Church at Fuller, the couple have taken an active interest in church work. Mr. Redcliffe acted as elder for years, while Mrs. Redcliffe has been president of the Ladies' Aid for 20 years and at 79 still takes an active part in church and community affairs.

Mr. Redcliffe has given up active farming but still enjoys splitting wood, hoeing in the garden and doing odd jobs. Mrs. Redcliffe also enjoys working in the vegetable garden and among her flowers.

Anniversary congratulations are already starting to pour into the Redcliffe home, among them a message from Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and Premier John R. P. Robarts.

A Case for Divorce

Greek Cypriots, taking time out from slaughtering their Turkish fellow-islanders, are again calling for "Enosis," or union with Greece. Turkish Cypriots, outnumbered four-to-one on the island, want to be evacuated from some of their villages.

The Turkish fleet meanwhile, is involved in "routine exercises" off the Cyprus coast and Turkey has troops massed at the mainland port nearest Cyprus. Britain has troops on the island to keep the peace and Greek Cypriot students have left their schools to stage anti-British and anti-U.S. demonstrations. The whole situation is getting to be rather sticky and there is room for doubt that the 1960 treaty by which Britain, Greece and Turkey all guarantee the independence of Cyprus will last long.

If the treaty does not reflect the wishes of the majority on the island, perhaps it would be a good idea to throw it out before it is dissolved in blood. The Greek Cypriots, if they really want union with Greece enough to slaughter their neighbors to achieve it, are not likely to be content with anything less. And the Turkish Cypriots, unless they choose to live under the threat of being slaughtered, must realize that the situation set up by the treaty cannot be maintained.

Logic, therefore, demands that a new settlement be reached—a settlement that reflects the wishes of the majority on the island. The Turks suggest partition, a sensible solution, but the Greeks reject it. Since the Greek Cypriots are not willing to share the island, it might be better for all concerned to evacuate the Turks. Compensation could probably be arranged, for those who leave their land. Such a settlement might not be fair to the Turks, but the alternative might be free burials.

The present situation leads one to suspect the settlement reached in 1960 reflected, perhaps, too much of the English idea of "fair play" and not enough the intentions of the majority of Cypriots. Admirable though "fair play" may be on the playing fields of Eton, it isn't much help in the hills of Cyprus.

Revealing Observation

The "dialogue" between English-speaking Canada and Quebec does not seem to be achieving much.

Hon. Rene Levesque, Quebec Minister of Resources, observed the other day that "the more we talk the more backward we seem to be going."

The participants, though they may be fluently bilingual, just do not seem to speak each other's languages.

There is a basic difference of outlook which twists words.

Sometimes, though, there will come a comment which illuminates the whole controversy.

Such an observation was made in an editorial in the Brockville Recorder and Times.

It noted that Mr. Levesque had spoken to the Canadian-Italian Liberal Association in Montreal and had urged the members of that group to forsake their "Italianism" and become French-Canadians instead.

The editorial writer condemns all who Brockville paper, "Levesque and those who would say the same thing to French-Canadians living outside Quebec."

To the Brockville paper, and to most English-speaking Canadians, the two cases are analogous.

To the French-speaking Canadian, the comparison is ridiculous.

He considers that, no matter where he may reside in Canada, he should not be placed on the same level with members of ethnic groups or urged, like them, to adopt the language and culture of the majority in that particular province.

It serves no good purpose to debate whether this attitude is reasonable. It exists and only by recognising its existence will English-speaking Canadians be able to understand what French Canada is talking about.

"Periods of loud unanimity, when all classes of society, suddenly reunited, outbid each other in shrill protestations of orthodoxy, seldom last long. They cannot. Society is not constructed like that. The very shrillness conceals an inner uncertainty."—Hugh Trevor-Roper, Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford University.

Ottawa Offbeat
The Secret of the Top Secret, Super Secret Annual Budget

By RICHARD JACKSON,
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With the record near-$8,000,000,000 Government Estimates, always the financial curtain-raiser, now rolled up, Finance Minister Walter Gordon comes on Parliamentary stage Monday night with the star turn of the Federal show The Budget.

And despite all the hoo-ha here on, perhaps more accurately — bold intentions, the Government has been able to do little or nothing about finding some discreet way of lifting the traditionally tight lid of secrecy just a tiny bit.

After all the outraged uproar last year over the Finance Minister having let loose the Budget Ghost Writers in on Budget Secrets, Prime Minister Pearson suggested that this business of super secrecy might be just a little ridiculous.

Since Budget-making first began in Canada, information historically always has been so highly classified that even Cabinet Ministers—whose lips supposedly are sealed by triple oaths of secrecy and loyalty—have been kept in the Federal economic dark until last, only moments before the Finance Minister tells all publicly.

SAME SOLUTION

Last year, visibly shaken by Walter Gordon's remarkable indiscretions, the Government wondered out loud whether, as he put it, "consultation within the limits of secrecy and loyalty" possible with business, industry, labor, agriculture and other groups which, like-minded taxpayers with a common pocketbook interest in Budget matters.

He hinted also that some way might be found of letting in other members of the Cabinet with a little harmless advance Budget information.

This would spare Ministers — not excluding the prime Minister himself—that last feeling of shock, and dreadful foreboding as to what might happen next, which they suffered last year when Walter Gordon sprung one post-Budget statement after another.

But from all outward evidence it now appears that search as he might, the prime minister could find no financially secure way of partially previewing the Budget even for a specially select and circumspect few.

There have been the usual pre - Budget "consultations" with labor, industry, the Chamber of Commerce, and farm groups, but only to the carefully limited extent of hearing their views on taxation.

And this has been the tried and trusted routine of the years.

Apparently, the prime minister's secret shared, no matter how later reluctantly concluded that little else could be done, or with what elite few, is no secret at all.

THE INSIDE FEW

On a Budget morning, only 11 people, the prime minister, the finance minister and the revenue minister, six very senior Federal Civil Servants and two secretaries know all of the Government's financial drill for the year is likely to be — "Wednesday, Budget Day" Walter Gordon's astounding performance last time, nobody can be sure what economic changes of pace may follow in continuing budgetary revelations and rewrites.

The weekday Cabinet meeting widens the circle of knowing to include the Ministers present.

There's a briefing of a small corps of Finance and Revenue department officials, though that they, in turn, may later brief the newspapermen, who, under the rules laid down by

"Why is everybody waiting for ME to eat?—is this a new recipe, Trudy?"

Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. Presents Fashion Show

CAMPBELLFORD — One of the interesting events of the season was the Fashion Show put on by Group 5 of Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. in the auditorium of St. John's United Church on Tuesday evening.

The large crowd in attendance was indicative of the popularity of a show of this kind particularly previous to the Easter season.

A welcome was extended by the Regent, Mrs. W. A. Kingston, who also introduced Mrs. M. Mills from whom the evening was obtained and Mrs. E. Steele, the commentator.

Ten models from the youthful petite and chic to the mature and dignified chose attire suitable to personality and social obligations.

PREDOMINANT COLORS

Pink seems to be a predominating color with navy blue a close second. Black and white ensembles always a striking contrast and always in good taste were also shown. Hats were Breton sailor, Italian straw in pill-box type, one a black straw padre type and the colorful flower hats softly becoming to most faces.

Two and three-piece suits, many with a basic dress and matching jacket, also shift dresses and jumper styles in basic colors with soft printed blouses were shown. Coats full length of laminated wool boucle were much in favor in soft pastel colors.

VARIOUS MODELS

Mrs. William Rothwell looked charming in a dress of black and white check cotton with red hat, red chiffon scarf and plaid lamigated full length coat showing all three colors.

Mrs. June Bryans modelled a three-piece suit of pink boucle matching overblouse, her hat tone on tone of raspberry shades with black accessories.

Mrs. R. B. Bennett looked lovely in a three-piece suit of aqua boucle matching figured lining and blouse, with navy hat and accessories.

Mrs. M. Donald looked striking in full-length laminated white coat, large black shantung hat with black accessories.

Mrs. F. G. De Carrell also showed the black and white accent with sleeveless black gabardine dress, matching jacket of black and white linen pill-box type hat of black and white straw.

Mrs. D. Carswell wore a two-piece pink linen suit embroidered on jacket front with large blue breton sailor hat, bag and shoes.

Mrs. M. Phillips stylish and appropriate in blue figured silk dress, white flowered hat, also modelled navy blue shift dress.

Mrs. C. Milne modelled the only stroller suit in the showing, the new length jacket in pastel blue boucle.

Mrs. A. Armour showed a coat, with shawl collar, white hat and black veil, also a one-piece blue flowered silk.

Mrs. H. Bennett wore the only full-length evening dress in the showing, a heavy patterned silk in blue and green, tapered to ankle with slit in back for easy walking.

There were only a few of the clothes shown by these models. Only one dress showed a definite empire line, a dinner dress in printed chiffon. Swim suits and slacks were also shown.

MUSICAL NUMBERS

During the evening musical numbers were contributed by Mrs. A. Whitfield; a duet by Mrs. D. Bennett and Mrs. C. Whitfield; a number by a group of teenage girls; and a solo by Mrs. D. Bennett.

Three draws were made with the winners, Mrs. Roy Sines, Mrs. P. Sheaff and Mrs. G. Barnum.

Group 5 is made up of 14 members of Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. with the convener Mrs. R. Locke, who is at present on holidays in Florida and Mrs. G. S. Gray as counselor.

Net financial returns were about $200.

Club Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

March meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid was at the home of Mrs. L. F. Reid with Edna Davenport and Dorothy Maclean taking charge of the devotional.

Reports were given by each officer. Three new members joined at the last meeting Mesdames Bannville, Brown and Wannamaker.

Marion Wallbridge reported sending a gift to Raymond Hamstra who had been injured while taking school bus one month ago and who is still in hospital but improving.

Olive Mayell gave a report on the Quinte Home Auxiliary meeting and reminded the ladies of the bingo to be held on March 18 for patients, also to keep in mind that Neighbors' Aid waiting period is from May 17 to 25.

Two telephone euchres had been held since last meeting.

Presentation of a cup and saucer was made to Beatrice Coward who is moving to Picton.

Shirley Griffith introduced Mr. R. G. Williams who is a valued member of Belleville Branch of Ontario Historical Society. After outlining the history and activities of the society and stressing the need for many more members Shirley Griffith had an open discussion. Leaflets and books were passed among members.

A silver contest was held with Della Wiley being the winner.

Refreshments were served by the lunch committee, after which Wm Reed thanked the speaker, hostess, Shirley and all who helped to make it an enjoyable and inspiring meeting.

April meeting will be held at the home of Dorothy Maclean.

Successful Living

Forced Marriage Success Mother-in-Law Resentful

DEAR DORIS — I was at home farming with mother, when my future hubby at 18 came from another town and set up farming close by. As time went by we wanted to get married but the families were so upset each time it came up. We adjusted to the same religion and visited the minister and got advice.

Then I was expecting so we got plans for the wedding. We have made a go of it. We are comfortable as the farm is large and in good shape. We are still very happy with four children.

But the big problem, and our only one, is my mother-in-law always bringing up this having to get married. It's true we did but how else could we marry? I feel they were at least partly to blame.

DORIS CLARK

I just don't know what to say when she repeatedly says that a girl should wait until she's married. Older friends have congratulated us on such a good marriage. — HAPPY HOME.

DEAR HAPPY — What's behind this? Her own less happy marriage? A declaration on the side of virtue to cover up some indiscretion in her past? An annoyance with a son who put something over by marrying in spite of her?

Tell her flatly you never want it mentioned again. And accept my congratulations for making a go of marriage.

PROFILE OF A FARM

"A land without memories is a land without history." — Abram Ryan (1834-86).

"Does a concentrated measure of travel sharply change one's concept of the world?"

Thus we enquired of Mrs. Parrott, who since 1960 has accompanied her husband, Mr. John M. Parrott, on such trips that encircle the globe, or take off for Panama or Europe at various times; the last (in October '63) to Scandinavia and Russia.

"The world since holds, for me, an illusion of unity. Indeed, I couldn't have told you where Mt. Everest was. Now, I've only to close my eyes and see it as our plane in India flew past its snowy height", admits Mrs. Parrott, now convinced a week is plenty of time to prepare for any trip, favors knit suits and drip-dry blouses for travel, and for mementoes . . . something tangible so that when you look at it, you're right back in that spot, which otherwise might be forever forgotten . . ." gathers coffee spoons.

"Why the trip to Russia?"

"We wanted to see first hand, foreign techniques in housing projects", explained Mr. Parrott. "So we joined the Home-building News study tour which included 14 homebuilders and 8 wives. In Europe we found an acute need for more housing. In Russia, the thing is speed. Though concrete, counted 50 cranes from Moscow Airport into town (they make the skyline) still the seem actively on-site. Apartments are made from pre-cast concrete 'parts. The engineering is good. But the design is disappointing and the workmanship wretched. The Russians, however, agree the building is only temporary; by 1980, they say free housing for everyone will be provided and maintained".

But why should the Parrotts be especially interested in a tour on housing?

The answer: Mr. Parrott is engaged in housing projects, on land once a part of the 200 acre Parrott farm. The farmland has played a definite role in shaping Belleville's eastern economy, according to facts gathered by Mrs. Parrott for the Quinte Women's Institute Tweedsmuir History, we read:

"This farm, situated on Highway No. 2 east of the city of Belleville (Lot 12, Concession one, Township of Thurlow) was sold to Edward Carscallen by the Crown in 1805 during the reign of George III, King of England.

"One February 4th, 1859, Johnathon Marcus Parrott, bought from David L. Carscallen Lot 12, Concession One, being 200 acres for one thousand pounds. Mr. Parrott lived and farmed east of Napanee where he lived until his death in 1910. For several years he was Treasurer for the County of Lennox and Addington. He owned seven farms and made one weekly visit to each of them. .

PROFILE OF A FARM

"The Thurlow Farm was divided into three portions, being the North Part, the South Part and a Back Yard which was the southwest corner of the farm. Much of the brick was shipped from Bucke's Kiln (now South Herchimer Ave.) to Oswego, New York, for building purposes. The other two parts of the farm were rented out for farming.

"At one time there were nine houses on the farm for workers and tenants. Bob Snook, George Gay, Redner, Jack George Barlow, LaRoche and Lingham are some of the names. The first creamery in this part of Ontario was built and operated by Stanley Gay. This building stood just west of the big barn and was used as a machine shed. It was torn down in 1959. At the beginning of World War I, the Dominion Government bought a portion of the farm along the Bay of Quinte for a rifle range and used it as training soldiers.

"Fred Stanley Parrott, the youngest son of Jonathan M. Parrott was accountant with Eastman Kodak in Rochester, N.Y., for seven years and returned to the farm in 1903. In January 1947, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Parrott moved to Bridge Street, East, leaving the farm to their son John."

"In 1938, the four lane highway was started, taking some frontage from the farm. In 1947, the Bakelite Factory was built on the south portion of the Parrott Farm. In 1951, the South Thurlow School Area purchased land, at which time the third and fourth rooms were added. In 1957 four more rooms were added and land given. Also in 1957 the southwest seventeen acres, north of No. 2 Highway was sold for a sub-division, now Bradgate Road and Elizabeth Crescent, and sewer, water and hydro were installed and streets laid, where now twenty or more homes are built and lived in, in this Belle-Quinte Development. In May 1958, sewer and water were installed in another subdivision known as Stanley Park Limited, just north of Bridge St. The name originated from Fred Stanley Parrott and Mrs. Parrott's maiden name, Parker.

Melrose Crescent and Parrott Drive, Edgehill Road and Meadowvale Crescent and Bradley Crescent were opened in 1958-59; sewer and water installed in 1961-62. While the Belleville Bowl (bowling alley) opened in 1961, the Scotty Reid Motors Garage and the Ford Garage built and opened in 1962.

"To this day, it is not, to reflect, now and again, how, as the poet says, "life will join with life" since "time is infinite movement without one moment of rest."

Opportunity Shop to Get Trade-ins

A public-spirited Belleville merchant has come up with a new idea which will benefit the Opportunity Shop run by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary in the market square. O'Connor's Jewie Bor is holding a trade-in sale from March 19 to March 31 and all traded-in items will be turned over without charge to the Opportunity Shop run by the Belleville Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Auxiliary members will be in attendance at O'Connor's to catalogue all items traded in and there will be a valuable prize awarded for the most unusual trade-in. Of course, trade-ins must be in the same category as Jewel Box merchandise.

The Opportunity Shop plays an important part in the welfare of the community. It is staffed by volunteer members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary comprising a convener, an assistant convener, a staff convenor, a treasurer, a bookkeeper and assistant, five pricers, four volunteers who pick up donations from all sections of the city, forty sales ladies and twenty sales boys. The shop sells any and all surplus articles which may be of value to someone, including such items as clothing, china glassware, jewellery, toys and furniture. All profits from the shop are used to buy modern equipment for the Hospital and provide comforts for its patients.

The profit for the year 1963 amounted to $5,000 and the hoped-for objective for 1964 is $6,000. To this end the Auxiliary is counting on the interested Belleville citizens to contribute surplus saleable goods. Several other organizations have contributed left-over items from their rummage sales and the Opportunity Shop in turn has sent surplus stock to missions in the Northern areas.

Edmondson was in charge of the worship service with the theme "Easter". Mrs. John Best read the Scriptures and Mrs. Edgar Ray led in the responsive reading.

Business was then put on by Mrs. Byron Harder, Mrs. Harold Hancock, Mrs. Reg. Edmondson and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson. Roll call was taken with 23 members present.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher suggested when we do our spring housecleaning to save all the good used clothing for the Fred Victor Mission. It was decided to send $10.00 to the Overseas Mission Depot for soap and blankets. Cards of thanks were read from Mrs. Foster Christie, Chris Hart and Elise McGrath. Five dollars will be sent to the Festival of Sacred Praise to be held in Stirling.

A new organ for the church was discussed and a committee was put in to look further into the matter.

Ann Landers

Should Advise New Friend On Art of Good Grooming

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 15-year-old girl who needs your help. A family moved to this neighborhood about three weeks ago. They have a daughter my age. I will call her Brenda.

My mother says Brenda looks like a tramp. I agree that my mother is partway right. Brenda wears a monster hair-do and piles on the make-up. But this is just poor taste and has nothing to do with her morals. Brenda is actually one of the nicest girls I have ever known.

If mother got to know Brenda better she would like her. Don't you think it is unfair of my mother to judge my friend from her outward appearance? — DEFENDER.

DEAR DEFENDER — They say "You can't judge a book by its cover" and it's true, because some covers are misleading. But a cheap or shoddy cover on a good book is indefensible and stupid.

If you want to do Brenda a real favor, wise her up.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband pays income taxes hand over fist. He has no interest in anyone except himself, and no interest in anything but making money. I used to have guests over but he humiliated me by yawning in their faces and dozing when they spoke.

One night I invited three couples for dinner. At 10:30 p.m. he announced, "I'm tired. Good night." He turned out the lights and left us sitting in the dark. That was in 1957 and I have not asked anyone over since.

I've always wanted to travel and there is no reason why we shouldn't. We are in the mood and enjoy ourselves. We get as far as the brochures. He nods and lets me think he is serious. When it comes to buying the tickets he gives me ten reasons why he can't leave town.

Is it fair that I should be getting so little out of life just because my husband is a driven, money-mad, stick-in-the-mud? — MRS. BLAH.

• • •

DEAR MRS. BLAH: No, it isn't, and you are a fool if you let him get away with it.

Plan a trip and buy the tickets yourself. Tell him if he will not go you will invite (or your husband will invite) a friend to take your place. (It would be lovely if you chose someone who could not afford a trip.) Then do it and send me a post card.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What do you think of people who call on the telephone and start the conversation with this: "Well, it's about time. I've been trying to get your line for over an hour." Or — "I thought you have a busy telephone. This is the fifth time I've tried to reach you and your line has been tied up."

I always get the uncomfortable feeling that I must tell the caller to whom I have been speaking. When I give out the information I become annoyed with myself. After all, it's really nobody's business and I shouldn't have to make any apologies. My irritation is reflected in the tone of voice I use throughout the conversation and this makes me mad too.

Please tell me what the problem is in the column. I am sure others are plagued, too. — A. K. W.

• • •

DEAR A. K. W. — A busy signal can be frustrating and even maddening after a while. But the mature person copes with the frustration and doesn't get ugly with his friends.

Keep this simple answer by the phone and use when needed: "Yes, I certainly am long-winded. I guess I have no terminal facility — Beyond hope, you might say."

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kiwanis Ladies Tour Vagden Mills

The Kiwanis ladies met for their third meeting of the year at Vagden Mills, where Mr. John Denton, owner of this company, conducted the members on a tour of the plant.

Employees were working, so the group was able to see the machines in operation.

The different types of yarn used, and the knitting machines, each producing a different style of sock, were shown and the whole production, through to the finished fully-fledged sock, was most interesting.

The president, Mrs. Bob Brain, expressed the thanks of the group to Mr. Denton.

Following the tour, a short business meeting was held in the plant office. The main topic of business was the dessert bridge to be held at St Thomas parish hall, on March 19th.

Tranquil Isle of Mallorca Offers Pearls, Peace Charm

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Spain — Many of the world's tourist magnets have chosen to nickname themselves after the most subtly perfect of gems, the pearl.

Manila is the Pearl of the Orient. Cuba is or was once the Pearl of the Antilles. And they tell us Madeira is the Pearl of the Atlantic. But so far as we know, none of these places is known particularly for pearls.

Mallorca is, though for some reason it is not known as the Pearl of the Mediterranean, and someone on the Tourist Board ought to resign for such gross malfeasance of office. It is, however, known as The Tranquil Isle, and perhaps they have a better sticking point there.

Anyway, they make artificial pearls on this largest of the Balearic islands almost in the middle of the Mediterranean, and they are very good. In fact every woman in the world seems to be aware. The sailing trade is at a standstill, the cruise ships land — be it on a Sunday, as ours did, or any other day — and disgorge their locusts on such establishments as Nacar, S.A., and pick the counters clean. If the clerks slow down, the proprietor, Sr. Morales, stands in the center of the floor and blows a whistle. For a few hours the world is his oyster — with a pearl in it.

Those who can tear themselves away long enough will discover an island of estimable peace and charm. Those most astute seekers after peace and pleasant places, retired Britishers, have been flocking here for years.

I believe that Crusaders used it as a way station, and the usual assortment of predatory Romans, Moors and Spaniards spent the usual several centuries fighting over it.

CIVIL WAR BYPASSED

The Spanish Civil War bypassed it, and so did a good deal of civilization. The people of Palma are a mixture of southeast Spain's ancient Catalonian tongue, the Mediterranean sun and Moors. It must be the latter, and it is a happy and prosperous place which never fails to delight visitors.

The soil is uncommonly rich, blooming with almond, olive, fig and grape groves. The landscape is dramatically varied, lined along the north coast by a range of mountains which protects most of the island from the gales of the Provence.

In these hills above the capital of Palma lies the tranquil monastery of Valldemosa, where Englsh authoress George Sand and the composer Frederic Chopin pursued their scandalous romance for several months. Modern day researchers are more inclined to pursue the coast road northeast to Cape Formentor, a spectacular hours journey.

Beyond the calm orchards the road emerges at Puerto Pollensa, the earliest of Roman settlements and now a popular summer resort with a Spanish-accented Cape Cod cast to it. Its lovely curved harbor and sandy beach are graced with fishing boats and yachts much of the year and silver-tiered sunlight pours a glow on the village and its picture-frame of piney slopes.

The road cuts into the mountains to proceed to the tip of the cape and the landscape changes to one of stark and wild beauty. Steep rocky bluffs plunge from the road straight to the sea, and fjords cut deeply into the forested land. At the end of the road lies the oasis known as the Formentor Hotel, a place and classic European-style resort full of flowered verandas and lawns, a glassed-in lounge with a sweeping view of the bay.

NEEDED NO REBUILDING

Palma, with its deep curved balaeric sand promenade, its rumbledown tile-roofed houses that remains of stone harbor fortifications is different from most Spanish cities in that it required no rebuilding after the civil war, its old and new sections intertwine pleasantly, and a walk up a modern rembla may wander into a narrow old cobbled street.

Behind massive brass-bound wooden doors on just such a street we stumbled onto the recently opened Leyanda Hotel, once the hacienda of the Count of San Simon, and unmistakably so. The dining room looks down on a courtyard where only horses are lacking to complete the picture (see illustration view), and a connected restaurant occupies parts of the stable and kitchen. Grand sweeps of staircases carved doorways, lavish furnishings and quiet gardens also grace the hotel.

Strolling the ramblas of any Spanish city is a vital tradition. It is a particular delight in Palma, where the promenades are lined with churrerras fragrant with hot, deep-fried cooked nuts and frying potato chips.

Ramparts of ancient castles dot the surrounding hills and the harbor. Dominating it all is the 14th Century Bellver Castle, built by the island's first independent ruler, Jaime III, King of Majorca. Designed as a circle of rooms and turrents around a central court with Roman statues, it is a rare and finely preserved model of a medieval castle. Its viewing views over the city and harbor in one direction and the mountains in the other, offer a souvenir of Mallorca likely to be remembered long after the price of pearls is forgotten.

Question: Once again I would like to congratulate you for your very delicious recipes and your good work. Would you like to have a recipe for marshmallow cream? — Claire C.

Answer: MARSHMALLOW SAUCE

1 cup sugar, ½ cup water, 20 marshmallows, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Boil sugar and water together for 5 minutes. Melt marshmallows in double boiler over hot water with the cream. Remove melted marshmallows from heat. Stir in boiled syrup until smooth and flavor with vanilla.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Chinese Egg Rolls; Plum Sauce (see Friday); Fluffy Rice; Steam-Fried Mushrooms and Celery; Raisin Squares (see Friday); Cheddar Cheese; Tea.

Question: Please advise me if you have a recipe for date turnovers or date brownies (as my grandmother called them). They had bran or whole wheat flour in them. I don't think there was oatmeal. They were rolled, cut in squares, filled with cooked dates, folded over into a triangle and baked — Mrs. R. A.

Answer: DATE TURNOVERS

Dough: ½ cup soft shortening 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons thick cream or top milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3¼ cups sifted flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda.

Mix shortening sugar and eggs together thoroughly. Stir in cream and vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and stir in. Chill dough. Roll very thin (1-16"). Cut 3" rounds or squares Place on lightly greased baking sheet. Place on each a rounded teaspoonful of date filling: One cup dates, finely cut up, ¼ cup each water and sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened (about 5 minutes). Cool. Fold over like a turnover, pressing moistened edges together with floured tines of a fork or tip of finger, sealing edges well. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 8 to 10 minutes until delicately browned.

Note: This recipe is excellent but I do not think you would do it any harm by substituting ½ cup sifted whole wheat flour for ½ cup of sifted white flour—you would still roll out smoothly. I should add that I have not tried this suggested substitution in the dough.

COLOR IN HOME DECORATION

The old adage, that a room begins to look furnished once the floor and the windows are covered, still makes sense. "Professional decorators advocate plain net curtains and some sort of floor covering for the clients, who find their budgets strained when it comes to those extra rooms in a newly acquired house.

It is usually fairly easy to furnish the main rooms in a house, that is, the living room and bedrooms, because most of us have definite ideas of the effect we want to obtain. If we are moving from one house to another and not establishing a new home, we also have our collection of furniture — good, bad or just plain mistakes. The mistakes we can hope to rectify, or at least, try to learn to love. If that is impossible, we can hope to make replacements. But if we are uncertain about the extra rooms, it is wise to take the decorators' advice and rest a little. Let our new surroundings and needs grow on us before we plunge out on a spree of buying what may turn out to be more mistakes.

Color has become a great assistance to the homemaker who learns to use it widely to obtain atmosphere and effect. Practicality is no longer paramount as it was thirty years ago. Soft sand - beige carpets are now practical, even for the young family with small children and pets. Science has produced carpeting of beautiful soft colors, which actually defy dirt and stains. For seasonal cleaning, the carpeting can be hand-washed with no worry about rinsing or spotting.

Modern heating systems have eliminated dusty air, so that draperies and curtains stay fresh longer than in premiracle days. When it does become necessary to launder window coverings, all of the new synthetics require little or no ironing. Many of them have a built in resiliency that means they resist bent when they are hung while still slightly damp. Colors no longer fade in direct sunlight nor do fabrics wilt.

No one should go blindly out to furnish a room without spending sometime on research into the basic rules of home decorating. Most of us who have established homes, will have missed at least some of the newest developments in the field of synthetic fabrics and fibres. Well-informed salespeople are on hand at all reputable stores selling home furnishings. Their conversation is fascinating and educational.

For the new homemaker, the first role is a knowledge of the composition of colour. The primary colors ar red, blue and yellow — all other colors are blendings and tones of these. Everyone knows that blue and yellow produce green, just as orange is the result of blending red, yellow and purple, comes from a mixture of red and blue. All other colors and shades are blendings and tones of these secondary colors.

There are many books and publications available in our libraries on color and home decoration.

Club Activities

(CONTACT CLUB)

Contact Club of Christ Church held its weekly meeting presided over by vice-president, Betty Teed. A short business period preceded a work meeting. The missionary film which was scheduled, has been postponed until next week at which time the members of the Shannonville, Point Anne W. A. and E.W.A. of Christ Church will join Contact Club in viewing the film called "Kenwith District of the N.W.T." It was decided that the members of Contact Club will donate $10 to the Junior Auxiliary, to help toward a bus fare to their rally.

The plans for the pot-luck supper for March 23rd have been completed, also all details for the confirmation are settled.

The latter part of the evening was a be-have of production, with the completion of the tokens for the Confirmation Class. Material for doll clothes was sorted into different categories of usefulness.

Hostesses for the evening were Sandra Stevens and Dot Montaigue.

M.P.P. Visits Union School

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Rose Reid and pupils of S.S. No. 16 Rylstone marked education week with an interesting program at the school last last Friday evening. Jack Spencer was chairman and Don Pollock of Havelock, municipal supervisor of the school was in charge of the musical numbers including three numbers by the school children. They also enacted a skit entitled "Dull Days".

A debate by four ladies provided much interesting, instructive and humorous. Those taking part were: Mrs. Clarence Thompson and Mrs. Frank McKeown on the affirmative and Mrs. Clifford Spencer and Mrs. Jack Spencer for the negative. The subject was "Resolved that Church should be taught in Public Schools" and was so well argued that results ended in a tie. Judges were Mrs. Murray Mathieson and Mrs. Harold Stapley.

Russell Row M.P.P. and a former teacher at the Union School was present and renewed acquaintances with many of his former pupils. He spoke briefly on the new public school area and consolidated schools.

Messrs. Wilfred Spencer and Thomas McKeown both spoke briefly, after which refreshments were served by the ladies.

MAIL CALL

Question: I am attending a formal reception soon, and want to wear a few pieces of family jewelry. The reception is for the 25th wedding anniversary of my aunt and uncle. Since they gave me the bracelet and ring in question, I'd like to show I wear them occasionally. The ring has a high setting and is difficult to fit under gloves. May it be worn over the glove, instead?

H. F., Hackensack, N.J.

Answer: A bracelet may be worn on the outside of a glove, but it's not considered good taste to display a ring so ostentatiously.

Question: Every time I'm asked to lunch or dinner in a restaurant I always feel I'm expected to eat a full meal — soup, entree, salad, the works — especially when my date grasps me to do so. Most of the time I'd rather settle for just the entree and some coffee, but I'm afraid to appear ungracious by passing up courses. Must a guest keep pace with her escort's appetite, or is it permissible to order only what she really wants? If a woman declines a course, does her escort automatically feel he has to skip it, too? — E. G., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: It's more polite to skip courses one really doesn't want than to order and then just nibble at the food. If a guest prefers to have an abbreviated lunch or dinner, it's permissible to do so. Men generally are understanding about this. Occasionally, one may feel he should limit his menu, as well, but if a man is normally — usually is not — and should not be — intimidated by his companion's comparatively meager appetite.

Some people think electric heating is expensive. These people don't. They have it.

Mrs. Marjorie Allen, North Bay, Ontario
"I wouldn't have anything else. On cost we feel we are much ahead of any other fuel we have used in the past. You could not ask for more features as you like. If you're cold it's your own fault!"

Mr. B. Hogendoorn, Orillia, Ontario
"We have been living in our electrically-heated home for three years now and we haven't had a worrisome day in the house! We have seven rooms and our heating cost per year comes to about $175.00."

Mrs. R. Willis, Peterborough, Ontario
"I think electric heat is more economical and a lot safer than other types to heat with. Our heating cost last year was $126.66. I'd recommend electric heating to anyone buying a home."

Mr. C. W. Cooper, Toronto, Ontario
"We expect to heat our four-level home for less than $200.00 this winter. And one of this hot and cold business . . . the heat is even."

Mrs. John McKevitt, Port Arthur, Ontario
"The general temperature here in the winter is 15 to 20 degrees below zero and our heating cost compares favourably with our neighbours who use other systems. We're happy that we chose 'electric heat.'"

Mr. C. Bonjo, London, Ontario
"We have ten rooms in our home and I'm surprised the heating cost is so low. Electric heating is a nice even heat . . . quiet . . . we don't even know it's there."

Mr. Joseph Greer, Windsor, Ontario
"I was worried electric heat might be much more expensive . . . but we decided on it because of the cleanliness. Our total electric bill for our six room house, including lights and appliances, was only $218.00 for the year."

Mr. Earl Pritz, Kitchener, Ontario
"Our electric heating cost is approximately $165.00 to heat six rooms, two recreation rooms and a laundry room. I have never had a furnace who has electric heating say that they would go back to some other system."

Mrs. W. Malowsy, Thicio, Ontario
"Our heating cost last year was between $230 and $240. When I tell people that, they seem surprised. The biggest advantages are not having a furnace to worry about, and it's much cleaner."

Electrically-heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. With all its advantages, is it any wonder so many people throughout Ontario are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system. If you are buying or building a new home, it will pay you to learn how electric heating can add to the comfort of your home and to the value of your investment. ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME—If you are planning home extension or if parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

Central Bank Policy Aimed At Providing Easy Credit To Help Economic Expansion

OTTAWA (CP)—Central bank policy in 1963 was aimed at supporting economic expansion in Canada with easy credit, Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky reported Friday.

That he made it clear in his annual report tabled in the Commons that this policy depended on the strength of Canada's international position—its trade earnings and foreign capital inflows.

The direction of monetary policy in 1963 "helped to prevent the credit demands associated with the continuing growth in economic activity from giving rise to an inappropriate tightening of credit conditions," Mr. Rasminsky said.

The result: A "substantial" growth in both chartered bank assets and the money supply.

Chartered bank assets rose by $1,250,000,000—9.6 per cent—including a 17-per-cent jump in personal loans by the banks. The money supply—bank deposits and currency held by the public—rose nine per cent to $16 981,000,000.

Tracing the course of monetary policy through 1963, Mr. Rasminsky said that at the start of the year, the prospects for future world inflows influenced "the pace at which the bank felt it could move in encouraging easier credit conditions."

The reason for this view: Canada was running a large balance-of-payments deficit on current trade in goods and services and substantial inflows of capital were needed to cover it.

RATES DECLINE

Capital inflows did develop strongly, the central bank reduced its bank rate to 3½ per cent from four per cent and Canadian interest rates generally fell.

Mr. Rasminsky said the mid-July announcement of the United States interest equalization tax on American investments in foreign securities created "a wave of uncertainty and apprehension" in Canadian financial markets.

Even with the promised exemption for new Canadian securities issues from the tax, it was evident that due to uncertainties U.S. investors wouldn't buy sufficient new Canadian securities until the U.S. equalization legislation was passed.

The result was a downward pressure on Canadian bond prices and higher interest rates. The central bank raised its bank rate to four per cent on Aug. 11 but explained that "this change did not signal a basic alteration in monetary policy."

Then came the mid-September announcement of major wheat and flour sales to the Soviet Union.

This "dispelled immediate concern about the possibility of renewed foreign exchange difficulties for Canada." Bond prices rose and interest rates declined.

"For the remainder of the year, the bank was able to frame its policies on the basis of a firm foreign exchange position," Mr. Rasminsky said.

The year ended with interest rates and the availability of credit "about the same . . . as they had been at the beginning of the year."

Mr. Rasminsky underlined the importance of the year's increase in personal loans by the chartered banks. The 17-per-cent rise—up $271,000,000 to $1,869,000,000—is largely accounted for about half of the expansion in chartered bank loans.

Discounting seasonal factors, business loans tended to decline until July, but in the second half of the year they rose at an average annual rate of 13 per cent. This reflected a build-up of business inventories and expanded bank lending for real estate development and preparatory financing of construction.

Chartered bank loans to farmers rose 14 per cent in the year as a loans to municipalities rose per c barred cameras during the 22-day trial. There also will be live radio broadcasting of the decision.

Over the four-year period 1960-63, chartered banks' personal loans had risen at an average annual rate of 19 per cent; the average rise in farm loans had been 13 per cent and in business loans nine per cent.

During the final five-hour session in a jam-packed courtroom —where all but a few spectators remained to the end—District Attorney Henry M. Wade and his three aides said "American liberty is on the trial."

Chief Defence Counsel Melvin Belli and his two assistants argued that Ruby is a sick man—a very sick man." They urged the jurors to "send him where he belongs." Presumably, they meant a mental institution.

Ruby killed Oswald in the Dallas police station Nov. 24. Oswald was accused of assassinating president Kennedy. Ruby's defence is temporary insanity.

Belli said before the final summations he did not believe the jury would take long to arrive at a verdict. He said he thought the verdict might come in today or Sunday at the latest.

Texas law provides that a jury can deliberate on Sunday and come in with the verdict on Sunday.

The protracted night session began after an extraordinary day.

11 FINAL WITNESS

The final witness, Dr. Frederic A. Gibbs, finished testifying at 9:57 a.m. An extraordinary 10-hour gap followed.

The delay occurred because defence counsel objected to much of the language in Attorney General Tonahill's proposed charge to the jury. In this procedure, the judge explains the law, and the alternative verdicts the jurors may reach. In Texas, lawyers consult with the judge before he delivers the charge.

When the session finally reconvened at 8:05 p.m., Assistant Defence Counsel Joe Tonahill said 139 exceptions to Brown's phraseology had been filed.

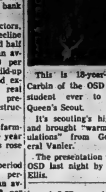
Greek-Cypriots who had been standing by ready to repel the threatened invasion went to bed as news reached Nicosia of the impending arrival of the advance party of the UN peace keeping force.

Acting Foreign Affairs Minister Mrs. Stella Soteriou made the announcement of the departure of the Canadian vanguard for Cyprus has "greatly reduced the threats of Turkish intervention."

TORMIES IN MIDDLE

British Tommies in positions between the warring factions joked, sunbathed or cleaned weapons.



What did they think of UN troops arriving to help keep the peace?

"The best of luck to them," answered one British private.

The British have been spat on sloned, cursed and even shot at on several occasions. They returned the fire a few times.

The Turkish statement Friday said Turkey "welcomed the developments" and "warmly congratulations" from Governor-General Vanier.

The presentation was made at OSD last night by Mayor Jack Ellis.

This is 18-year-old Clifton Carbin of the OSD - - its first student ever to become a Queen's Scout.

Lamontagne Favors Move to Decentralize

By JACK PICKETS

HALIFAX (CP)—A decentralization of the federal government would allow it to play its own role more efficiently, State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne said Friday.

Mr. Lamontagne, in a speech devoted to English-French relations during the last century, said he did not share the view that the central government would be weakened if it withdrew from some fields and concentrated on others.

Specifically he mentioned culture "where we have followed the American policy of population concentration closely" with the result that Canadian culture is weak and too closely American.

Scouting activities

THOMASBURG — Last Friday evening approximately 140 persons gathered in the Anglican parish hall, Roslin, on the first anniversary of the organization of Thomasburg Scout group and Cub Pack, which was sponsored by the Scout group committee, and took the form of a potluck supper.

Akela Leader, Mrs. Cubs and their parents many distinguished guests were present and at the head table, seated were: president of the Moira Valley District Scout Council, Capt. Thompson, Mrs. Thompson and family; the Rev. Gordon Black, rector of Roslin Anglican Church; Mr. George Dyson, pastor of Thomasburg charge; District Commissioner Joe Irish and Mrs. Irish, Cubbing; Assistant Commissioner Gordon Russell and Mrs. Russell of Hathaven, Mrs. Isabelle Martin, Noble Grand of Crescent Rebekah Lodge, which organization sponsors the Scouts and Cubs; Mr. Allan Howell, Cubmaster; Mr. William Cook, Scoutmaster; Mr. James Seekings, president of the group committee and Mrs. Seekings, secretary treasurer of the group committee and Master Jimmie Seekings, representing the Cubs, who welcomed everyone in a most capable manner.

The business meeting of the group committee followed the supper and opened with the reading of the financial report and a resume of the past year's activities.

President James Seekings thanked the leaders and the committee whose untiring efforts along with splendid cooperation of the boys and their parents during their first year of Scouting were termed an unqualified success.

Captain Thompson gave a concise and interesting address on the subject "Fitness Through Scouting" with one especially significant remark, "As you enjoy God's wonderful nation, do not forget God Himself who made it". District Commissioner Joe Irish spoke briefly re-stating that Thomasburg Scout group and Cub Pack were the newest groups in the district and definitely one of the best.

Assistant District Commissioner Gordon Russell brought to the state of officers for 1964 as follows: honorary directors, George Dyson and the Rev. Gordon Black; chairman, James Seekings; vice-chairman, Sam Fisher; secretary, Mrs. Sam Fisher; treasurer, Mrs. Don Geen, and directors, Don Geen, Daniel Walker, Gerald Morton, Harry Martin and Gerald Thompson.

An additional director from Cubs, Mrs. Isabelle Martin, Noble Grand of the Rebekah Lodge, which sponsors the group, will be appointed by the Lodge later. Mrs. Isabelle Martin, Noble Grand of the Rebekah Lodge brought greetings and expressed best wishes for the continued success of the groups.

Scoutmaster William Geen reported that two Scouts Dick Ward and Andy Walker were already second class Scouts. Steven Fisher had already acquired three badges and two stars.

A film on the life of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Scout movement was shown with the projector and screen kindly loaned by the Bell Telephone Company.

The next committee will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Morton., Thomasburg.

Claims Mussolini's Diary Tells of British Warning Of Possible Soviet Attack

FLORENCE (AP) — An Italian historian claims he has found a 1943-45 diary of Benito Mussolini telling of a British warning that Soviet troops might invade Italy through Yugoslavia.

The alleged author of the warning, Field Marshal Earl Alexander, denied he had sent such a message.

Sunsel said the documents were in the files that Mussolini took with him when he tried to flee to Switzerland in April, 1945. Italian partisans caught Mussolini and killed him. Whatever papers he had vanished.

Authenticity of Sunsel's documents, his not been established, but he said they cover the period from April, 1943, to April, 1945. The Italian Neo-Fascist party newspaper Il Secolo wrote that the contents disclosed so far correspond accurately with known events in Mussolini's last days.

ADOPTION OPPORTUNITIES

Many fine happy children are in the care of Ontario's Children's Aid Societies. Boys and girls are available for adoption. They need new mothers and fathers who will accept them as their own.

FOR PROTESTANT FAMILIES

BRYCE is a clean cut and pleasant-looking lad. The type of son to be proud of. He has hazel eyes, brown hair and a clear complexion. He had a heart ailment, but now can lead a normal life. He plays of a hockey team and is a keen sportsman. He is an excellent student and would like to be a lawyer. Bryce is in Grade 10 at 14 years of age. This boy wishes to belong to a family. If you are an older couple you would be most fortunate in becoming Bryce's parents.

NOREEN is a 15 months old Protestant baby with a relaxed, good-natured temperament. She is a bright and attractive baby with brown eyes and hair and some Negroid facial features, from her Canadian and coloured ancestry. Noreen likes other children and would fit into a warm-hearted family setting.

SARA is a petite avell built Protestant girl with brown eyes and hair, and of average appearance. She has good intelligence and is vivacious and outgoing. Her nationality is Greek and she is 12 years old. Sara needs warmth and attention from older Protestant parents. Are you the parents for this attractive 12 year old girl?

MARGOT is a Protestant Anglo-Saxon and Dutch girl of 2½ years. She is slight and dainty with blue eyes and curly brown hair. She has fine, even features and is attractive looking. The pupil of one eye is slightly enlarged, but this does not affect her sight or detract from her appearance. Her intelligence is high and she is active, independent and temperamental. There is a history of mental illness in her background and the couple adopting this child must be aware of this.

FOR CATHOLIC FAMILIES

TOM is an active, alert baby of four months who is developing well. He has brown eyes and hair with an olive complexion. He is Anglo-Saxon and Iberian Indian. This young Roman Catholic lad will need bright parents to keep up with him as he grows ahead.

CORA has an attractive, slightly orbital appearance, and is a lovely Roman Catholic baby of 20 months. She is a happy, good-natured little girl with dark eyes and hair and a clear complexion. Very little is known about Cora's background, but she is developing at a good average rate.

ALFRED is a contented, happy Canadian Roman Catholic boy of 1½ years. He is a sensitive lad and would be unhappy with aggressive, noisy parents. Al is a healthy boy with good mental ability and an unassuming manner. He would like quiet, gentle parents.

TIMMY is a dear little, Roman Catholic Dutch boy of 16 months. He has brown eyes and hair and a round face with an alert expression. He is a bright boy interested in everything around him. Timmy would be happy to be adopted now.

Married couples, interested in adopting these or other children, ask your local Children's Aid Society, or write to:

A Lift for Living

Intertwined Human Roots Help in Times of Crisis

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Several years ago as acquaintances of mine purchased and "beautified piece of property on the shadow-dappled rim of one of Michigan's largest inland lakes. His location was heavily wooded, so in order to clear a building site he hired a bulldozer operator to push over most of the trees with his heavy equipment. When the trees had been uprooted, they were sawed up and the trimmings were burned. All that were left were a few choice spruces, balsams and white birches. Then in the clearing a house was built with a breathtaking view of the lake. But before many months had passed, a ground-soaking rain, lasting several days, saturated and softened the resorter's lawn. Then followed a day of fierce, howling winds, and most of the choice trees the resorter had saved for beauty's sake toppled to the ground. He had not realized that the roots of the choicest trees had been intertwined with the roots of the trees he had ordered removed. When the dispossessable trees were bulldozed off the property, the root systems of the beautiful evergreen and graceful birches still standing were disturbed, wrenched and weakened. Rains and winds completed the havoc the bulldozer had started.

One way human beings build power for surviving crises is through joining the roots of being with the roots of others around them. In this way the strength of others supports us and our strength supports others. A friend has developed in modern psychiatry to counteract patients into wholesome associations with good personalities. Psychiatrists and psychoanalysts have come to see that the treatment of a patient as a solitary problem-person is inadequate. If he is to gain strength, it must come from somewhere and a good source is the goodness of his fellows.

Public worship is such an experience of the roots of the spirit urgently reaching out beyond and through the staunch roots of others. Worship is a fellowship of faith. Through prayers and anthems and scripture reading our faith moves in the faith of others of times past. We exercise a "communion of saints" in which our hope is reinforced by another's hope. Our trust in God is no longer a long, solitary thing, but part of a thoroughly interwoven network where our reasons for trusting are augmented by the witness of many another be lever. Testimony supports testimony. Faith is faith. We see that we do not stand alone in our struggle to be better; there are others with us.

PROVIDE MEANS

Books provide means for intervening the roots of our lives with the roots of the great people of history.

One of the secrets of successful living is to make the habit of reaching out for fellowship with the highest, most wholesome people we know — the triumphant, the wise, the humble, the self-forgetful, the creators of the beautiful and the appreciators of beauty, knowing that they have something of value for us as did One who promised, "My peace I give unto you."

In addition to seeking out such people, we must aim to be the kind of person who strengthens others. We must be the kind of persons from whom others can derive power.

Apple Growers Will Vote On Proposed Levy for Use In Promoting Ontario Sales

PICTON (Staff)—"An apple a day"—in essence, this is what the apple growers of the province are trying to impress upon us more apples—Ontario apples.

On Friday morning, at the Agricultural Board room, a meeting was held between members of the Prince Edward Apple Growers and members of the Department of Agriculture. This meeting was to "tee-off" the vote that will be held at the Bloomfield town hall on April 8th.

At this voting meeting, the members of the Apple Division of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association will be asked to vote on paying a levy of 3c per bushel on fresh apples—4c per cwt. on all process apples, except juice apples, and 5c per cwt. on all juice apples.

This money would be used by the association to promote the use of Ontario apples, in Ontario. The levy is expected to raise about $80,000 annually.

There are about 175 commercial apple growers in the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington, who are expected to attend this meeting.

Harold Bonter, a local grower, and vice-chairman of the apple division of the association, and Ross VanVlack, another grower, and also a board member of the association, attended the Friday meeting.

B.C. SELLS HERE

Mr. Bonter, said: "B.C. apples have been well promoted all over Canada and they are selling their produce right under our noses, especially the Delicious variety. They have almost cut us out of the market."

According to figures supplied, there are about 4½ millions of bushels of apples grown in Ontario each year. Forty percent of this crop is used in various processing plants, with about half, or 20 percent, going into apple juice.

Further figures revealed that in the United States, about 140 millions of bushels of apples are produced, as against 20 million bushels in Canada. Ontario produces about half as many apples as British Columbia.

A levy of so much per bushel is in effect in New York State and has been in effect in B.C. since 1933, where the levy is 10c per bushel, and it is planned to raise this to 12c this year.

"We have to sell more apples and apple products in Ontario," Mr. Bonter added, "as we have lost a lot of our export markets. They are growing apples now all over the world."

Speaking on apple consumption, he stated that in Ontario the consumption is about one-third of that of some countries. "In some places in Europe they consume on an average, 30 pounds per capita per year, in Ontario I don't think it would be over five or six pounds," he continued.

In Prince Edward County, there is an average of 350,000 bushels of apples grown each year, by far the largest crop of any fruit or vegetable. This brings an estimated $700,000 into the county each year.

Saskatchewan Plans to Build 23 Hospitals

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan plans 23 hospital projects and provision for the costs in the 1964-65 budget will help raise health department spending estimates by about four per cent.

Health Minister A. E. Blakeney said Friday about 10 new hospitals will be built. However, construction will not necessarily go ahead in the coming fiscal year at all 23 centres.

Health legislation also was under discussion in the New Brunswick and British Columbia legislatures.

British Columbia's proposed new mental health act won the approval of opposition parties but some New Democrats and Liberals suggested the act might not go far enough in modernizing mental health facilities.

The bill, introduced by Health Minister Eric Martin, received approval in principal.

It calls for decentralization, expansion and modernization of existing facilities.

In New Brunswick, Opposition Leader C. B. Sherwood urged the government to give "utmost consideration" to a brief recommending the establishment of an alcoholic rehabilitation centre in the province.

He said he felt the idea was "most reasonable" and suggested that between 2½ and five per cent of the province's "enormous" liquor revenues could be channelled towards such centres in various parts of the province.

Group Travel Planners Elected

C. N. TRAYNE — K. 'KING' PINN — DEWAR SCOTT

There is an increasing awareness, among both business and social groups, of the savings available through Canadian National's Group Travel Plans. Several organizations have elected officers solely responsible for travel arrangements. Mr. C. N. Trayne, Director of Travel for his company's Sales Group, commented on CN's Charter Coach plans this way: "They allow my colleagues to save time and money. For example, a group of 50 people travelling in their own coach, can save as much as 33%. And we have an entire coach to ourselves. You can't beat this bargain." Mr. K. 'King' Pinn saves club funds by taking advantage of all the rock-bottom Red 'Bargain' Days . . . and saves a further discount of 10% to 20% by using CN's Party Fare Plan for groups of 10 or more people. And Mr. Dewar Scott summed it up, "We've got ourselves a real bargain with CN's Group Travel Plans. We can even charter our 'own' sleeper for overnight trips. It keeps our group together — and solvent! There's no doubt why I was elected Travel Officer!"

Emancipated From the Cape to Cairo

A Nationalist Africa Seeks Its Own "Personality"

During the last eight years the tide of independence has swept over Africa at an incredible pace. In this story a Canadian Press reporter discusses the men and problems involved in this revolution.

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—In less than a decade, Africa's political face has changed almost out of recognition. It has also changed color.

Eight years ago there were four independent states ruled by non-whites — Egypt, Ethiopia, Libya and Liberia.

Today, except for a handful of Spanish and Portuguese enclaves scattered down the west coast, there are only four countries left under white control—South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Portuguese Angola and Mozambique.

The tide of nationalism—Arab and African—has flowed south faster than anyone thought possible a decade ago.

Of the four great European empires that once largely shared Africa, three—the British French and Belgian—have fragmented into a network of independent states. Only Portugal retains her African empire, outwardly intact, inwardly beginning to crack.

With the breakup of the Central African Federation, black Africa now rolls right down to the south shore of Lake Zambezi, impatiently shoving its shoulder against the bulwarks to the south.

CAPE TOWN IS PRIZE

In an ironic reversal of Cecil John Rhodes' Cape-to-Cairo imperial dream, this vast continent—big enough to hold Canada three times over with room to spare—is reverting to native ownership. Cape Town, nestling at the southern tip, is the ultimate prize coveted by Rhodes' pan-African successors.

These are turbulent times for the new leaders of Africa. The continent is awakened from its long sleep to be plunged almost overnight into the terrifying world of power politics and jet-age technology.

Aggravated by Africa's age-old racial splits and a desire to taste the material fruits of independence, these pressures tend to erupt in revolts and mutinies. Often stable and progressive native governments, as in Tanganyika, are threatened.

The chain reaction of violence in East Africa that drove whites to ask ruefully if the Union Jack was pulled down too soon. To these people the word Congo tolls like a warning bell. The former Belgian colony that became a headache on Independence in 1960 was indeed a bungled handover. And even now, with Premier Minister Cyrille Adoula presiding over a nominally united country, peace may be hard to maintain when the last UN troops leave in July.

CAN'T TURN BACK

But most commentators agree the clock cannot be turned back. Aside from moral arguments, Britain probably had to get out of East Africa while she still had some goodwill and trust.

There is much impetus behind the nationalist tide to suppose that it can be contained indefinitely above the Victoria Falls.

Along with this onrush of emancipation has come a thrusting search for what is sometimes called the "African personality." It is often this, as much as straight anti-colonialism, that the strident tones of nationalism are trying to express. They want to assert the Negro's voice in the world.

African leaders feel tomorrow is theirs. The trouble is that in steady over-anticipation, many have promised the moon and their followers expect to have it delivered along with independence.

Some leaders have tolerated the training of underground movements—so-called "freedom fighters" who in mobilizing for some future assault against the white south must also be regarded a danger to established moderate governments.

COMMUNISTS ACTIVE

Such movements are fertile ground for the Communist technique of backing selected troublemakers to create confusion for an eventual coup. This groundswell, pushed along by Chinese or Cuban propaganda, may have provoked the revolts that flared from Zanzibar across East Africa.

FACES OF AFRICAN INDEPENDENCE — These men are among the leaders in the rapid advance of African independence from white rule. They are: (top, from left) Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, comprising one-fifth of Africa's 225,000,000 Negroes; Sekou Toure, president of Guinea, and aggressive socialist; Felix Houphouet-Boigny, president of the Ivory Coast, architect of the anti-communist Monrovia bloc; (bottom, from left) Kenneth Kaunda, 39, of Northern Rhodesia, youngest prime minister in the Commonwealth and champion of moderation; Kwame Nkrumah, left-leaning president of Ghana, and Julius Nyerere, president of Tanganyika. (CP Photo)

In Tanganyika, though President Julius Nyerere is personally opposed to violence, Dar es Salaam has long been a free port for such movements. Lusaka in Northern Rhodesia may become another.

What are the Communists up to in Africa? Observers divide their aims into two phases:

1. Short-term rabble - rousing by trained guerrilla fighters, designed to produce chaos, basically pro - ideological. Russia, China and Cuba all seem to have a finger in this strategy.

2. China's skilful long-term campaign for the political soul of Africa, aimed at aligning the colored, have - not nations against the white, highly industrialized societies of Russia and the West.

So far African politicians have proved impervious to the lure of Communism, as indeed to any other outside propaganda.

They do not intend to become embroiled in the Cold War, partly no doubt because of economic self-interest but also because they are uninterested in foreign ideologies. Even those who have flirted with Communism aid, like Guinea's Sekou Toure, sooner or later revert to a neutral position.

INTEREST IN EEC

Gen. de Gaulle's recognition of Peking is unlikely to alter this basic attitude in the cultural block of African states linked with France - Community stores are more indifferent than the growing number of states in north and east Africa showing a practical interest in the European Economic Community.

One example, Algeria, under her left-wing but non-aligned leader Ben Bella, has been assiduously wooed by Chou En-lai, yet recently put out a feeler to the Common Market. Since withdrawing independence in 1961, she faces a crushing task of reconstruction.

Nigeria, led by federal Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, has gone further in EEC negotiations, a sign that old fears of neo-colonialism are fading.

Nigeria's decision to seek economic links can be seen as part of a pattern created largely by one patient, pro-Western African statesman — Felix Houphouet-Boigny, president of the Ivory Coast and a mellow diplomat of 58 who formerly represented his country in the French parliament.

He is the architect of the so-called Monrovia bloc, mainly composed of former French possessions in the equatorial belt but joined in 1961 by Nigeria, a Commonwealth member.

LEAN TOWARD EUROPE

Monrovia is anti - Communist and favorable to Europe, directly opposed to the militant Pan-African nationalism of the Casablanca block—Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco and the United Arab Republic.

Among its leaders are some engaging figures, notably jovial President William Tubman of Liberia, who runs his exuberant country as a family business, and Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, a persuasive voice of compromise and reason. Nose holds the prestige of Houphouet, who nonetheless has often had a tough job justifying his friendship with France.

Like Bourguiba, he found his ideal of a North African 'special relationship' with the Fifth Republic in ruins after the battle for the Bizerte military base.

On the domestic front too, Houphouet's task is hard. Not only must he compete with the emotional appeal of Casablanca policy; his "liberal economy" which allows French businesses to operate profitably on the rich Ivory Coast often is compared favorably with the aggressive socialism of Ghana, Guinea and the U.A.R.

His success or failure, say African pundits, could have continental implications.

HOPE FOR FEDERATION

Commonwealth countries in Africa do not form nearly so solid a bloc as the former French colonies: their leaders are as diverse as Sierra Leone's gentle, intellectual Dr. Milton Margai, a democratic parliamentarian, and Ghana's dictatorial, left-leaning Kwame Nkrumah. There is no lofty figure like Houphouet-Boigny to induce a tolerant unity.

The prestige of Kenya's revered old prime minister Jomo Kenyatta has probably weakened since he had to call for Britain's help in quelling the pains of independence. The same has been said of Tanganyika's Nyerere, long regarded as a mature influence, and of Milton Obote, the more lightweight premier of neighboring Uganda.

What now, it is asked, will happen to Nyerere's projected East African Federation, the bids for influence, he is seen as the pioneer of "positive neutralism," a policy now embraced by most newly - fledged Negro leaders.

In 1958, when Guinea voted to withdraw from the French Community, President de Gaulle acted against an earlier promise by stopping French aid. Sitang, Sekou Toure turned to Moscow and for some time cultivated Communist ties.

Then in 1961 he coolly expelled the Soviet ambassador, expressing dissatisfaction with Russian tactics. The following year he visited Washington, described President Kennedy as "very aware of African problems," and began to seek wider acceptance for the concept of African neutrality.

One man who has influenced Africa more by sheer personality than by any ideology is Gamal Abdel Nasser, socialist pharaoh of the new Egypt.

He has been in effective power longer than any of the nationalists, since the 1952 revolt that overthrew the Farouk dynasty. When he defiantly nationalized the Suez Canal in 1956 he became a hero in Afro-Asian eyes — a role sealed and straightened by the Anglo-French armed intervention.

PROBLEMS AT HOME

Nasser has shown he regards himself as a leader of the African as well as Arab world. In his book The Philosophy of the Egyptian Revolution, he stresses Egypt's African heritage, and has made Cairo a fermenting cask of Pan-African politics.

But his preliminary designs for Arab unity fell apart and lately he seems to have been developing himself in domestic reforms. Whether he has shelved his wider political dreams, he still wields great personal adulation in Africa; his photograph is seen pinned up on walls from Libya to The Congo.

The star of Kwame Nkrumah, sometimes called the Lenin of Africa, has been waning steadily. Leader of the first black state to emerge from colonial rule (in 1957), Nkrumah was early hailed as a pacesetter in African nationalism.

But even in a land that naturally leans to one-party rule, Nkrumah's aggressive style has made him many enemies. The rule of one strong man is often accepted as necessary to heal tribal splits, but Africans look with increasing unease on the way Nkrumah is shaping Ghana into a Marxist-style dictatorship.

SURFACE CALM

In contrast to the turmoil of black Africa today, white-ruled Southern Rhodesia seems deceptively calm. But the calm is only skin-deep.

The African movement, nominally led by Joshua Nkomo, is split and indecisive, while helpe Winston Field's right-wing government to spurn demands for a reformed constitution. This is a state that can hardly last once the two northern territories of the old Federation establish their independence and begin boosting their brothers across the Zambezi.

If there is one unchanging feature in the swirling flux of modern Africa, it would seem to be "Old Man Granite" Verwoerd, as the cartoons depict him, the Afrikaner patriarch who took South Africa out of the Commonwealth in 1961 and made it a full-blooded Boer republic.

A messianic apostle of segregation, who views his political acts as expressions of God's will, Hendryk Fresnch Verwoerd has given a mystic, almost fanatical quality to the policy of "baasing"—white supremacy — inherited from Johannes Strijdom in 1958.

3rd ADD XT—4 Nationalist.

MAY COMPROMISE

Yet even political enemies credit him with long vision. He may be in process of evolving his derided "Bantustan" policy —self - governing African communities within the white—into something approaching a full-scale partition of the country.

Though Verwoerd has called 50-50 partition "sheer foolishness" and that is the only percentage likely to satisfy African opinion, it is notable that the Afrikaner journal Die Burger has begun to prepare public opinion in this revolutionary direction.

One event bound to influence Verwoerd's long-term thinking is the fate of South-West Africa. This year or next, the International Court at The Hague is expected to withdraw South Africa's 44-year-old mandate to govern the former German colony.

Fearful of the prospect of UN occupation and of the country becoming a springboard for subversive forays into the republic, the Verwoerd planners are busily promoting a scheme to make South-West Africa into a string of independent Bantustans.

PREDICTS TAX RISE

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto Finance Commissioner G. Arthur Lascelles predicted Friday Metro property taxes will continue to rise for the next 10 years. He said the rise would be steep each year until 1968, but would then become more gradual until 1974 when taxes would level off for a period.

HUGE CONTINENT — The continent of Africa is big enough to cover Canada three times over, with room to spare. Canada's total land and fresh water area is 3,851,809 square miles. Africa's total area 11,700,000 square miles. (CP Photo).

The Golden Years

Man Has Retirement Nestegg Thanks to This Little Trick

By THOMAS COLLINS

You might feather your nest for retirement if you will adopt a technique used by some of the shrewd that sell you merchandise on the instalment plan.

George W. Evans, who did it — and thereby was able to swap a cold apartment for a house beside an orange tree at 68 . . . tells how it's done.

"When some of the storeys sell you a bedroom suite, a piano or refrigerator," he says, "they set up a time payment plan for you calling for payments of something like $40 a month. Then they put a yellow tab on your credit card that will pop up just two months before your last payment.

"A salesman is notified. He invites you to the store, and makes a big pitch to sell you something else for $40 a month. You're already budgeted for it. You're accustomed to paying it. After a year you hardly miss it anymore.

"It's good psychology on the part of the store, and it often works . . .

Mr. Evans made it work for him when the last of his three children finished college. He was 56 at the time. He made it when his mother died.

"For almost 10 years Mamie and I had been stinging to get the kids through college," he explains. "Skimping had become a way of life. We started out paying $900 a year for the first child, jumped to $1800 when two of the kids doubled up on us in college, then wound up with the last child at a flat $1200 a year.

LIKE $3G RAISE

"Suddenly we were free of the long burden. It was like getting a $1200 raise. And we were so used to getting by without this particular $1200 that we didn't really need it . . ."

So Mr. Evans, assured of basic security in retirement with pension prospects of $240 a month, decided to tab the $1200 a year for investment in stocks.

"I made a deal with a broker to turn over $100 a month to him, on the same basis I had been supplying it to the child in college, and he was to put it in specified Blue Chip common stocks. Mamie and I never missed it because things went on as they had for so long . . .

He picked a good list of stocks. And it happened at a good moment in history -- from the mid-fifties stocks were doing fine. When dividends started coming he turned them back into more stock. And when his mother died, the $50 a month he had been giving toward her support for seven years went the way of the college money. The Evans household didn't miss that either.

In the nine years from the time Mr. Evans bought his first stock until he retired at 65, he had put roughly $15,000 into the pot. Thanks to the dividends that he reinvested, and the strong growth of some of the stocks, he reached 68 with slightly more than $34,000.

NO MORE CHANCES

"It was now time to stop taking chances, which you do when you buy common stocks," says Mr. Evans. "So I sold the entire lot of common stocks and put the $34,000 into bonds and preferred stocks, for an average return of 4¼ per cent.

"Now I had a reasonably safe income of $130 a month from here on, in exchange for giving up $100 a month for nine years, and $20 for seven. And to boot I had $34,000 to leave my children, or spend if I wanted to."

Kidding yourself into saving money in this fashion is a little silly for people whose hair is turning grey. But in most cases it works. Putting money into common stocks to build a retirement nestegg is gambling, under conditions you can't control. But if a person will have a pension that will keep him if he loses the savings, it's not a bad gamble. Not, when the country and its better corporations are vigorously growing, when inflation is a constant threat and common stocks are one of the few investments that can ride inflation, and when a person can expect to be alive for a long time yet.

Transmission Noise Not Panic Matter

By EUGENE E. WILMOT

Some drivers will never notice a slight slide in gas mileage or a drop in car performance, but everyone seems to be all ears and ever alert to odd sounds. Automatic transmission noise is apparently a big worry — according to my mailbag — and most of the time, the noise is referred to as a "hum."

With most transmissions, slight hum or whine is more or less normal in neutral or in park, and no special service attention is needed. In some cases, the hum may also be heard when the transmission is shifted into reverse. Here again, this doesn't mean that anything is wrong. However, if a hum or whine occurs in drive gear or low gear, it bears investigating. Very often, insufficient transmission fluid is the only trouble . . . but obviously, it could be much more serious, especially if the condition has existed for some time.

E. G. asks: "What, in your opinion, is the most compelling reason for good car care — better performance or better economy?"

The fact that good care . . . mean the filter which screens out the entering the crankcase or the engine oil filter which filters out the oil itself. In either case, however, changing at 8,000 to 4,000 miles intervals are recommended.

ESTIMATED FAMILIES

The estimated number of families in Canada's 19 provinces on June 1, 1964 was 4,238,000, an increase of 98,000 since the 1961 census.

From R. H.: "Permit this . . . a dirty carburetor air cleaner burns engine operation and gas economy, apart from overlooking the most serious . . . part?"

You must mean the shortened wear on parts caused by dirt, grit, dust, etc. which enter the engine — and you are absolutely right about its seriousness.

K. A. asks: "How often should the crankcase drain . . .

CANADA DRY PEPSI-COLA SUNCREST ORANGE

January 25, 1964

General Motors Products of Canada,
Oshawa,
Ontario

Gentlemen:

For years I have used Chevrolet trucks for my city and country deliveries. I have always had really good service from them, with very little trouble. I recently traded a 1958 one-ton model which had cost only $200.00 in repairs since new. A 1957 unit only $200.00 in repairs since new. A 1957 truck which I bought new is still running well with original parts throughout. From engine to rear axle, everything is original.

This kind of long service has convinced me that I buy the right trucks when I buy Chevrolet. Gas mileage is better than on any other make of truck I have owned, and my drivers tell me that there's lots of power there for their heaviest loads.

A multi-stop operation such as mine is hard on all parts of a truck but from my previous experience, I know my new Chevrolets will stand up to the job.

Yours very truly,

Mel Hill

January 26, 1964

Dear Sirs:

I have worked for Mel Hill Beverages since 1952. In 1954 I took over a new Chevrolet cab-over-engine which I drove until it was traded on a new Tilt-Cab Chevrolet.

During the time I drove the old truck, there never was a major mechanical failure. That was a good truck, but my new one is far superior in every way. Visibility and handling for city driving is outstanding, and the power steering is great. The truck will turn on a dime and is very stable when loaded or empty.

The 292 engine is tremendous, it's got lots of power, runs very smooth and quiet, and the performance is there when you need it. The suspension is really excellent and very smooth in stopping, and the emergency brake is ideal and well situated.

From my driving experience, I feel that Chevrolet trucks can't be beaten and are the best for our kind of heavy load multi-stop jobs. I make 40 to 50 calls a day and know how hard that is on a truck in city traffic.

Yours truly,

Richard F. Zimmerman

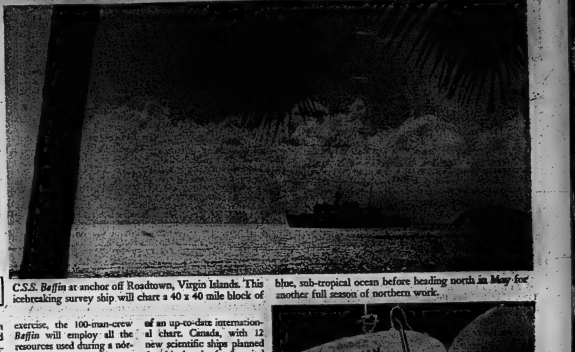
Training Cruise Has Three-fold Purpose



Canadian Scientific Survey Ship in Caribbean

With the jarring crunch and grind of the arctic icefields left far astern, Canada's major survey ship Baffin is spending the winter churning up the tropical-blue waters of the sunny Caribbean. Objectives for this January-to-May southern venture for the hard-working Baffin include the charting of a 2,000-square-mile block of ocean containing the British Virgin Islands, the testing of Canadian-designed oceanographic instruments in what is considered an ideal oceanic research area off Aruba, South America, and the invaluable training which will be gained by Canada's young hydrographers who spend summer seasons defining vast stretches of forbidding arctic seas, sailing from Halifax, Nova Scotia, the Baffin, with Canadian oceanographers and hydrographers aboard, called at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute at Cape Cod, embarked three U.S. oceanographers and their equipment, sailed through stormy North Atlantic winter waters to emerge into the brilliant sunshine of the balmy south. After placing a self-contained party ashore in the Virgin Islands to establish geodetic control and commence offshore launch soundings, the Baffin sailed for Aruba, Netherlands Antilles, where Canadian and U.S. oceanographers are setting up special equipment in deep water to study interaction effects between air and water. In March, the Baffin is to sail back to the Virgin Islands for a full-scale hydrographic survey. In this exercise, the 100-man-crew Baffin will employ all the resources used during a normal four-month arctic season: deep and shallow-depth sounding machines, high-precision electronic position fixers, two helicopters, five sounding launches. All these will be used during an overall training operation that will provide the added bonus of an up-to-date international chart. Canada, with 12 new scientific ships planned for this decade, faced a vital need for skilled personnel. Training cruises with a purpose, such as the Baffin's, will help fill this need, assure Canada a leading place in the newest, most exciting field of world exploration—oceanography.

Map shows Baffin's Caribbean route and usual arctic work area.

Garden Notes
Let's Talk About Little Roses

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The floribunda roses are smaller than the hybrid teas and the grandifloras, but what they lack in size they make up in numbers. They are suitable for bedding since they bloom continuously through the season and the dwarf types make excellent edging plants for rose gardens. They are good for mixed borders and for planting among evergreens.

Many have compact bushy forms that can be utilized to form a low hedge. The plants are hardy and strong with blooms starting in June and continuing until frost.

There have been many good varieties introduced in the last few years. They need the same extra care as the larger roses, light pruning when all danger of frost is past and a feeding two or three times during the growing season. You can use bone meal or a complete chemical fertilizer. Apply the first feeding early in June and at three week intervals. Do not feed after mid-July. This allows new wood to harden before frost and helps to avoid dieback. Dig a shallow trench three inches deep and about four inches out from the stock. Apply fertilizer into trench and work in lightly with trowel. Soak the soil around plants with slow soaker or hose reduced to a trickle to carry the fertilizer down to the roots. Be sure to keep fertilizer and tools away from stock and root.

PEST CONTROL

Dust or spray every two weeks with multiple pest control chemicals. If the weather is warm and humid apply pest control more often.

Fashion is said to receive more consistent approval than any other floribunda rose. The buds are pointed as a tea rose and the blooms open to deep coral-peach.

Circus was an All-American award winner. It presents a gay pageant of red, orange, buff and yellow.

China Doll starts early and continues into October. The bush is one foot high and the cheerful bright pink blooms come in clusters. Glossy, mildew resistant foliage, fine for edging or low hedge.

Frensham received the American Rose Society gold medal. It is deep crimson, well formed blooms and vigorous plant. Presents a continuous supply of flowers. Good anywhere. Bushy plants are three feet high.

Golden Slippers is two tone with small pointed buds of orange red and yellow. Flowers in large clusters.

Jimminy Cricket has tangerine buds which open to coral-orange and finish coral-pink. Well branched and shapely bushes. The leaves are lustrous bright green and disease resistant.

THE MINIATURES

Cricri is a real treasure. The dwarf bush produces an abundance of blooms in carmine-rose to sandy-rose. The name is derived from the sound of the cricket.

Colibri is one foot high and has a wide spreading habit with orange blooms held erect on compact bush. A real beauty.

Baby masquerade blooms from May to November. Tiny yellow blooms turn pink and finish red on eight inch plants.

Red Imp has deep red blooms of outstanding quality. It is the most pleasing of the red miniatures and is very hardy.

Rosada is seven to eight inches high with deep rose-pink blooms that have a lovely peach tinge. Foliage small and bushes compact. Blooms profusely and continuously.

RENOVATING FORT

DARTMOUTH, England (CP) The 400-year-old Bayard's Cove Fort, which stands near the point where the Mayflower sailed from this Devon town, is being renovated by the works' ministry. Old cannons will be restored and, once again point out across the harbor mouth as they did in the 16th century.

Habs, Hawks Clash In Big 'If' Battle

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

In one corner you have Montreal Canadiens, who haven't won a game in five tries. In the other, Chicago Black Hawks, who haven't won a National Hockey League title in 37 years.

It adds up to a clutch game at the Montreal Forum tonight as the Hawks come to town with a slender two-point lead over the floundering Habitant.

Chicago, with four games remaining to Montreal's five, could come close to clinching the championship by defeating the Canadiens and going on to beat the Red Wings in Detroit Sunday. If Boston Bruins obliged by downing the Habs at Boston Sunday, the Hawks would be only a point away.

By the same token, a double victory for Montreal would put Canadiens back in the driver's seat.

The third-place Toronto Maple Leafs, who open a home-and-home weekend series with New York Rangers at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight, also have their playoff hopes at stake. They're two points ahead of Detroit and can use all the points they can get against the fifth-place Blueshirts.

SPOTLIGHT ON MONTREAL

But the spotlight rests squarely on Montreal, where the Canadiens, who have been a welcome addition to the fan's all-season, have suddenly lost their scoring touch.

"We have to score more goals," coach Toe Blake said Friday. His club's last two outings were a 7-0 defeat at Toronto last Wednesday night and a scoreless tie in New York the previous Sunday.

The presence of Glenn Hall in the opposition net offers scant hope for improvement.

In the course of winning four to Chicago's six with three ties over the season, the Montreal sharpshooters have been outscored 36-35, beating Hall for an averages of two goals a game. The most he's ever allowed them on a single night is three.

The Hawks' themselves have lived through a slump of magnificent proportions in the course of which they blew a seven point lead in early November, to get into their present dogfight with the Canadiens.

Two weeks ago the shoe was on the other foot, with the Montrealers dead level with Chicago and with three games in hand. That was when the Habs started their slide.

YOUNGSTERS TOO ANXIOUS

Frank Selke, Montreal's managing director, traces it to the club's youth. Rookies such as Jacques Laperriere, Terry Harper and John Ferguson made their debut in the surprise of the season. But, says Selke, they have become over-anxious in the stretch drive, making errant plays that have been costly.

Tonight's game, the Hawks have had considerably more rest than the Canadiens who blew their last game of the Leafs Wednesday night.

Since last Sunday night, when they edged Detroit 4-3, the Hawks have been idle.

The Bruins recalled young Don Awrey from the second Hershey farm club in the Central Professional League Friday after learning that captain and veteran defenceman Leo Boivin will be lost for the club's three remaining games.

Boivin suffered a fractured right ankle when checked by Gordie Howe in the second period Thursday night at Detroit. The Wings won it 2-1.

Clinch Victory With 7-1 Record

Alberta Legion Curling Champs

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta captured the Royal Canadian Legion national curling championship for the second successive year Friday with a 5-4 triumph over New Brunswick.

The victory left Dunc Grant's Calgary rink with a record of seven victories and one defeat after eight rounds of the 10-link round-robin competition. Only one round remains to be played today and all six rivals have lost at least three times.

Last year's winner was Pete Hunt of Edmonton.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Prince Edward Island enter the final round tied for second place with records of five wins and three losses each and Quebec has one win in eight starts.

WALLOP QUEBEC

In other eighth-round matches British Columbia strapped Quebec 9-3, Prince Edward Island edged Manitoba 9-7, Ontario battered Nova Scotia 15-5 and Saskatchewan clipped Newfoundland 11-5.

Ontario skip Rudy Steski of North Bay had no difficulty against the Nova Scotia rink led by Frank Hoar of Truro.

The 10-end total today, Quebec was drawn against Manitoba, New Brunswick against Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island against Newfoundland, Ontario against Alberta and Nova Scotia against British Columbia.

In seventh-round games Friday, Alberta downed Saskatchewan 13-9, Prince Edward Island topped Nova Scotia 7-4, British Columbia bounced Manitoba 9-4 Newfoundland tripped Ontario 9-8 and New Brunswick stopped Quebec 11-6.

Nags Will Bounce on Rubber Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Horses won't trot or pace down the stretch five years from now, but will bounce, prodigy John J. Mooney, general manager of The Jockey Club.

By that time, race tracks will be rubber, he said.

He said the club is already looking into this for Toronto.

Mooney said it would be the greatest boost to the racing industry since John Dunlop of Belfast invented bicycle tires in 1888.

"Tracks would have more bounce to the ounce," he said. Horses feet and legs—always a tender spot with horsemen—would be able to stand up better to the long racing season, he said.

There is already one rubber-surfaced course in operation just outside Pittsburgh. It is owned by Delvin G. Miller, a millionaire harness owner, driver and trainer.

He said the club has investigated the possibility of paying its new track in St. Catharines with the new product called tarpan. The cost would be more than $1,000,000.

He said this would push the over-all cost to just under $4,000,000 for the new plant, "which at this time would be a little too high."

B.D. Softball League Holds Meet Sunday

The organization part of what may well be a "make or break" season for softball in this city will get under way tomorrow afternoon when the Belleville and District League holds its first meeting of the season.

The meeting will get under way at 2.30 p.m. sharp, at Club Canara, and all interested persons have been invited to attend.

Several local softball enthusiasts have voiced the opinion that "we must get back to five or six teams, including two or three top clubs from outside Belleville, in order to continue to operate." Invitations have been forwarded from league Commissioner Ralph's office in Cobourg, Picton and Trenton parties. Earlier this week no replies had been received but Balch hopes to see representatives of all these teams at Sunday's meeting.

Belch, who has handled the bulk of the loop's business for the past two seasons, also feels that new blood is necessary at an executive level. He hopes to see a full slate of executives elected shortly, possibly tomorrow if enough interested persons turn out.

At any rate the meeting is a very important one and all clubs are urged to have representatives. The April 3-4-5 OASA convention in Owen Sound, will also be discussed. Several local men will be attending the affair.
